EIGHT HUNDRED DIE IN MONTEREY FLOOD.

Fifteen Thousand Homeless, Property Loss Twelve Million Dollars.

Mexican City Cut Off from Outside World and Left in Darkness, But Disaster Is Known to Have Been Terrible and United States Is Appealed to for Aid. Railways Paralyzed.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

MONTEREY (Mex.) Aug. 28.—Eight hundred persons have been drowned as a result of a flood, which still continues. Fifteen thousand people are homeless, and the damage is not less than $12,000,000. The city is in darkness.

Among the losses are:

The Monterey Steel Company, $1,000,000; the Mexican Smelter and Lead Company, $3,000,000.

The city begs aid from the United States.

The scene in the flood-swept section of Monterey tonight is one of utter desolation. Four city blocks on the south side have completely disappeared.

For seventy-two hours rain has fallen in unprecedented volume throughout this section and the Santa Catarina rose gradually all day Friday, the rest of the flood reaching Monterey early today. At first it was thought that there would be no loss of life, but the water had reached a height never before attained and swept buildings from their foundations by the score. The electric light plant was put out of commission last night and complete darkness has an added horror.

Cries of the drowning could be heard, but the onlookers were powerless to render aid. When daylight came, the scene was indescribable. All through the flooded districts groups could be seen huddled on the tops of two-story buildings entirely surrounded by a seething mass of water. One by one these houses appeared with their human freight. Nothing could live in the wild current which was running at the rate of twenty miles.

FLOODS BEGIN FALLING.

During the early morning hours the water remained stationary and it was noon before a fall of four feet began. By 4 o'clock this afternoon the river was back in its banks, only to go out of them again at 6 o'clock because of the continued downpour of rain. The great steel plant at Monterey suffered a loss of nearly a million dollars by the flood and the smelter of the Mexican Land Company is cut off from the city and submerged. It is estimated that the loss at this plant will be over three million.

The Santa Catarina River runs almost directly through the center of Monterey. Along its right banks is located the suburb of San Luisito, inhabited by the poorer element. It was in this section that the greatest loss of life occurred. For the great part the suburb is composed of one-story adobes.

When the flood waters struck these buildings they collapsed as though composed of paper and buried their inmates beneath a mass of débris in such a manner that they had absolutely no opportunity to escape. Many families remained in their dwellings until compelled to seek refuge on the roofs, but too late, for they found themselves entirely surrounded by water and at the mercy of the raging stream.

For many months throughout the year, the Santa Catarina River is a dry bed, absolutely devoid of water, but during the rainy season it becomes an important stream.

The Santa Catarina River has broken its banks and flooded a large portion of the city on both sides. No Americans were drowned.

The food situation in the city is very serious, as no rail connections are left. The flood has destroyed the water mains and the city's abbatoirs.

PARENTS DROWN TO SAVE CHILDREN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MONTEREY (Mex.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Hundreds of people were drowned in a terrific rainstorm which broke over the city early this morning and continued during the day. The property loss will run into the millions, while train service through Monterey is paralyzed.

The cloudburst this morning was the climax to rains which have been falling here for several days. People in the San Luisito barrio, where heavy damage was done and lives were lost on August 10, were panic stricken last night, and in this district the greatest loss of life occurred. The total number that perished in the storm is not known.

Men, women and children were caught by floodwaters as they hurried from their homes in the threatened district, and were drowned. Heroic efforts were made by parents to save their children, and in many cases they perished while trying to make such rescues.

In Arramberri street, the general east and west drain water rushed in torrents to the depth of several feet, emptying into the Santa Catarina River bed, which was lined with jacals and other humble dwellings.

The river separates the San Luisito barrio from the main portion of the city, but when the bridge to the main section of Monterey was swept out, hundreds of people were left stranded in the low land, and drowned before help could reach them.

Industrial plants along the river were washed out, and property damage is greatest in that district, although the general heavy downpour throughout the city did heavy damage as well as washing out considerable track of the Mexican National.

Despite the terrible loss of life and damage to property, the people of Monterey continue to watch the political situation. Gen. Bernardo Reyes, who is supposed to be in his retreat, has not resigned as Governor of the State, but his resignation is expected any day.

APPEAL TO UNITED STATES FOR HELP.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 28.—Between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning, a tornado struck inland from off the Gulf over the States of Tamalipas and Nuevo Leon, after devastating part of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. The storm was followed by the most disastrous flood ever experienced.

It is reported here that the city of Bogdad, State of Tamaulipas, has been badly damaged. Nine bridges and more than fifty miles of track have been washed out on the Pan-American Railway. Two Indian villages in Tamaulipas have been wiped out, and the lighthouse at Tampico swept away. No damage was done to shipping in the harbors of Vera Cruz and Tampico.

Latest reports state that 125 miles of track on the National Railway has been washed out in Nuevo Leon and Coahuila. Railway officials here admit twenty-five miles and twelve bridges are gone, and all available wrecking trains are being sent north.

A special dispatch to the Herald says that the flood is the greatest since 1881. The steel works and big smelters have been destroyed or badly damaged. There will be no railway communication for at least a week. The society of the American colony held a big meeting tonight at which resolutions were adopted appealing to the United States and other powers for aid.

CITY ONCE MORE CUT OFF.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LAREDO (Tex.) Aug. 28.—Communication with Monterey was reëstablished over a poor wire at 11:45 p.m., tonight, and the Associated Press secured the first direct line with that city. Early estimates as to the loss of life as sent out from Laredo were practically confirmed. A few details of the horror of the situation were received, and then in half an hour the sole wire between this city and Monterey failed again, cutting off the possibility of further news tonight.

THOUSAND LOST, FIRST REPORTS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LAREDO (Tex.) Aug. 28.—Word reached here late this afternoon of one of the most disastrous floods ever known in Northern Mexico. It was caused by the overflow of the Santa Catarina River. According to rumors, many lives were lost, some estimates being as high as 1000. This is believed to be a gross exaggeration. The financial damage is estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

For the last forty-eight hours, a veritable deluge of rain has been falling, which, together with the flow of water from adjacent mountains into the Santa Catarina River, so swelled that stream that it reached a width

HIGH, CONTRARY WINDS BALK ZEPPELIN PLANS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—A series of accidents to motors and propellers and contrary winds, combined to keep Count Zeppelin from fulfilling his promise to visit Berlin in his airship on August 28. The Zeppelin III is now at Bitterfeld, having started from Friederichshafen at 4:30 a.m. Friday.

The delay, however, will only last one day, for the Count tonight announced his intention of leaving Bitterfeld about 7 o'clock tomorrow morning, thus arriving at the capital at noon in the airship.

The eventful voyage started from Nuremberg, ended this evening, and the crippled craft landed in the presence of many thousands of spectators. Crown Prince Frederick William and Count Zeppelin were together at the anchorage and immediately telegraphed to the Emperor, requesting instructions as to when he desired the vessel to come to Berlin. The Emperor replied:

"Come tomorrow early."

It was difficult to convince the public that Count Zeppelin was not coming tonight and the streets and public places continued to swarm with thousands of expectant people.

More than a hundred special trains had brought crowds from the country districts.

The scene this evening at the landing place at Bitterfeld showed what is likely to happen at Berlin tomorrow. The crowds could not refrain from enthusiasm and broke through the cordon of troops surrounding the airship.

PRESIDENT TAKES DIP.

In Yale Blue Bathing Suit Goes for Swim in the Atlantic.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BEVERLY (Mass.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] President Taft took his first dip in the Atlantic Ocean since his arrival on the north shore. He went in swimming as unostentatiously as he does everything else.

Charles Sackett, his physical instructor, was his swimming companion. He went in from the beach near the President's pier, and swam to the little inlet behind the Evans stables, now used as the President's garage.

Mr. Taft swam with the graceful stroke so common among big men. He went through the water easily with the sailor breast stroke, and was an exceedingly husky looking specimen of humanity in his Yale blue bathing suit.

Few of Beverly's "rubbernecks" saw the Presidential swim.

FLAMES WIND-DRIVEN.

Slight Fires Swept Into Roaring Furnaces by Strong Gales Threaten Vast Forests.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Aided by strong east winds, slight fires, which started in several localities east of Portland this evening soon became roaring furnaces and threatened vast tracts of fine timber, residences, mills and barns. By nightfall a large section was filled with fire fighters armed with blankets, sacks, buckets, shovels and almost any implement available, in an effort to stop the rapidly rising flames.

But little could be done with the fires, which seemed to spring up simultaneously in different localities as long as the hard wind continued, and it was not until the wind had died away late tonight there was any chance for the fire fighters.

There are still two large fires burning, which still threaten damage. Hundreds of people are fighting the fires, which, in some localities, are at the city's very gates. Thus far only fences and underbrush have burned.

STRIKERS THREATEN BY MAIL.

Situation at McKee's Rocks Tense; Workmen Quit; Authorities Anxious.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 28.—The situation today throughout the strike district of the Pressed Steel Car Company at McKee's Rocks was tense.

Cards, threatening death, are being received through the mails by minor officials of the company.

Wholesale desertions of imported workmen yesterday and, subsequently, stories told by the men of alleged brutality accorded them inside the plant, have served to create resentment among the strikers and their sympathizers.

Troopers, deputy sheriffs and special police are content to remain close to the mill today. Large gatherings of men along the Ohio River bank near the plant are not disturbed by the troopers, who claim the workmen are outside their jurisdiction.

The borough authorities, an inadequate force at best, believe any movement on their part out of the question.

AMERICAN FLIES OFF WITH GRAND PRIZE.

Glenn H. Curtiss in a Wonderful Flight in Which He Smashes the World's Record For Speed Wins International Cup of Aviation.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—News of the winning of the international aviation cup at Rheims today by Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, was received in aeronautical circles and by the general public here with great delight, and preparations will be made to give Curtiss a hearty demonstration on his arrival from abroad. The American winner of the James Gordon Bennett trophy is expected to reach New York the middle of next month.

BETHANY AVIATION FIELDS, RHEIMS, Aug. 28.—The international cup of aviation, known also as the James Gordon Bennet trophy, was won today by Glen H. Curtiss, American aviator, in the fastest aërial journey of twenty kilometers (12.42 miles,) ever accomplished by man.

His time—15m. 50 3-5s.—was only 5 3-5 seconds faster than that made by Bleriot over the same course. The other two French pilots, Latham and Lefebvre, finished respectively in 17m. 32s. and 20m. 47 3-5s. Cockburn, an Englishman, ran into a haystack as he was maneuvering for the start, and did not cross the line. There were no other starters.

The race lay between Bleriot and Curtiss, with Latham as a possible outsider. Lefebvre on previous performances apparently had no chance. Fortune favored the American. An accident two days ago to Bleriot's powerful and fast machine, with which he held the lap record, met a serious handicap, and he had no opportunity to try out the repaired machine.

Curtiss stole a march on his rivals by getting away early. Finding conditions favorable at 10 o'clock in the morning, he decided to take no chances in the fickle weather, and after a trial trip, in which he made the circuit of the course in 7m. 55 1-5s., lowering the world's record nine seconds, he started immediately on his attempt to win the cup.

MASTER OF MACHINE.

He handled his machine in masterly style. The first round, measuring 6.21 miles, was made in 7m. 57 2-5s., and the second round was covered in 7m. 53 1-5s, a world's record. This remarkable showing on the part of the American created consternation in the Bleriot camp.

Lefebvre, in a Wright biplane, but without hope of winning, flew over the course, but his time was five minutes slower than that of Curtiss.

Excitement grew steadily as 5 o'clock approached. Bleriot's and Latham's machines were run out. A few minutes later they crossed the line in quick succession. Bleriot went by the tribunes at a terrific pace and finished the round in almost the identical time of Curtiss' fast lap, covering the ten kilometers in 7m. and 53 3-5s., but his speed seemed appreciably to decrease on the last round and before he reached the final turn, the stopwatches showed that he had lost.

The French crowds were greatly disappointed at the failure of their countrymen, but largely because of the popularity of the Wrights, in France and the general French recognition of the wonderful stimulus Americans have given to the science of aviation, no foreign victory could have been so popular as that of an American.

RUN UP STARS AND STRIPES.

The judges immediately ran up the American flag and the bands played the "Star Spangled Banner." There was great rejoicing among the American spectators.

Ambassador Henry White, accompanied by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, Quentin and Archie, arrived in time to witness the flights by Bleriot and Latham.

When the American flag went up Curtiss, who had refused to accept congratulations until it was officially announced that Bleriot's time was slower than his, was escorted, or rather, dragged, from the shed to the Ambassador's box by several hundred enthusiastic Americans. Mr. White's first words were:

"I came to see you win and you have done it."

The Ambassador congratulated Curtiss in the name of the government and the people of the United States, and then presented Mrs. Roosevelt and the other members of a large party, who added their congratulations. The entire party then visited Curtiss in the shed, where the hero of the hour got into the seat and explained how the machine was controlled. Later the party witnessed the starts of Bleriot, Lefebvre, LeGrande and Bunau-Varilla.

They saw Bleriot just at dark clip 5 2-5 second off Curtiss's fastest round in the international race in a ten kilometer flight in the lap speed contest, making the distance in 7m. 47 4-5s., which is a new world's record. They also saw Henry Farman, who yesterday won the Prix de la Champagne, add to his laurels by carrying two passengers around the course.

CURTISS JUBILANT.

As Curtiss stepped from his machine after having completed his two rounds, he said he thought he had given his rivals something to worry about.

He said these two laps of the 10-meter course were the fastest and roughest journey he had ever made in the air.

"In front of the tribunes I was going steady," he explained, "but when I got to the back stretch I experienced a most remarkable atmospheric change. There was no wind, but the air seemed fairly to boil. My machine pitched and I was almost thrown out of my seat. Under ordinary conditions this curious condition of the air would have prevented my starting, but after the splendid time I made in my trial and considering the circumstances, I could

Mr. Schiff came a parently with the idea of ascerta ing just how ill Mr. Harriman is. did not talk business, and when left he said:

"Mr. Harriman is better."

Whether the decision not to oper on Mr. Harriman was reached beca his physical condition would make operation unwise, or whether no o eration is necessary, must remain u answered as long as the Harrim family retains its policy of rigid lence. Mr. Schiff departed outwardly fied, and spoke with a ring of si ity in his voice.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Aug. 28.—The stories told by the survivors of the Ohio disaster who arrived s today on the steamer Rupert y, are full of praise for the officers d crew of the Ohio.

The three members of the Ohio's w who perished—Purser Frederick J. ephens, Wireless Operator George C. cles, and Quartermaster Albert M. derson—gave their lives to save se of the passengers.

The soldier who was drowned, said to Doc Hayes, bound for Fort Liscum. m Columbus, Ohio, was wedged in stateroom by the twisting of the p.

The Ohio's own crew took the pas- gers to the shore of Carter Bay and n rowed to Swanson Bay where the libut fishing steamer Kingfisher was anchor. The Kingfishe hastened to rter Bay, took the shivering pas- gers and crew on board, fed and thed them, and conveyed them to anson Bay.

Anchor was hoisted at once and under full steam the fishing vessel set off for Carter Bay, which was reached at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. As the Kingfisher slowed down the fishermen manned their dories and in a minute the bay was dotted by the little craft making for the rocks. In forty-five minutes every one of the passengers and crew, with the exception of Capt. Johnson, the mate, chief engineer and boatswain, these electing to stand by the wreck, were transferred to the Kingfisher, which immediately became a scene of hospitality, concerning which the passengers are enthusiastic.

FLAPJACKS TASTE GOOD.

"Flapjacks never looked so good to me before," said one, "and Jack, the cook, was turning them out at the rate of a hundred a minute, I should think."

The fishermen gave the refugees warm clothing and their sodden rags were dried out in the engine room. The Kingfisher made the run to Swanson Bay in an hour and forty-five minutes, and by the time she got there clothing was dry, passengers were fed, and altogether they took a more hopeful view of the situation.

By this time the Rupert City was hurrying to the scene, and the 131 people were transferred to her and brought to Vancouver. The Humboldt took twenty-two of the passengers who wished to continue their journey north.

The known dead are Operator George C. Eccles, Purser Frederick Stevens, Quartermaster Albert E. Anderson, a soldier and a steerage passenger. Anderson lost his life in an attempt to rescue the soldier, who was bound for the United States Alaskan posts. Anderson went to the man's cabin and was trying to get him out, for the door had jammed after the collision, and the soldier was caught like a rat in a trap. Anderson was seen to take an ax and smash at the door, and as he disappeared after that there is little doubt that he sacrificed his life.

PRAISE FOR FISHERMEN.

"I never saw a steamer's smoke with greater joy than when the little Kingfisher came in sight," said Mrs. C. D. Murane of Tacoma, who, with her three little sons, was among the rescued. "For five hours we sat on those awful rocks through the pouring rain, and it was the absence of light as much as anything that made it seem so terrible. When the Kingfisher came into the bay I nearly cried, for in a minute the bay was full of dories and those good men were looking after my children. They could not do enough for us, and although we wanted to give them some sort of testimonial, the men would not take a penny from us. Even Jack, the cook, who was so terribly overworked, would not take any money."

Mrs. Murane was en route to Valdez to join her husband, and was taking up several head of stock and farming implements.

Mrs. Ira P. Rumsey of Chicago stated that there seemed to be an absence of discipline among the crew.

"The officers worked hard, but the men did not seem to know what to do. If they had only got those boats in the water as fast as the fishermen threw their dories over the side we would perhaps have felt more comfortable."

While passengers were singing the praises of the Kingfisher's crew, Mr. Hager, manager for the owners, passed along the promenade deck of the Rupert City. He was pointed out and at once surrounded by people tendering their thanks through him to the Kingfisher.

The Ohio will probably become a total loss, for she had more than forty carloads of rails among her large cargo, and with the enormous hole ripped in her hull, the crew believe there is little chance of raising her.

HOW SOLDIER DIED.

M. Reeves of Merced, Cal., said:

"I was the room-mate of the soldier who lost his life. When I heard the call for everybody to get up, the soldier and I awoke simultaneously. I did not wait to put on my clothes, but went out right away. The soldier waited to dress. The ship had listed when she struck on another rock after reaching Carter Bay, and after I got out of the cabin, the door was wedged and locked the soldier in.

"I was talking to him and trying to assist Quartermaster Anderson to do something. I passed Anderson on my way back from the companionway. He was carrying a lantern and trying to aid the soldier. I was going to call more aid as we were not strong enough to break in the door. The ship suddenly began to settle and I raced for the upper deck.

"Just as the ship was sinking, I leaped off and saw Anderson with his lighted lantern, just coming up. That was the last I saw of him."

Capt. I. P. Rumsey of Rumsey & Co., Chicago grain dealers, said:

"If the Ohio had gone down when she first struck, everybody would have been drowned.

"After reaching Carter Bay we struck again. Some people at once swam off to the nearest shore, but on account of the cliffs could not make a landing. Luckily, the boats were got off in time to take all the women and children."

SHADES OF SHAKESPEARE!

PRINCE MENELIK DRAWS ON KING RICHARD III FOR CURSE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A remarkable plea for American interference in the affairs of far-off Abyssinia has been addressed to a Chicago paper by Prince Johannes L. Menelik of Adis Abbeba. The curious, richly-phrased manuscript ends with a violent curse upon England—a curse said to be typically oriental in its imaginative wording and its sustained invective.

The spectacle of a youth arrayed politically against his King is presented in the Prince's glowing words, written in broken, often chaotic English. The Prince, who lays claim by right of heirship to future possessions of the throne, is the leader in what might be called the "young Abyssinia" movement against the policies of old Menelik II, the Emperor, and his conservative council.

Men who have lived in the Far East felt sure, they said, of the authenticity of the document when they saw the Abyssinian postmark and most of all when they read the letter itself.

After announcing that he will soon visit the United States personally to try to enlist this government in his fight against the encroachments of England, Germany and France, Prince Menelik describes the tense political situation. Abyssinia, the old kingdom of Ethiopia, always has maintained its independence, often at the price of blood, but it is surrounded by colonies of powerful nations. The English in Egypt and in British East Africa lie to the north and west and south; east and southeast along the coast stretches Somaliland, under the control of Italy, England and France. To the northeast, touching Egypt and completing the circle, is Eritrea, an Italian colony.

Sheltered in their high mountains and on their desolate tablelands, the Abyssinians have, alone of all East African natives, been able to repel foreign invaders. At present, buffeted by England and France, old Menelik II has confused the situation worse than ever, it appears, by seeking aid from Germany. Prince Menelik and the younger generation, fired by ancient traditions and memory of warlike ancestors, rebel against these foreign encroachments. Unable to prevail in the East, the Prince has written to interest the United States in this cause.

The eloquent curse on England, which is based on lines by Queen Margaret in Shakespeare's "King Richard III," and which forms the Prince's peroration, follows:

"We shall leave out thee, stray dog of England, for thou shalt hear me. If heaven have any grievous plague in store for my race exceeding those that I can wish upon thee, O let them keep it till thy sins be ripe, and then hurl down their indignation and the trouble of the whole world. Peace, the worm of conscience, still gnaw thy soul. Thy friends suspect for traitors while England thou livest And take deep traitor for thy dearest friends. No sleep close up that deadly eye of thine unless it be whilst some tormenting dream affrights with a hell of ugly devils. Thou elvish, marked, abortive, rooting hog. England, thou that has sealed in thy nativity the slave of nature and the son of Satan. Thou rag of honor. Thou do I detest."

Difficulty was experienced in mastering the Prince's oriental English.

WOMAN CATCHES BURGLAR.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Roy Burke, a Chicago bellboy who arrived in this city a few days ago, was surprised early today while ransacking the room of Mrs. Marie de Pauli, wife of the proprietor of an apartment house.

The woman grappled with the intruder and alarmed the household. Burke escaped into a bathroom and Mrs. de Pauli turned the key in the door, making him a prisoner. Burke attributed his attempt at burglary to lack of employment.

SIGNIFICANT BUSINESS GAIN.

During the seven months of business ending July 31, 1909, The Times made a gain of 2782 columns of advertising over the same period of 1908. This is an average monthly gain of 397 columns, and approximately 10 per cent. The aggregates for the respective periods named are 30,656 columns for this years as against 27,981 columns for last.

The figures are a sure indication of the arrival of the prosperity wave. The Owens River enterprise, San Pedro annexation, the enormous loans and investments made by large eastern insurance companies in downtown business property, and the great influx of people from abroad, all point toward the sure and permanent progress of Southern California.

CONSERVATION CONGRESS.

RADICAL WATER-RIGHT RESOLUTION IS ADOPTED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SEATTLE, Aug. 28.—The National Conservation Congress today effected a permanent organization, adopted a radical water-right resolution after a vigorous debate, in which radical sentiments were expressed by a majority of the delegates. Addresses were made by Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, Francis J. Heney, the San Francisco prosecutor, and by Chief Forester Gifford Pinchot.

Secretary Ballinger arrived this afternoon from Eastern Washington. Mr. Ballinger was escorted at once to the convention at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, where he spoke for a few minutes.

Following Secretary Ballinger, Francis J. Heney made a short but vigorous address, attacking the "Water Power Trust." Mr. Heney had no sooner finished than there were loud calls for Chief Forester Pinchot. His appearance on the platform was the signal for a prolonged demonstration. Mr. Pinchot took up the attack on the "Water Power Trust," begun by Mr. Heney.

Invitations for the next congress were received from Los Angeles and Kansas City. They were left in the hands of the executive committee.

Following is the text of the water rights resolution as adopted:

"We urge upon the States the enactment of comprehensive water laws formed in accordance with the policy pursued in several Western States during recent years, incorporating the principle that the waters belong to the people. We hold this right of the people is inherent and inalienable. Recognizing the necessity of administering this invaluable possession of the people, we deny the right of the State of Federal government to alienate or convey water by granting franchises for the use thereof for commercial or power purposes in perpetuity or without just compensation in the interests of the people.

"We hold that all natural resources belong primarily to the whole people and should not be alienated by municipal, State or national grants or franchises to individuals or corporations except for limited periods."

BOY BURGLARS MUST SUFFER.

Juvenile Court Judge Sends Them Back to Be Tried by Criminal Procedure.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

SAN JOSE, Aug. 28.—Judge Gosbey of the Juvenile Court this morning remanded the young bank robbers, Leo Nevins and Frank Smith, to the jurisdiction of the Justice's Court at Santa Clara, and their case will take the regular course.

No testimony as to the boys' ages was taken, nor did Nevins's father, who arrived last night, have an opportunity to go on the stand.

The proceedings this morning were public. When the case was called, Judge Gosbey announced that his decision would rest, not upon the ages of the boys, but upon the seriousness of the crime, and whether it was a case that should be handled by the Juvenile Court.

In his opinion, the boys were fully cognizant of the nature of their crime at the time they committed the act, and the circumstances do not call for any deviation from the regular criminal court procedure.

He therefore directed that the prisoners undergo the usual preliminary examination before a justice of the peace, subsequently to be tried in the Superior Court.

Terence Clarence Nevins, the father of young Nevins, who resides at Elma., Wash., is ex-president of the Shingle Weavers' Union, Elma local, and claims that his son followed this class of work until about six months ago, when he went to Seattle and took up teamster's work. He last heard from the boy about ten weeks ago, while still in Seattle, and was surprised to learn that his son had gone to California.

Regarding the other lad, Mr. Nevins stated that he had never seen or heard of him before, although his son avers that he went to school with him.

AMATEUR NIGHT STARTS ROW.

Patrons at Chicago Theater Jeer Girl Dancer, and Police Are Called in.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Because several patrons of the Columbus Theater did not like the dancing of a girl amateur and because the proprietor, Max Weber, objected to their expressions of disapproval, Weber and several police and half a dozen theatergoers are suffering today from bruises received in an encounter that stopped the performance.

Efforts were made by the police to find the men responsible for the disturbance. A large crowd had gathered to witness the weekly performance of amateurs. A crowd of a dozen or more men set near the stage jeering the performers.

Weber interfered and the fight started. The police were called and the disturbers fled after a lively battle.

GRAPE GROWERS PROTEST.

Plan to Build Independent Wineries Because of Low Price Fixed on Crop.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LODI, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Three more independent wineries probably will be established here in time to crush the next season's crop of wine grapes. One was built last year by grape growers near Lodi. New ones will be constructed at Acampo, Lafayette and Harney Lane. This is because of the five-dollar price fixed for wine grapes by the California Wine Association.

The independent wineries will sell their products at auction in the East, as California fruits are now sold. Agents of wine-making machinery have been invited to confer with the grape growers. This season's crop will not be harvested.

A meeting of the Yolo County Grape Growers' Association has been called for next Saturday to protest the action of the California Wine Association in fixing the price of wine grapes at five dollars. This is claimed to be below the cost of production.

HOYT IN WEBER TRAGEDY.

Man Brooding Over Death of Friend Who Murdered Family Becomes Maniac.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

AUBURN, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] W. H. Hoyt, who became insane at Oakland yesterday, is a son of Mrs. W. P. Scott, an aunt of Adolph Weber, who killed his entire family here. She was prominent in litigation over the Weber estate.

Hoyt brooded over Weber's fate and is said to have called himself the "avenger of Adolph Weber." Last spring he was sent to the Napa asylum after leaving here, but was discharged as cured soon afterward. Letters were found in Hoyt's pockets from a young woman signing herself "Jack," one of which was written in terms of affection and the other purported to have broken off an engagement. They were written by Miss Mabel J. Berry of this city, well known and popular in local society. Her family say nothing more than a warm friendship existed between her and Hoyt.

BRILLIANT IDEA.

TO PULL CORK OF SACRAMENTO.

Bottle-Shaped Valley to Be Opened at Neck.

Egress to Be Made for the Dangerous Floods.

Hundred Thousand Dollars Is Subscribed.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 28.—The cork will be pulled. The bottle-shaped valley of the Sacramento is to be opened at the neck. Egress is to be provided for the floods, which in past years have done such tremendous damage.

The most important river meeting ever held on the Sacramento was brought to a brilliant conclusion at Rio Vista today by subscriptions aggregating nearly $100,000 as part of a fund to begin the great work. Capt. A. E. Anderson of the California Transportation Company, started the ball rolling with $5000. P. J. Van Loben Sells matched it with $5000 more. Many individual subscriptions swung into line enthusiastically with assessments of a dollar an acre.

Those that were not prepared to announce official action, declared through their representatives that special meetings would be held this week and all would follow suit.

Hundreds of members were enrolled for the new San Joaquin and Sacramento Valley Improvement Association.

The following nine trustees were elected unanimously to serve for the next three years:

Capt. A. E. Anderson, Will J. Smith, A. J. Runyon, Capt. A. H. Neilson, Peter Cook, Col. John P. Irish, Carson Cook and W. B. Meek.

Options have been secured on $200,000 worth of land between Rio Vista and Tolands Landing, for the purpose of widening and straightening the lower end of the river. This land will be purchased immediately and tendered to the Federal government. With the $400,000 which Congress is expected to vote next winter, and the $400,000 which the State of California has already voted, there will thus be a million dollars available for the inauguration of the giant project which is to make a million acres of fertile land safe from the ravages of the winter floods.

TOO MANY TEACHERS MARRY.

SCHOOLS SUFFER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MARYSVILLE, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Too many marriages in which Yuba county school teachers are concerned will this year have the effect of making a scarcity in the ranks of local pedagogues, and the Board of Education and school will undoubtedly have to seek elsewhere for material with which to fill the schools.

Today word was received that Miss Bernice Woodburn, a popular teacher of this city, was married. This makes the second marriage that has occurred since teachers were selected and is causing the directors some uneasiness.

ASK BIDS FOR CANALS.

ORLAND PROJECT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WILLOWS, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Reclamation Service is advertising for bids for the construction of the distribution system of the Orland irrigation project, which will carry water to the highest point on every forty-acre tract of land in the project. Specifications call for moving 200,000 cubic yards of material, and this amount is divided into small sections that can be successfuly handled by farmers who desire to bid in contracts. The work is expected to begin on the contracts in October, and the ditches must all be completed by May 1, 1910. This indicates that the Reclamation Service expects water for irrigation to be available from the East Park reservoir for next season, in spite of recent delays in reaching solid foundations.

LUMBER MILL BURNS.

HUNDREDS FIGHT FIRE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

QUINCY, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The extensive lumber yards of the Feather River Lumber Company at Clairville, this county, burned yesterday afternoon, causing a loss of $100,000, on which there was some insurance.

The big mill, No. 2, was saved by the hard efforts of hundreds of men, who were rushed in from the surrounding woods and railroad camps. An extensive tramway system used in the yards was destroyed, and seven cars of the Western Pacific, standing on a sidetrack, were also burned.

The quantity of lumber burned is variously estimated at from three and one-half to five million feet. Two thousand cords of wood, half of it belonging to the lumber company, was also destroyed. The fire is supposed to have originated from sparks from passing locomotives. Three hundred men engaged in fighting the flames.

PACIFIC FLEET SAILS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SEATTLE, Aug. 28.—The Pacific fleet, composed of the cruisers Tennessee, West Virginia, California, Washington, South Dakota, Pennsylvania, Colorado and Maryland, under Rear-Admiral Uriel Sebree, sailed for San Francisco at 4 o'clock this afternoon, beginning a cruise which will continue until February 15, 1910.

Three hundred enlisted men for the fleet arrived from Norfolk, Va., this morning, and were taken on the ships.

At San Francisco the fleet will receive 300 more sailors, and take on ammunition, and on September 5 will begin the voyage to the Orient.

Leaving Manila, the cruisers, in pairs, will visit various Chinese and Japanese ports, and all will assemble off Yokohama before January 19, 1910, when the return voyage to San Francicso will be begun.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH.

KEROSENE EXPLOSION.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Mrs. A. N. Buelly, aged 22, was burned to death at her home in San Bruno last night, as the result of starting a fire in the kitchen stove with kerosene. The oil exploded, enveloping her in flames.

With her clothing ablaze, she rushed out of the house and down the road. She was overtaken by a neighbor named Ross, who rolled her in the dust and beat out the fire with his hands. Mrs. Buelly was taken back home, where she died, after suffering terribly for seven hours.

Her husband is employed as bookkeeper for the San Bruno Lumber Company.

JOIN HANDS.

GETTING TOGETHER IN HUNT FOR RESERVOIR LOCATION

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MODESTO, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Engineer Smith of the Turlock irrigation district and Engineer Griffin of the Modesto district gave a detailed report this afternoon before the two boards of what they had found regarding reservoir sites in the Tuolumne Meadows and the Poopenaut Valley. After the report of the engineer, the officials of the La Grange Mining Company and the Tuolumne Mining Company made a proposition to the boards that the mining companies and the irrigation boards unite in their search for suitable reservoir site.

This proposition was the signal for a general discussion, and a number of the irrigation directors were somewhat opposed to the scheme, while others were of the opinion that it would be the best thing which the districts could do. The boards were unable to come to any definite understanding on the proposition, but they did vote to extend the reservoir sites to a little valley close by.

This is considered a signal victory for those who want to join with the mining companies, as the valley mentioned, while a new place, never considered by the district engineers, is understood to be at the present time securely tied up by the La Grange Mining Company. The engineers from both boards were instructed to look over this new district with the engineers from the mining companies and give their report at the next meeting of the two irrigation districts and the officials of the mining companies.

Engineers Smith and Griffin of the Turlock and Modesto boards have only recently returned from their search for suitable sites. They will leave as soon as possible and look over the new cut which has been suggested to them.

The Modesto district has already begun work on the lower sites, at a point where the outlet canal connects the reservoir with the main canal system. The two dams at this point will total a length of 3200 feet, with an average base of 100 feet, and will be carried to a height of thirty-five feet. Water will be turned into the reservoir when the first ten feet of this work is completed, half filling the reservoir. This will carry the water level to the base of the other and smaller dams. In this manner, as construction progresses, the volume of water will be gradually increased, and the reservoir filled by the time work on the dam is completed.

CATTLE DYING.

ANTHRAX OR SMELTER?

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Suisun County Live Stock Inspector J. T. Sullivan has made an investigation of ranches in Benicia township, near Benicia, where heavy losses of cattle from disease had been reported. He diagnosed the disease as anthrax and has taken proper steps to control it.

Owners of these cattle attributed the death of the stock to fumes from the Selby smelter on the other side of the bay, but no report was made to the live stock inspector until a few days ago.

In the past two weeks two hundred head have died. The farmers have been fighting the smelter for years in the courts.

ROSEBURG, Aug. 28.—Fire which broke out late last night destroyed the barns, feed sheds and seventeen horses belonging to the Roseburg and Coos Bay Stage Company, and then jumped to the brick block in the rear, wiping out two rooming houses and a half dozen business houses. The loss will exceed $50,000.

PLENTY OF CARS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The crop moving season in the Middle West and in the great grain belts will not find the railroads napping. According to the fortnightly report of the committee on relations between railroads of the American Railway Associations, the great supply of surplus box cars already is in the section of the country, which will first feel the demand for cars and in which the most serious car shortages occur.

The report also furnishes a possible means of estimating the extent to which the widely discussed revival in business has extended. The latest report of the committee, dated August 18, records that throughout the country there are 159,424 surplus cars, a decrease of 93,579 from the corresponding period in 1908. The largest decrease was in box cars, in which class the surplus was reduced 21,141. The surplus number of this class of cars at the present time is about 80,000 and half of these are in Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas, known as group six, awaiting the call for moving purposes.

HAIRY ONCE; BALD NOW.

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Aug. 28.—W. W. Smith, who is alleged to have swindled Oregon, Idaho and Eastern Washington farmers out of more than $10,000 by agreeing to make loans on heir property, and then collecting a fee of 1 per cent. on the promised loan, which was never made, was arrested here last night.

In Seattle, Smith wore a heavy head of hair, and a pointed beard. Here he was quite bald and smooth shaven. He was about to begin business in Vancouver, as the Death Valley Grubstake Company, when arrested.

FICKLE SANDWICH CAUSES ROW.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Frances Kubyack has thirty days in which she must learn how to prepare a savory pickle sandwich, the favorite midnight luncheon of her husband, John Kubyack, and thus restore the domestic equilibrium of their home. Municipal Judge Watkins, before whom Kubyack was arraigned yesterday on the charge of refusing to support his wife, listened to the husband's story and when he learned that Mrs. Kubyack could not furnish her husband's favorite viand, continued the case thirty days and told her to learn the secret of making this sandwich. Mrs. Kubyack told the court her husband grew angry at her inability to prepare a pickle sandwich after he had finished his work at midnight and drove her from home with a broom stick.

HORSE COMMITS SUICIDE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

Shortly after noon, the horse was seen to walk down to the Fox River bank. He stepped into the stream and wading as far out as possible, began swimming toward the middle. Half way out the horse turned about, but soon struck out again for mid-stream. Gaining the heavy current he ceased all efforts and went down without a struggle.

Hopkins is on his way to Mexico, where he will represent the Sanborn interests in the complications arising over the arrest of Harold Sanborn and his subsequent flight while at liberty on bond. If the Mexican government prosecutes the case against the young man, the United States government may be drawn into the fight. Young Sanborn was arrested at Vera Cruz a few months ago, following a fight on his plantation by the Mexican authorities, on the charge that he was responsible for the death of a girl who was shot by a stray bullet.

HUSBAND AND WIFE TRADE.

Elgin Couples Exchange Mates and May Live Happily and Legally.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ELGIN (Ill.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A singular story of an interchange of husbands and wives, seemingly agreeable to the four parties concerned, has come to light through the issuance of a marriage license, at Geneva, Ill., today, to William McPherson, 29, and Mrs. Mary B. Warner, 28.

Each was granted a divorce a year ago, the former wife of McPherson leaving for Cuba, Wis., after the decree was issued. She has since been joined there by William Warner, former husband of the woman who figures in the new license issued to McPherson today.

Previous to the court's action in granting legal separation to both couples, it had been understood that the trade was mutually satisfactory, and it is supposed that a similar license will soon be taken out at Cuba by Warner to wed Mrs. McPherson. All were residents of Elgin until the removal of Warner and Mrs. McPherson to Wisconsin.

HURT BY FALL ON ICE.

On Hot Summer Day in Washington Police Get Midwinter Call for Help.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

BALLOON MAKING TIME.

St. Louis Out for Night Trip With Five Men on Board Going South.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Five well-known St. Louisans left St. Louis at 5 p.m. in the balloon St. Louis No. 3, and at 6:45 p.m. were reported at St. Genevieve, nearly fifty miles south, going south by southeast at a rapid rate, probably thirty miles an hour.

It was the intention of Pilot S. L. Vonphul to discharge three of the passengers at 7:30 p.m. and to continue on through the night with Harlow B. Spencer.

The fast wind makes landing perilous, and some apprehension is felt for the safety of the aëronauts, particularly as it will scarcely be possible for the balloon to remain aloft all night with five aboard.

COUNT BONI NEEDS MONEY.

Report Circulated That He Will Wed Heiress.

Miss Marjorie Gould, Niece of Anna, Chosen.

Must Have Aid to Hold His Seat in Chamber.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That Count Boni de Castellane will endeavor to annex a few of the Gould millions through a marriage to Miss Marjorie Gould, the niece of Anna Gould, his former wife, is a story circulating among his friends here, and in the Castellane district in the Basses Alpes department.

Castellane, it is believed, will lose his seat in the Chamber of Deputies when the general election occurs in May. He has held his seat three terms. As each election has cost $300,000 of the Gould family's fortune, and that source of political success is cut off, the electors' enthusiasm has abated.

Castellane's supporters are discussing a report that Count Boni intends shortly to marry another Gould.

In former campaigns Castellane's agents spent money like water. But electors quickly realized that the representative's sole aim was to obtain and hold a seat in the Chamber of Deputies. He has paid no attention to their interests, and has had no consideration for the needs of his district.

His constituents have been unable to secure any decorations, tobacco shop licenses, grants for road improvements, new school buildings or other favors which provincial electors prize as highly as do the Parisians themselves.

Castellane's republican opponent is M. Junot, a clerv journalist, who is assured of government support.

It is also reported that Prince and Princess de Sagan are prepared to make an indirect outlay to prevent Castellane's reëlection.

AERONAUTICS.

not refrain. As a matter of fact my experience confirms my theory that my machine is faster in turbulent air than in a dead calm."

Curtiss's round in the International, made in 7m. 53 1-5s. does not count in the speed lap contest as this event is the only race in which the time for rounds does not count in lap competition.

The International Cup of Aviation is known otherwise as the Gordon Bennett trophy. It is an object of art, valued at $2500, which goes to the winning club, and $5000 to the aviator. The course is two laps of the Betheny aërodrome, or 20 kilometers.

Curtiss comes from Hammondsport, N. Y. This is the first time he has flown against formidable competitors. His machine is a biplane.

RIVALS ASTONISHED.

Curtiss's competitors showed plainly their astonishment at his remarkable performance, and they hastily completed their preparations to compete with him.

Shortly after 11 o'clock Lefebvre, with a Wright biplane, made an effort, but his speed was inferior, and at the last turn he lost considerable time by swinging out too far. This obliged him to take a reverse curve to pass in front of the timekeepers' stand.

Thousands of visitors, of all nationalities, made their way to Curtiss's shed to congratulate him upon his splendid flight.

Curtiss has been invited to go to Berlin and fly over the same ground as Orville Wright, and he is disposed to accept the invitation.

Curtiss came to his decision to make a trial suddenly. At 10:11 a.m., surrounded by a group of enthusiastic Americans, including Cortlandt F. Bishop, president of the Aëro Club of America; Commander F. L. Chapin, U.S.N., the American naval attaché at Paris, and T. Bentley Mott, the military attaché, the machine was run out on the field.

NOT EXCITED.

Curtiss made no preparation other than to change his coat for a leather jacket. With no trace of excitement, he climbed into the seat, and gave the order to start the propellers. Running along the ground a short distance for a flying start, the machine lifted lightly and circled between the time-keepers and the tribunes.

Then, mounting gradually until he had reached a height of forty-five feet, Curtiss crossed the line at a terrific pace.

The aëroplane, small and compact, and with trim lines, looks more like a racer than any of the others here, and as it sped away straight as an arrow exclamations of admiration arose from the crowd.

Clipping the corners closely, Curtiss continued at a uniform height until he had passed the last pylon. He then descended sharply, to get the benefit of gravity; and crossed the finish line less than a dozen feet above the ground. A few seconds afterward the white ball was hoisted, indicating that a record had been broken, and the Americans broke into wild cheering.

The American announced that he would immediately start for the International. His gasoline tank was quickly filled, and he got away in fine style. He rose to a greater height than on his trial in order to escape the turbulent air currents near the ground.

His flight was masterly. The machine lifted before every turn and swept around the turns on the down grade.

Curtiss's first round was slower by 2 1-5s. than his trial, but on the last round he let out his motor to its full speed, and came home like a streak. He shot down from a height of 100 feet, at which altitude he rounded the last pylon, to the finish line, which he crossed in impressive style. His time for this round was 7m. 53 1-5s. This broke his own world's record made half an hour previously.

CARRY PASSENGERS.

Only Lefebvre and Farman appeared in the passenger-carrying contest late in the afternoon. The former covered a lap with one passenger in 11m. 20 4-5s. Farman carried one passenger in 9m. 52 4-5s. and two passengers in 10m. 39s.

The committee announced tonight that in order to encourage mechanicians, they had established a special prize.

Every pilot starting tomorrow will receive f.5 for each kilometer covered, the money to go to the mechanicians, in addition to the three prizes of f.2000, f.1000 and f.500 to go to the pilots.

WILBUR WRIGHT GLAD FOR CURTISS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DAYTON (O.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "I think that aviation week at Rheims has been a great success, but I must confess I was rather disappointed on both the speed and in the distance records made," said Wilbur Wright tonight. "I expected the winners to make at least fifty-five miles an hour or better, and expected them to stay in the air four or five hours."

Continuing, he said:

"It is very gratifying to me that Curtiss has captured the speed record, thus giving America both the speed and distance world's records, as I now hold the latter. It surely does put America clear on top in the field of aviation. Curtiss is a careful aviator, and should be credited with doing much toward the advancement of aviation."

Concerning the poor showing made by LeFebvre in his Wright biplane, Mr. Wright said:

"I did not expect him to break any records in that machine. It was not built for such work. I am confident, however, that one of our machines, built with the single purpose of acquiring speed, could easily break the record made at Rheims. I could build a machine for speed purposes that would make eighty miles per hour. However, I do not think that speed is the thing for aviators to devote their time to. All of the successful aëroplanes have plenty of speed as it is. The things that count and ought to receive attention in my opinion are control and endurance. Those are the things that will advance aviation.

"The success of the flying at Rheims this week should convince the public that flying is not half as dangerous a business as automobile racing, and this meet should add much public interest to aviation. I am highly pleased with the outcome of the world's first flying meet."

LATHAM PROTESTS FARMAN'S VICTORY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

RHEIMS, Aug. 28.—Henry Farman's great victory of yesterday, when he flew 180 kilometers, (111.78 miles, in 3h. 4m. 56 2-5s., was officially protested by Latham today on the double ground that he entered with a Vivinus motor, but substituted a Gnome motor, and that he violated Article 8 of the regulations, which provides that all material employed on the ground be approved by the committee, August 20, two days before the contests opened.

The committee rendered a decision favorable to Farman, when Farman produced written authorization from three members of the committee to use the Gnome motor.

The committee this morning changed its ruling of last night, classifying Latham as both second and fifth in the Grand Prix de la Champagne. This is done on the ground that the rules do not permit the same pilot to enter the same contest with two machines, but in the case in point the entry was not made by Latham personally, but by the Antoinette Company.

Louis Paulhan has announced that he will try today or tomorrow for the Michlien cup, the annual prize of $4000, for the greatest distance, won last year by the Wrights with a flight of seventy-three miles. The conditions provide that the winner fly double the distance made by the previous winner of the trophy, consequently Paulhan will have to cover more than 146 miles.

Count de Lambert and Tissandier also will try for this cup tomorrow.

CURTISS SUED DAY OF HONOR.

Wife of Winner of Rheims Contest Served With Papers in Wright Patent Suit.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CORNING (N. Y.) Aug. 28.—Papers were served yesterday in Hammondsport upon Mrs. Glenn H. Curtiss and L. B. Masson, secretary-treasurer of the Hering-Curtiss Aëroplane Company, in behalf of the Wright brothers, who are beginning suit for alleged infringements on the aëroplane patents. The papers are returnable in New York October 20.

PROPELLOR SNAPS; FLIER TUMBLES.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

BETHANY AVIATION FIELD, (Rheims, Aug. 28.—As Leon de la Grange was turning the first pylon in the course of an exhibition aëroplane flight today, the propellor of his machine broke from its shaft and the aëroplane fell heavily to the ground.

Fortunately, the height at the time did not exceed twenty-five feet.

De la Grange was badly bruised and shaken up, but none of his bones were broken.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

RABBIT HUNT COSTS A LEG.

SAWTELLE BOY INJURED BY A SHOTGUN ACCIDENT.

Instead of Digging Potatoes as His Father Tells Him to Do He Goes With a Companion in Search of Game and the Mishap Occurs—Orders for Inspection.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SOLDIERS HOME, Aug. 28.—If Ralph Curasco, a Sawtelle boy, had obeyed his father, he would not now be occupying a cot in the Soldiers' Home Hospital, and minus a leg, due to accidental shooting.

Ralph is seventeen and resides with his parents at No. 520 South Twelfth street. This morning his father sent him forth to dig potatoes on a neighboring ranch.

As rabbits are plentiful just now, Ralph took with him a double-barrelled shotgun with a view of getting a few. Meeting Lee Ermal, a lad similarly equipped, and also on rabbit-shooting bent, the two concluded to extend their quest for game to some arroyos in and beyond the Home grounds. It was while passing through the northern part of the Home grounds that the gun of young Ermal—in a manner the frightened lad was unable to explain—was accidentally discharged and the full charge entered Curasco's left foot, shattering it terribly.

The lad was taken at once to the Home hospital, where it was found that amputation would be necessary. Upon the arrival of the boy's parents, and with their consent, the operation was at once performed. The patient will remain at the hospital until he may be safely sent to his home.

ORDERS FOR INSPECTION.

Dress parades and reviews under the administration of Col. Cochrane here are a rarity rather than the rule. The governor, realizing that old age infirmities render marching somewhat of a trial, does not often require it, but in view of the coming visit by the Board of Managers he today ordered an inspection by battalion.

The engineers are engaged in a survey of the southern end of Bonsall boulevard, with a view to its regrading. This is the only piece of incompleted road in the Home ground today, and, as it is the only road to Sawtelle, there will be general rejoicing at the improvement.

TARPON BEACH DESERTED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The keeper and the life saving crew at Tarpon Beach were compelled to abandon their station yesterday, when the violent Gulf storm struck that section of the coast. The crew transferred all the people at the station in surf boats to Isabel station, where they are reported to be in a dangerous condition.

PRIVATE LANE WANTED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Private William Lane, Co. C, Twenty-second Infantry, is wanted by the military authorities. He is reported as having deserted while on furlough at Fairbank, Alaska, last January, and as having embezzled about $10,000 of government funds.

BANK DEFRAUDERS SENTENCED.

ASHEVILLE (N. C.) Aug. 28.—The jury in the case of Breese and Dickerson, charged with conspiracy to defraud the defunct First National Bank of this city, returned a verdict of guilty today. They were sentenced to two years each in the Federal prison at Atlanta, and to pay a fine of $2,500 each.

NE again smiles on Miss Mary Pottol, favorite daughter of Gem City of the Foothills," making her second brilliant for a year's maintenance, at se of The Times, in that exhool for young ladies, Hunt-Hall. Miss Pottol won her p last year by coming out st in The Times scholarship This year she has plumed for a higher position and e week of the close of the achieved the second highest he competition.

total of 198,630 points scored , 62,455 were in favor of Miss ho moved up ahead of Alice nd Dorothy Scherer and now second place in the line-up. onstance Hood alone ranks s Pottol and the "Milky Way ll have the "Favorite of the to reckon with in the final for first prize, which is a $500 gold coin of the United t is doubtful if there is one y in a thousand could arouse husiasm and achieve greater her campaign for a scholar- Miss Pottol has done with- person of wealth or political to back her. Hard, steady ing, combined with a per- anner and a firm determina- ach the top, if earnest effort confidence will prevail, are nts that have conspired for s thus far, and it must needs erful rival who will prevail in the end.

A MILLION TO WIN.

Constance" is, however, just ined and equally confident that she will occupy first place in the final score, as she does now and has for most of the time throughout the contest. Miss Hood registered a gain of 23,000 yesterday, and passed the 400,000 mark. It is a sure thing now that she will not stop short of the half-million mark and that whoever would win first prize must figure on having over 500,000 points in the final score.

Miss Scherer failed to tally and dropped down one degree to third place. But Dorothy was not idle during the week. Her failure to score any points during the last few days must not be taken as a sign that she is "all in." She is not counting her chickens before they are hatched, but it may be taken for granted that she "has a hen on the nest," and that the "goose eggs" that are being credited to her now will hatch out all right before the end of the contest.

Miss Capron registered a gain of 5800 Saturday and passed the 300,000-mark, but dropped back from third to fourth place. It is just possible that "Princess Alice" has a few trumps in reserve to be played when they will do the most good.

Raymond Austin registered a gain of 8260 and remains in fifth place.

Frank Maine, the French-Italian representative, scored a gain of 7615 and passed the 200,000-mark by large enough a margin to continue in sixth place.

Amos Colborn, "Old Faithful" of Upland, made a gain of a round 20,000 points and also passed the 200,000-mark. He needs but 1000 points more to oust Frank Maine from sixth place. So rapid has been Colborn's advance lately that some of his friends are betting that he will finish among the "High Five." He lacks 45,000 points to be ahead of Raymond Austin, but if he keeps up his recent fast clip he may down the Pasadena fiddler yet.

MISS PEDLEY'S PROGRESS.

Miss Florence Pedley of Pomona has also been advancing with giant strides during the past week. A gain of 20,500 yesterday took her ahead of Murrey Royar, the "Redlands Rustler," whose gain for the day was but 2375. Twenty thousand points more would take Miss Pedley ahead of both Amos Colborn and Frank Maine. The people of the Pomona Valley are rallying loyally to the support of Miss Pedley, who is showing remarkable energy and perseverance, and is demonstrating that she is worthy of the support and confidence of her friends to the fullest extent.

Florence Lambert, the crippled "Buckeye" girl, is holding tenth place with a gain of 3125. She is more than 16,000 points behind Murrey Royar, so that young gentleman need have no immediate fears of her. She will have to beware of Miss Tidball of Santa Ana, however, for the latter needs but 4000 points to capture tenth place. Miss Tidball failed to tally on Saturday, but when all the returns from the famous Orange county peatlands are in, it is quite likely that Miss Tidball will stand considerably higher than eleventh place.

Anna Bloom celebrated her thirteenth birthday anniversary yesterday by registering a gain of only 300 points, but it sufficed to keep her in twelfth place. Anna intends to educate herself to be a teacher, and The Times contest man ventures to predict that she will be a good one, for she has ability of a high order for a girl of her age.

MISS GLASSCOCK MOVES UP.

Miss Elizabeth Glasscock, the "Chatsworth Charmer," registered a gain of 12,900 points and captured thirteenth place from Grace Wagner by a handsome majority. Miss Wagner failed to tally. Maybe she has a "hen on the nest," too, and will have more than mere "goose eggs" to tally by and by.

Miss Helen Wilson registered a gain of 3300 and succeeded in retaining fifteenth place.

Edwina Lloyd made a gain of 14,200 and moved up ahead of David Boardman, whose gain for the day was but 905.

Stanley Carnahan registered a gain of 3880 and moved up two degrees to eighteenth place at the expense of Emma Blortz and Lillian Waite. As Stanley has a score of 72,360 to David Boardman's 114,614, there is not much chance of his rising higher than No. 18, unless he has some very good friends who will boost him during the remaining seven days of the contest. He will have to keep on fighting to prevent Miss Blortz and Miss Waite passing him again. Stanley is a manly lad and is making an honest effort to win the U.S.C. preparatory school scholarship.

Caryl B. Runkel registered a gain of 2400 and moved up two numbers to twenty-eighth place at the expense of Arah Small and Florence Barlow.

Albert Lesher made a gain of 3000 and moved up two degrees to thirty-sixth place at the expense of Fannie Swem and Florence Peterson.

The special prize winners for largest gains made during the week are:

First division—Mary Pearl Pottol, 62,635. Next in line Raymond Austin, 44,405; Florence Pedley, 43,940; Amos Colborn, 37,825.

Second division—Helen C. Wilson, 27,500. Next in line Edwina Lloyd, 23,685.

Third division—Caryl B. Runkel, 7160. Next in line Albert Lesher, 3000; Sherman Hall, 2025.

Probably the happiest boy in the contest over his success in winning a special prize is Caryl B. Runkel, who is again laid up with dropsy of the knee and unable to prosecute his scholarship campaign. He is a much-afflicted boy, but very brave and ambitious through it all. For the limited chance he has had to get out and work in the contest, there is none who has tried harder to win. The $5 he has won as a special prize will give him great encouragement.

The Maryland School.

Handsome school home in beautiful Westlake residence district.

FOR STUDENTS' GOOD.

MARYLAND SCHOOL FACULTY ENLARGED AND STRENGTHENED.

WHEN the Maryland School begins its first semester for the year 1909-10 it will be with a faculty that has been increased and strengthened to meet the growing demands of the institution.

This school, located at No. 720 Beacon street, in the beautiful Westlake residence district, has been brought to a high degree of efficiency under the joint principalship of Frances A. Barr and Corinne Gough, teachers of long experience and recognized ability. The teaching force is now augmented by two important acquisitions in the commercial department, Miss Sophie Andrews and Mrs. L. M. Perrine.

Miss Andrews is well known in Los Angeles educational circles as former secretary of the Brownsberger Commercial School. She has just returned from the University of Chicago, where she took a special course in commercial subjects, and will now direct the commercial department of the Maryland School, which she will also serve in the capacity of secretary.

Mrs. Perrine, who is also well known in Los Angeles as an experienced stenographer and teacher, will have charge of the shorthand department. The commercial department will be made stronger than ever, but not at the expense of the other departments—kindergarten, primary, preparatory and academic. A higher standard will be maintained in all departments, if possible.

The Maryland School has ample accommodations for a select number of boarding pupils, who are provided with all the comforts of home at very reasonable rates. It is also excellently equipped for a large attendance of day pupils, of both sexes, in all departments, from kindergarten to academic, including the commercial. Girls alone are taken as boarding pupils, except in the primary grade. The courses given in the preparatory and academic departments are especially attractive and thorough. Due attention is given to music, physical culture, etiquette, etc.

A $100 scholarship, good for one year's tuition in the academic, commercial or preparatory department is one of the prizes offered in The Times Scholarship Contest. It is a prize that will be appreciated by any girl fortunate enough to win it.

RE TRAINING BODY AND MIND MAKES BOYS MANLY.

Yale School Athletic Team.

School for Boys is run on the principle that "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Prof. T. G. s, the head master, is a trained athlete and he believes in developing the muscles of his pupils along with brains. Gymnastic exercises, scientifically administered, and healthy outdoor sports are part of the cur um of the Yale School. But the mental and moral training of the lads is not neglected. They are given enough play and physical exercise each day to keep their blood in circulation and their muscles in good This gives them greater zest for their studies. The school always has a "crack" athletic team. It is the tion of every boy in the school to win the honor of being entitled to wear the school monogram. No boy is led to wear the monogram on his cap or sweater until he has played in either three baseball or football s with outside teams; won the gold medal in the gymnastic contest; won the tennis championship in singles; d the greatest number of points in the annual field meet, or represented the school in any field meet or s tournament with another school. Murrey Royar, who won The Times scholarship in the Yale School last is entitled to wear the monogram. He has also made a fine record in his studies and hopes to win the scholarship again for the year 1909-10, which opens September 22.

CLOSING DATE.

Tuesday, September 7, is the date upon which The Times' ninth annual scholarship contest will positively come to a close. All subscriptions to be voted in favor of any contestant must be cashed in at The Times office before midnight of that day.

It was originally contemplated to close on Saturday night, September 4, but a postponement until the first of the week following is deemed expedient on account of the congested condition of The Times' office on Saturday nights incident to getting out the big Sunday paper.

Monday, September 6, will be a legal holiday. Therefore, Tuesday, September 7, has been selected as the day for the last grand rally.

Contestants should try to get in the bulk of their subscriptions before next Saturday night. They will then have two days (Sunday and Monday) to rest up in for the final rally. Two days will intervene between the close of voting and the awarding of the prizes which will be celebrated in the usual joyous manner, on Friday, September 10.

William Barrington, chauffeur for Earl Rogers, who is now representing the defense in the trial of Patrick Calhoun in San Francisco, was killed in an auto accident in the northern city at an early hour yesterday morning.

According to a dispatch received last night, Barrington, without his employer's knowledge, had driven his wife and Miss Grace Williams to the beach. He was returning at a terrific rate of speed when his car collided with the machine of Newton H. Neustader, which was standing on Sloat boulevard, and turned completely over.

Barrington died in a few minutes. his passengers, who were pinned beneath the auto, were rescued promptly and were apparently little the worse for the perilous experience.

"OUR SET."

LONE HAND FOR UNCLE ALECK.

HIS PINK SOCKS FLY AT THE "REFORM" MASTHEAD.

Good Government Organization Swallows Lissner's Programme, Hook and All and Lines Up Behind the Wily Old Office-seeker. Clubs Called Down.

Responding to the usual invitation system of "Our Set," about 100 members of the Good Government Organization precinct clubs met at Symphony (not sympathy) Hall last night and fell, body and breeches, into the trap that was laid for them by Your Wily Uncle Aleck and his recall bosses.

In the guise of postponing any indorsement of candidates until October 9, the meeting indorsed the Mayor and thus served the purpose of Lissner and his aides of preëmpting the pink-sock right of way for Uncle Aleck.

The programme was about to be swallowed, hook and all, when Will D. Gould protested that if the meeting had no better message than that contained in the resoluion proposed, the organization ought to adjourn forever. He wanted candidates indorsed right away. His interruption of the programme brought Lissner into the game, and subsequent proceedings interested Gould no more.

After S. C. Graham, custodian of the recall money bags, and one of Uncle Aleck's official nephews, had called the meeting to order, John D. Works arose.

His rising followed Graham's warning that an indorsement of candidates might undo the whole work of the G. G.O. and turn success into defeat at the polls. Thus well paved, Works approached his subject directly, argued against indorsement of any candidate "at this time," and then pulled resolutions from his pocket indorsing Uncle Aleck and postponing any other indorsements until Saturday, October 9.

THIS IS THE RESOLUTION.

"Whereas, during the comparatively short time that he has been Mayor of Los Angeles, George Alexander has not alone given general satisfaction to the great majority of citizens of Los Angeles who desire good city government, free from any suspicion of graft or taint of machine or partisan politics, but has, in short, absolutely 'made good.'

"Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Good Government Organization of Los Angeles, in general meeting assembled, that we congratulate Mayor Alexander upon his successful administration of the city's affairs, and extend to him our hearty thanks and appreciation; and

"Whereas, this meeting has been called for the purpose of considering the indorsement of candidates for Mayor and other city offices at the coming municipal election, and the time for the filing of petitions for nomination for such offices only begins on September 18 and does not expire until October 8, 1909; and,

"Whereas, it is not the purpose of the Good Government Organization to make nominations, but in the event any action is taken, only to indorse candidates who have been regularly nominated through petitions filed by them or on their behalf by individuals without the suggestion or dictation of machine politicians under the guise of party conventions;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that consideration of the matter of indorsement of candidates be postponed until Saturday, October 9, 1909, before which time it will be impossible to know who are all the candidate presented by the voters of Los Angeles for the various offices."

SURE ENOUGH.

Before it was adopted Dr. Caswell called attention to the fact that it was nothing else than an indorsement of Alexander and would be so taken; but his motion to amend and strike out all personal references was supported by only half a dozen voices. He made it plain that the disguise around the indorsement would be penetrated, but Works rose again and declared that Uncle Aleck deserved indorsement because he had been elected by the G.G.O. votes.

And Lissner added authoritatively and finally that every one would know, even without this indorsement, that Uncle Aleck was the G.G.O. candidate unless it announced differently.

So Dr. Caswell was suppressed and Uncle Aleck's pink socks went to the top of the mast.

The meeting was excellently programmed and the steering was in charge of Graham, one of the Mayor's appointees; Works, the Mayors sponsor; Andrews, another appointee, and Lissner himself. To complete the programme Andrews pulled resolutions from his pocket which deprecated the indorsement of candidates by precinct clubs and called on them to withdraw their indorsements and not make 'em until they got orders, or words to that effect.

During the evening Edgar Luce, the precocious political prodigy from San Diego, told how things had been done under the Des Moines plan last spring, when Grant Conrad was elected Mayor. He said the G.G.O. of that city concentrated on the candidate for Mayor, which helped a whole lot in getting Uncle Aleck the disguised indorsement.

Indorse G. A. Smith.

Three hundred members of the German-American Republican Club met last night in Native Sons' Hall, No. 211½ West Second street, and indorsed George A. Smith as a candidate for Mayor. Selections by the Mannerchoir opened the evening, and after the songs, Chairman M. P. Light stated the purpose of the meeting, harmony between all of the liberal elements in Los Angeles, and the German; French, Italian and all other nationalities were urged to unite in supporting one liberal candidate.

Other speakers were Otto Diesler, Fred Dorner, Frederick Spring, Barney Healey, Henry Lyons, J. J. Johnson, Dr. C. W. Unger and Frank Domin-

HARRIMAN.

WILL OPERATE, SAYS NEW YORK TIMES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The New York Times tonight received the following dispatch from Arden:

ARDEN (N. Y.) Aug. 28.—The several physicians who have been staying at the Tower Hill mansion of Edward H. Harriman since yesterday gave the noted railroad man a thorough examination today, and afterward held a consultation, which lasted for a couple of hours. When they had finished their deliberations, the conclusion was announced that an operation on Mr. Harriman will be necessary. Just when the operation will be performed the doctors have not yet determined.

Dr. G. W. Crile and Dr. Lyle, the personal physician to Mr. Harriman, conducted the examination, assisted by three other specialists. One of them was a specialist on diseases of the heart; another is a reliable authority on the nervous system, and the spinal cord, and the other gave his attention to an examination of Mr. Harriman's stomach.

READY FOR OPERATION.

Dr. Crile stated early tonight that Mr. Harriman was in condition now to undergo the operation, but to be absolutely certain it was thought best to wait a few days until he has gained a little more strength. The heart specialist reported that Mr. Harriman's heart is in fair condition. The walls and ligaments are strong, and the circulation is good. His respiration seems normal, but he needs general strength. His nervous system is a weak point, and this is due to the affection to the spinal cord.

The rest of the examination is said to have disclosed that at the base of the spine a cancer has just formed, but which is small and is believed to be not a dangerous one to exterminate The stomach and intestinal expert found that the action of the intestines was being affected slightly, but it would not be dangerous for a considerable length of time.

What has really caused Mr. Harriman's breakdown is his rapid eating and failure to take exercise. When this breakdown came the other trouble developed quickly.

FEARS ORDEAL.

It is thought at the Harriman home that the operation will be performed at the house next Wednesday or Thursday, and in the meantime the physicians who are now there will remain, keeping at all times a very close watch on his condition. Mr. Harriman fears the ordeal of an operation. Though assured that his life is more in danger without it than if he consents to undergo it, he feels keenly the possibility of something occurring. Dr. Lyle and Dr. Crile both visited the bedside of Mr. Harriman after they had finished their consultation, and told him exactly what the conditions were.

"I had hoped to avoid this," Mr. Harriman is said to have remarked. "My trip to Europe has done me no good."

Mr. Harriman is particular not to let his family know of his fears, but his dread of an operation is the same that any other person would feel knowing that an operation was pending.

Dr. Lyle is said to be responsible for a statement that the general belief of the specialists in attendance on Mr. Harriman is that he will survive the operation, and that his chances of again being as strong as ever are good. Asked how long he would be compelled to remain at Arden after the operation, Dr. Lyle said that was a difficult problem. Mr. Harriman needs rest and a lot of it, he replied; and he should remain at the mountain until December, anyway.

FRIEND ALLAYS RUMORS OF DANGER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The New York World tonight received the following dispatch from its staff correspondent at Arden:

ARDEN (N. Y.) Aug. 28.—Out of the vortex of conflicting reports concerning the condition of E. H. Harriman these are the absolute facts, as matters stand tonight:

(1.) E. H. Harriman is much better than he was the day he arrived here, and his improvement has been as rapid as anybody could reasonably expect.

(2.) Mr. Harriman is not to be subjected to a surgical operation.

(3.) Mr. Harriman's malady is not cancerous or organic. It is nothing which the surgeon's knife could reach. It is a breakdown of the nervous system, complicated with digestive troubles and rheumatism.

"No operation has been performed and none is necessary. There is no reason for one. No doctors are in the house with the exception of Mr. Harriman's own personal physician, Dr. Lyle."

In that statement, reiterated and emphasized, Jacob H. Schiff, of the great banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., today disposed of sensational stories in connection with the condition of the railroad magnate that have been rife here since his return to the mountain fastness on the peak of Tower Hill at Arden. When Mr. Schiff made his statement he had just left the Harriman home, after a visit that had lasted almost three hours.

Another visitor of note to Mr. Harriman today was the Rev. Dr. J. Holmes McGuiness, rector of the Protestant Episcopal parish, which comprises the villages of Arden, Chester and Monroe. Dr. McGuiness gave the impression that he had been sent for. He remained at the Harriman house about two hours. On his return he declared positively that Mr. Harriman was in no danger of having to undergo an operation. More convincing even than the declarations of Mr. Schiff or the minister was the statement made today by a man who is probably closer to Mr. Harriman than any other, and who was with him in Europe part of the time. This man said:

"The doctors of Europe, who examined Mr. Harriman, declared that his heart was sound, his lungs sound, his kidneys sound, and in fact that all his vital organs were sound. His sole trouble, they found, was a nervous breakdown due probably to over work, complicated by stomach trouble or nervous indigestion.

"Last spring Mr. Harriman attended a public dinner. At that he over ate and brought on an attack of acute indigestion. He has been troubled with his stomach ever since. Mr. Harriman's great trouble for years has been rheumatism. That, it is well known, is caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood due to malassimilation of food. The enormous amount of nervous energy he expended in his work and his food failing to nourish him, it is not astonishing that he broke down.

"However, he seemed to have benefited by his trip to Europe. Coming home he ate three meals a day and at Quarantine he had a steak for luncheon. But the motion of the boat lying at anchor upset his stomach and he looked very bad as he went ashore.

"I can assure you he has no organic or chronic disease, and no cancerous affection. The story of ossification of the lower vertebrae is without the slightest foundation.

"No doctors other than Dr. Lyle are in the house. So far as concerns the constant attendance of Dr. Lyle, there is nothing remarkable in a wealthy man having a physician constantly with him when he is in the general condition of health that Mr. Harriman is in."

The mystery of Harriman's silence under the publication of the sensational reports in respect to his health was solved today. From a close business friend, who was in communication with him this morning, it was learned he had refrained from contradicting these rumors because he believes the condition of his health had been made the basis of stock market speculation.

"On that account," said this friend, whose name, if it could be used, would carry instant conviction of the truth of the statement, "he refuses to see any one or give out any statement in respect to his health.

"Mr. Harriman expects to return to his work before very long, but he does not intend to be so active as he has been in the past. He expects to confine himself in the future to the exercise of general supervision. That he considers all that is necessary, considering the organization he has perfected."

SCHIFF LAUGHS AT TALK OF OPERATION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The New York Sun tomorrow will print the following on Mr. Harriman's condition:

TURNER (N. Y.) Aug. 28.—Edward H. Harriman hasn't been operated on, and he does not contemplate the necessity of an operation. The news which came down from Arden House today was the most reassuring that has reached the valley since Mr. Harriman went up the hill Tuesday evening.

Jacob H. Schiff, who spent two or three hours with Mr. Harriman this morning, went so far as to declare that Mr. Harriman was a well man. Mr. Schiff came up from New York at 11 o'clock, by a train which made a special stop at Arden to let him off.

He didn't look as if he expected to find Mr. Harriman in good health, and he wouldn't say a word about him.

A Harriman automobile carried him the three miles up the winding road that leads to the summit of Tower Hill. He came down again soon after luncheon. He was wide open to questions.

"How is Mr. Harriman today, Mr. Schiff," he was asked.

His reply was emphatic.

"Mr. Harriman is a well man," he said; "you can say that Mr. Harriman is a well man."

"What about all this talk of an operation?"

"An operation? There hasn't been an operation and there is no contemplation of one. What would a well man want with an operation? There's no cause, no reason for an operation."

"Are there any doctors at Mr. Harriman's house? Some persons say there are eight up there?"

"I saw only Dr. Lyle," he answered. "Dr. Lyle is Mr. Harriman's personal physician, and I am morally certain there are no others at Mr. Harriman's house."

"What about Dr. George W. Crile, who was reported to be on his way here?"

"Dr. Crile," inquired Mr. Schiff. "Who is Dr. Crile, I never heard of Dr. Crile?"

Mr. Schiff took a question about the oxygen tank and the hospital truck which were supposedly taken to Arden house yesterday, to be awkward attempts at jesting.

"Oxygen?" said he. "I thought the air was good enough up here without bringing any in cans. And that hospital truck, I don't believe a word of it."

Mr. Schiff said that his visit to Mr. Harriman had no financial significance at all.

"I'm here to see a friend," he said, "a friend who has been off on a long vacation. We spent the morning talking on the piazza. I was glad to see Mr. Harriman."

Then Mr. Schiff's train came, and he started back to New York.

"Is Judge Lovett still with Mr. Harriman?" somebody called after him.

"Oh," he replied, "I don't want to speak of Mr. Harriman's guests."

It was said at Arden House that the judge had left. One of Mr. Harriman's recent visitors was the young Rev. J. Holmes McGuinness, rector of the parish which includes the villages of Chester, Monroe and Arden. Mr. Harriman is one of his parishioners. He was also most assured in speaking of Mr. Harriman's condition, as was Mr. Schiff.

"He is not in a critical condition at all," said Mr. McGuinness. "He is rapidly getting his health back. I could not see any preparations for an operation; in fact, I'm pretty sure that they didn't anticipate the necessity for any.

"I spent an hour or so of my stay on the hill with Mr. Harriman on the piazza. He showed a lot of interest in the work of the carpenters and masons, and spoke fully of his plans for the new house.

"No, he didn't say much about his health, but he looked to me to be recovering rapidly from the weariness of his trip abroad."

DR. CRILE FINDS CASE NOT SERIOUS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CLEVELAND (O.) Aug. 28.—In a private telegram received here today the source of which was withheld, but the authenticity of which is not doubted, Dr. George W. Crile, the Cleveland surgeon, called into consultation regarding the condition of E. H. Harriman, is reported to have said that in company with other physicians and surgeons he did make an examination of Mr. Harriman yesterday, and that it was decided that no operation would be made.

Dr. Crile is indirectly quoted as having said that Mr. Harriman's condition was not serious, and that an operation would not hasten or give added assurance of his ultimate recovery.

The nature of his illness is not mentioned.

SCHIFF DENIES ALARMING RUMOR.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Jacob H. Schiff, head of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and for many years closely associated with Mr. Harriman, returned to this city from Arden today.

Regarding his interview with Mr. Harriman, he said:

"I spent an hour and a half with Mr. Harriman, and can say that he was in splendid spirits. He has not entirely recovered from his treatment abroad, but is otherwise looking well.

"In all the time we spent together, Mr. Harriman talked animatedly and gave little sign of fatigue.

"So far as I know, there is no justification for the report that he is to submit to a surgical operation. When I said good-by to Mr. Harriman, he was standing on the piazzo of his home. The only physician in attendance at Arden is Dr. Lyle, Mr. Harriman's family doctor."

It was learned that about ninety rooms including some for servants are now ready for use in the Harriman mansion. The house will contain about 290 rooms when completed.

Each member of the family will have a private suite of rooms, and there will be twenty rooms for servants, it was said. There are about 500 men on the payroll of Superintendent Ford. It will be nearly three years before the house is completed, according to the contractors.

MEXICAN FLOOD.

of a mile and a half and completely overflowed certain portions of the city of Monterey, wrecked houses and caused loss of life.

It is certain that the flood was the most disastrous in the memory of the oldest inhabitants, and that the loss of life will be great.

Not a train from Mexico has reached this city thus far today. Telegraphic communication is crippled, and the exact location of some trains is unknown.

In the city of Monterey telephone communication is impossible, the electric light plant is flooded with water and out of commission, the city's car service is paralyzed, and the water supply is crippled.

Information, reaching here through reliable sources, states that so severe was the flood that the inhabitants in the vicinity of the stream had barely time to flee for their lives; that the onrush of waters carried away their homes and chattels, and in many cases drowned occupants of some of the native huts.

It is reported that conditions are chaotic and that plazas are crowded with homeless natives.

Buildings of Monterey are in most cases built of adobe and when struck by floods literally dissolved. In many instances people are reported to have been caught in the falling material, drowned like rats in a trap.

Flood conditions extend as far south as Saltillo, although no great damage is reported south of Monterey.

Telegraphic communication is partly interrupted, but it was learned tonight that no loss of life had been reported south of Monterey.

Monterey has approximately 70,000 inhabitants and is located 180 miles south of Laredo. It is set in a valley between huge mountains and is traversed by the Santa Catarina river.

Among some of the establishments, that were more or less damaged, are: Electric light plant, water works, yards of the National Railway of Mexico and several private warehouses in that vicinity, smelters and a steel plant.

Only one wire is working south of Laredo, and communication with Monterey was secured over this wire via Ciudad Porfirio Diaz and Chihauhua, a circuitous route.

From a reliable source which cannot be quoted, information is gleaned that the loss of life in Monterey is placed at from 100 to 300 persons

Until communication is re-established, however, it will be impossible to give accurate figures on the number of lives lost.

Sugar in Olden Times.

Cane sugar was produced by the Chinese at a very remote epoch. In western countries it was a more recent introduction. The Roman writers, Pliny, Varro, and Lucian, at the beginning of our era, barely mentioned it. It was then known by the name of Indian salt and honey of Asia, Arabia, or India. In 1090, Crusaders arriving in Syria discovered sugar cane, which became a favorite dainty of the soldiers. During the following centuries the sugar cane was introduced into Cyprus, the Nile Delta, the north coast of Africa as far as Gibraltar, Sicily, and the kingdom of Naples. It reached Spain in the fifteenth century and thence was carried to Madeira and the Canaries. In 1644 the French imported it into Guadeloupe and a little later into Martinique and Lousiana. The Portuguese introduced it into Brazil and the English into Jamaica.—[Scientific American.

Only One Knew.

The first time a man speaks in public he probably suffers more agony in a shorter space of time than at any other part of his career. Young Frankington felt the truth of this very keenly the other day, when he found himself facing an audience of free and independent voters at an election. He had prepared a very fervid oration in support of his father's candidacy, but for the first few moments he could do nothing but gasp. Then, in response to an encouraging cheer, he began to speak.

"Mr.—Mr. Chairman," he stammered, "when I—when I left home this evening only two people on this earth—my father and myself—knew what I was going to say; but now—now—well, now, only father knows."—[Tit-Bits.

Test for Fish Hooks.

A party in waters down East a piece was going bluefishing. The boy had brought the fishing tackle up from the cabin and now the skipper was sitting on deck, with a big file filing the hooks.

"Used to be a man go bluefishing with me," the skipper said, "that always filed his own hooks. Carried a file in his pocket for just that. Always had that file with him and always filed his own hooks.

"When he'd got a hook filed he'd test it by hanging it on his nose. He'd tip his head back, just a little, and just rest the point of the hook on his nose, and if it slid off he'd sharpen it some more, but if it hung there he knew it was all right."

"Singuarl way of testing fish hooks?" said one of the party.

"It was," said the skipper, "but he always caught fish."—[New York Sun.

FORMER CASHIER ARRESTED.

TIPTON (Ind.) Aug. 28.—W. H. Marker, former cashier of the First National Bank, was arrested here today in connection with the alleged defalcation of $103,000 of the bank's funds, some weeks ago. He gave bonds and was released.

FINISHES FIRST CHANNEL CUT.

DREDGER GOES DEEPER NEAR LONG BEACH.

Sixteen Feet Depth at High Tide Now from Ocean to the Turning Basin—Work Begun on Increasing It to Eighteen Feet—Missing Contractor Reported in Wyoming.

LONG BEACH, Aug. 28.—The suction dredger this afternoon completed its first cut in the ocean entrance of the inner harbor and tonight is working on the eighteen-foot cut. The entrance now has a channel of eleven feet at low tide and sixteen feet at high tide from the ocean to the turning basin. Tonight at high tide the ocean-going tug Virgil Bogue, built for the Western Pacific Railroad by the Craig ship plant, passed through the entrance under her own steam and will proceed to San Francisco. The tug has been ready for several days awaiting the dredging of the entrance to sufficient depth to permit her passing.

REPORTS WEBBER.

There seems to be lititle doubt that Gustav Webber, a contractor, has gone on a long journey, leaving anxious creditors behind, and also a check with no funds to meet it. This morning a telegram was received by a realty man from a friend at Cheyenne, Wyo., which reads: "Just met Gustav Webber on his way east."

Louis Holmes, employed by Housemover McCrary in moving the old Methodist Church building, caught the glove on his right hand between the cable and a pulley today, and his hand was drawn under the cable and crushed. Only the instant checking of the windlass saved him from fatal injuries. The third and little finger are so much crushed that amputation will be necessary.

SERVES NOTICE.

A deputy sheriff, armed with copies of the peremptory writ of mandate issued by Judge Bordwell, spent the afternoon in this city and Belmont Heights serving notice on the trustees of the little city to call the consolidation election Monday night or be held in contempt of court.

The climatic conditions this morning resulted in several remarkable mirages which changed almost constantly. Phantom steamships, electric cars, forests and tall buildings were seen out in the ocean.

Some would-be jokers today tied two tiny fish to a string and, throwing them overboard, they were swallowed by a pair of gulls. The misery of the latter at being captives was such that boatmen on the wharf shot them. The wharfinger has the names of the offenders and Monday will file information against them for cruelty.

Advance letters of inquiry for reservations at the different hotels and rooming houses indicate a busy winter. The inquiry is earlier than usual.

The annual picnic of the Oskaloosa, Iowa, Society of Southern California will be held in Long Beach September 6. A reception will be held in the morning at the Ebell clubhouse.

Relative to the supposed drowning here last Wednesday of Arthur McClay of Los Angeles, Manager Archer of the bathhouse, says that there has been no clothing found in the lockers, and therefore McClay evidently did not get a bath suit from that establishment.

"Hotel del Coronado" is booming.

PLAYA DEL REY.

PLAYA DEL REY, Aug. 28.—Delegations of Zionists from Los Angeles will be in full possession of this beach tomorrow, the occasion being the joint annual seaside outing of the Young Zionists' Association and the Ahabath Zion Society. There will be boating, dancing, bathing and other sports, with an engaging athletic programme of novelty races for men and women. There are also to be rowing and swimming contests, a free-for-all marathon, and a prize for the mother bringing the largest number of children to the picnic.

EXPECT PINCHOT ON ISLANDS.

FORESTER DUE ON CATALINA THIS WEEK.

Camp Is to Be Pitched on San Clemente, Where He Will Entertain Several Guests—Carnegie Institute Contemplates Moving Loggerhead (Fla.) Station to Avalon.

AVALON, Aug. 28.—After his exciting controversy up north, Gifford Pinchot, Chief Forester and chairman of the National Conservation Commission, is going fishing about Catalina next week, and off San Clemente, on which island the Tuna Club, of which he is a member, has a private reservation.

Pinchot has fished at San Clemente the last three years and has found marvelous sport, the yellowtail being extremely large and numerous.

This year the Chief Forester's guests will be Senator Flint, Dr. Charles F. Holder of Pasadena, president of the Tuna Club; Dr. Houghton of Boston, and Mr. Fisher of New Haven, Ct. Mexican Joe, who has been on the island for fifty-seven years, will be their major domo, and will have the little village of tents set up at Mosquito Harbor on September 3. Two launches and several small boats will be taken over.

Pinchot and Holder have been trying for several years to have the Island of San Clemente set aside as a fish and game preserve. The question will be discussed on the grounds this year.

The Carnegie Institute is contemplating moving its Loggerhead (Florida) station to Avalon or San Clemente. The island chosen will then become a great experimental station.

BOATMEN REAP HARVEST.

The Tuna Club has taken in about twenty-five new members lately and the old-time interest in tuna fishing has returned. Every boatman is engaged and reaping a harvest. The tunas in a big school are lying four or five miles off Seal Rocks, and dash in there four or five times a day. Hundreds are seen covering the water with foam. Experts say that the school is spawning near Catalina, and the young will return for five or six years, making the fishing at Catalina finer than ever before.

Capt. William Banning's yacht, the Cricket, came in today with Judge and Mrs. Erskine M. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. G. Rule, Ernest Haraszthy, Mrs. Wells, Miss Rosecranz and George Allen Hancock aboard.

"FATHER WORKING."

"Don't worry, father is working," is one of the many characteristic signs which adorn tent flaps and front porches at Avalon Canvas City. Even poor father comes over at the week end to enjoy a few days in the open for the simple life has proved so popular this season that on some occasions every available tent has been in service. Many families from Los Angeles and neighboring towns have camped there throughout the summer.

A stroll up Catalina avenue, from the bay to the golf links, shows many picturesque and individual tent-cottages, each with a string of lanterns, or a hammock and tables under the eucalyptus trees. A number of the season's campers are: Dr. Max Green and family, Los Angeles, "Camp Greenland;" Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Joy, Los Angeles, "Camp Joyland;" Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Jones, Los Angeles, "Seldom Inn;" Mrs. D. E. Earnest and family, Los Angeles, "Dixie Cottage;" Warren Tucker and family, Redlands, "Camp Redlands;" W. G. Wilson and family, Redlands, "Camp Budweiser;" E. P. Whitner and family, Redlands, "Camp Big Stick;" D. L. Clampitt and family, Los Angeles, "Kentucky Home;" Nelville Stephens, Los Angeles, "Never Inn;" E. A. Henry, Los Angeles, "All Inn;" Miss Grace Gard and family, Pasadena, "Gard House;" Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Williams, Los Angeles, "Jungle Inn."

Island Villa, with its artistic surroundings, has been one of the most popular colonies in Avalon. Among the Los Angeles people registered at the Villa are: Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Anderson, Von R. Renalia, Force Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. F. Herner, J. C. Gigas, A. C. Hakeller, A. Louise Hakeller, O. Newman and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Myers. Other arrivals include: Mrs. J. H. Golding, M. G. Mason, W. C. Wooster, Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Disney, Oklahoma; Miss May Everett, Galveston, Tex.; Miss Rena Everatt, Miss B. Brun, New Orleans; Mrs. W. J. Burk, Galveston, and Misses Louise and Alice Thulemeyer, Kenedy, Tex.

RETRENCHMENT.

CUTS COST TO FIT INCOME.

SANTA MONICA CITY COUNCIL REDUCES EXPENSES.

Reduction Made Necessary on Account of Decrease in Assessment and Repeal of Vocation License Ordinance—Humane Society Will Resign Custody of the Dog Pound.

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 28.—After having spent several days in wrestling with the municipal budget, the City Council has decided to make a general reduction in running expenses all along the line. By cutting $5000 off the salary allowance it will be possible to run the city during the next year on the same levy as was made last year, $1.60 on each $100 of assessed valuation.

This cuts the salary of the Mayor from $1500 per annum to $900, reduces the Chief of Police from $1500 to $1200, City Clerk from $1800 to $1500, and brings the building inspector down to $900. There are similar reductions in all departments. This retrenchment was made necessary on account of the reduction of the city assessment by $384,000 and the repeal of the vocation license ordinance, which deprives the city of about $8000, which it has heretofore been receiving each year. The tax levy would be at the high mark but for the fact that under the new law the school tax is not included in the city levy.

TAGLESS CURS MULTIPLY.

The Humane Society will on Monday night tender its resignation as custodian of the dog pound and collector of the dog license. The Council recognizes that the society has made a failure, and admits that the number of tagless dogs is greater today than at any time for many years. It is probable that an amended ordinance will be adopted, giving the city authority to employ a cur catcher and handle the collars in its own way.

DEATH OF W. L. MULLER.

William L. Muller, who has been a resident of Santa Monica seventeen years, died this morning at his home, No. 1323 Ocean avenue, after an illness of several years' duration. He leaves a widow, one daughter and his mother and four sisters and one brother, who reside in Los Angeles. He was a member of the Elks, Odd Fellows, Maccabee and Woodmen lodges. The funeral will be held Monday, under the auspices of the Odd Fellows. The interment will be in Rosedale Cemetery, Los Angeles.

GOOD TEMPLARS ELECT.

District lodge officers were this afternoon elected by the Independent Order of Good Templars thus: Miss Myrtle B. Shaw, Pasadena, District Chief Templar; R. Taylor, Los Angeles, District Councilor; Miss Edith Cornelius, Santa Monica, Vice-Templar; Mrs. R. Swain, Burbank, Superintendent of Juvenile Temples; A. Dobbins, Los Angeles, Electoral Superintendent; Miss Rose Burness, Los Angeles, Secretary; F. L. McKibben, Los Angeles, Treasurer; P. A. Petersen, Los Angeles, Marshal; Miss Effie Porter, Norwalk, Guard; H. A. Thornton, Artesia, Sentinel; Miles Elliott, Pasadena, Messenger; Miss Charlotte Newton, Norwalk, Deputy Marshal. Appointive officers were named thus: Miss Mary Beinhoff, Los Angeles, Chaplain; Miss Bertha Beinhoff, Los Angeles, Assistant Secretary; Miss Edith Thornton, Norwalk, Organist.

INVITATIONS OUT.

Invitations were issued today for the marriage at St. Augustine's Episcopal Church in this city on September 14 of Miss Phyllis S. Lindsey to Edmond S. Brigham. The bride-to-be is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Philip S. Lindsey, residents of Santa Monica.

Miss Grace Ingersoll of this city was married in Los Angeles this afternoon to Willis E. Bartlett of Pomona. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther A. Ingersoll of Third street, and the groom is a young business man of Pomona, where the home of the young couple is to be made.

FIRE FOR SHRINERS.

With Greek fire illuminating the Rustic Cañon resort, Frank Lawton tonight entertained a special party of fifty Shriners at the Log Cabin. The affair was a select one, and the arrangements for it were made so quietly that only those who were in the secret knew that a high jinks so novel in its setting and appointments was being pulled off. The pleasure seekers came by special trolley car from Los Angeles and there were no stray visitors in the cañon to catch the gleam of the red fire or the ringing echoes as they bounded from hillside to hillside. Rustic was a sealed book tonight to those who were not in possession of the password, as the entrance gates were locked and the keys thrown away.

MOTHERS' CONGRESS PICNIC.

The annual picnic of the California Congress of Mothers will be held at Echo Park Tuesday, August 31. It will commence at 11 a. m. and continue throughout the day. Among the many speakers will be Mr. Bettinger; Mrs. Cowles, who will speak on "Organized Effort;" Mrs. E. Calkins of New York will give a reading, and Mrs. F. Prior, president of the Wednesday Morning Club, will deliver a short address. Lunch will be served free at noon.

PICNIC IN ECHO PARK.

Holding its first annual picnic, the Hollywood Improvement Association gathered in Echo Park yesterday to enjoy a basket dinner. More than two hundred members were present and listened to enthusiastic speeches. A straw vote on the question of consolidation with Los Angeles was taken, and the anti-consolidationists won the day.

"Keeping Clean" is Not Enough

The oldest of a family of popular young girls recently went away to finish her education at a boarding-school, and came home a few days ago on a week-end visit. All her sisters exclaimed upon her improved appearance and after looking her over with frank sisterly scrutiny, discovered that her skin was "different." It had taken on a velvety smoothness, a beautiful color, and a fineness of texture which was exquisite in its charm. "It's easily explained," she said, when pressed for the facts in the matter. "We have always made the mistake of supposing that if we kept ourselves clean our skin ought to be beautiful. So we scrubbed ourselves with prettily scented soaps, and were surprised to find that our skin was frequently rough and red, and always coarse and unattractive. At school we use Harfina Soap. It does more than keep us clean—it heals and soothes. It corrects all skin irritations, and gives it that charming tint and texture which is the chief charm of a truly beautiful woman." Try Harfina soap yourself and see how true this all is. Ask your druggist or any of the following druggists for this splendid soap. 25c a cake, or sent by mail on receipt of 25c. MRS. LOVE WEDS AGAIN..

Marriage in Santa Ana of Couple Who Were Divorced—Seventh Venture by the Woman.

SANTA ANA, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Grace Snell Coffin-Coffin-Walker-Coffin-Layman-Love-Love ended her seventh wedding ceremony in this city last evening.

The groom was Hugh M. Love, a Los Angeles newspaper man. This was the couple's second venture in matrimony together.

Love and Mrs. Love arrived at the Courthouse yesterday afternoon, after office hours. They found Deputy Tax Collector E. L. Vegely still at work, and persuaded him to hunt County Clerk Williams that they might get a marriage license. Williams was located in a barber's chair, and when the shave was finished he went to the Courthouse and issued the license.

Love stated his age as 33, and the lady's as 39. He said he had been once divorced, while she had been married three times.

Meantime, Justice of the Peace Smithwick had been summoned. He performed the ceremony in the presence of Vegely, George M. Benedict, courthouse caretaker, and the County Clerk. The witnesses of record are Vegely and Benedict.

One of Mrs. Love's former husbands, Perkins A. Layman, was well known here, where he resided before going to Los Angeles as clerk in the Van Nuys.

An answer was filed today by George W. Rainey of Los Angeles in the civil action brought by Edward Reinert against him and Braman H. Loveless to recover possession of property near Artesia. Rainey denies being involved in the deal.

SAN BERNARDINO.

MINERS FEARING WATER FAMINE.

OPPOSE ESPEE'S APPLICATION FOR PATENT ON LANDS.

Washington Sends Expert to Investigate Area on Desert That Railroad Company Wants—Crusade Against Drivers Who Keep on Wrong Side of Street.

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 28.—E. G. Locke has taken up his headquarters at Ludlow, on the desert, to investigate for the General Land Office the lands which the Southern Pacific has applied for a patent upon. Some months ago the application of the railroad company was printed in the Eye, a little Needles weekly.

The miners at once took the matter up. They secured the influence of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and protests were wired and mailed to Washington. It was alleged that the land is mineral in character and contains the only water sources on the desert in that locality.

Locke is a mining expert and has been connected with the government land department for a number of years.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT.

Chief of Police Shay has started a campaign against violators of the road law. He has officers stationed at every street intersection in the business district and proposes to arrest automobilists, carriage drivers and bicyclists who refuse to observe the rule to keep to the right side of the street, and turn corners squarely.

Two fatal automobile accidents have taken place here, recently, because drivers have disregarded the rule.

The ordinance regarding lights on automobiles and electric cars will also be inforced to the letter.

Today, the police at Third and E streets stopped twenty-seven automobiles and other vehicles for taking the wrong side of the street.

Property owners on Fifth street are circulating a petition asking that the name of the street be changed to Los Angeles avenue. This change is desired because the Southern California Auto Club has made Fifth street the official entrance to this city. The petition will be presented to the Council Monday night.

NEW WELL PROMISING.

The city's new eighteen-inch well in the Lytle Creek district, which is now at a depth of 666 feet, developed gusher qualities today. A splendid stream of pure crystal water bubbled over the top of the casing. The well has not been cut in and will not be until it is at least 1000 feet deep. The drill is now in fine gravel. It is expected that the hole will add 250 inches to the city's water supply.

Articles of incorporation were filed today with the County Clerk by the California and Pacific Coast Information Bureau, organized by a Redlands family, with the idea of furnishing all manner of information sought by easterners. The list of questions answered by the corporation will range from telling the altitude of the highest mountain, to the weight of the heaviest pumpkin. The enterprising incorporators are H. E., V. M. and A. L. Maines.

THUGS ATTACK BRIDE.

Young Woman Held Up and Knocked Down on Eve of Wedding.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SALEM, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Knocked down and beaten by thugs and robbed of her savings, on the eve of her marriage, was the fate tonight of Pearl E. Ax, according to the girl's own story.

Miss Ax, who is eighteen years old, was to have been married tonight to James H. Miller. She says that while walking on Asylum avenue, just at dark this evening, she was stopped by two rough-looking men and ordered to hand over her money. When she resisted, she was knocked down and beaten and left unconscious on the sidewalk.

She was picked up by passersby, placed on a streetcar and brought to the City Hall, where she discovered that her pocketbook was missing. Miller, the girl's finance, is the son of an old newspaperman here. The wedding has been postponed.

FROWN.

DEACONS FENCE LOVERS OUT.

TRYSTING PLACE SPOILED IN SAN DIEGO.

"So That We Can Raise Some Choice Flowers Inside" Is Official Reason for Erecting Barrier—Wife Furnishes Curious Defense for Husband.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 28.—The deacons of the First Presbyterian Church have ordered a seven-foot iron fence to be erected on the Eighth street side of the church corner across the front of the chapel. When asked what the fence was being built for the sexton of the church said, "So that we can raise some choice flowers inside. If we would try to raise any pretty flowers now they would be gone before morning."

But this explanation will not take true meaning with scores of love-lorn couples who have long been using the church grounds for their billing and cooing. Between the church and chapel is a small plot of ground effectually protected from the eyes of the curious, in darkness, by flowers and shrubbery.

It was here that loving lads and lassies have been wont to meet and exchange vows of undying love and affection. Now the trustees have decided to block the only means of enchance to this plot with a fence, topped with spikes and barbed wire. Thus another retreat is gone for the lovers and they will regret accordingly.

WIFE DEFENDS HUSBAND.

Hugo Knappe, a German laborer, was yesterday placed on trial in the Justice Court on a charge of disturbance, preferred by neighbors of the defendant who live in the City Heights. The complainants stated that a woman's shrieks and cries were frequently and distinctly heard emanating from the Knappe home, and they suspected that the Teuton was beating his wife. Mrs. Knappe came to the defense of her accused spouse and on the stand swore that she was subject to fits of hysteria, and at such times it was necessary for her husband to exert physical force to prevent her from doing acts of violence. Knappe was released upon condition that no more grounds for complaint be given to the neighbors in that section.

SWAILE CONVICTED.

Working on the old theory that the third time is the charm, District Attorney Utley by perseverance secured a conviction at the third trial of Charles R. A. Swaile, tried in the Superior Court on a charge of dynamiting a house owned by E. W. Dickenson on April 1, last.

Upon two former occasions the trials resulted in both juries disagreeing. The third trial, which begun last Monday, ended this morning when the jury rendered a verdict of guilty with a recommendation for mercy. Swaile will be arraigned for sentence next Monday.

At the beginning of Swaile's troubles with Dickenson the defendant owned a small ranch on the outskirts of the city. The final conviction, it is said, finds Swaile and his family of a wife and four small children practically penniless, as the cost of his defense has eaten up the little home. The cases have cost the taxpayers of the county in the neighborhood of $3000. The crime is punishable by penitentiary sentence. Swaile will ask for parole.

TAXES MOSTLY COLLECTED.

Less than $90,000 of the total 1909 tax assessment of $500,000 remains to be collected by City Treasurer Stewart, according to a statement made by the tax collector yesterday. As a rule not more than half of the taxes are collected by this time of the year, and consequently this is a remarkable showing. This record has never before been equaled in the history of San Diego, it is said.

The Ville de Paris of Los Angeles has opened a store at No. 529 Third street, San Bernardino, for a sale of ready-to-wear garments—interesting news for women in San Bernardino, Riverside, Redlands, Colton and surrounding places.

FOREST FIRE RAGES.

Flames Licking Up the Standing Timber and Much Has Been Detsoryed Already.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

GRASS VALLEY, Aug. 28.—The worst forest fire of the year in this section of the state is reported to be still raging today between French Corral and the big Colgate power plant on the Yuba river.

The fire started Wednesday in heavy timber and has burned everything before it over a large area. Much valuable standing timber has been destroyed.

Because of the sparse population, the fire gained great headway before the first steps were taken to check it, according to the meagre reports and the financial loss will be large. Unless he wind shifs to aid the handful of fire fighters, it is feared that the whole countryside will be denuded.

After several days' hard work the fire in the Billings and Northern tunnel near Great Falls, Mont., has been put out, but it will be ten days or more before trains can be run through it. About 15,000 feet of timbering is destroyed.

FLASHES FROM WIRES.

Immediately following the announcement by Thomas F. Walsh, millionaire mining man, that he had deposited a substantial sum with the School of Mines at Golden, Colo., to defray the expenses of testing samples of ore believed to be pitchblende, comes the declaration by Carl Hextus, a well-known prospector of the Cripple Creek district that pitchblende ore can be found in paying quantities near Cripple Creek, as samples discovered some time ago have been pronounced genuine by experts.

The Japanese government made its first departure from its recently adopted programme of naval curtailment yesterday, when it announced that three new cruisers will be constructed for the Japanese navy. Each of the cruisers will be of 5000 tons and the Curtis turbine will be used in the power plant. The keels of the new fighting ships will be laid in the cities of Kure, Nagazam and Kobe.

Motorman George E. East of Denver, Colo., and six passengers were more or less seriously injured shortly before midnight Friday night, when a tramway car on the Forty-fourth avenue line, returning from an amusement park, was completely overturned by striking a curve while running at high speed. The accident occurred at an unlighted corner and is said to have resulted from Motorman East's unfamiliarity with the line. Mrs. C. F. Sanderson of Golden suffered severe internal injuries and is believed to be in a critical condition. Other passengers were only slightly hurt.

TWO KILLED IN COLLISION.

GLENWOOD (Mo.) Aug. 28.—Two persons are dead and a score injured, six dangerously, as the result of a head-on collision between a heavily loaded Wabash passenger train and a freight train on the same road near here today. The accident happened on a curve. The cause of the wreck is not known.

One of the most interesting millinery establishments ever opened in this city, is The Citrin's Millinery, at 224 Mercantile Place. The establishment will be under the personal supervision of Mrs. Citrin, who won the distinction of being the leading millinery designer in the largest shopping district of the world. Namely, Fourteen st. New York. In reply to an interview, Mrs. Citrin modestly said: "I invited all critics of fashion and hope to be able to please them. I pleased, what they call in New York, 'the swells,' and see no reason why I can not do it here. My stock is of the latest and my help the best that can be obtained. Why, I opened in the Mercantile Place? I want to have a small expense, to be able to sell at a moderate price."

Remember the slogan: "Buy and Boost Home Products." For daily references, see page 5, Part II, of The Times, containing list of wide-awake manufacturers, under the heading "Made in Southern California." You will find there are manufacturers of necessities and luxuries here—manufacturers of things to eat and drink—things for the home, the factory, the office and the farm. Buy them! Try them! There are none better. Buy and Boost, and keep your money at home where it will do you and yours the most good!

Cecil Rhodes as a Prospector.

The arch prospector of all times was Cecil Rhodes. For him it was not merely going out and putting down holes in likely places. At 17 he had been touched with tuberculosis and ordered south. Arriving at his brother Herbert's cotton plantation in Africa in the midst of the second diamond excitement, he, with Herbert, was drawn into the "new" rush. They took a claim at Colesburg—at 30 shillings a month rental. In a few weeks each leased a full claim, all the law allowed. Cecil Rhodes set himself to get the law to allow one man to own two claims, then ten and then as many as he could lay hold of. So well did Cecil Rhodes keep pace with changing regulations that he returned to England at 19 a millionaire.—[Franklin Clarkin, in Everybody's.

FUN OF IT.

FISHER'S ANTICS BEAT THE TUNA'S.

Sad Tale of the Disgrace That Befell Two Los Angeles Sports and the Scorn and Contumely That Were Heaped Upon Them.

BY HARRY C. CARR.

HAVING achieved an error in the fourth dimension, committed, I fear, the crime of crimes and lost, alas, the tuna button, we have come slinking home in disgrace.

From troubled dreams, I awake to find myself furiously reeling in the slack of the line; shuddering at the remarks of the boatman whose terrible scorn will never be erased from my soul.

I know now what a homeless dog feels like.

Mr. Gale, the artist, and I went to Catalina to find out how it feels to catch a tuna.

With certain mortifying gaps in the tunarial gamut of emotions, here is how:

"We will start at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning," said "Chappie," the boatman.

"Not while we have our health and strength we won't start at 6," we said firmly. We hadn't then learned to tremble at the ukase of the Czar.

All afternoon we had been filling ourselves with the fierce lust of the hunt.

All afternoon we had been stampeding down to the pleasure wharf with the rest of the population of Avalon to meet the launches coming back from the tuna grounds.

Some of them came sneaking shamefacedly around the headland and others fairly swaggered in with the blue-and-white tuna flag at the masthead.

As we saw the greeneyed murderous look of envy that some Chicago corporation lawyer, returning empty-handed, cast at some chuckle-headed Slavonian fisherman staggering up the gangway with his tuna, it impressed us that standards vary; also filled us with the aforesaid lust for tuna. But not to the 6 a.m. mark.

Chappie grumbled and grew sarcastic but compromised on 7.

WE TROOP DOWN.

The next morning, we trooped down with the tuna hunters, trying to look as professional and blasé as possible—as though we had left our gold tuna trophy buttons on our other clothes by mistake.

As the gasoline engine chug-chunked us out past Pebbly Beach and circling Seal Rocks and then out to breast the open sea, we noticed that Chappie looked us over with misgivings. We didn't look like the real thing.

The offing was specked with tiny dots that grew into other tuna launches as we chugged on.

We passed Col. Eddy, the steel trust lawyer, who dropped the billion-dollar corporation and dashed for Catalina when the first tuna was struck. He is now trying to land one on a line about the size of a spider web. Class to Col. Eddy!

We chugged under the bows of John Brink's launch, and got a black glare for coming too near the trolling lines of a champion tarpon fisher of Florida fame.

For hours we cruised around, climbing the long green slopes of the ground swells and slipping down into the low round valleys of the sea.

Chappie unbent and told us, out of his wisdom, of the tuna.

"All this talk about women catching tunas, champion lady tuna catchers and all that, is rot," said Chappie. "No woman ever caught a tuna or ever will. The woman hooks a tuna on her line and the fisherman fights him in."

CHAPPIE'S DISTINCTION.

Chappie has the distinction of being fisherman-in-ordinary to Jim Jeffries; but no man is a hero to Chappie, after he has seen him with a fish pole.

"Why that Jim Jeffries," said Chappie, with awful scorn. "He is so clumsy, he can't even catch a yellowtail. Last year I had him out fishing and he got a yellowtail on his hook. I kept telling him to reel in; but he got his fists all mixed up in the line. At last he threw the pole down in the bottom of the boat and said, 'To hell with your yellowtail.'"

Before we got home, our first scorn for the champ's inefficiency changed to a deep and tender compassion.

Suddenly, Chappie jumped to his feet. His eyes fairly snapped. "They're here," he said.

Far out across the green waste of the sea we saw the water churned white and spray boiling, foaming. Against the sky line we could see tiny black specks darting into the air.

Each speck was a giant tuna leaping sheer from the sea in hot pursuit of his dinner.

As though by some magic signal the tuna launches turned and darted headlong for the spot. The rodeo of the tuna had begun. The horizon began belching hurried launches "up over the edge of the morning" until the sea seemed thick with them.

On the stern of each launch was a fisherman seated like ourselves with his knees cocked up and solemnly holding onto a fish pole. It was an extremely ridiculous picture.

A JOLT.

Suddenly a jolt like a shock of electricity ran up my line. A vicious, confused, voracious jerk. Then the pole bent almost double and I struggled to keep from going overboard.

"The brake," yelled Chappie. I gritted my teeth and jabbed my thumb down on the reel brake with the desperation of the boy who saved the dikes of Holland.

The afternoon before I had seen the power of this same brake tested.

I had seen a powerful man pull on the line until it cut into his flesh without the reel giving an inch, such a death grip had the brake. Now the line was hissing out through the reel until it was hot under my thumb. The brake was about as effective as a women's suffragette argument to a Mormon voter.

Chappie had taken the precaution to wet the line through beforehand, else it would have burned on the reel with the friction. As it was he poured on water to prevent ignition.

The velocity was beyond telling. The line fairly screamed as it ran out.

My own theory is that some government submarine cruiser was doing a little gumshoe work around the island and my fish hook happened to catch in a torpedo tube.

Chappie says it was a tuna. As the first "strike" Chappie jumped to the pretty "sassy" launch for going; but we might as well have been an anchored rock.

One hundred, two hundred, five hundred feet of line tore out like a runaway kite.

At first the old gladiator went straight out from the stern of the launch almost on the surface of the sea, no doubt shaking his head like an old bulldog with a rat, trying to disengage the hook.

SEE THE SPRAY!

You could see the spray rise in little spurts in his wake, as he lashed out with his furious strength.

Once a magnificent thing happened; the old tuna leaped clean out of the sea. He was trying every trick he knew. For a second, a tense, splendid, glistening body seemed to hang in mid air. Then he hit the water with a cracking splash and went straight down, carrying out the line with a new rush.

Then it suddenly slackened. He was coming up again.

"Reel," shrieked Chappie. "For the love of heaven, reel."

Reel!

My hand was flying around that reel like a Fourth of July pin wheel. But it didn't suit Chappie. I heard a groan of despair behind me.

"Can't you hear me tell you to reel," he cried in an awful voice. Wow!

"I am reeling," I yelled indignantly.

But then the curtain fell. My line gave a quick snap. Then it hung limp.

Hold a piece of string taut between your hands and you can't break the cord. But slacken the cord and snap it quickly and the strands will burst. So I lost my tuna.

Chappie was almost speechless.

"I told you to reel in," he groaned. He went back to his seat amidships and bowed his head in his hands.

Presently he said in a wan voice that he wanted a drink. We passed him the fire-water and Chappie lifted his head to the blue dome of heaven that

AUTO BOUNCES BOY.

Machine and Horse Use Lad as Football, But He Escapes Serious Injury.

Robert Lacy, twelve years old, was bounced around between an automobile and a horse, like a football yesterday and escaped with only a bruise on his right thigh.

Lacy was standing at Sixth street and Center Place when he was struck by a machine and thrown to one side. He fell within reach of a horse which kicked him on the thigh and rolled him back.

He was taken to the Receiving Hospital and then went to his home at No. 1125 Crocker street.

NOT THINKING OF FRIENDS.

Arthur McClay, a young tailor who was thought by his friends to have been drowned at Long Beach Wednesday, made his appearance yesterday morning at the place where he is employed. He was much surprised that his friends were thinking him dead, and explained that he had been "out with a crowd of young fellows having a good time."

LITTLE MISS HUFF BORN AN ANGELENO

One of Happy Events Marking the Advent of San Pedro to Greater Fold—Government Is Formally Transferred—Books Held.

LITTLE MISS HUFF missed being born in San Pedro, Cal., by just one hour and twenty minutes. But it wasn't her fault, because at 12 o'clock yesterday San Pedro passed out of official existence. Miss Huff was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Huff at 1:20 o'clock, and the event was the first one of real importance after the port city became a part of Great Los Angeles.

Many other "first" things after t new régime was established w noted. One of the most interesti was that this was the first time o cials refused to turn their books ov to the officials of the city of Los A geles. And, as far as that goes, was the first chance they ever ha refuse.

At 12:15 o'clock, the Mayor and Collector went to the office of M. Baker, Marshal, Tax Collector License Collector — perhaps o things, too—of San Pedro, and manded his books.

LOCKS UP HIS BOOKS.

Before they arrived Baker had his records placed in the vault, lo it, and put the key in his po When the demand was made, he ly refused to turn them over until perts now at work on them shall finished their task.

"We have made the demand, that is all we can do," said Mayor.

"Of course, my responsibility not begin until 12 o'clock today," Tax Collector Johnson.

"Of course, it doesn't," said Ba rather tartly. "My responsibility tinues until 12 o'clock, and when t books have been experted they be turned over."

The experting of the books is a turn in the maneuvering of the régime in San Pedro. By a contr signed Friday by President Wa of the Board of Trustees and Clerk Mason, Charles Phipps of Angeles was employed to audit books of the Tax Collector, Cl Treasurer and Assessor. He is to ceive $10 a day for his own serv and $5 for an assistant. The Tru set aside $1000 in a fund to pay it. This will indicate about t months' work.

Not only did Baker, who has b Tax Collector, Marshal and pooh-

SPECIAL ELECTION PROBABLE.

ANNEXATIONISTS GET MANY SIGNATURES.

"IT IS practically certain that Los Angeles will soon be enlarged by the addition of ten square miles, or 6400 acres of territory, with an assessed valuation of approximately $12,000,000, and a population of over 10,000," said Motley H. Flint yesterday afternoon.

He is at the head of the movement to annex the district between this city and Hollywood, and has charge of getting the petitions signed in Los Angeles for the purpose of calling a special election. He has received twenty of the two hundred petitions sent out, which bears 1420 signatures.

"I want to get at least 9000 signatures," continued Mr. Flint. "Based on the last municipal election, we must have 6258. It is safe to predict that 20 per cent. will be thrown out on account of changed addresses.

"On Monday morning we will turn the petitions over to the city for checking, and if there should be a few signatures lacking, I will get an army of men out and we will have the necessary number in short order."

It is the desire of the committee to have the petitions acted on at the meeting of the Council on Tuesday. admit Arlington Heights, Dayton Heights, Vermont-avenue district, most of Colegrove, and part of East Hollywood, including all of the Cahuenga school district, and parts of the Cienega, Las Feliz and Colegrove school districts, according to the leaders of the union movement.

"I have had the annexation of this territory in mind for a long time," said Flint yesterday. "I have been working on it quietly, getting it all surveyed and the proper maps made ready for filing before I started in to get petitions signed. Fortunately, just as I got about ready to spring the proposition, the people of Arlington Heights, Colegrove and East Hollywood started to work up a sentiment against the Union Hollywood Water Company on account of the excessive rates charged by that concern. The people affected believe that the only way to solve the water problem is to get into Los Angeles as quickly as possible.

"Then residents of Dayton Heights started a movement for the incorporation of a city of the sixth class. There was opposition to this with the result that practically every one in that district is now in favor of annexation.

"I can say that the objection to an-

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

ASSOCIATED IS TO LAY PIPES.

Big Company Ready to Act at Coalinga.

No Word as to Date for the McKittrick Work.

Delay Likely as Demand Is Not Great.

The Associated is expected to have its Coalinga-Port Costa pipe line started very quickly, and probably completed about the same time as the Independent-Union line. The Associated will undoubtedly have an abundance of oil to move, notwithstanding he break with the Independent Agency. Its own production, while omparatively small, is growing, and t will move the Kern Trading and il production, which is very large nd is increasing, besides which there s the American Petroleum's oil, and uite a little from small companies utside of the Agency that may be ad.

Not a word is heard about the McKittrick-to-Gaviota line that it was xpected would be laid soon, and oubts are expressed as to when it ill start. The fact is that the present McKittrick output does not apar to justify in the least such an penditure. It hovers around 450,000 arrels a day, practically all of which es to Southern Pacific locomotives, d there is no surplus in storage. he Standard's McKittrick line is still le, never having pumped a barrel.

The latest figures showed only 1,050,-0 barrels in storage on the entire est side of Kern, of which some 0,000 were in McKittrick. This is w probably somewhat increased. The tal production of the West Side es not exceed 750,000 a month, and art of this cannot be piped. The andard already taps Midway, and at it does not take now is chiefly e Santa Fé's production.

Under the circumstances, there ems to be very little demand for Associated pipe line into the West de fields at this time.

The Union is still endeavoring to ke a success of the mile-deep Braears well in the Rosemary pool west the city. For the last few days men have been withdrawing the sing, which parted at 2700 feet, nessitating a fishing job, the extent which cannot be foretold.

BANKS CONSOLIDATE.

TRUNDLE TEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS THROUGH STREETS.

Carrying the bags of coin to moving van.

MONEY moved actively yesterday afternoon between Second and Broadway and Third and Main streets, when the American National Bank moved in a big van automobile truck $10,000,000 of cash and securities from its counting room to that of the Citizens' National Bank. The "financial flurry" by which this big transfer of funds was made took place at 3 p.m. The Chief of Police furnished officers to see that none of the notes, stocks, bonds or cash escaped.

This is the consummation of a consolidation of these two big national banks, arranged some months ago. All yesterday, last night and all today things hummed for all those connected with the American National. The books and everything connected with the institution will be down on the corner of Main and Third by tomorrow morning, when the business of both banks will be done there under the consolidation.

The consolidation makes an exceedingly strong institution in the financial world. It is a complete merger of all the assets and business of both banks. The American National Bank goes out of existence as a name, and the Citizens' National Bank is the great remaining institution.

The building at the corner of Second and Broadway was the property of the American National Bank, and, with all other assets, goes to the consolidated concern.

The combined deposits of these banks is nearly $8,000,000, and the assets $10,000,000. Of the large amount of money moved yesterday, $800,000 was in actual cash, $2,500,000 in notes, $500,000 in bonds and the balance in securities of various kinds.

The American National Bank has occupied the building at Second and Broadway for twenty years, but it will have a better location and a better building now, one built especially for banking purposes.

William W. Wood, vice-president of the American National Bank, was in charge of the moving, and kept a close tab on each bag and box. The money was carried from the vaults of the bank to the van by half a dozen clerks.

TUNA FISHERS.

had witnessed my guilt and imbibed.

Gale timidly offered him a sandwich; but he refused. He said it would choke him.

IN DISGRACE.

By common consent, Chappie yanked the helm around and the bow of the launch turned homeward.

We sat for a long time in silence, I wondering if I would have to go to jail and if the family dog would growl at me at home.

At last Chappie heaved a sigh out of the recesses of his soul and spoke. "Well," he said gloomily, "I have been waiting five years for a strike like that—you lost him in five minutes."

That evening, after dinner, we met Chappie on the street and he cut me dead. Being a gentleman, he didn't tell on me; but he cut me dead.

That was the last blow. If he only put out his hand and said: "You are an imbecile, a worm, a hound-dog, a thing; but I forgive you," I would have been happier now.

Aye, it is an awful thing to lose a tuna.

SOLEMN THOUGHTS.

All that remained for us was to go meekly down to the pleasure pier and watch the other launches coming in, flying tuna flags.

It gives one a new and deep respect for a tuna. I hate to see one strung up on the wharf, his brave body ignominously plastered with a note to the effect that he weighed 130 pounds and was hooked by John Jones, the well-known millionaire.

Every tuna ought to be buried with honors. Of all the creatures that walk the earth or swim the sea, the tuna is the finest fighter. He has the courage and "heart" of a pit bulldog and the lithe agility of a tiger. Every line and muscle of his body bespeaks power. His dead body looks like a projectile for a naval gun.

There is about as much sport in shooting a deer as in spanking a baby. Catching a giant jewfish is like pulling in a log—but catching a tuna is a duel.

A few days ago, one of the Catalina fishermen fought a tuna for eleven hours. The tuna finally tore loose and escaped.

One of the stories told with awe in the Tuna Club is of a woman who fought a tuna six hours; landed ihm at last and ever since has been a nervous wreck. She is now in Carlsbad trying to restore her broken health.

Eastern men who were catching the giant tarpon in Florida this summer, threw down their lines and took the first train for California when Steve Brode electrified the sporting world by bringing in the first tuna in five years.

The big Florida fish are said to be child's play compared to tuna.

When you learn that in the Mediterranean, the fishermen drag these game sea fighters to shore in nets like so much dead jelly fish, you begin the depth of Europe's degeneration.

NEW LIBRARY BOOKS.

Valuable Acquisitions—Some Important Works on Architecture Received.

The very recent acquisition by the Los Angeles Public Library of a number of superb works on architecture, sculpture and painting, is to be highly commended. Los Angeles is fast coming to the fore as regards the beauty and magnificence of public buildings and residences, and it is only fitting that she should be the possessor of works which are considered world's masterpieces. Our architects will now have the opportunity of studying architecture in its fullest details, without having recourse to the outside world, when drawing up plans for future edifices.

Many of these books belonged to the library of George Frederick Bodley.

vivid interest to this collection, for, he sought his inspiration largely from the fourteenth century, a style that has run changelessly through all the Gothic building from the thirteenth century until the end.

Among some of the notable works on architecture which have been acquired are: "Stuart and Revett's Antiquities of Athens," a book desired by every library that wishes to have an authoritative treatise on Grecian Architecture. Cotman's "Architectural Antiquities of Normandy, 1822," is a book rich in fine engravings of buildings that are typical illustrations of Norman architecture; whilst the two superb works on Sainte Chapelle, that crowning glory of the French Gothic, with its marvelous coloring, gives one a keen insight into interior decorations. Murphy's "Plans, elevations, sections and views of the church of Batalha," a monastery little known, but one of the splendid examples of the Gothic, is also included in the purchase. One of the most useful works is: "Ill Duomo di Milano," an important work to students as it illustrates what to avoid in architecture. "Texier and Pullam's Byzantine Architecture, (1864;)" "L'art Russe," a unique work by Viollet-le-Duc; Ongania's "Monograph of the Basillica of St. Mark;" Gruner's "Terra Cotta Architecture of Northern Italy," and King's "Study book of Mediaeval Architecture and Art," and many other rare masterpieces, including the original edition of the very rare work of the Adam Brothers published in 1773, have all been added to the Reference Department of our public library.

Sculptors, stonemasons and designers of stain-glass windows have not been forgotton, as the work: "Ancient Sepuleral Monuments," by William Brindley and Samuel Wetherley, covers the monuments from ancient Egypt to the end of the eighteenth century. This is to be heartily recommended to every designer of monuments, as in the past, the tombs of Genoa, of Milan and Berlin have been the models for America, in consequence of which our cemeteries are today filled with innumerable distorted nightmares.

One of the most notable books recently purchased is: "Le Nouvel Opera de Paris," by Charles Carnier, in two folio volumes of plates with accompanying volumes of text. This superb monograph is out of print. Many of the plates are colored, and, these volumes in connection with Sach's Modern Opera Houses," should prove a boon to every architect interested in theaters, as many of the details can be applied to our prospective buildings.

PREPARED FOR PAGEANT.

Twenty Parlors of Native Sons and Daughters Will Parade in Santa Barbara Admission Day.

Twenty parlors of Native Sons and Daughters will gather in Santa Barbara on Admission Day and take part in the big parade which will be one of the features of the celebration.

As soon as the special trains arrive from Los Angeles, on the south, and San Luis Obispo, on the north, the parlors will assemble at the Potter Hotel, and at 11 o'clock the pageant will begin moving up State street, headed by a military band. The division made up of the Los Angeles parlors will have their own band at its head.

In this division will be three parlors of Native Daughters, in attractive costumes. The Native Sons of Ventura expect to have seventy-five men in line, and will appear in appropriate uniform. The parade promises to contain the largest representation of Native Sons and Daughters ever assembled in Southern California.

SOME EVIDENCE TAKEN.

The Coroner impaneled a jury yesterday to hold an inquest over the bodies of William F. McGee and William D. The hearing was then adjourned until Thursday. Funeral services for McGee were held yester-

OLD IRONSIDES.

Ay, tear her tattered ensign down!
  Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
  That banner in the sky;
Beneath it rung the battle shout,
  And burst the cannon's roar—
The meteor of the ocean air
  Shall sweep the clouds no more.

Her deck once red with heroes' blood,
  Where knelt the vanquished foe,
When winds were hurrying o'er the flood
  And waves were white below,
No more shall feel the victor's tread,
  Or know the conquered knee—
The harpies of the shore shall pluck
  The eagle of the sea.

Oh, better that her shattered hulk
  Should sink beneath the wave;
Her thunders shook the mighty deep,
  And there should be her grave;
Nail to the mast her holy flag,
  Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
  The lightning and the gale!

FOR FIRST-STREET TUNNEL.

Plans for the construction of the proposed First-street tunnel were earnestly discussed at a meeting of the Diamond and North Figueroa Tunnel Association at No. 108 North Beaudry street Friday evening. A committee of three was appointed to consult the Council and City Engineer for information as to how best "COUSINS" ARE MASSING FAST.

HUNDREDS CLAIMING SHARES OF WIDOW'S ESTATE.

"Relatives" Swarm Since It Became Known That Pioneer Had Left Property Valued at Not Less Than Seventy Thousand Dollars and That There Is No Will.

That there are several hundred people who would not be averse to accepting an estate valued at not less than $70,000, has been learned by Public Administrator Bryson, who has charge of the property left by Mrs. Matilda Walden, the pioneer of this city, who died Saturday. There is no will.

Hundreds of letters and nearly a dozen formal claims are already on file at the Administrator's office. The time allowed for the filing of such claims expires October 29.

Most of the alleged relatives of Mrs. Matilda Walden state that they are cousins and many of them are natives of Ireland or Scotland. C. White Mortimer, British Vice-Consul in Los Angeles, is acting for four claimants, and Attorney Claude R. Ball of Montgomery City, Mo., for eight others.

The legally-filed claims are not the ones which worry the Public Administrator, but the "freak" letters from people who are in a great hurry for their money or who are willing to compromise if paid immediately.

"If you send me about $20,000 at once, I will let the matter go and will not sue you for keeping my money so long. Just send the money to me as I am a cousin and the favorite of Mrs. Matilda Walden. She always wanted me to have her money, so I think her

The following-named have formally filed claims to part of the estate: James Wilson, County Cavan, Ireland; William Wilson, Glasgow, Scotland; James Wilson, Bethulep, Ireland; Rose Baxter, Belfast, Ireland; Joseph Mitchell, Belfast, Ireland; Mrs. Mary Wilson Kimberly, West Liberty, Iowa; Agnes Wilson Ehlers, Atelisia, Iowa; Alexander Wilson, West Liberty, Iowa; David Wilson, West Liberty, Iowa; Mrs. Elizabeth Sniffin, Denver, Colo., and William Gracey and Earl Gracey, of Des Moines, Iowa.

Mrs. Matilda Walden was the sister of a blacksmith, John Wilson, who settled in Los Angeles and located his farm and shop in the neighborhod of Main and First streets. Wilson kept his property in the heart of the city and at his death left it to his widowed sister.

Since the estate was left in the hands of the Public Administrator, it has apparently increased in value. The valuation set was $70,000, but recently the southeast corner of First and Main street, which is directly opposite the corner owned by the Walden estate, was sold for $126,000.

CAPTURE ENDS CHASE.

Eludes Police for Week, But Falls Victim to His Own Over-Confidence at Last.

After eluding the police for a week, Fred E. Ferris was captured after a lively chase on Spring street yesterday. He was sent to the City Jail on a dozen charges of passing fictitious checks.

Ferris made the checks payable to himself, and signed them with a rubber stamp with the name of the Babcock Plumbing Company. They were drawn for $21.40 each. The banks returned the instruments each time, with the statement that no such firm had an account with them.

When Ferris entered the Frick-Fleming hardware store and sought to cash a check, the proprietors grew suspicious and telephoned the bank. Finding the paper was fictitious, they telephoned the Central Police Station for an officer, and sought to detain

A PEOPLE'S TICKET.

The Republican City Central Committee has taken a step in the right path toward placing before the people of this city a municipal ticket. Let this first proper movement be continued to the end in the same way and we shall have one straight Republican candidate for each office, and only ones deserving the support of all good citizens. With such a ticket and a solid front will come victory in December, insuring us able, honest administration of city affairs for the next official term.

This plan to let the people speak was necessary under the circumstances that surround us. The new primary law is so constructed that any coterie of designing politicians may impose upon the people a full ticket, any other small clique may do the same, and unless this convention plan were put in operation we might have to choose between the candidates of one boss-ridden ticket or another.

The plan outlined by the Republican managers is the only right way of naming a ticket. A caucus is to be held in every precinct in the city. Due notice of the time and place will be posted, and otherwise all citizens may learn of the caucus. Then the voters should take advantage of the offered opportunity. An average of about ten delegates will be selected in each precinct, the apportionment being justly fixed on the basis of the vote cast at the Presidential election a year ago. This will give a convention of about 2000 members of the Republican party. No boss, no clique can control these caucuses unless the people lie supinely and neglect their duties. If they do they will have themselves to blame. Those who attend the caucus will do their duty; those who stay away will not. Let every Republican go to the caucus, and do his part independently of all others in selecting the members of the convention.

Grave responsibilities will rest on the shoulders of the delegates chosen. It will be for them to give their party and all the people of this city a list of candidates from Mayor down who will worthily represent the party and the city and who may be relied upon to serve all the people faithfully, honestly, diligently, efficiently and acceptably. Let this thought rule in the mind of every voter who attends the caucus. Send men of sense and good repute to the convention. Let the same reflection rule the minds of those who are commissioned to pick a ticket. Weigh well the qualifications of every applicant and vote for the best man without favor to any on other grounds than merit. If there is a public servant now in office who has performed his duties acceptably to the public, renominate him unless a much stronger man comes forward. If there is an official who has been negligent of his duties, who has manifested lack of ability or of a disposition to be the faithful servant of the public, drop him, and get a better man.

The city of Portland has set a good example. A little bunch of agitators, cranks, new-lights, reformers, got control of the city government, and so ran things for a term or two that all the sensible, patriotic citizens were unable to endure the turmoil and nonsense longer. The Republicans of that city did just what we are to do here. The ticket commended itself to the people generally and was elected by great majorities. It was in the main a Republican victory. The party took the initiative, put up the ticket and then voted almost solidly in order to prevent a miscarriage by division of the vote letting some nondescript banner-bearer of the children of unrest slip in.

San Francisco has set us a bad example more than once, and may do so again. We should take warning by what has happened there. By a split in the vote of the solid men of the city, in the Republican ranks, Schmitz and his horde of boodlers slipped in, with the lamentable results of the past.

We have an example right at home. City affairs have been in a turmoil for long months past. It all came about by a split in the Republican ranks at the last regular city election. By this split the city government went into hands not strong enough to properly use the reins. The results are too well known. The Republican vote was enough to have carried the city had it been united, although thousands of the members of the party mistakenly voted for the Democratic candidate for Mayor.

We hope the convention to be held here on the evening of Wednesday, September 22, following the caucuses on September 17, will give us a ticket so strong that it will compel the support of the rank and file of the party. Thousands of citizens not of the Republican party are ready to vote for such a ticket. With these things in view we do not hesitate to call earnestly to all members of the party to join hand and heart and soul, and give us an administration of city affairs which will insure honesty, efficiency, faithfulness, and from these will come peace and progress. Let us have unanimity and concentration—one straight Republican nominee for each office and only one. That is the winning way. The great dominant Republican majority in the city is entitled to take control of the city in this emergency. If the Republicans not only get together, but keep together, they will wrest the municipal government from the Lissner clique. Then we shall have popular government in fact—not "Our Set" government.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

One hundred years ago today there was born in Cambridge, under the shadow of Harvard University, a boy baby to a Puritan preacher and his wife, a different type of being from the husband. She was like a lovely exotic in a wilderness of native plants, they all thorny and somber, she bright and full of sympathy. In an almanac for the year 1809, under the August headline, at the date 29, was affixed an asterisk and at the foot were the characters "son b." That was all the record of the event made by Holmes's father.

As the boy grew he was not a student. He thought of the law as a profession, but hesitated between that and medicine. He spent a year or so on Blackstone and other law books and then went into medicine. His switching to literature was an accident. He had written some things for a school periodical and among them verse, but they did not give much promise.

One day he read in a newspaper that the government had ordered the old frigate "Constitution" ("Old Ironsides") broken up, and taking a pencil and a piece of paper, with a heart aflame with indignation he wrought the immortal lyric into shape and sent it to a newspaper. In a few weeks it had been reprinted by nearly every paper in the country, also in a leaflet which was scattered about the streets. The old ship was saved, and the author of the verse had entered the hall of fame. A short time afterwards he wrote "The Last Leaf Upon the Tree," but he was not active in this work. He wrote essays on medical subjects, original, profound, daring. Among them was one on "puerperal fever," which brought about a reform that has saved the life of many a mother. He wrote a couple of prose essays for a magazine which lived only a few years, but these caught the eye of Lowell. When, about 1857, the project of launching the Atlantic Monthly took shape and Lowell was selected as the editor he agreed to take the place provided Holmes was the first writer to be engaged as a regular contributor. The doctor demurred, but the editor insisted, and so we have Holmes catalogued among our authors. To this we owe "The Autocrat," "The Chambered Nautilus," "The One-Hoss Shay," "Elsie Venner," and all of Dr. Holmes's rare philosophy and playful humor.

The literary productions of Dr. Holmes are not numerous, and are known too well to call for elaborate review or much critical remark. He was a New Englander to the core, and his mind dered from New England even less than his footsteps. Indeed, he was even narrower in his sympathies than New England. He was of Massachusetts, and that confined to Boston as the heart of the State and of the universe. Why should he wander far afield? The subjects of his study were the human heart and the aspects that nature presents first to common humanity and second to the man of science. It was all at hand. He did not have to cross seas or traverse continents. Nowhere did the human heart work to more profound views of life than right around Boston Common. Nowhere did nature present more beauty to the eye than in the hills and woods and by the streams of Massachusetts. Harvard offered all the tools to reach the profoundest depths of the science of Dr. Holmes's day.

There are few lyrics more thrilling than "Old Ironsides," few odes more humorous than "The Last Leaf," few verses more fraught with the soul of beauty than "The Chambered Nautilus." But it is to the "Autocrat" we have to go to get inside the mind and soul of Oliver Wendell Holmes. What a faculty he had of taking science and using it as material as plastic as if it was a fairy tale or a myth! To recall this perfection of art with which he makes abstract science the vehicle for his fine irony read these short extracts:

"Do you know that every man has a religious belief peculiar to himself. Smith is always a Smithite. He takes exactly Smith's-worth of knowledge, Smith's-worth of truth, of beauty, of divinity. And Brown has from time immemorial been trying to burn him, to excommunicate him, to anonymous-article him, because he did not take Brown's-worth of knowledge, truth, beauty, divinity. He cannot do it any more than a pint-pot can hold a quart, or a quart-pot be filled by a pint. Iron is essentially the same everywhere and always; but sulphate of iron is never the same as carbonate of iron. Truth is invariable, but the Smithate of Truth must always differ from the Brownate of Truth."

"I suppose that a man's mind does in time form a neutral salt with the elements of the universe for which it has special elective affinities. In fact, I look upon a library as a kind of mental chemist's shop filled with the crystals of all forms and hues which have come from the union of individual thought with local circumstances or universal principles. When a man has worked out his special affinities in this way, there is an end of his genius as a real solvent. No more effervescence and hissing tumult as he pours his sharp thought on the world's biting alkaline unbeliefs."

As a suggestion of his love of nature read this from his journey to Stonehenge in England, when, because of his poor hearing, he could not hear the song of a lark:

"I listened, but not a sound reached my ear. Was it strange that I felt a momentary pang? 'Those that look out at the windows are darkened, and all the daughters of music are brought low.' Was I never to see or hear the soaring songster at heaven's gate, unless—unless—if our mild humanized theology promises truly, I may perhaps hereafter listen to him singing far down beneath me? For in whatever world I may find myself, I hope I shall always love our poor little spheroid, so long my home, which some kind angel may point out to me as a gilded globule swimming in the sunlight far away. After walking the streets of pure gold in the New Jerusalem, might not one like a short vacation, to visit the well-remembered green fields and flowery meadows?"

And last, what sweeter verse than this stanza from the "Nautilus:"

"Thanks for the heavenly message brought by thee,
Child of the wandering sea,
  Cast from her lap, forlorn!
  From thy dead lips a clearer note is born
  Than ever Triton blew from wreathed horn!
While on mine ear it rings,
Through the deep caves of thought I hear a voice that sings."

WHO WAS RIGHT?

When the agitation for a change in the primary election laws was raised many months ago and the outline of the new charter provision existing was laid before us we ventured the opinion that it would be fruitless as to changing the political conditions.

Before the change was made there was ample opportunity for every member of each political party to participate in the caucuses of his party, exert all the influence he had and do everything possible for him under any law in the way of selecting candidates for any and all offices. There was no need for any new law to make it possible for all the members of any party or all parties to signify their pleasure as to any candidate for any office whatsoever.

We now have a provision which makes it necessary to arrange all the candidates for office in alphabetical order on the ticket. The avowed purpose of this new device is to prevent, so far as possible, the voting of a straight ticket by any citizen. The underlying thought is that the voter who gence and less subject to boss control than the one who votes straight.

The primary election is to be held, according to the new charter provisions, in the fall. But as we pointed out at the time, it does not and cannot do away with the privilege of any number of citizens getting together, under any name they please, and indorsing a ticket, duly nominated by petition, for the suffrages of the voters for any office or for all offices involved in the approaching election. The Republican voters of this city are about to do exactly as they have always done heretofore. The new law is absolutely fruitless. It has no more effect than the soughing of the evening breeze from the ocean in the conducting of our political affairs.

So we are to have the "alphabetical ballot," so far as the law can give it force. But it was needless to enact this law in order to enable any citizen to scratch his ticket in any way he might see fit. Under the old law he voted just as he pleased. Some voted straight, and some voted crooked. It will be exactly the same at the next election. The new provision will not prevent any voter from voting just as he pleases. There will be as many casting straight votes in the coming election as in any in the past, and there will be as many casting crooked votes in the next election as in the past. There will be citizens who will scratch and there will be citizens who will vote their party ticket from top to bottom and glory in the act. Indeed, it is our opinion that there are many voters who have heretofore scratched their tickets worse than a hen does a heap of new-plowed soil who hereafter will try to assert their manhood, their personal liberty and privileges as American citizens to vote as they please by voting for none but the candidates of a great party, rather than the candidates of a little clique. We have heard such expressions from citizens on many hands.

There are certain fundamental principles in politics which are essential to proper government, the neglect of which must always result in improper government. No laws can remove the dangers or insure the safety in one way or the other. Intelligence on the part of the voters, an honest desire to vote for the best interests of the city or the State, an energetic participation in all caucuses and elections, by whatever name they are called, on the part of the great mass of the people must always exist if we are to have honest and efficient officers elected. Unless the citizenship is intelligent, unless it is honest and patriotic, and unless it is diligent and persistent in performing its political duties, we shall never have proper government, no matter how many or what laws we may pass, or charters we may tinker. If our citizens at all times honestly perform their political duties to the best of their knowledge and ability, it will never matter much what laws we have or what laws we lack.

KEEP IT UP.

The fruit men in the great Sacramento Valley are taking steps to place a fine exhibit of their goods at the exposition to be held in Brussels next year. That is right. We are glad to learn that the people in Northern California are becoming awake to the value of advertising the State through its products. Things move rather slowly in the Sacramento River valley because the outside world does not know what is there.

Occasionally you hear some Los Angeles man say the State is advertised enough. He means the southern part of the State, and he is wrong even as to that. We have made good use of publicity for thirty years and it has brought splendid results. But it is not all done, and never will be. It is a long period since Southern California went to New Orleans with an exhibit of citrus fruits and took the first prize. Since then we have taken all sorts of prizes at many places. But we should not let the work stop.

A great advertising firm in the East which won much success in its business adopted for its motto, "Everlastingly At It." P. T. Barnum said of his shows, "There is a sucker born every minute." The Apostle Paul used as one of his exhortations, "Be not weary in well doing." Here we have successful people telling us, each in his peculiar way, of the need of perseverance.

We must not forget that the population of the United States increases at the rate of 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 a year. About half of this increase is in native-born population and half in those who immigrate to us. Here are 2,000,000 new pairs of ears and eyes to reach year by year. There may be millions who know more or less of California, but they are busy with their own affairs and will seldom stop to talk about California. Some of them will not tell the truth about us. We must do our own advertising or it will not be done. Of those who have read about our State many doubt what is told them, others forget. The story does not im-

The East resounds with the cry "The press agent must go;" but the press agent won't lose his job until the Shuberts and Marc Klaw get over feeling literary. To any one who realizes real conditions, the literary duel now in progress in the magazines is laughable.

One can imagine Klaw proudfully handling "his" brilliant article extolling the merits of the trust, and incidentally wondering what the long words in the article mean.

Sam Shubert then fondles "his" brilliant retort to Klaw in the Saturday Evening Post, and, as he is reputed to be a little heavier-built intellectually than Klaw, is probably torn with misgivings as to whether the public suspects the truth about his literary efforts.

The fact is, both the trust and the Shuberts are a lot of miserable hucksters, who bully underling managers and cringe before the public, and turn loose dramatic drivel.

They rub their dry palms and smirk and bob and murmur apologetically that they don't really believe in the plays they give, but "the public demands it."

Imagine if a newspaper should adopt the same boot-licking policy.

I can fancy The Times coming out some morning with the announcement that some certain policy has been tried a week, does not seem pouplar, and that the opinion of the paper will now be the opposite.

THE LANCER.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Lure of the Desert Land.

Have you slept in a tent alone—a tent
Out under the desert sky—
Where a thousand thousand desert miles
All silent 'round you lie?—
The dust of the aeons of ages dead,
And the peoples that trampled by!

Have you looked in the desert's painted cup,
Have you smelled at dawn the wild sage musk,
Have you seen the lightning flashing up
From the ground, in the desert dusk?

Have you heard the song in the desert rain
(Like the undertone of a wordless rhyme);
Have you watched the glory of colors flame
In its marvel of blossom time?

Have you lain with your face in your hands, afraid,
Face down—flat down on your face—and prayed,
While the terrible sandstorm whirled and swirled
In its soundless fury, and hid the world
And quenched the sun in its yellow glare—
Just you and your soul, and nothing there?

If you have, then you know, for you've felt its spell,
The lure of the desert land.
And if you have not, then I could not tell—
For you could not understand.
—[Madge Morris, in Lippincott's.

The Sunbeam and the Tulip.

A sparkling dewdrop lay in the cup
Of a blushing tulip, red;
"'Tis a nectar fit for the gods to quaff,"
The elfs and fairies said.
But the sun, with a knowing wink, bent low,
And drank from her lips a kiss,
Fusing her heart with his beams of gold,
And thrilling her being with bliss.
He stole the diamond dewdrop gem,
That was spilled from the chalice above.
Leaving a brighter radiance there,
As her heart awoke to his love.
But alas! The sun, ere he shut his fan,
At the close of that fair spring day,
Had kissed each scented flower he saw,
And wooed her the self-same way.

The elfs and fairies caper and dance;
The sky with deep crimson glows;
Hushed are the little song bird's trills,
While dreamily droops the rose.
The tulip is lifting her blushing face
In search of her lover, the sun,
Yet he looks down upon many loves,
While the tulip sees but one.
—[Agnes Lockhart Hughes in San Francisco Call.

From Dust.

All lovely things win slowly into life,
The dust from which they came for ages clings,
Only at times there is a sudden glimpse
Of folded shadowy wings.

The scent that dies upon the air of noon
Haunts the still garden when the sun has set,
As 'neath the calm and silence of the night
Vanishes storm and fret.

For at tremendous cost all life is won,
To hold its own, serene and fair and frail;
The lily fades to dust, but out of dust
Is born the nightingale.

And there are haunted gardens of the heart,
Whose royal roses owe their fragrant red
To gallant faiths and tender fruitless loves,
That once were quick, now dead.

But nothing really dies that once has lived,
The dust that was a heart within a shroud,
Soft winds may blow across a sleeping world
With newer life endowed.
—[Beatrice Allhusen, in the Westminster Gazette.

If I Knew.

If I knew the box where the smiles were kept,
No matter how large the key,
Or strong the bolt, I would try so hard—
'Twould open, I know, for me,
Then over the land and the sea, broadcast,
I'd scatter the smiles to play,
That the children's faces might hold them fast
For many and many a day.
—[The Young Evangelist.

ANOTHER "YOUNGEST ONE."

Man Whose Friends Say He's Real "Drummer Boy of Shiloh" Will Locate Here.

Francis B. De Witt of Au Gres. Mich., former Congressman from Ohio, whose friends assert he was the "youngest soldier in the Civil War" and the real "drummer boy in Shiloh," is making arrangements to locate permanently in the vicinity of Los Angeles, according to his sister, Mrs. Frank H. Clarke, No. 1441 Albany street.

De Witt was born March 11, 1849, enlisted from Delaware county, Ohio, November, 18, 1861, in the Forty-sixth Ohio Volunteer Infantry as a drummer boy, and was with his regiment at Shiloh. In the summer of 1862 he left the service, but remained away only five weeks, when he enlisted in the One Hundred and Twenty-first Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

In this regiment friends declare, he endured the fatigue and dangers with a fortitude equal to the hardiest soldiers of the command, marching day and night, and never encumbering an ambulance. He participated in through the Carolinas, and was taken prisoner of war March 3, 1865, the day that Sherman's army crossed the line from South into North Carolina. He experienced life in the prisons of Salisbury, Danville and Libby. He was presented with certificate of honor by his commanding officer for the manner in which he conducted himself at the battle of Chickamauga, and was tendered a furlough for thirty days at the close of the Atlanta campaign, but declined it in favor of a member of his company who had lost his speech. He preferred to see "the rest of the elephant" rather than his parents and friends at home.

Others were enlisted as young as De Witt, but their service was usually of short duration. This has been a discussed question. De Witt was the only person, either North or South, in the great Civil War who enlisted at the age of 12 or younger and had the physical endurance to rough it with the common soldier continuously at the front during every year of the great American conflict, his friends assert.

Talks on Teeth
BY REX DENTAL CO.
(Inc.)
It Will Interest You
We can only outline the story of the Alveolar Method in these short talks.
The whole story is told in detail in our handsomely illustrated book of 40 pages, entitled The Alveolar Method.
It is an exhaustive treatise on the very important subject of the teeth and is a book that every man and woman should read and study, whether or not they are wearing a partial plate or ordinary bridgework.
The chapter on Pyorrhea is worth a great deal to those who are suffering with this disease and have despaired of ever being cured, for we DO cure pyorrhea unless it has run so long that a cure is impossible.
In any event, no one should give up until we have had a chance to pass on the case, for many cases that the average dentist would pronounce hopeless are curable through our methods.
Another chapter in this interesting book is the one headed "The Gentle Art of Painlessness," which is mighty comforting to those who have been afraid of the dentist and were suffering as a consequence.
WE HAVE BANISHED ALL PAIN FROM THE DENTIST CHAIR.
You may come here and take a seat in the chair and prepare for a comfortable visit.
We want to get this book into your hands as quickly as possible. A postal card will bring a copy the same day the card is received or as soon as the mail can reach you.
We do the largest dental business in the world, and this patronage has come to us through satisfactory service,
No charge or obligation for examination.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The Board of Public Works has let a contract for the building of a $34,000 engine house at Second and Hewitt streets.

The will of Julia A. Wisner, filed yesterday for probate, distributed an estate worth $60,000 among her relatives. The holdings were made up almost entirely of Los Angeles county real estate.

Judge Davis discharge F. W. Hyde, a San Diego man, on the charge of non-support of his children. The transcript did not show that he had been derelict in Los Angeles county.

The Los Angeles Grocers' Association and the independent grocers, have organized to attack the constitutionality of the section of the pure food law that compels dealers in green fruits to cover the same with cheese cloth or some other thin substance.

Norman J. Wilson declared it was a case of too much mother-in-law when he was taken to the City Jail yesterday on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Justice Chambers yesterday held that street car companies may make reasonable regulations about passengers standing in the aisles, but that these rules must be enforced consistently to be effective.

AT THE CITY HALL.

PAVE WAY FOR LOWER RATES.

NEW ENGINE-HOUSE TO LESSEN INSURANCE COST?

Contracts Let for Three-Company Building at Second and Hewitt Streets to Add to Protection for Wholesale and Factory Districts. Keenan's Contract Forfeited.

The Board of Public Works yesterday awarded contracts for the erection of a fire engine-house at Second and Hewitt streets and its completion by the first of the new year is expected. With this house in service and one in course of construction on Fifth street, east of Los Angeles street, finished and equipped, the fire department will begin the new year with more peace of mind than it has for a long time. For the two and houses are intended to furnish complete protection for the great wholesale district east of Main street

The next improvement of the fire department will come when the contract is let for a new house at Seventh and Figueroa streets, for which $40,000 has been allowed. This will complete the improvements intended to fully protect the downtown retail district.

With all made there is hope that the Pacific Underwriters' Association will readjust insurance rates for Los Angeles and give the business district a decrease. This is the tacit understanding of the city officials though some admit that the hope of reduction was not so great as the purpose to prevent any increase. Others declare the city may justly demand a decrease and will undoubtedly receive it, though it may not be large except in the aggregate.

The new house at Second and Hewitt streets will have a front on Hewitt street of 48 feet and will be 110 feet deep. It will have engine, hose and truck companies and will be specially prepared for its work in the factory district. The cost, according to the contracts awarded, will be $33,850, of which $31,239 will go to Carl Leonardt on general work. Originally it was intended to build a $16,000 house, but the decision to augment the equipment required a building of double the size planned.

While discussing engine-houses the board remembered the one at Main and Vernon streets that Peter Keenan got a contract to build about a year ago. Keenan worked irregularly at the building for many months and finally quit altogether. Recently he refused to obey the order of the board to complete it and the board declared his contract forfeited.

Building Inspector Backus was directed to make an estimate of the work to be done to fit the building for use and this amount Keenan's bondsmen will be asked to pay. The board has already asked the Council to declare Keenan an irresponsible bidder because of his failure on other public work.

ET TU WALLACE?

Having told the City Club how he managed the city's finances for nearly three years, Councilman Atlas Wallace bowed as the City Club voted to commend his ability, fearlessness and patriotism in managing the city's finances for nearly three years. The scene was the usual weekly luncheon of the City Club at the Westminster Hotel yesterday and the mover of the motion was Meyer Lissner. Now that the finances of the city have been managed and audited your Uncle eck may get out his little horn and ll the City Club how he pulled back few dollars Wallace voted to spend fancy prices for engine-house sites.

LAWYER'S QUEST FAILS.

ttorney for Mrs. Driggs, Unable to Obtain Writ of Habeas Corpus for Client.

Paul Schenck, attorney for Mrs. ertrude Driggs, has returned from n unsuccessful quest for a writ of abeas corpus from the Supreme Court California. There is nothing now do but for the more or less dis- nguished prisoner to remain in jail ntil her case is regularly disposed by the Appellate Court, Judge Davis aving signed a certificate of probable use.

Mrs. Driggs is still behind the bars the County Jail, but she is talking out her case. She is now very bit- against her attorneys, and alleges at they simply allowed her to be aughtered. She also asserts her in- cence of the charge of forgery, of hich she was convicted.

She also says that she never wanted e lease after the old gentleman died; at she did want to marry him; that hile she was at the funeral her at- rney, Charles M. Ackerman, tele- oned to her house and left his one number. That when she ar- ved home she called him up, and told her that he had put that lease record, and that she immediately dered him to go and take it off. e alleges that County Recorder Lo- n will substantiate that statement. Mrs. Driggs charges that all the in- est her attorneys had in her case s to get her money, and that cer- n of her counsel held meetings with ead, the prosecuting witness.

"I have been mute and loyal," she d a friend. "I had at least fifteen tnesses to prove my innocence, but my attorneys said it was time ough to put them on whom we needed em. Is an old lady to suffer for me one else's bad work? They never put them on."

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

HIS WOODEN LEG HELPS HIM NOT.

STOLE IN ORDER TO HAVE IT MENDED, HE SAYS.

Court Admits That Might Be Some Excuse, But Argues It Is Insufficient and Sends the Protesting Baker to San Quentin for Two Years.

Under the laws of California it is no excuse for burglary that the crime was committed to secure money for the purpose of repairing a wooden leg.

G. A. Corvell, charged with burglarizing the saloon of George Gordan at No. 116 West Sixth street, stood up in Judge Davis's court yesterday and recited a hard luck story, but the judgment of the court was that he should be imprisoned in San Quentin for two years. The prisoner had but one real leg. To the stump of the other was fitted a wooden support, the lower end of which had been broken off by some means.

Corvell stood, the picture of despair, and tried to argue with the court that there was a real reason why he should not be sent to prison. But Judge Davis did not agree with him.

"It is bad enough to go into a saloon in the daytime," he said, assuming a serious tone, "but it is much worse to enter a saloon in the night season and rob the money box, and it is no excuse that you needed the money to repair your wooden leg."

Corvell said that he had been in California about eight months. He had read about it in the newspapers as being a place where there was plenty of work at big wages. He is a baker by trade, and came to Los Angeles from Ontario, where he was employed for some time.

The robbery of the George Gordan place occurred on the night of July 28, and it was claimed that Corvell secured $75 as a result of his raid. When he was taken into custody Corvell declared that he wanted to be sentenced immediately.

"Of course, I stole the money, all right," he said, "but it seems to me that you should not be too hard on a poor fellow who only committed the crime to get money to repair his wooden leg. You don't know, judge, what it is to stump it around with one leg that does not reach the ground."

STILL BOILING.

CHAVEZ CONTEMPT CASE.

Another picture from the assortment involving the troubles of Susana Bottiller. was thrown on the canvas in Judge Wilbur's court, yesterday. It seems that when business is dull in the Juvenile Court there is always something regarding the various members of the Bottiller family to command attention.

The case at bar was the contempt proceeding against Oscar Chavez, for a conversation he is alleged to have had with little Rafaella Bottiller, on the 3rd inst., the time of the examination of Susana Bottiller, on the charge of being a dependent child, Joseph Reyes, and his wife, Francisco Reyes, the latter a sister of Rafaella and Susana, were before the court on the contempt allegation several days ago, but Chavez demanded a separate hearing, and it was accorded to him. The testimony in both cases was identical, but it was not completed at the close of court at noon.

A demurrer to the complaint was filed in behalf of Chavez, but it was overruled by the court. There has been a good deal of feeling engendered by the several Bottiller hearings by the Juvenile Court, and it is alleged that if Reyes, his wife and Chavez are found guilty of contempt that the entire fabric of the Juvenile Court law will be attacked along constitutional lines. This action was threatened when Clarence Millar was found guilty of contributing to the delinquency of Lulu Murray, but he was given a year probation instead of being sent to jail for one year, as might have been done under the law, and the appeal matter was allowed to drop.

GROCERS COMBINE.

TO FIGHT PURE FOOD LAW.

The Retail Grocers' Association and the independent dealers have combined to contest in the higher courts the constitutionality of some features of the pure food law, and they have contributed to a fund, and retained attorneys to carry the enactment to the court of last resort in order to have the various features of the law defined and made certain.

This action was made apparent in Judge Davis' court, yesterday, when the appeal cases of M. Koplan, George Gedis, G. Peterman, E. Berckoff, E. Gerleman and J. Reibaldi were postponed for a week. All of these defendants have been found guilty before Justice Chambers and fined for violating that provision of the pure food law which compels dealers to cover all fruit with cheese cloth or other thin material. It is understood that four more cases, covering the same ground, will be appealed from the court of Justice Ling during the week, and it is the intention to take them all up together.

It is alleged on the part of the fruit dealers that trade is injured by having their fruit covered up, that it does not look inviting, and no good results follow a compliance with the law.

Ben W. Helm and John C. Stick, who have been retained as attorneys by the allied grocery interests, stated yesterday that at the hearing of the appeal cases next Saturday, the entire law will be threshed out, and its alleged unconstitutional features pointed out.

WANTS HIS CHILD.

HABEAS CORPUS INSTITUTED.

Judge Wilbur yesterday signed a writ of habeas corpus proceeding returnable in his court tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, involving the custody of Harold H. Hauter, son of A. Robert Hauter, residing on West Seventh street.

The contention is between Hauter and his divorced wife, now Mrs. N. A. Chadd. In February, 1905, Hauter secured an interlocutory decree, and in June, 1906, a final decree was granted the husband. At that time the court made an order giving the custody of the son, now twelve years of age, to the father, and it is alleged that the mother has taken the lad and secreted him from the care and custody of A. Robert Hauter.

It is understood that the mother will put up a strong fight to retain the boy, and that the father will be just as insistent that he be returned to him.

HYDE RELEASED.

COMPLAINT FAILS TO GRIP.

F. W. Hyde, charged with failure to provide for his minor children, was before Judge Davis yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus.

In this case the petitioner sought to obtain his release from custody on the ground that he had been committed able or probable cause. Hyde was prosecuted under the statute passed by the last Legislature, making it a felony for a parent to willfully omit to furnish necessary food, shelter or medical attendance for his children.

From the transcript of the testimony taken at the preliminary examination, it appeared that the petitioner was the husband of Emma L. Hyde, and that he lived in San Diego county, with his family. The relations between himself and his wife became strained, and Mrs. Hyde sold off the household effects and brought their two children to Los Angeles; but did not tell her husband where she was going.

It was not shown that Hyde had ever been in this county, or been asked to assist his children, or that he had any knowledge they had any need of such aid and assistance. Under these conditions the court ordered his discharge.

HER RELATIVES.

ARE WELL CARED FOR.

C. A. Stutzman filed an application yesterday to have the will of Julia A. Wisner admitted to probate. It involves the disposition of about $60,000 worth of property.

Bequests of $5000 each are willed to the following parties: May Wisner, Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, the three children of L. T. Wisner, Clare S. Newcomer, Jay S. Newcomer, Mabel Duren, Fannie Duren and Agnes K. Albrook.

The real estate holdings include 120 acres of land near Altadena, and a portion of the Grogan tract of the Rancho San Pasqual.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

SUIT ON COMMISSION. C. H. Ritchie brought an action yesterday against the Hawthorne Furniture Company, to collect $12,000 alleged to be due on account of commissions as a salesman, and salary of $250 a month.

INCORPORATIONS. Papers in the following incorporations were filed in the office of the clerk, yesterday: Ethanac Land Company, capital stock, $50,000, by A. C. Sikes, E. S. Ozier and William B. Waddle; V. C. Benjamin Company, capital stock, $25,000, by V. C. Benjamin, Sarah Goss and John D. Works.

JUDGE HERVEY BACK. Judge Hervey returned yesterday from a two-weeks outing in the North. During the present week the term trial jury for Department Seven will be drawn, but the regular business of the term following vacation, will not begin until September 13.

WILL ASK MERCY. The friends of Gerald Muir, who is charged with having violated his probation, are exerting themselves to induce Judge Wilbur to give the young man another chance. He has voluntarily given himself up and is now in the County Jail. All of the fictitious checks that he secured money upon have been taken up, it is understood.

ASK AN INJUNCTION. Thomas Armstrong instituted an action in the Superior Court yesterday against the Los Flores Water Company, asking for $1000 damages and a permanent injunction restraining the defendants from constructing a tunnel through his property in Los Flores Cañon. It is alleged that last July the corporation began the construction of a tunnel through his claim, much to its injury.

INFORMATIONS FILED. Informations in the following cases were filed in Judge Davis's court, yesterday: Lemuel C. Posey, forgery; Harry Gensenleiter, grand larceny; Miguel Antuez, wilful neglect of his minor children; Edward Mosely, robbery.

IN JAIL. Roderick Fleming and George Sweetman, incorrigible boys who ran away from the premises of the George Junior Republic, were apprehended yesterday at the home of young Fleming, and lodged in the County Jail.

REMANDED TO JAIL. Edward Markweather, charged with committing rape upon Gladys Hewitt, an inmate of the Whittier State School, was in Judge Davis' court on a writ of habeas corpus, seeking his discharge from custody. It was alleged that the girl did not incriminate Markweather, but on the part of the State it was contended that the crime was proven by other testimony. The writ was denied.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

MOTHER-IN-LAW WORKMAN'S BANE

HUSBAND JAILED FOR SMASHING WIFE'S DOOR.

He Declares He Had Happy Home Until Spouse Was Made Into Spiritualist and Christian Scientist by Her Parent—Railways Must Be Consistent, Says Justice.

"Too much mother-in-law is the cause of my trouble," said Norman J. Wilson when he was placed in jail yesterday, to await arraignment on a charge of disturbing the peace, preferred by his wife. "I had a happy family until my wife's mother came to live with us, and then life became miserable for me."

Norman is accused of breaking down a door at his home, No. 1050 Ingraham street, yesterday, and of talking so loud that he disturbed the neighbors.

"I did break down a door, but that is all the truth there is to the accusation against me," said Wilson, "My mother-in-law, Mrs. A. J. Davis, is a spiritualist, Christian Scientist, and I don't know what else. You ought to see the stack of literature at my house.

"Well, she got my wife to going to clubs. If I had a meal I cooked it myself. Why, a good meal would scare me to death. I came home this morning and asked my wife if my breakfast was ready. I am a machinist and work at night. She said they had had breakfast, and if I wanted any I could cook it myself.

"They went into the next room and locked the door. I had given her all the money I had pay day, or I would have left the house then. I was pretty angry, and I broke the lock on the door by pushing my shoulder against it. I talked to them awhile and then went to bed. The police got me up to arrest me."

Consistency a Jewel.

Justice Chambers yesterday held at the trial of E. F. Lewis, a conductor, on a charge of battery, that street car companies have a right to make reasonable regulations as to passengers, but that these rules must be enforced consistently to be effective.

Lewis was found guilty of using force on Homer P. Earl, No. 851 Monterey road, South Pasadena, when the latter refused to leave the front of a car and step into the aisle.

The conductor declared that it was one of the rules of the company that no one should be allowed to stand near the motorman, and that he put Earl off when he refused to move.

A weakness in this argument was developed when the carman admitted he had said nothing to Earl when he boarded the car and found no other place to stand, but that he attempted to move him as the passengers thinned out.

"The street car companies undoubtedly have a right to make reasonable regulations," said the justice, "but it appears that they made no attempts to enforce them when the cars were crowded. They have a right to keep the passengers away from the motorman, but if they are going to enforce such a rule they must do it at all times."

Lewis was fined $10, which he paid.

Promised Marriage.

Eugene Philip Sheridan, alias J. E. Laurence, was arraigned before Justice Williams yesterday on a charge of seducing Dora Valencia, under promise of marriage. He will be examined tomorrow. Sheridan met the WANDS WAVE; MAPS CHANGE.

Wizard Harriman Has Many Projects Afoot.

Roads to Tap the Richest Parts of Arizona.

Plans Include Shortening of the Route East.

Railroad building in Southern California and Arizona bids fair to be extensive this fall and winter, and if present plans are carried out the railroad map of this part of the country will be changed materially.

The management of the Arizona and California Railroad is asking for bids for grading its projected line from Parker, Ariz., to Bengal, this State, a distance of ninety miles. The specifications to the bidders carry a peculiar clause, behind which appears to be a strong indication that the line will never be built to Bengal, on the main line of the Santa Fé, but will be diverted about half-way between Parker and Bengal, and extended to Banning on the Southern Pacific.

The bids are requested on the cost of ground work from Parker to Bengal over the surveyed route, or on west from a point midway between the two points only. It is asserted that the object of asking for the bids is to get at the cost of building the road to Bengal, in order to estimate the cost to Banning.

SHORTER ROUTE.

The distance from Parker to Banning is about 150 miles, but if that line is constructed the mileage from Los Angeles to Phoenix via the Southern Pacific by way of Banning, would be very much shorter, and over better grades than over the Santa Fé, via San Bernardino and Bengal.

It is generally known that the Harriman lines own a very large interest n the Arizona and California Railroad already built, and the big new bridge across the Colorado River at Parker. It is also known that the Southern Pacific has a track contract over the S.F.P. and P. from Phoenix to Wickenburg. This was made last spring when the differences over the Phoenix and Eastern were settled, and that line passed finally from the Santa Fé o the Southern Pacific.

TO GO STRAIGHT EAST.

The Southern Pacific is building, or eady to build, the link between Winkleman and San Carlos, a distance of orty miles. This line will be built ome time this fall and winter, and hen done the Southern Pacific will un its trains from Phoenix straight ast and connect with the main line f the Southern Pacific at Bowie.

With these known facts it does not ok as though the cut-off will be uilt to Bengal, as the Southern Pacific would much prefer to run out of os Angeles over its own rails, connecting with the cut-off at Banning. his line would be far the best transcontinental line in the United States ecause it would be practically free om steep grades, and the mileage ould be shorter than any other line would cut the through time down everal hours, and enable the Southern Pacific to have its main line rough the richest part of Arizona.

The Parker-Bill Williams-Bouse country promises to be a rich mining section, and the Salt River Valey, through ll of which the line runs, is one of e largest irrigated valleys of the outhwest; the rich mining territory Florence, Kelvin and Ray, and the ch section surrounding Globe are all this line.

HAS LION'S SHARE.

All of this territory, in addition to at owned by the old main line of e Southern Pacific through Yuma nd Tucson, gives to the Harriman nes the lion's share of the productive art of Arizona. In addition to this, nother line is being carefully examined by the Southern Pacific, and when ilt, will likely change the complexion of the western railroad map. It ill run from Port Isabella, on the ulf of California, a few miles south Yuma, north through Yuma, up the olorado River to the Laguna dam, ossing the Colorado on the dam, ence to Kofa, Quartzite, Bouse, wansea, Planet, crossing the Bill illiams Fork, thence to Yucca, where crosses the Santa Fé, north through e Gold Roads country, and connecting with the Salt Lake route in Eastern Nevada.

The Southern Pacific has built the e from Yuma to Laguna, and will ry soon build a track across the ver on the Laguna dam. Grade akes have been set from this point to Kofa, at which point is located e King of Arizona and the North ar mines. Surveys have also been ade from Kofa to Quartzite and on Bouse. From Bouse, the Clara onsolidated mine is building a road Swansea, a distance of twenty-six iles, and they are arranging to extend the line on to the Planet.

TO TAP BIG MINES.

The property was recently purchased the Lewissohns of New York, with e understanding that a railroad ould be built to the mine. The Clara onsolidated company had considerable ouble in getting their line projected, d it is generally understood that the uthern Pacific interests are behind e building of the line, and will oner or later take it over.

Surveyors have also been in the field om the Bill Williams to Yucca this mmer. This line, when built, will ach practically every property of y merit in Western Arizona and stern Nevada. Harriman representatives have covered all of this rritory very thoroughly during the st nine months, and made good reports.

Port Isabella is considered to be an cellent deep water port, and when e railroad is built from Yuma, this rth and south line will be the shortest line to tidewater from all points in e Middle Western and Rocky Mountain States. It is believed that the uthern Pacific will be forced to run rail line up to this port when the terstate Commerce Commission rces the Spokane decision.

Port Isabella is about 400 miles arer the United States than Guaymas, which port is now owned by the uthern Pacific, and would give the arriman lines control of practically e entire west coast of Mexico, and able that line, on completion of the nama Canal, to bring freight into s country and deliver it to all points the West over its own rails.

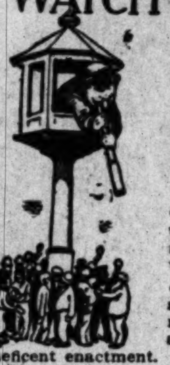
THE POLITICAL WATCH TOWER



SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—Gossip in local political circles indicates that the introduction of the new primary election law into the economy of this city has produced two very unexpected results, either one of which is worth recording as not at all in line with the reformatory character of that beneficent enactment.

First, it has created in the person of Mr. "Tim" Sullivan, chairman of the Republican Campaign Committee during the late primary unpleasantness, an entirely new boss. Not only is Mr. Sullivan already very generally recognized by our practicals as master of the Republican municipal machine, but the gentleman himself has assumed the purple and taken command of everything.

Before his election as consul for life, Napoleon was an ardent republican, devoted to the people and the interests of France—Citizen Bonaparte, he was proud to call himself. After that event he began to speak of the people as "my people," and France as "my France." So it is with Tim. Before the primary, he was plain Citizen Sullivan, proud of his position as chairman of the Campaign Committee, and anxious only that his party, whose devoted slave he was, should make a creditable showing at the election. Now he speaks of "my candidates," "my ticket" and "my organization," thus openly proclaiming his bossship of the grand old party.

Not only this, but, like all new and ambitious despots, Tim has opened war on his rivals. Before the primary he was glad to avail himself of the assistance of Phil Crimmins, John C. Lynch and other district bosses, who can deliver votes. Since that event, he —or his henchmen, which is the same thing—has put in circulation a rumor that Crimmins is a disreputable dub and Lynch treacherous and unreliable. He charges Phil with putting a bodkin into the ribs of Deane, De Young's brother-in-law, who ran off the track while pursuing the shrievalty, and John with attempting to put a similar instrument into the ribs of Crocker. It is Tim's idea that both Crimmins and Lynch are jealous of him, and that, knowing he had made proper arrangements with Deane and Crocker, they effected a combine with Eggers and McCarthy and endeavored to extinguish him.

There may be something in Tim's suspicions—for myself, I would hesitate in such a situation to tempt either Crimmins or Lynch; they are notoriously weak in resisting the allurements of power, and I entertain not the slightest doubt that both regard a new boss as an interloper, if not an actual tort feasor in the preserve.

At all events, whether Phil and John are guilty of dubism and treachery or not, the fact is, the primary law has elevated Sullivan to the rank of boss and the Republican cohorts are everywhere hailing him as the new Caesar. That there will be a contest between him and the others for possession of the crown later on seems certain. If that contest is serious, it will result in the election of somebody for Mayor other than Crocker, and somebody for Sheriff other than Eggers. Sullivan's followers declare positively that Lynch wants Pinhead McCarthy elected Mayor and Larry Dolan, McNab's man, elected Sheriff. But this may be doubted. However, a fight between the three bosses for the crown might result in just that thing.

The other unexpected result produced by the primary law is the uncertainty with which it has enveloped Heney's candidacy for District Attorney. It is known that Mr. Phelan has told the Good Government League that the fight is doubtful, and also that Mr. Spreckels—who is Phelan's "me, too"—looks upon an independent movement in behalf of the "great prosecutor" with uncertain confidence. It is said, also, that both Phelan and Spreckels wanted Heney to return to town and contest the Republican nomination with C. M. Fickert, taking his chances of defeat, since they regarded his independent candidacy as almost hopeless; but this Henty, it is further sand, refused to do. Heney declares that he is not anxious to be District Attorney, and that to accept the office will entail a "great sacrifice;" but this is false. He is more than anxious to get the office, and if he does get it, he intends—with the assistance of Spreckels—to run for Governor on the Republican ticket next year.

This may sound comical, but it is the most serious kind of fact. Heney has no more idea of deserting the limelight in this town than he had when he met his first reverse in his crusade against the higher-ups. He regards it as the acme of imbecility to throw away all the buncombe he has accumulated in fighting Calhoun by retiring from politics, and he does not intend that it shall be thrown away, no matter what Spreckels and Phelan may think. He disagreed with those gentlemen as to contesting for a nomination on one of the party tickets, and the plan of campaign outlined in his letter to the Portland Oregonian is his own, and will be carried out. Heney has great faith in himself and his destiny. He believes that nothing can prevent his winning.

But in his letter to the Oregonian, he is, as usual, mistaken in his law. He says he did not contest with Fickert for a party nomination because he has not been long enough a Republican, having registered as such within a period of two years; but he adds that for the same reason he could not accept any party nomination, and that he cannot accept the Democratic nomination given him by writing his name on the ballot.

Under the law Heney is eligible to nomination on any ticket, provided he does not run at the primary as a party candidate and meet defeat. The Supreme Court has not decided, as he thinks, that unless a man is qualified by previous registration he cannot accept a nomination when his name is written in by the voters. The court may decide that way when the matter is again brought up, but at present Heney can run as the Democratic candidate.

That he does not intend to rely on any party for assistance, however, is shown by his statement that his friends have already begun to circulate a petition to get him upon the official ballot as an independent. This is more than true. The Good Government League has commenced the preparation of an independent ticket, and its bosses are diligently searching for a candidate for Mayor. There is opposition to running a new candidate, however, for the reason that a split between Crocker, Leland and a third nominee would probably elect Pin Head McCarthy—a desideratum that sends a cold chill even down the backs of the reformers. It is probable, then, that the league will indorse Leland. Of course he is Gavin McNab's man, but McNab is friendly with Phelan, and in an emergency Phelan can handle the Scotchman.

At present the plan seems to be to effect a fusion between the Good Government League, Independent Republicans and laborites, who voted for Frank J. Sullivan for Mayor, with move is peculiarly Phelanesque. If there is any one thing for which "Jimmy" is more famous than any other, it is in getting up schemes to induce Republicans to vote for Democrats for municipal offices. He has done that many times and generally with success. That he thinks there are still a sufficient number of Republicans who will bite to elect his choice for Mayor is shown by this plan for uniting the soreheads.

On the independent ticket thus proposed, Heney will be the piece de resistance. He will do most of the speaking and all the manipulating. As he still has the money derived from the government for prosecuting the Oregon land grabbers, it is expected that he will contribute liberally to the campaign fund. In short, it is generally believed in political circles, not only that Heney has to a certain extent thrown Phelan and Spreckels over and planned this fight entirely for his own personal benefit, but that the whole scheme is merely preliminary to a movement on the Governorship next year. Of course he is putting all his hopes and money on a single card, but this always has to be done by the politically ambitious, and it is sufficient for Heney that he believes he will win. Backed with his own money and prestige and the money and influence of Phelan and Spreckels, he is unable to see how disaster can befall him.

It is the fond hope of the friends of the "great prosecutor" that Calhoun will openly espouse the cause of Fickert, thus providing them with the necessary thunder to fire the hearts of the reformers; but in this they are doomed to disappointment. The position of the railway magnate with respect to local politics is well known to all save Heney and his followers. Calhoun is aware that an acquittal in court is his only safe way out of his present predicament. Not only this, but he knows that an acquittal with Heney as prosecutor would be more valuable than any other variety of acquittal. In other words, it is Calhoun's idea that a compromise of any kind would be fatal to his reputation, and he wants none. He wants Heney to do his worst and he wants to defeat Heney while the worst is being done. Any intelligent person familiar with the graft prosecution can perceive the soundness of this reasoning.

It would be a funny outcome if in the middle of Heney's "reform" crusade Calhoun should declare these doctrines and ask the people to elect him District Attorney. But funny as it appears, that is just exactly what some of the politicians are anticipating. At all events, it is certain that Calhoun will take no interest in the campaign and contribute nothing to anybody's fund. He will continue to spend his money fighting Gumshoe Burns's sleuths and Heney's band of legal blatherskites.

But friends, and friends of friends, began ordering chickens directly from Miss Farrow. They knew that quality would be in the product which she brought them.

NO FALSE PRIDE.

She thus receives the retail market price for her chickens. "I must go to town about once a week, any way, and there is no reason why I should not take in the chickens." Some eggs also will be carried to town in the hampers of this young woman, who has no false pride to deter her from executing any office of her chosen vocation.

This fall she will build more chicken houses and additional runs, and next season's chickens will be incubated on the place.

Within a few days the ranch woman's bungalow will be finished. It is well planned and well made, and would do credit to any city lot.

POMONA TALKS ROADS FOR CITY.

TRUSTEES DISCUSS PLAN OF BOND ISSUE.

Hundred Thousand Dollar Indebtedness Incurred for This Purpose Would, According to Estimates, Be Sufficient to Construct a Number of Permanent Thoroughfares.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

POMONA, Aug. 28.—The City Trustees have been discussing recently the advisability of calling an election for bonds to be used in the construction of durable roads here. The record tax levy will furnish about $29,360 for road uses during the coming year. Out of this, the cost of street sprinkling, oiling, cleaning and repairing must be deducted, so that little is left for actual new road construction.

By the issuance of bonds to the amount of $100,000 an excellent system of good roads could be provided for which it is figured would have much to do with the city's future growth and prosperity. One half the cost of the roads would be provided by the bonds and the other half paid by the abutting property owners along the newly built thoroughfares, according to the plan proposed.

PLAN BARGAIN DAY.

Labor Day and Admission Day will not be observed here, but extensive plans are being made for the celebration of the second annual Pomona bargain day, which will take place on September 30. About all the merchants have subscribed to an entertainment fund and a special all day programme is being arranged. Bargains will be offered by all of the merchants.

RUSH OF PEACHES.

G. H. Waters of the Pomona Cannery is rushing the work of packing peaches. The total estimated pack is a million and a half cans of the fruit, the bulk of which comes from the San Joaquin Valley and about Cucamonga. The average day's run is 45,000 cans and there are nearly 300 people employed at the cannery, the weekly pay roll averaging over $2000. All of this season's pack is contracted for in St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago and St. Joseph, Mo. Two carloads are being shipped daily.

SAVES DAUGHTER.

A serious accident at the Pomona Cannery was averted yesterday by the prompt action of Mrs. I. I. Hite. Her daughter, Myrtle, was standing near some rapidly revolving machinery when her dress became entangled in the cog wheels and the girl was rapidly drawn toward the danger line. She screamed and her mother, who was near, leaped forward and pulled her daughter from harm, but not until the latter's skirt had been torn to shreds.

FISH SHRINK ON TRIP.

Gold Button Catches Dwindle Under Weight on the Way to the Scales at Avalon.

AVALON, Aug. 28.—Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Eldridge of New York City returned yesterday from a ten day's camping at Clemente Island. They were accompanied by Alexander Barret of Los Angeles. The party caught sixteen silver button fish, Mrs. Eldridge landing eight out of the sixteen. They caught ninety-eight yellowtail in all. "We only fished for the big ones," said Mr. Eldridge, "and avoided the schools, for the largest yellowtail are found outside the schools." Several gold button fish were caught, but during the trip from Clemente they shrunk below the standard before weighing.

Who Was the Loser?

A Kansas paper offers this as "something to figure on": A banker going home to dinner saw a $10 bill on the curbstone. He picked it up, noted the number and went home to dinner. While at home his wife remarked that the butcher had sent a bill amounting to $10. The only money he had was the bill he had found, which he gave to her and she paid the butcher. The butcher paid it to a farmer for a calf, the farmer to the merchant, who in turn paid it to a washerwoman, and she, owing the banker a note of $10, went to the bank and paid the note. The banker recognized the bill as the one he had found, and which to that time had paid $50 worth of debt. On careful examination he discovered that the bill was counterfeit. Now what was lost in the transaction, and by whom?

MINES AND MINING—Activities in the Ore Districts of the Great Sou

GOLDFIELD.

GRAND DISPLAY OF MINERALS.

Tons of Nevada's Richest Ore Exhibited.

Mining Congress Delegates to See Wealth.

Two Thousand High Grade Ore Specimens.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) Aug. 26.—The interest of mining men all over the State is at present centered upon the display of minerals at the Mineral Palace in Goldfielud at the Mining Congress next month. A finer collection of all grades of ore will probably not be seen again in this country for years. Last night ten tons arrived and the classifier and his assistants are kept busy day and night. Complete data will be given with each piece of rock, thus avoiding a tedious reference to catalogue descriptions. Every section of the State will be represented, either by milling or high-grade ore, and, in some instances, by both. One entire cabinet, holding 2000 specimens, has been reserved for high-grade, and will be enclosed in glass, with watchmen constantly on guard. The high-grade stuff is expected to arrive the first of next week, and each piece will be insured.

LUCKY BOY.

Lucky Boy, the new camp to the north of Goldfield a few miles, is to the front again with a high-grade strike, made this week. In the Broken Hills lease, from the 160 level in the west drift, and at a vertical depth of about 200 feet, ore that runs into the picture class has been found, with the general shipping average around $150 to the ton. Many assays of $500 have been secured along the foot wall, while picked samples run upward of $1000. The size of the body cannot yet be determined, but 700 sacks of the rich stuff were sent out, averaging $150.

George's Cañon is the Mecca for quite a number of Goldfield people. Dr. Smith, who has a lease on the Stimler ground, says that the shaft is down about thirty-five feet, and that the vein is twenty inches wide at that level, having widened from three inches at the surface. The values are said to be up in the hundreds. On the Miles and Myers lease, the ore body is from eight to ten inches wide and the values are from $600 to $1000. Tom Griffin has ground with a foot ledge that pans well. It is said that as depth is obtained, horn silver shows freely, indicating the permanency of the district. A town is already springing up in the section, and wagonloads of supplies are trailing over the hills.

BULLION TAXES.

That Esmeralda county pays five-sixths of the entire bullion tax of the State is evident, from the report of the Tax Collector, J. F. Haley, for the quarter. During the first three months of this year, a total tax of $40,658.86 was paid by the mines of this county, while the entire State, during the same period, paid but a little over $55,000. The mines of this county which came through with the tax were the Mountain King, Combination Fraction, Consolidated, Jumbo, Mohawk and Red Top. The Collector says that the mining counties of the State, during the three months, produced 649,222 tons, of a total value of $6,343,000. That this will be a record year is evident, as in 1908 the total for the State was but 1,165,625 tons, of a value of $14,873,545. The 1909 production at the present rate ought to be well upward of $25,000,000.

SHOSHONE CLEAN-UP.

A partial clean-up at the Shoshone this week gave about $15,000. There were five gold bars in the lot worth $3000 each. The mill is pounding on 215 tons of ore a day. The 500 level is producing the best results, and here the development is at its height. Two distinct bodies of ore are being opened with every promise of big returns. During May, $41,561 was received from bullion shipments, with the expenses about $26,000.

RAWHIDE DISTRICT.

Rawhide development is slow but sure, and the milling facilities indicate that ere long the camp will be a steady producer on a small scale. Transportation and treatment charges are so high that many properties cannot ship at a profit, but with the stuff handled at home, there will be "velvet" for many a lease. The Bridges-Daniel lease has a shaft down sixty-seven feet, and it is the intention to rush it to the 400 as rapidly as possible. A sixteen-horse-power gasoline plant will be moved at once from the Mint-Coalition Extension to the Bethania estate, where the lease is operating. From a fourteen-foot fissure the company is taking out large quantities of ore running from $12 to $30.

In a drift ffrom the 425 level on the La Mance lease on the Atlanta, a vein has been entered which has already given returns of upward of $10 to the ton. This will soon be increased to a shipping point. M. J. La Marce and associates of Los Angeles control this lease and have done a great deal of development since they came into charge. Perhaps half a dozen different properties in Diamondfield are making steady shipments of small quantities, some of which is in the high-grade class. The Diadem has resumed, and is reported to be in good ore, while the Morrison lease is steadily sending from three to five tons daily, averaging $125. Seven to ten tons a day are being sent out on company account, the straight average being about $50 to the ton.

CONSOLIDATED PAYS.

The Consolidated directors today in Chicago declared their usual quarterly 10-cent dividend, amounting to well above the million mark. This enormous distribution of velvet every three months has become so steady that Goldfield people take it as a matter of course, without much comment. The Goldfield production is steadily increasing, and new leasers are starting, particularly on the Wingfields estates.

Deep Mining.

Pumps have been installed in the Shoshone at Rhyolite to unwater the 700 level in preparation for deep mining decided upon a short time ago by the management. July operation showed a loss of two days and approximately 6200 tons were handled. A bullion shipment was made

SEARCHLIGHT.

Midsummer Activities Promise of Big Development in Winter.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SEARCHLIGHT (Nev.) Aug. 27.—Midsummer activities give great promise of a record-breaking fall and winter season throughout the Searchlight district. Old companies are either planning or commencing more extensive operations and several new outfits have joined the ranks.

The Homestead people are preparing to drop the Fraction shaft down to the 1000-foot level. To hasten the work air drills will be employed and a larger hoist installed. Manager W. H. Perkins is in Los Angeles securing the new equipment.

Of equal importance is the bringing in of a diamond drill by the Philadelphia-Searchlight. The outfit is here at the Santa Fé depot. The company's ground, located six miles north of town, is to be prospected to a depth of 1000 feet. A considerable number of holes will be bored. As the drill is the first of its kind to be brought into the district the results of its work will be watched with great interest, particularly as pertains to geological conditions.

The Occidental is grading the site for the mill, and this week a car of cement was received which will be used for the construction of concrete houses.

A. L. Hill, formerly of Memphis, Tenn., but now a resident of Los Angeles, is the manager of the latest addition to the list of operators at Newberry Mountain. As the name implies the Memphis Mining and Milling Company is backed by capitalists of that far-famed southern city.

A complete plant, including a hoist and compressor, has been ordered from Los Angeles, and the group, comprising four claims, is to be thoroughly exploited. As the surface showings are reported to be rather exceptional large results can be predicted.

The Searchlight-Parallel, a close-in property, announces a resumption of development on September 1.

Sinking in the main shaft of the Pompeii Mining and Milling Company will be started the first of the month.

The Santa Fé Railway has established a twice-a-week through refrigerator car service between Los Angeles and this point. Perishable freight shipments leave Los Angeles on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

HOW MINES PAY.

SEVEN MONTHS' BIG DIVIDEND.

OVER THIRTY-EIGHT MILLIONS WERE DISBURSED.

Ninety-four American Mines and Metallurgical Works Paid This and More Than Half a Billion in All Since Incorporation, or One Hundred and Thirteen Per Cent.

According to the Mining World of Chicago, ninety-four American mines and metallurgical works paid dividends in the first seven months of 1909 of $38,485,138, and have paid a total since organization to August 1, 1909, of $561,973,929, on an issued capitalization of $496,643,493, or 113 per cent.

These huge profits accrue not only to individual shareholders but also to such securities holding corporations as the American securities Company, the American Securities ComDa!! fiomrfuiOepCrpoMHHMHMHF pany, the Copper Range Consolidated Company and others heavily interested in mines. Eight of these corporations, with issued capital of $307,740,600, have paid so far this year $8,610,291, a total since incorporation of $93,778,607. The Amalgamated, controlling the Boston & Montana, Anaconda and other dividend-payers, among the above, has declared $2,308,318 dividends this year, a total since 1899 of $59,543,457 on issued capital of $153,887,900, or 39 per cent. Besides all of this, there are profits of private and close corporations and those of smaller mines and individual owners.

Sixty-nine of the above dividend-payers were gold, silver, lead and zinc properties, and they paid $16,529,713 of the total, making disbursements to date of $141,002,518, on a combined issued capital of $195,084,748, a return of 72 per cent., most of this being paid in small, regular amounts. Goldfield Consolidated leads the United States list with $2,119,482 this year, and Tonopah is second with $950,000. Homestake of South Dakota with $21,800,000 capitalization, has paid $763,000 this year and $18,536,950 or 85 per cent. Of the above sixty-nine, fourteen are Mexicans. They paid $2,984,950 in seven months or $27,560,845 since incorporation, amounting to 116 per cent. on $23,685,000 combined capitalization. Esperanza, capitalization $2,250,000, leads with $972,000 for seven months, and $10,369,500 since incorporation, or 459 per cent. El Oro paid $826,200, or a total of $5,746,360, or 93 per cent.

Nipissing leads as usual with $900,000 for the year, and $2,940,000 or 49 per cent. Crown Reserve paid $813,657 in three dividends this year. La Rose Consolidated paid $686,526 on $5,720,000, and $2,062,894 to date.

Sixteen Copper companies in the United States have paid $11,099,421 in 1909 and a total of $314,896,893, equal to 395 per cent. on combined capital issued of $79,931,895. Anaconda leads in 1909 with $1,800,000, and $42,900,000, or 143 per cent. on $30,000,000 capital. United Verde is second in 1909 with $1,575,000, and total of $28,122,000, or 773 per cent. ELECTRICITY SMELTS IRON.

INITIAL SHIPMENT OF PLANT AT HEROULT.

Its Success Marks New Era in Industrial Life of California and Big Deposits of Iron on Pit River Will Be Exploited——As Much as Forty Tons Treated Daily.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

REDDING, Aug. 26.—One of the most important developments in California mining and smelting circles for many years was chronicled last week when a shipment of twenty-five tons of fine quality pig iron was received by a local foundry from the new electric iron smelter at Heroult. The pig iron was delivered here for $25 per ton, which is considerably lower than it could be secured at tidewater.

This is the initial shipment of the new and improved plant recently completed at Heroult, and it is believed that it marks a new era in Californian industrial annals. The smelter has not yet settled down to a steady production, and there remains several minor defects to remedy, but it has been conclusively demonstrated that the electric smelting and production of California iron is a realized fact. As soon as the smelter is working at full capacity it is expected to maintain a daily production of from twenty-five to forty tons per day. The smelter is of the well-known Heroult type, but has been modified and improved to a considerable extent by Prof. Lyon of Stanford University.

The Noble Electric Steel Company, which owns and operates the plant, is developing large reserves of iron ore in the Pit River district, where immense deposits of magnesite occur. The company is also arranging for the extensive production of ferro-sillicon, charcoal, Stockholm tar, wood alcohol and other products at its by-product plant.

FARMS VS. SMELTERS.

The fume trouble continues to occupy the attention of Shasta county smelter men, and the Mammoth company has expended large sums of money recently in securing easements from the various property owners affected. In many cases the company has agreed to pay the farmers a considerable sum each year while the smelter is in commission, and the agriculturists will have no further claims against the company because of damage from the fumes. In other districts the smelter people feel that the fumes are not doing the damage caused, but are showing every desire to meet the farmers in a fair spirit.

The means adopted by the company will probably prove more satisfactory than installing devices of doubtful efficiency, and it is likely that the Balaklala and others will take the same method of solving the difficulty. At the same time experiments are being conducted in order to obviate the fumes as far as practicable.

Throughout the great copper belt activities are more pronounced than at any time since the panic. The Mammoth, Balaklala and Bully Hill smelters are operating on a large scale, while the Mountain Copper Company is perfecting arrangements to erect a new plant near Keswick. A vast number of smaller companies are actively operating holdings and arranging for steady shipments to the Mammoth and Balaklala plants. Several Southern California companies are interested and are meeting with good success. In addition to the copper properties, a large number of gold mines are being actively worked, the smelters affording a ready market.

The controlling interest in the Mother Lode group, one of the most promising gold properties near Redding, passed into the hands of Los Angeles capitalists last week and will be developed on a larger scale. This property has been developed to a considerable extent and comprises several strong veins carrying good values. The new owners intend to augment the working force, push deep developments, and otherwise place the property on a large producing basis. The Western Exploration Company is producing approximately $13,500 per month and the mines are showing well.

ANGELENOS IN OREGON.

The Pacific Securities Company, which recently took over the celebrated Galice Consolidated Company's hydraulic properties on Galice Creek, Oregon, is arranging for extensive operations. The storage reservoirs and dams are being rebuilt; the flumes, ditches and pipe lines are undergoing repairs, and other improvements are being carried forward. The company has acquired the Anderson holdings and now controls all the placer holdings on both sides of Galice Creek for six miles. As soon as the wet season sets in a number of giants will be put to work and the company will become one of the greatest operators in the State. Many Los Angeles people are heavily interested.

SIERRA COUNTY.

Developments during the past few days in Sierra county have been of an important nature. Districts contiguous to Alleghany are coming to the front with a rush, many Southern Californians and Nevadans being particularly interested.

The Arnold brothers of Goldfield have bonded the Ramshorn, First Chance and Forest claims and are driving an adit to open the vein at a depth of 300 feet. Several shoots of ore outcrop on the surface and assay high. Wingfield & Nixon of Goldfield are working ten men at the Pacific and have driven the tunnel 500 feet. The adit is heading for the old channel in the Fillmore ridge. As soon as this has been intersected the working force will be increased.

Sacramento people are driving a tunnel at the Gladstone to tap two strong veins. Good ore is being developed near the mouth of the tunnel.

The Belleview, controlled by London capitalists, is developing a strong channel of rich gravel. Thirty-five men are employed and much development work is under way. This is the largest drift mine in the Gibsonville district and has been a steady producer for six years.

The Acme Mining Company, composed of Los Angeles people, is driving a crosscut on its property and has opened a 35-foot ledge, with the opposite walls still unreached. The vein carries considerable iron sulphides and shows fair gold values. The Eclipse Company is in 140 feet on its tunnel and is opening up good bodies of milling ore. San Francisco capitalists are in control.

At Alleghany work is progressing steadily at the Plumbago, Red Star, Rainbow, Twenty-One, Tightner, El Dorado and several others. All the properties are showing well, but some concern is felt because the Tightner ledge has not yet been encountered by the lower adit. Work is still being steadily pushed and indications are promising. The Twenty-one continues to produce bonanza ore, and the Rain- the Sixteen-to-One and Bonanza King has transpired. A large number of small properties are receiving attention but nothing of an important nature has recently developed.

In the Forest district several important strikes have been recently recorded, the most important being the discovery of bonanza ore in the tunnel of the Kate Hardy. The shoot is small but improving with developments. Samples running $5000 per ton have been taken out and the company is actively pushing work. W. M. Beggs of San José is principally interested.

The Los Angeles people operating the South Fork have decided to drive an upraise from the tunnel with the expectation of striking the long-sought channel on the South Fork and Maple Grove claims. The tunnel has been making good progress and is believed to be under the channel. A six-foot ledge of good grade ore has been struck in the Slate-Castle-Jaffa property and the old tunnel is being repaired to facilitate developments. A shoot running $40 to $50 per ton has been opened at the Oakland. The lower tunnel is going forward rapidly and is expected to strike the ledge at a depth of 300 feet.

GRASS VALLEY.

Grass Valley has been the scene of important developments and transactions of late. The Union Hill has cut the main ledge and opened five feet of ore running into milling values. The drift will be pushed ahead to intersect seven parallel ore shoots. The mill will be enlarged and other machinery installed. The North Star Mines Company has purchased the Hermosa property and will proceed with immediate developments. The Dana Mining Company of Tonopah has arranged to reopen the Dana mine and will conduct operations on an extensive scale. A strong ledge carrying good values has been developed and work will be pushed with a strong force of men.

INYO COUNTY.

The Four Metals Company is increasing the capacity of the aerial tramline from the Cerro Gordo mine to the Keeler smelter, and otherwise preparing for more extensive operations. Three hundred tons of silver-lead is stored at Keeler and 1400 tons of valuable lead slag is also awaiting treatment. The Keeler smelter will be placed in commission at an early date. The Bishop Creek, Inyo Mines Syndicate and other strong corporations are prosecuting work with renewed vigor.

OIL EXCITEMENT.

The oil excitement in Northern California continues to grow. The Standard Oil Company is watching developments closely and has filed a copy of its articles in a number of counties. The Pacific Oil Company is also interested in Yuba County. Among the stockholders are C. N. Felton, L. D. Fisk, George M. Hedges, George Loomis and James Lawlor. The locators of supposed oil lands at Kennett have resumed work and state that they will thoroughly explore their holdings before abandoning operations definitely.

DEAL MADE.

COMPANY BUYS ON COLORADO.

ARIZONA EMPIRE GETS CLAIMS FOR DEVELOPMENT.

Reduction Works Planned for the Near Future—Los Angeles and Kansas City Capital Interested—A French Engineer's High Opinion of the Property.

The Arizona Empire Copper Mines Company has consummated an important deal by the purchase of the Belcher group of five rich copper-gold claims, and the Cyclone group of twelve claims, at Empire Flats, on the east side of the Colorado River seven miles north of Parker, Ariz. The same company has secured options on the Gray Eagle group of ten and the carnation of fourteen claims, adjoining.

The Arizona Empire acquired something like 85 per cent. of the Gray Eagle and Carnation capital stock and will begin extensive development in the near future. The early erection of smelting and reduction works is contemplated.

Charles Marquet, an eminent Paris mining engineer, who has just been sent by the French government to Zanzibar, to report on the mineral resources of that country, recently spent some time at the Gray Eagle and Carnation groups, making exhaustive examinations. He reported that there is 2,599,000 tons in sight, containing 79,707 tons of copper and 7662 kilos of gold, a total valuation approximating $25,000,000.

W. A. Moses, head of the great grain firm of Moses Bros. of Kansas City, owners of extensive flour mills and grain elevators throughout Kansas, is president; Gen. E. Bouton of Los Angeles, first vice-president; Newton Evans, second vice-president; C. W. Mitchell, for nine years mining engineer for Phelps-Dodge, general manager.

Strike Is Good.

The recent strike on the Hubbard lease on Broken Hills ground at Lucky Boy has developed some fancy ore that will run into the thousands, 200 feet will average $150, according to letters received by Goldfield operators spending a few days in Los Angeles from friends at Luckyl Boy.

The rich rock was uncovered in the west drift from the 160-foot level. The size of the body has not been determined, the limited amount of work since the strike being insufficient to prove its extent.

Seven hundred sacks shipped Saturday week and a two-car shipment ready to be forwarded, are estimated as doing better than the average mentioned.

New Minieral Region.

Thomas McLaughlin, an old-time California miner and prospector, thinks he has discovered a district that will make a showing in the future that will astonish mining men. He has been prospecting in the vicinity of Mount Jefferson, Nev., near Searchlight, during the past few months, and claims to have discovered a cave that is apparently an old mine entrance. According to his story, mineral indications are everywhere and rich at that. McLaughlin has located a number of claims in the neighborhood, including the cavern entrance.

Samples asserted to be from the mine are of honeycombed granite that pans coarse gold.

Something in Luck.

"Do you think luck cuts much of a figure in the success or failure of a man nowadays?"

"Yes, I believe it does. There's Bagshaw, for instance. What show would he ever have had to live at ease and belong to clubs if he hadn't had the luck to find a banker with a daughter who was so homely that a MILLION AND QUARTER PAID.

WARRIOR MINES AT GLOBE GO FOR BIG PRICE.

Minnesota Capitalists are Buyers Jointly With Arizonans and Some Others—Purchase Is Mostly for Cash, But Some Is Paid in Bonds. In Other Ferrital Camps.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Aug. 27.—The particulars of the sale of the Warrior mines near Globe have been made public during the week. The purchaser is a new Michigan company, capitalized at $2,500,000, represented by Henry B. Hovland of Duluth, Minn. The price is $1,250,000, mainly payable in cash, with the balance in bonds, which may be exchanged at par in stock of the new corporation.

The deal was made by E. M. White, manager of the property, who has just returned from the East, after concluding the transaction. With Mr. Hovland is connected Hoval A. Smith, the successful Bisbee mining man, the firm already controlling the Live Oak, Cordova and Globe Consolidated properties near Globe, besides handling large projects at Bisbee. Included in the Warrior property are sixty-four claims, in three groups. Thirty of these claims are in the Black Warrior group. The extension of the Gila Valley broad-gauge line will be continued to Warrior townsite, where connection will be made with the Warrior company's narrow-gauge mining road, thus assuring cheap transportation.

The property is considered one of the greatest opened in Arizona, with a showing of about a million tons that will run close to 10 per cent. copper. On the ground is a large amount of machinery, though much of it has been demonstrated to be useless. The property has suffered much in the past from experimenting with untried theories in reduction processes.

Another strong Globe company is the Cactus Copper Company, capitalized in Duluth for $5,000,000 in 1,000,000 shares. A. Eaton is president; H. B. Freiberger, vice-president, and H. C. Fulton, secretary and treasurer. The company has a group of claims in Gold Gulch district, where a large body of 15 per cent. ore lately was uncovered.

WORK AT CLIFTON.

A five-stamp mill has been ordered by the directors of the Gold Belt Reduction and Development Company, near Clifton, with instructions that it is to be completed by December 10. The mill will be built and operated under contract by J. Backstein, who is to pay the company 40 per cent. of the net proceeds of the ore milled for the first year, 50 per cent. during the second and 60 per cent. during the third, the contractor to be at liberty to increase his milling facilities at will.

The new briquetting mill of the Arizona Copper Company has arrived from England and is being put in place on a hillside above the Clifton acid works of the company. Its capacity is 300 tons of concentrates or flue dust a day. Material will be delivered to it from railroad tracks above and the bricks, after being molded in combination with a special binding substance, are automatically carried on a belt through intense heat, being delivered to the feed door of the furnace thoroughly baked. It is believed that the process will do away with most of the flue dust and will result in very large economy.

BISBEE'S DOINGS.

The tremendous pumping equipment of the mines at Bisbee has been taxed to its limit during the past couple of weeks handling surface water which has flowed in through every crack and fault, from the unusually heavy rains of the last fortnight. The new electric pumps of the Copper Queen were unable to cope with the flood at the Czar shaft and the old steam pumps had to be operated again in addition.

A new precipitating plant has been built by the Copper Queen to take the place of the old one, which collapsed a few weeks ago, due to the eating away of the iron nails by the sulphuric solution in the water's pumps from the Czar shaft. The new troughs will be held together with wooden pegs.

New machinery in general and an electric hoist in particular are being installed at the Irish Mag shaft, the principal opening of the Calumet and Arizona at Bisbee. The shaft is to be retimbered, as well. This work has caused the first closing down the shaft has ever known, but it will be operated again early in September. In the meantime the ore supply will be hoisted through the Oliver shaft, by means of a connection on the 1150-foot level.

Sinking on the main shaft of the Denn is being continued down to a 1500-foot level. Still another strange ore body was cut this week on the wonderful 1250-foot level. It was only a foot wide, but was rich and still further emphasized the demonstrated fact that the Denn ground is far from being barren, as has so often been claimed.

Work has been started at Douglas on the enlargement of still another of the old 300-ton furnaces of the Calumet and Arizona smelter from 300 to 500 tons daily capacity. The plant will then have three 500-ton and three 300-ton furnaces. Very little has been heard of late concerning any new reduction works in the Bisbee or Douglas country.

EL TIGRE, SONORA.

Another default appears to have been made in the much-advertised sale of the Tigre mine in Northern Sonora. New York capitalists were to have paid $3,900,000 for two-thirds of the company's capital stock, which now stands at $8,000,000. The first payment was to have been $250,000, payable last week. But the payment was not made and there are rumors that the deal is off. Experts have been busy on the property for some time, but are said to have expressed themselves of the opinion that it is well worth the price demanded. The Tigre ore is the richest received at the Copper Queen smelter, paying large profit after subtraction of about $50 transportation charges per ton.

In El Tigre district the Temblo mine has been bonded by Taylor & Shippy to T. Lambertson and H. L. Van Dusen. The property has shipped ore valued at $300 a ton in gold and silver.

ARIZONA CAMPS.

Fifty men are employed at Johnson camp, completing the smelter of the Arizona United Mines Company and in getting out ore for the initial run of the plant.

Frank Harbin has sold two small groups of claims near Winkelman to William Gammel and Philip Bottler. The property adjoins the London-Arizona and Saddle Mountain mines. Though surrounded by copper mines, the property sold is rich in gold, the former owner supporting himself by merely panning rock from one ten-foot hole.

the Santa Fé Gold Company for $10,000, considered in the light of a bargain sale, since the property is equipped with a good ten-stamp mill, beside all necessary buildings. On the 300-foot level has been opened a two-foot streak of gold ore that will plate $40 to the ton. Most of the ore will need concentration.

At Jerome the smelter of the United Verde company is running at full capacity. A large amount of development is being done by the companies operating around the United Verde ground. About 4000 tons of ore averaging 15 per cent. copper and $7 to the ton in silver are said to be ready for handling through the Dillon tunnel from the ground of the Cleopatra company, which lately completed a small smelter.

MOJAVE COUNTY.

The old Tragedy group in Union Pass district, Mojave county, has been taken over by the 'Frisco Mines Company of New York.

About $100,000 is reported to have been paid by O. P. Posey for a controlling interest in the Ruth mines, north of Kingman. Mr. Posey is one of the leading men in the Gold Roads mine.

The tariff on zinc is a pleasant subject in Mojave county, where the miners are clearing more than $5 a ton on their shipments of ore above the prices formerly secured. The average value of the shipments is above 50 per cent. zinc.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY.

To Correspondents:

This department is not conducted for pay. Its object is to convey reliable information of interest and value to the public, and it is not for the private benefit of any miner, collector, speculator or prospector. Correspondents are particularly cautioned to take careful note of the statements and injunctions contained in the paragraphs below.

(1.) Specimens must be small and bear a tag giving name and address of sender, and the general—not exact—locality from whence the specimen was taken, also the name of it as nearly as the sender knows. Send, also, with the specimen a clearly-written letter briefly describing the find and what the finder wishes done with it. The letter must be properly dated and plainly signed.

Letter and specimen must be in one package, not in separate inclosure.

(2.) No attention will be paid to anonymous letters or to letters signed merely with initials.

(3.) No examinations of samples or specimens will be made in cases where The Times may decide that the specimen and inquiry are not of public interest. This office does not undertake to perform the work of an assay office.

(4.) Inquiries relative to matters of purely personal interest will not be answered.

(5.) When no response to an inquiry made or specimens sent appears in these columns, the inquirer will understand that his inquiry does not come within the purview of this department.

(6.) It is impossible to return specimens, as they must necessarily be destroyed or impaired in the process of analysis.

Petroleology.

WILLIAMS (Ariz.) July 13.—[To the Editor of The Times:] (1) Could you give a good test that one could apply to surface soil in a region where oil is supposed to exist at a great depth? Something a layman could try?

(2.) Would you judge at a cursory glance that real black soil of slate color well mixed with gypsum and small pieces of coal, and a multi-colored scum of marked tenacity on pools of standing water at all were indications of the presence of oil, especially since the country about is overlaid with deposits of merchantable coal?

(3.) What is the area of an oil location, and can you inform me as to the limit an individual may take?

Respectfully yours, C. C. T.

ANSWER: Crude petroleum is indicated by the so-called "water test." Impregnated oil rock if breathed upon yields an odor of petroleum.

"Oil rock" if placed in water—in a bucket or other container—and exposed to the rays of the sun, proves oil formation if iridescent (rainbow) colors appear on the surface of the water. The percentage of oil present is indicated by the time required for the iridescent colors to form; forming immediately if the rock is "rich." Such is the water test.

Petroleum rocks occur from Mexico to Canada and at many points in the eastern, central and western States. See further map of Dr. W. J. McGee, "U. S. Geological Survey Publication."

Petroleum prospects are "very lean" in metamorphic rocks, or rocks of crystalline formation. Anticlinal ridges are more favorable for oil than synclinal ridges. The oil strata of Pennsylvania occurs in the Devonian age. That of California in the strata of the Tertiary period, and in Colorado we find the cretaceous rock to be the indicator for oil, as it were.

It is no absolute requirement that coal croppings in any form be present to indicate petroleum; on the contrary, high-grade paraffine oil base is usually absent in coal formations.

The very best field for study of paraffine oil-bearing strata in the United States is near Debeque, Colo., and among the poorest localities for such investigation is in Southtrn and Eastern Utah.

It is true that oil occurs in the strata of the coal measures of West Virginia, and it is also true that the section indicated by you resembles the carboniferous limestone of Kentucky (where oil is obtained,) with earmarks of the West Virginia fields' formation.

Crude petroleum of asphaltum base is favorable south of Bluff, Colo.; on the Navajo Indian reservation, and near Red Lake, Ariz.; east of Courthouse, Utah; between Keam's Cañon and Bita-O-Chee (Red Rock,) and north of Winslow, Ariz.

Nature usually hides her most valuable storehouses of oil and minerals at some depth, and surface indications are rather doubtful as to lasting values.

Replying specifically to your hypothetical question (2:) "Real black soil of a slate color," does not appear as sufficiently described. The "multi-colored scum of marked tenacity on pools of standing water" could be the result of chemical action on animal or vegetable matter present in the water. All in all, question (2) probably shows a rather unfavorable combination for oil of commercial quantity and quality near the surface. To rig up a standard string of tools for the locality stated one should be prepared to go 3000 feet depth for oil or a "duster."

(3.) In the selection of lands for petroleum it is the general practice for a combination of eight prospectors to locate 160 acres—twenty acres each—placer like.

Owing to some recent changes in the laws governing such locations, and of which we are not fully advised, it would be well for you to consult your lawyer further, on the question "as to the limit an individual may take."

most liberal contributors to the production roster are the San Andres de la Sierra, the Velardeña, Ventanas, Guanaceví, San Ramon, Guadalupe and La Espinoseña. The first-named property has produced over $13,000,000 in silver.

The Mexican Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, recently organized with a membership of 162, confined to scientific men, has issued its first regular bimonthly bulletin. The publication will appear periodically hereafter, containing news of technical interest, with full accounts of the institute's proceedings and reproduction of all papers read before the society.

The first paper read before the institute was prepared by H. S. Denny, who said in part: "Judged by its history of output, its extraordinary distribution of mineral desposits, its variety and richness of ores, its natural advantages and facilities for working, and its governmental, labor and climatic conditions, the republic of Mexico stands in the very front rank of the world's mining countries. Where the industry in other sections has seen its zenith, in Mexico it is but in its infancy, when viewed in relation to the republic's undeveloped resources."

The Santa Asilda Copper Company has elected Eugenio Frey, president; Ernest Medley, vice-president; Emil André, treasurer, and R. A. Mills, secretary.

ZINC GOING TO EUROPE.

On account of the recently levied duty upon zinc importation into the United States, it is expected that the majority of ore shipments from Mexico will hereafter be diverted to Europe. The American tariff of $20 per ton net results in a duty of approximately $8 per ton on Mexico ores, which average about 40 per cent. Freight charges from shipping centers of this republic to the smelters of Kansas and Missouri run to about $6.50, making a total of $14.50 per short ton, exclusive of the cost of mining and treatment.

The Royal Mail steamship line announces its willingness to deliver zinc ores from Mexico mines to the smelters of Antwerp and Swansea for $7.82 per long ton. Other trans-Atlantic lines have instructed their local representatives to go out after the business, which, in their opinion, is coming their way, and railroad men concede that they cannot hope to compete.

According to the general opinion, zinc mining in Mexico will not suffer through the putting into effect of the new tariff. For the present the industry will find salvation in European demands, and if the volume of production is found to warrant the expense, there will be installed zinc smelters in the Monterey country sufficient in capacity to handle the republic's output.

THE HAVEN OF MATRIMONY.

WHY WOMEN MARRY FROM AN UNSENTIMENTAL POINT OF VIEW.

BY MRS. MILLICENT ELSMERE.

Were a hundred people, young and old, to be asked what subject they considered the most interesting in the world, I can guess the answers they would give—money making, sport, politics, dress, education, travel, and so on.

Ha, ha. The dear old things. But I shouldn't believe them.

Still, it would be strange to find someone telling the truth, and admitting that the subject most often in his thoughts—or hers—was that of "getting married."

Your own marriage, as it is or as you hope it may be; your friend's marriage; the latest society wedding; the runaway match 'twixt the earl and the girl; the Cabinet Minister's wooing; the "case" of which you read every line, because your cousin's housekeeper used to be cook to the petitioner's people—how they fascinate.

What appeals to a man, however, is the romance; men are more genuinely romantic and less mercenary on the subject of love than women, who regard the marriage itself as the clou of the attraction.

NICELY CALCULATED PLANS.

In fact, the convention of marriage has such a hold on women that once a "nice" girl meets the Only Man in the World, and knows he loves her, her thoughts fly off to house furnishing and wedding rings as though one were the inseparable sequence of the other. They adore each other, the dear young things; they will live and love together—quite natural; but first they must go through a certain little ceremony together—most unnatural.

How nicely calculated is the plan to attract the feminine eye for a bargain. A house of our own, a nice man to live with, boundless supplies of love, money to spend and to "manage," liberty to do as we like, within reason—and all for what?

It would stagger most men to realize the average young "engaged" girl's view of the bargain. She, of course, will never live the humdrum life that satisfies mamma, but will dwell in a world——not necessarily too romantic—of realized ideals. On one subject, however, despite the counsel of her mother and the chaffings of her girl friends, she will not allow her mind to rest.

Sir Walter Besant in "St. Katherine's by the Tower" noted this singular short-sighted view a girl prefers to take of marriage. Her attitude is that of W. S. Gilbert's "Caroline Effingham" when she discusses ways and means with her fiancé, Tom Cobb, alias Maj.-Gen. Arthur Fitzpatrick.

Here is the passage:

Arthur: At present I've only my half-pay, and we can't marry on that.

Caroline: I am content, if you are. . . . Say, Arthur, shall we be made one?

Arthur: My dear Caroline, it's nonsense to talk about being made one. It's my experience that when poor people marry, they're made half a dozen at least in no time.

Caroline: Ar-thur!

NO SENTIMENT.

In fact, not entirely from false modesty, but rather from a pre-perception of the beauty and mystery of motherhood, she does not willingly look further ahead than the first three months of her married life. So that what she is giving in return for all the joys and dignity of her wedded state is love, the endless devotion of love—and the household linen. Ah!

How different from these rose-colored spectacles are those we wear in middle age!

It is no use the young people deceiving themselves: the basis of marriage is not sentiment. The law of nature is the foundation of love and the union of the sexes; call that the law of God, if you prefer it, for even the most rigid religionist would not uphold that Eve wore a wedding ring, or that Adam duly signed his name in the register. The foundation of marriage is an economical one—a matter of £, s, d.

You and I, of course, were guiltless of mercenary motives: we "married for love;" but if we loved, we trusted, too. Why, then, did we take such care to have the thing done quite legally, and well-nigh irrevocably? Were our love and trust not strong enough? After all, these bonds, strong as they are, and though we may hope never to break them, can be broken.

MRS. GRUNDY'S FORESIGHT.

There was Mrs. Grundy. We had to think of her: she takes our doings into very close consideration.

dle all be omitted, the partnership would not last long, and she had reasons for wishing to prolong it. She knew that every woman, within ten years of her marriage, is middle-aged, mentally if not physically. Mrs. Grundy was thinking of the woman's middle age.

Amongst the lower animals, where the female finds or earns a living as efficiently as does the male, and where her life is, roughly speaking, commensurate with her period of reproductive force, there is no naturally permanent union; but where we find a middle-aged, civilized, food-eating, clothes-wearing woman, who is no longer a possible mother, whose best working days are past, and who yet demands the things necessary to her health and dignity—what neater provision could have been invented for her than that of marriage?

You, dear Angelina, were you a beautiful young savage, basking under the tropical sun, innocent of the need of summer toilettes, and finding your food growing wild and free about you, to be had for the plucking or the trapping, you and dear Edwin would probably do a little—very elementary—house-furnishing, and settle down without ever the preliminaries of white and silver-printed invitations or decorations of palms and lilies.

A SUPPOSITION.

Suppose, then, that a Great Power, were to seize your native forests, and after parceling out the land, set Edwin and his fellow-savages to work; you would then begin to understand the relationship between money and labor, and consequently between money and marriage. In fact, you would say to him: "Here are Tommy and Mary and Jimmy and Teddy and the new baby—all our joint property—and here am I, spending my life and strength in looking after them and you. When Tommy and company are able to fend for themselves you will still be able to go to your work, but I shall be ready to rest. What will you do for me then in return for all I am doing for you new? . . . Shall I have to go?"

Now, by that time the missionary would have arrived, and you and he would have found something in common. Because he would know so well that the only right thing to be done is the thing that is done "at home;" he would tell you of the power of the wedding-ring; and because that wedding-ring would be to you the symbol of middle-aged security, you and he would persuade Edwin to come with you to the mission church—and the missionary would send home the glad tidings of "two more native converts."

"Bah!" you say. "You are talking of savages!"

HOW MARRIAGE HAS EVOLVED.

So I am; but the development of the marriage idea in the individual savage mind, as I have, perhaps too flippantly, sketched it out, is precisely the development that has taken place as the nations have risen from savtion. For as they progressed, and their women grew more and more dependent on the men's labour, the more rigid became the bonds uniting them.

First came the purely physical mating, then the conception of the legal bond, and much later, the ideal of marriage as a union of hearts and souls.

The modern emphasis placed on this third conception of marriage would seem to tend to weaken the permanence of the compact. "Where the moral union has failed, let the legal and physical union cease also," say, in effect, France and America.

It is significant, also, that in all civilized countries where an attempt has been made to raise by legal means the status of the woman the first step taken has been to assure to her the control of her own property, and especially of her own earnings; and with the high-wage earning woman there has come, in some quarters at least, a revulsion from the permanency of union.

In Germany this is especially the case, and a young professional woman will calmly announce to her friends that she and Herr X will be settling down shortly in a union of "free honour," freie Ehre.

MAINTENANCE OF THE MOTHER.

In England, of course, the sacramental nature of marriage is vigorously upheld; to regard matrimony as a piece of political-domestic-economy rather than as a holy ordinance is abhorrent to our national mind. We place the Turk, with his four legal wives, in the same category as the West African savage, with his couple of dozen. "No marriage at all!" we say. "Can there be anything holy in such a union?"

The British conception of marriage does not, however, dominate the thoughts of the whole world. Other nations freely grant that its sinc qua non is not the priestly blessing, but rather the legal recognition of the union. Our nearest Continental neighbors have made the religious ceremony purely facultative; the civil ceremony compulsory. In other words, the world-wide aim of the arrangement is the assured maintenance of the children, and of the mother, when her race-work is done.

Were there no kind storks to bring us dear little babies, or if the old woman that lives in a shoe would consent to deliver them elsewhere if we didn't want one just at present, I fancy neither Church nor State would have bothered to invent the marriage knot!

Beggar's Stand for Sale.

Giving up his profession, a Paris beggar offers his "pitch" for sale. His advertisement reads: "For sale, present holder retiring to the county; good situation for one-legged man; neighborhood of the Etoile; hours of work, 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. Receipts $2.40 to $3.15. Regular passersby, children and strangers. Or any infirmity would suit."—

READ THE HEADLINES AGAIN. Do you grasp the full significance—over $10,000 worth of high grade curtains, portieres and drapery silks to be closed out at just half the regular marked prices. The word Clean Sweep never meant so much, for fully 75 per cent. of this merchandise is imported goods.

Half price. That's a bold statement, you say, and where so many merchants have abused it, it has lost its power. Yes, but there's a difference when half price means half price, and when the Broadway makes such a statement, you can bank on it being absolutely straightforward, right out from the shoulder.

What's the reason for it? Simply that it's the end of the season. We have too many curtains, portieres, drapery silks, and we feel it is good merchandising to take the loss now.

Pause and consider that we are right on the threshold of fall. You'll be thinking of outfitting the home with new curtains, and here's the opportunity to buy the very finest lines for the best rooms at just half what we've been paying.

Over $10,000 worth. That's a mighty big lot. Well, this is to be a mighty big sale, and if values are appreciated we are going to have the crowd of the year in the drapery section. Read below the details of the prices to expect.

NOTICE!
Those who desire it may purchase merchandise at this sale and by the payment of 10 per cent. of the purchase price, we will hold the merchandise for 30 days.

SALE BEGINS
Promptly at 8 o'clock Monday morning. All arrangements for quick service on the third floor. It's the season's greatest opportunity. Don't miss it.

MEN!

Stop Taking Poison

Have you ever noticed the man who goes to the drug store ever so often for his bottle of "nerve tonic," "invigorator" kidney dope or other mixtures? Ever see him cured? No—he always looks all in, down and out, and he's getting worse every day, but the dope deceives his senses and he thinks it helps him. It puts his stomach out of order and ruins his health in every way, but he doesn't seem to realize it. Why? Because the drug dopes away the pain or bad feeling and the alcohol in the mixture produces a false stimulation. You see him going to the dope shop every week or two for a measure of his dope and he thinks he is paying for it, but he isn't. The chief paying will come after a while, when the ruin of his system is complete and the drug habit has a firm hold on him—then he will suffer with all kinds of complaints and nothing will give him relief—that's the time the drug superstition gets its full pay—another man doomed to end his days a WRECK. All the foulest products of earth's decomposing disease matter are raked over to make the drugs; all the poisonous plants and nasty insects of disease infested lands are gathered for their POISON and the poison is fed to a human being simply because he is weak or has some other poison in his system. A fine practice, isn't it, and eminently respectable, no matter where the Man ends? BUT THE MAN WHO THINKS FOR HIMSELF will think well before he swallows some mysterious mixture—He wants to know why he is taking it and what he is taking it for, and HOW IT IS GOING TO BENEFIT HIM—We want to talk to that man, to give or send him our free book, which tells HOW to get strong and vigorous and HEALTHY without a drop of medicine.

"The word health now means a normal supply of electricity in the body, and the word disease means an insufficiency of that power."

The basis of energy in the human body is Electricity. All the organs, every function of the body and the health of the individual depend upon the Electricity possessed by the nerves, and pain, weakness, despondency, lost energy and ambition denote a lack of it. If the stomach fails to digest the food that is given it, if the nerves are weak, kidneys inactive or any organ fails to do its work, it can be restored to perfect health by the proper use of it.

The greatest proof of the value of Electricity and how it is replacing drugs for a weak, broken-down system, is the fact that physicians who a few years ago scoffed at the idea of Electricity as a cure, are today applying it in preference to drugs. The results of experiments conducted by the greatest scientists in the country show that the action of the organs, the basis of life in the body, is Electricity, and where it has been wasted by overwork, indiscretions of disease, it can be replaced by the proper application.

People who have squandered fortunes in search of health and have tried every medium known, have in the end been willing to consider what the electric theory of disease could do for them. No sooner do we explain it to them than they are astonished at the simplicity and the directness of our treatment.

They wonder that it has never occurred to them before that disease was but the result of the disturbance and derangement of the vital force. That the only way to restore an organ of the body to healthy action is to bring to that organ the electro nervous force that shall cause it to discharge its functions without permitting stagnation, decay and consequent death.

Activity is the law of life.

Our Electric Vitaliz dry cell body battery or electric belt restores strength and health in a natural way. Call or write for our free book explaining how and why it cures. It's written for thinking men—men who want to know what they are getting and that it is correct.

VITALIZ is the most powerful and perfect working appliance of this order made and requires no nasty vinegar or acids like old style belts need—Vitaliz produces a high-grade power that cannot be obtained in common belts, so don't think all belts alike and be imposed upon by getting a cheap chain of JUNK, as sold all over town, and everywhere and called "electric belt." You can get them anywhere, but they are useless and weak.

No nasty vinegar or poisonous and dangerous acids need be used on our batteries, they are always ready for use. Our own special belt batteries—no inconvenience, and for nearly a decade, refuse to turn over his books, but the Treasurer and Clerk followed the same course. President Walton explained to the Mayor that the officials had requested the board to provide for expert auditing in order that their settlements might be beyond dispute. Though the contract was not executed until yesterday, Phipps has been at work nearly two weeks.

SAN PEDRO IN.

TREASURER "COMES THROUGH."

Treasurer J. A. Weldt, while he did not turn over his books to City Treasurer Hance (in fact, Hance did not demand them,) made a settlement with the city by giving his check to Hance for $12,768.77. He explained that after the books are audited and the exact amount of settlement due is ascertained he will expect the City Treasurer to rebate to him any overpayment, or he will make up any deficiency that may be shown. Capt. Hance was satisfied with the agreement.

If the San Pedro books are to be retained for a long period, it is not known what the city officials will do about reports of discrepancies they have received, and which have agitated official circles. Yesterday the secret service men were still on guard, and will remain at their post. Just who they are keeping under surveillance is pretty well known now, but the name is not spoken openly.

Clerk Mason, Treasurer Weldt and Tax Collector Baker say they cannot understand the rumors of irregularity, and assert that so far as each is concerned they are baseless.

"My books are as straight as a string," said Baker, "and the auditing of them will show every penny."

Baker turned over no money to Tax Collector Johnson, but did deliver the official stamps and office equipment.

Special arrangements have been made to put a night watchman temporarily in the San Pedro City Hall, for a time, at least.

SCHEME TO TEST LAW?

In connection with the refusal of the officials to turn over their books was a report that by this means it was hoped Los Angeles would institute mandamus proceedings to obtain them. This would bring into court the whole question of the validity of the consolidation law. Some thought this a better explanation of the situation than the story of irregularities. But in the absence of City Attorney Hewitt none of the Los Angeles officials will act. Hewitt expects to be home Tuesday, when the situation may be cleared.

Wilmington's Treasurer was not as well prepared for a settlement as the Treasurer at San Pedro, and he made only a partial payment—$21,000. The settlement was conducted by E. W. Taylor, cashier in Treasurer Hance's office, and will be completed tomorrow, when the books will be brought to the City Hall.

GOVERNMENTAL CHANGE.

The most spectacular evidence to San Pedro's people that the new régime was at hand was when the Chief of Police, with a captain, acting sergeant and seven patrolmen left a trolley car and marched as an escort for the Mayor to the City Hall at the port. Their coming was cheered. Little time was lost. The Mayor called all the department heads to the assembly room and sent for the San Pedro officials. Some of them came. President Walton took a seat at the Mayor's side just before the fire bell on the top of the hose tower struck the hour. In the assembly room, under its big unfinished dome, stood about 150 men, wondering just how government passes from the old to the new.

At the last stroke President Walton said: "As president of the Board of Trustees of San Pedro I take pleasure in turning over the city government in all its departments and all its archives to the Mayor of Los Angeles."

The Mayor accepted in similar formal language and called on the heads of departments to at once go and take possession of their respective offices. Then he added an unofficial word: "The people of Los Angeles have the kindliest feeling for the people of San Pedro, and we expect to do you good, to help you make a better city, and aid your prosperity and growth in population. We are going to give you better fire protection, better police and health administration, and our engineers are going to devise plans for improvements of both city and harbor. We are going to carry out every promise we have made, which means that we will ask the people to vote $3,000,000 in bonds for harbor work.

"Your prosperity is our prosperity, and we want to be good friends, pulling together to a common end."

He explained that, as much as the city would like to continue the members of the police force in office, the civil service and pension laws prevent, but if any of San Pedro's policemen can qualify, they will be given preference.

After the meeting in the assembly room E. D. Seward received the following telegram from City Attorney Hewitt, dated at Sacramento:

"Final step in effecting consolidation taken this morning when certificates filed here. Congratulations to people of San Pedro, now a part of city of Greater Los Angeles. Let us all rejoice."

FEW APPOINTMENTS.

Few appointments of deputies were made. City Clerk Lelande has named E. D. Seward, secretary of the San Pedro Consolidation Committee, as deputy city clerk. Other appointments will not be made until next week, except that of J. C. Baly, captain of the fire department, which the chief said yesterday, will be made. Baly will present a large petition to the fire commission at its next meeting, asking his appointment.

The ceremony at Wilmington was informal. The official party there included President Hubbard and Gen. Chaffee of the Board of Public Works; Assistant City Attorney Schenk, E. B. Lovie of the clerk's office, and others. One of the acts of the board was to name Erhardt Opp, former chairman of the Wilmington board, superintendent of dredging at $5 per diem, until the work is completed.

Charles W. Peters, undersheriff of Cook County, Illinois, is at the Lankershim. He is accompanied by Mrs. Peters, Mrs. M. D. Berlitz of New York, and W. T. Davies of Chicago.

WHOSE?

CALIFORNIA'S FAMED LARK AND THE CHICKS SHE LIKES.

BY MARY A. CLARKE COLQUHOUN.

"SEVEN Grecian cities strove for Homer, dead." Almost an equal number of towns in the San Gabriel Valley have claimed the honor of being the residence of Ellen Beach Yaw.

As a matter of fact, Miss Yaw owned no property in California until just before her departure for Europe in the summer of 1908. At that time she purchased a fine orange grove in Covina, pleasantly situated at the corner of San Bernardino and Lark Ellen* avenues. "When I return to California," said Miss Yaw at that time, "I shall build a bungalow amid my orange trees." Today, in her own house, commanding a magnificent view of the mountains, she is graciously and hospitably at home to her neighbors and friends.

It is not of Ellen Beach Yaw the artist that I shall speak; but rather of Ellen Beach Yaw Goldthwaite, the devoted daughter and sister, the admiring wife, and the altogether charming woman, with whom I had the asure of chatting for an hour one rning recently.

had called first on Mr. Goldthwaite, husband and business manager, to ain permission for the interview. he bowed me out of his office, he , "You will find Miss Yaw very ple, as simple—why as simple as are yourself."

nd so, indeed, I did find her, from moment when she herself met me the door to the moment when untied my horse and helped me o my carriage.

SHE WAS.

lmost the first question I asked r we had settled down to the busi- s in hand was, "Were you a musi- prodigy?"

o modest, so unassuming, did Miss y appear to me that I confess I ected to hear a laughing denial of precocity. I was therefore genu- y startled to hear her unhesitat- ly reply, "Yes, I was."

ut modesty is of two kinds. There the kind which always leads its essor to depreciate himself and his ievements. There is the truer kind ch enables one to judge himself as would judge another. It does not him to say, as Wordsworth said, ople ought to like it," merely be- e he has produced a thing; nor it lead him for the same reason underestimate it.

iss Yaw proceeded to prove her as- ion by relating how, at the age she attended an evangelistic meet- in the Methodist Episcopal church er home town, and how the music- director called her to the platform had her sing the verses of a n while the audience joined in the rus. "I often had to spell the words " she said, or to be prompted by director, but the director was sed with my efforts, and wanted to attend every meeting."

e little Ellen was a genuine child nature, and she loved to sing out loors. Often from a high hill near home her singing could be heard a distance of three miles. From earliest years she was fond of im- ising, also.

e widowed mother had no means which to give a child a musical ation, but the Swedish teacher, . Torpadie, began her instruction, afterward took her to Europe for y. On her return she made a suc- ful concert tour of the United es, and was able to repay what e. Torpadie had expended upon ter, Miss Yaw studied grand a in Paris with Mme. Marchesi, ing in many countries and appear- before many crowned heads of the World.

t the success most dear to the t of this genuine American young an was that which she achieved n she made her operatic début at Metropolitan Operahouse in New City, March 31, 1908. With the honest simplicity which led her roclaim herself a prodigy, Miss spoke of her "great success" as t gratifying;" and, with charm- naivete, she added that this début rred on the first anniversary of marriage, and that she wore or- blossoms.

THE "COWBOY LAWYER."

s Yaw's marriage with Vere thwaite, "the cowboy-author- er," was the culmination of a ance which began eight years be- on an Atlantic steamer.

e career of Mr. Goldthwaite is in sufficiently interesting aside his connection with so noted a an.

s father is a prosperous physician oston, his mother was a member e Armour family of Chicago. His ernal grandfather was a missionary e Indians in the Middle West, and s there that his father and moth- arried. When "Vere" was 2 years his father went to Boston, expect- soon to send for his wife and boy. afterward, the wife and mother and the child remained with his dfather.

e strict life of the missionary fam- evolted the boy. He was never or dissipated, but his independent re rebelled against all discipline, he ran away to become a cowboy.

His father, hearing of this, wrote, urging the young man to come to him, but Vere realized his deficiencies in education and culture, and refused. When he was about 21 he fell in love with a good girl, who inspired him with a desire for better things, and he wrote his father that he was going East for an education. His father was pleased and, ignorant of the independent nature of the son he had not seen since he was a boy, offered money. The offer was refused, for the young man had sufficient money to take him to Boston.

For a time he lived with his father, but he grew tired of the formality of a large establishment, and left the house unceremoniously. A few days later the courtly physician, in his shining carriage drawn by horses with gold-trimmed harness, passed his son working with pick and shovel on the railroad.

The father admitted that there is no disgrace in manual labor, but he again urged the son to return home. Vere promised to spend the next Sunday with him, but after dinner that Sunday his father again offended his pride by offering him a check for $500 with which to pursue his education. So the young man went back to his work for the railroad, where he soon rose to the position of superintendent with a thousand men under him.

Through his own exertions he was enabled to finish a college course and a law course, and afterward to take a trip abroad. It was while returning from Europe that this big, bluff, hearty man met the sweet, dainty, charming bit of femininity with whom he promptly fell in love, and whom he subsequently won for his wife.

"I do not see how I ever got along before Mr. Goldthwaite became my manager," said Miss Yaw. "He saves me all sorts of trouble, and we get along most beautifully together." But while Mr. Goldthwaite manages his wife's public matters, he laughingly acknowledged to me in our interview that in private she manages him "in her own sweet way."

Mr. Goldthwaite told me some of the amusing things that were said about Miss Yaw's name when she first appeared before the public. One was that the name was a nom-de-plume, the letters standing for the words, Young American Woman. But the name is genuine. It was originally spelled "Ghau," and Miss Yaw is proud of her Huguenot descent.

LIKES FEEDING CHICKS.

Miss Yaw is simple and domestic in her tastes. She is fond of outdoor life, and her one naughtiness as a child was running away to the woods and hills. She admires dogs and horses, and enjoys feeding the chickens. In fact, the simple life of a ranch in Southern California appeals strongly to her, and here she returns every summer for rest and to be with her aged mother, between whom and herself there exists a most tender, beautiful affection.

In the early summer of 1908 Miss Yaw appeared in a benefit concert in Los Angeles, her last appearance before an extended tour abroad. For one of her encores she sang "Suanee Ribber," and I could but feel that every word of the touching melody came from her heart. I said as much to her in the railway station soon after, and she appeared pleased that her object in singing that particular song should have been recognized by "one of the home folks," as she calls her neighbors for miles around.

English, German, French and Italian are the languages in which Miss Yaw sings. She likes English because it is her own language, and Italian because of its musical quality. Her Italian pronunciation is so perfect that in Italy she has been taken for a native of the country. She is thoroughly American, however, and likes to appear before an American audience, though she acknowledges that Americans are less demonstrative, less enthusiastic in their expressions of appreciation than Europeans.

This frail little woman is full of life and ambition herself, and she is full of sympathy with other people who are ambitious, and who have not had the advantages she has enjoyed. Her "Talks to Girls Who Want to Sing" in the Delineator were written to show girls who cannot afford to pay for expensive instruction how they may cultivate their own voices so that they may become concert or opera singers, or teachers. "Books on these subjects," she said to me, "are too technical for those who have had no musical education. I strive to write so simply that any child of 12 can understand."

These "Talks" also include advice to girls who wish to go abroad for study as to the way in which to spend a limited amount of money to the best advantage.

THE LETTER WRITERS.

The printed talks bring Miss Yaw many letters of inquiry, all of which she answers with painstaking care. Though addressed to girls, the articles sometimes attract the attention of men "who wish to sing." Mr. Goldthwaite told me of a letter which had particularly pleased his wife because its writer said he wrote to her feeling that she would tell him honestly whether or not there was hope that he might become a singer.

And the writer of that letter I

Yaw's prominent characteristics, for with all her daintiness, her grace, her inimitable charm and "her manner intensely feminine and appealing," there is an honesty, an earnestness, a sincerity of purpose, a lofty, conscientious outlook upon life (due, perhaps, to her Huguenot ancestry) which shows that there are some natures which cannot be spoiled.

One of the many instances of the generous way in which she consecrates her art to charitable purposes is shown by the fact that on Monday night, August 30, at her home, Miss Yaw will hold a lawn fete at which she will give a musical programme. The proceeds are for the benefit of the "King's Daughters" Day Nursery of Los Angeles, and Miss Yaw thus gives expression also to a sisterly affection.

When a few weeks ago she returned unexpectedly from Vienna, where she had filled a winter's engagement, she arrived just in time to attend the funeral of her brother, Charles Yaw, of whose sudden death she had no knowledge. This day nursery was dear to the heart of this brother; and so sympathy for the unfortunate, combined with sisterly love, make this occasion a sacred duty and a real pleasure to the singer.

Southern California is proud of her song bird, watches her flittings with interest, is always glad to welcome her back to the home nest, and is especially glad that now the nest has become permanent.

San Luis Obispo County Representatives Discuss Values With State Board of Equalization.

Values in San Luis Obispo county were discussed before the State Board of Equalization yesterday. The representatives of the county expressed the hope that there would be a reduction instead of an increase in the assessment.

John H. Hollister, County Assessor, was present, and C. O. King and C. T. Greenfield were witnesses to valuations. George E. Van Gordon and F. W. Vetterline, Supervisors, were also present.

In comparing values in San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties, it was shown that since 1905 the assessment in the former county had increased 14 per cent. and in the latter 33 per cent. The average assessment on farm lands in San Luis Obispo county was found to be $5.08 an acre and that of Santa Barbara $8.49. This was explained by the difference in topography and climatic conditions.

WHY WOMEN ADMIRE STRONG MEN

All women worship physical strength. They like to look on men as strong, capable beings, afraid of nothing.—Beatrice Fairfax in Boston "American."

A woman has no use for a weak man. She admires that "afraid of nothing" spirit which a weak man lacks; that spirit of ambition which makes a man get up and hustle. She likes the strong man because he is a protection; he has strength, ambition, vim and is not afraid of work. His eyes are bright, his gait is full of energy, his speech is positive. The strong man is the real man. Would you like to have your friends point to you and say: "There goes a strong man!" Do you not wish your eyes to be so bright, your step so firm and your form so erect that men and women will admire you and remark at your manly bearing? These are the thoughts uppermost in the minds of modern men—physical and mental perfection, strength and power.

Who does not like to be strong, to feel that he is equal in strength to any man of his age? You can be if you will obey the appeal here made to you?

PLANNING EXPOSITION.

San Diego Talking of Holding Big Fair to Celebrate Opening of Panama Canal.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 28.—Definite plans for holding an exposition in San Diego to commemorate the completion of the Panama Canal are being made by the Chamber of Commerce.

It is proposed to issue bonds and erect buildings suitable for a world's fair on the plan of the Portland and Seattle expositions. The site proposed is City Park. It is expected that the exposition will be held in 1915. The formation of a stock company to launch the enterprise will begin at once, under the auspices of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

LOSES DIAMONDS.

Mrs. L. Deitrich, a tourist of Denver, Colo., reports to the police the loss of a valuable sunburst, valued at $1000. The piece of jewelry contains a large diamond set surrounded by seventy-two pearls. She carried the jewel in a small handbag, and while on the street yesterday she says she either dropped this bag or else it was

Point for four days, the yacht Alpha returned to San Diego yesterday. The small boat was manned by Philip Thearle, Hugh Thearle and Jack Andrews. They tried to reach Los Angeles, leaving here August 19, but they could get no farther than the Point. A searching party was ready to start out from here, as no word had been received from the yachtsmen, and relatives were anxious as to their safety.

DEAL IN STOCK.

The transfer of 1666 shares of the stock of the Home Telephone Company of San Diego, consummated yesterday, involves an $80,000 transaction. The stock sold was that represented by F. F. Graves and N. W. Harris of Chicago. The purchasers were Judson Bens and Horace B. Day of this city. The entire stock of the company is now controlled by San Diego capitalists.

Steals Looking Glass.

David Russell narrowly escaped a long term in the workhouse yesterday, when he was found guilty of stealing a mirror by Justice Williams. The magistrate decided to give him one more chance, and suspended the execution of a sentence of 100 days during his good behavior.

The mirror was found in a pile of lumber in the rear of the Central Department Store building. It was identified as having been taken from that establishment.

Suspecting that the thief planned to return after nightfall to get his loot, an officer secreted himself near by. Russell appeared, uncovered the mirror, and started away with it. The policeman then took him in custody.

Hurls Hammer Handle.

Jacob Zuber pleaded guilty before Justice Williams yesterday to a charge of assaulting Andrew Kenworthy with a hammer handle. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

Zuber is a foreman for the Pacific Electric. The gang he was bossing tore up the street at Sixth and Main streets. Kenworthy came along with an electric truck and could not get by. He had some words with the foreman, and the fight followed.

Fights for Job.

Angry because he had not been given the position promised him by an employment agent, William Leonard created a disturbance in East First street yesterday. He was taken to the City Jail and will be charged with disturbing the peace before Justice Frederickson tomorrow.

Mercy for Negro.

W. M. Miles, a negro, who was found guilty Friday of disturbing the peace, made a successful application to Justice Williams for probation yesterday. The magistrate suspended the passage of sentence for ninety days. If Miles reports to the probation officer and is on his good behavior during that time he will escape a fine or term in jail.

Police Court Notes.

Frank Kelly and H. Riley were fined $25 each by Justice Chambers yesterday for having revolvers in their possession as they strolled about Friday night.

The monotony of Police Court proceedings was broken yesterday when Mrs. E. H. Chapin was arraigned on a charge of violating the speed ordinance. She pleaded guilty and was fined $25. The motor police testified that Mrs. Chapin was gaily bowling along West Washington street when they stopped her and told her she was going too fast.

Harold Townsend, alias Scott, was held for trial in the Superior Court on acharge of passing a fictitious check for $15 by Justice Williams yesterday. His bail was fixed at $1500.

The question has been asked whether taxes would be increased by annexation. Those in favor of it state that the 60 cents for road improvement would be cut off, as well as the extra taxes for high schools; that water rates would be reduced from $1.75 or $1.50, and that insurance rates would be lower.

It is also argued that through annexation would come better streets, a sewage system and many other ad-

FUNCTION AT AUDITORIUM.

SHUBERTS ENTER, WITH MR. BEHYMER AS SPONSOR.

Syndicate Opponents Promise Busy Season, Under Well-Known Manager's Direction—C. William Kolb's Impressions of Summer Graft in the Metropolis.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

There will be a function at the Auditorium on Tuesday evening.

The coming of the Shuberts promises many things. All dramatic enterprises worth anything are business enterprises, with a primary object of making money for the promoters, and such mercenary epithets as have been hurled by the anti-syndicates at the syndicate have been thrown straight back by that belligerent body; but at any rate, the Shuberts are coming in to establish a name, and they will therefore give—for a period at least—of the best in their power. Whatever may happen in the future, the fight is earnest for the present moment, and there is a particularly pretty struggle for Pacific Coast prestige. In the opinion of the writer, the Shuberts have carried their philanthropic pronunciamenti a little past the point of seriousness, but the reality of the clash of the moment between the two biggest forces of the theatrical world will compel both parties—in the common but expressive street phrase—to really "deliver the goods."

The Shuberts could not have been more fortunate in their selection of a local representative, for L. E. Behymer has nursed the varying musical fortunes of Southern California for so many years that he has gained the respect, and to a degree the genuine personal regard, of practically every patron of the arts in Los Angeles.

Mr. Behymer is without doubt the champion "box-office man" of the southwestern theatrical fraternity, and not a little satisfaction has already been expressed that he once more has a box office of his own.

The orchestra, which belongs more to the artistic than to the business side of a theater, will be captained by E. C. Kammermeyer, whose musical accomplishments in Southern California for a period of ten years make further comment superfluous.

When shows come from Denver to Los Angeles, openings will be on Tuesday, and Monday will be utilized, wherever possible, for musical attractions under the manager's direction. Companies from San Francisco will be enabled to reach here for a Monday night opening.

This will be a "two weeks stand," for the most part. The early line-up is formidable. After two weeks of "Going Some," comes "The Witching Hour," "The Great John Ganton," Corinne in "Mlle. Mischief," Maxine Elliott in two weeks of her repertoire, and the Sothern-Marlowe combination for an equal period.

"Please say," says Manager Behymer, "that the Auditorium will be run first, last and all the time for the accommodation of its patrons. Patrons will be first, house and company second, and the managerial end third."

The durability of the Shubert line of attractions on this coast is something that may not be accurately foretold. The trust buckers say that they will be enabled to supply at least twenty weeks of good booking—and for the diversion of amustment lovers here it is to be hoped that they can do so.

Some sort of squabble has arisen in Denver, and again in Salt Lake, and both these towns seem to feel that the Shuberts will not be able to supply more than half a dozen good attractions each season.

Be that as it may—they will begin here this week, and the bookings in Manager Behymer's hands will take care of him for two or three months at least.

And after that—we shall see.

C. William Kolb has been having some interesting experiences in summer New York—which he says is vastly different from winter New York.

"I am writing about New York," he says in a letter to the dramatic editor of The Times, "but I had to wait until I got to Chicago to do it.

"Summer New York is mostly an aggregation of electric signs, warm policemen, bake-oven subways, restaurants and actors—most of the latter looking or waiting for jobs.

"And I am safe in saying that there are a great many things going on in summer New York that neither Mr. or Mrs. New York know anything about.

"For instance, the 'taxis.' The clocks upon the New York taxicabs are faster than the Twentieth Century Limited. Perhaps it's the heat that makes them run that way. There's no use trying to view the scenery. This portentious dial stares you right in the face, as you sit in the seat, and works with a perfect and hypnotic fascination.

"Personally, I'll never ask a taxicab to wait for me again. I had one stopped a few minutes while Mrs. Kolb did some shopping, and when we came out, he (meaning the boy who always knows the longest way to any given point) had the hind wheels jacked up and the engine running full speed. I believe he told me he had to do this to keep the bearings from rusting in the humid atmosphere.

"The electric signs are more beautiful than ever. They are the chief scenic feature of summer Manhattan.

"The summer subway is fine for those who can carry a private tank of oxygen, but I prefer the Fifth-avenue 'yap wagons,' as the familiar 'bus line is now termed. The atmosphere is about the same, but it changes constantly. In the subway you have to enjoy from one end of the ride to the other the original four cubic inches that you carried down with you at the start. The package I had didn't get so very stale, but it did get overheated, and I was never able to use it again.

"The summer restaurant proprietor, perhaps lacking the steady business of winter metropolitanism, misses no chance to get all you have. You don't have to hand your hat to the check boy on entering; he simpy grabs it—but it doesn't come back the same way. Formerly the menus were printed in French, but when even the actors began to get onto that language they changed. Most of the things are now set down in a cross between Yiddish and Lapiander, and in consequence the head waiter is of course compelled to do your ordering for you. I was surprised at his tastes, too. He didn't order a single cheap dish. But after all, I had a good joke on the check boy. I didn't even ask him for my hat. I let him hold it—while I went home after more money.

"After this bon-ton experience I slouched into one of the 'Beef-steak John' places. When the steak came around, I noticed a roach on it. I called the waiter's attention, in a somewhat indignant manner.

"'Beg pardon,' he said, politely; 'that belongs over here,' and he put it in the soup.

"I saw Jeffries and had a chat with him before he sailed. He is in splendid form."

Kolb and Dill will open their season here next Sunday, in "Dream City," by Victor Herbert and Edgar Smith. "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer," will also be played here.

The principals of the new Kolb and Dill company include Sydney de Grey, Carlton Chase, Dick Stanton, Morris MacGuire, Albert Duncan, Doris Wilson, Adelaide Harland, Maybelle Baker, Olga Stech and a chorus of thirty-six girls and twelve men.

Miss Thais Magrane, the new leading actress of the Belasco Theater company, is a cousin of Eugene Thais Lawton, who will be remembered as heading that organization two or three seasons ago.

Miss Magrane has had varied stage experiences, including tours with the companies of Otis Skinner and James O'Neill, and leading stock work in Providence, Buffalo, Boston, St. Louis and Chicago.

THE LOCAL WEEK.

"Going Some," a farce-comedy by Paul Armstrong and Rex Beach, wil be the vehicle serving to introduce the Shuberts as lessees of the Auditorium, on Tuesday night.

J. Wallingford Speed, a "head yeller" as he is known among the 'varsity rooters, visits the Flying Heart ranch in New Mexico, accompanied by his trainer. In order to strengthen his cause with a particular young lady, he drops the hint that he is a raw-meat-eating running champion. As it happens, the Flying Heart busters have just lost their wager, and the only phonograph for hundreds of miles around, in a foot-race with the fastest representative of the Centipede ranch. They compel Speed to train, and that individual nearly dies of heart-failure, for, as may be imagined, he is no runner at all.

Speed finds out that the real 'varsity champion is due to pass through the ranch on the day set for the race. He trains secretly, hoping to ring in this dark horse at the last minute. Bu the champion arrives—on crutches.

The complications now come thick and fast, and the fun is said to b of accompanying directness and vigor.

The Belasco Theater production i used, and the company is said to b of worthy caliber.

"Paid in Full," Eugene Walter' now famous play of "life in a Harlem flat," will return to the Mason Operahouse for a week's engagement commencing tomorrow night.

The very human story of the temptation and fall of the $18 a week cler the loyalty of his wife, and subsequent events, is too well known t need repetition.

The romance of its author's struggle and poverty, ending with the produ tion of the piece on the night of De cember 23, in Montreal, by Wagenha and Kemper, is also contempora dramatic history.

The play did not reach the Ast Theater, New York, until the follo ing February, and it ran there unt August 15, 1908. On that date it mov to Weber's Theater and remained un November 21.

Company after company was th organized, and altogether 2012 perfor ances of the play have been give and it is estimated that more th 2,500,000 persons have attended the "Paid in Full" has so far made for i managers nearly a quarter of a m lion, while the author has reaped a other, though smaller, fortune in ro alties.

The cast here will include Sa Perry, Rose Snyder, Catherine Ta man, Louis Morrell, Charles Rieg Ned Finley and Allen Atwell.

The first play of a man who, up to he time of its production, was best known as a poet, "The Great Divide" proved perhaps the most markedly successful play offering of its year. Jpon its initial presenation it was ound to be distinctively American, intensely interesting and finely written. Moreover, eastern cities, with one accord, declared its characters to be ed-blooded men and women, not mere lay puppets.

The story is in essentials an American version of the tale of Ingomar and arthenia.

The play provides ample opportunities for picturesque staging, and Manager Oliver Morosco promises a scenic roduction that shall be worthy.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

Ellen Beach Yaw-Goldthwaite will give an interesting musicale at her Covina home tomorrow evening for the benefit of the Kings' Daughters' Day Nursery.

The affair will be a moonlight fete, with the programme upon the spacious veranda of the singer's home. A very excellent list of numbers will be presented, and there will be a varied list of enjoyable features.

An hour's ride on the Pacific Electric trains will take one to "Lark Ellen" station, which is directly at the corner of the Way ranch.

An interesting programme has been arranged for the first concert of the local Center of the American Music Society. It will be given, probably, during the latter part of October, under the direction of Harley Hamilton.

The programme includes numbers only by living American musicians, and the names appearing upon the programme are William J. McCoy, Frederick Stevenson, Arthur Farwell, Carl Bush, F. Gilbert and Charles Hadley.

Mr. Stevenson will conduct his own number, "Salutation of the Dawn."

Moore's band, at Eastlake today, will present a programme including Martorell's "La France" waltz, three excerpts from a Lacombe suite, an Ellenberg Morceau, Mendelssohn's "Military" overture, a selection from Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," and Lange's "Flower Song."

The Columbia Phonograph Company has just issued four very fine records by Jacques Thibault, the French violinist. Thibault is a player of faultless technique, warm and brilliant tone and fine temperament. And the records are well made.

WULLNER'S ART.

Great German Song Interpreter Gives His Original Views on the Lied and Its Values.

Dr. Wullner recently said to a representative of the New York Evening Post:

"I cannot regard the lied from a merely musical point of view; it means more to me than an aria, a purely vocal piece. A lied must always seem like the expression of a profound, soulful, personal feeling. The hearer must get the impression that the person who sings this or that song at this special moment sings it not because he wants to do so or wishes to please others, but because he must, because he cannot do otherwise, but must express himself, must give vent to his feelings. That alone is to me true lyric art. Thus the mood (often also the content) of every song becomes associated with some actual occurrence in the singer's own life. In this way the lied becomes an improvisation; it is, as it were, born anew each time it is sung. To reach that result, to create the song over again, each time from within—that is what I try to do. It is self-evident that in this procedure the tonal musical form must not be in the least neglected—for the form is here often the soul!

"This is the manner in which I have been endeavoring these last thirteen or fourteen years to sing German lieder. At the beginning, I admit, I not seldom broke the form, which I realized later. But, perhaps, that also had to be as it was. To this day some of my opponents find my method of utterance 'theatrical,' nay, even 'decadent'—I cannot judge that, of course. At any rate, I had not in the first years gained such control of vocal technique as I have now. I aimed only at expression, regardless of tone, and thus there was some basis to the report that I was a 'singer without a voice'—one who 'declaims and speaks' rather than sings. This label will probably always cling to me more or less. But I must say that I have subjected the tone, too, from year to year to a more and more severe criticism, and have labored industriously to acquire technical facility in tone-emission. I have endeavored to save and to develop whatever of tonal quality was to be got out of my no longer young and often-abused throat.

Art and Artists.

Nature.

For nature then
(The coarser pleasures of my boyish days,
And their glad animal movements all gone by,)
To me was all in all. I cannot paint
What then I was. The sounding cataract
Haunted me like a passion; the tall rock,
The mountain, and the deep and gloomy wood,
Their colors and their forms, were then to me
An appetite; a feeling, and a love,
That had no need of a remoter charm,
By thought supplied, nor any interest
Unborrowed from the eye.

Sculptures by Julia Bracken Wendt.

Julia Bracken Wendt, the well-known sculptor, has returned from Chicago to her Sichel-street studio, with renewed enthusiasm for her work and with big plans for the future.

While in the Windy City she executed two portrait busts and one portrait relief. She left a number of commissions which she will fill on her next trip to Chicago. Her stay in the East had been protracted beyond the limits originally set, and California's summer called her westward.

The portrait orders which she filled are busts of the two small daughters of John Oliver of Highland Park, Ill., and a relief of Mr. Oliver.

Since her return to Los Angeles, Mrs. Wendt has been kept very busy. I strolled into her studio the other day and found her hard at work with hammer and nails, boxing a plaster cast of the bronze memorial tablet which she had just finished, and which, on its return from New York, where it is to be cast in bronze, will be placed in the Pasadena Hospital.

The simple and beautiful memorial tablet measures about 3 by 4 feet, and bears the inscription: "In Memoriam, Eldridge M. Fowler, September, MCMIX." The design, in low relief, shows a grove of firs which form a sort of frame for a low-lying, quiet landscape. Below the legend, "In Memoriam," and directly above Mr. Fowler's name, is a lighted taper in a laurel wreath. The whole work is executed with delicate feeling and fine simplicity.

Another recent piece of sculpture from Mrs. Wendt's hands is a unique design for a book plate, which shows a youth in blouse and toga guarding the entrance to an alcove of books. The young man, entirely ideal in conception, as no one posed for the figure, is finely modeled. The perspective, which shows a desk with an open book upon it, and beyond this semicircular shelves filled with books, is managed with great skill, the relief being very low.

The betrothal medallion, which we reproduce, the first and last that the sculptor ever heard of—and certainly the first that has ever come to my notice—was executed in gold for a New York man three years ago. He wished to commemorate his betrothal in some appropriate way, and this unique method suggested itself to him. The man and the woman are walking side by side toward the rising sun. The medallion has great decorative beauty of line, and both the figures are exquisitely modeled.

The fine sketch for the Carnegie life-saving medal has interest through its own strength and sentiment, and also because the young son of Frederick Freer, the painter who died in Chicago so recently, posed for the male figure. The young hero, splendid virile in every bone and muscle, has "the front of Jove himself."

It will be seen that Julia Bracken Wendt is a woman of unusual ideas as well as unusual talents. Our streets and our public buildings are woefully lacking in that beauty which plastic art alone can give them. Yet our needs could be supplied at a moment's notice, for we have a few excellent sculptors in Los Angeles, among whom Mrs. Wendt takes high rank. It would be wise to set them to work before they are driven to seek a more appreciative public.

Art in Modern Japan.

If the great Kano masters had been taught to paint in European fashion they would have been none the less great, because of the difference of technique. The artistic sense is not entirely governed by technique, although it is influenced thereby. Because the Japanese student today copies figure in the life-class with charcoal or lead pencil, or draws landscape direct from nature in oil colors upon canvas, while his father, with brush and Indian ink, was invited to express in a few lines his memory of a bird's flight, the growth of a flowering plant, or the wild tossing of the sea waves, it does not result that his artistic nature shall be stifled.

The future of art in Japan will depend on the development of the character of the people. Art is the expression of the life and the soul of a nation, and with a progressive race it must change and develop in proportion to the nature of that progression.

There is much that is admirable, much that is inimitable, in the old art of Japan, and no one could see the passing away of that art without feelings of the profoundest regret; and it is greatly to be desired in the artistic welfare of the nation, that, in grasping the methods of the West, it shall not entirely lose hold of those of its own which are so excellent—methods which have aided in rendering Japanese art a subject of admiration to all people for all time.—[International Studio.

ART NOTES.

J. F. Kanst has just concluded arrangements with Mrs. Herman Hall, curator of the New Gallery of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, to make an exhibition there early in November of the works of the best California painters. It will mean much to our artists to be well represented in Chicago, and they will no doubt respond with alacrity to an appeal for pictures to send. Mr. Kanst hopes to carry the exhibition onward to other eastern cities.

Three new canvases from the brush of John W. Nicoll have been added to the summer exhibition of pictures at the Steckel gallery. They are among Mr. Nicoll's best work, and are refined in feeling and delicate in color. Two of them are from Laguna Beach; the th at Montecito.

Tambour Clocks So Called From Their Drum-Like Shape

¶ To those who appreciate the uncommon, these Tambour clocks will strongly appeal. Being low, and wide of design, they are particularly appropriate for long mantels, and with a vase set at either end make a very effective decoration.

¶ They are of solid mahogany, cleverly carved in artistic patterns, and are set with either American or imported eight-day movements, with cathedral gongs. Their strike—hour and half hour—is very soft and mellow, and yet so penetrating that it can be heard in any part of the home. The fronts of the clocks are of bevel glass and the dials of porcelain. Some have visible and others invisible escapement. Prices, $12.00 to $65.00.

¶ We invite the attention of discriminating buyers to the extensive choosing and exceptional values our department of clocks affords.

Preparing for Removal

—A Clean Sweep—of every article of Furniture which was in our stock last Spring when we began this Removal Clearance; that was our program—and we're carrying it out to the letter. When we open our splendid new building on Broadway, we do not propose to show a single article from our previous Spring and Main street stocks. Everything must be new.

—The sales since this Removal Clearance began have been enormous—the buying his been heavy and steady, and our immense reserve warehouse stock is being rapidly and successfully reduced. Sample lines on our display floors are complete, however, for, whenever assortments have become broken we have filled in at once with new goods, which are included at the reduced prices.

—The opportunity, thus, for satisfactory selections and to secure specially noteworthy values becomes even more advantageous as the Clearance progresses. And when the splendid character of this furniture is considered—its reliable quality and excellence of style—it is easily apparent that no such inducements can be found elsewhere.

Hon. John Barrett a Diplomatist Whose Mission Is Always One of Conciliation.

BY JAMES B. MORROW.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Diplomatist, industrial ambassador, and a human bolt of affable and irrestrainable lightning, with countries for his pawns and patrons, and continents for his personal operations, would be a lexicographer's definition of John Barrett.

While other men can see only farms, factories, mines, mills, banks and railways, John Barrett, whose eyes are telescopic and presageful, looks over oceans and mountain ranges and comprehends whole races of peoples and both hemispheres.

The Orient—particularly China, Japan and the Philippines—needing cotton and other essential and gainful things, was large within his illimitable vision long before the United States, bound to the treadmill of the present and the home market, perceived its world-wide and waiting chances. John Barrett plays the music of materialism and nations are his notes. He is the poet of modernism, but he writes in dollars, pounds, yen, els and francs instead of words. An tist, his picture is a steaming and moking world with men at work. The ltruistic brother of the human race principle, he is entirely American d nationalistic in his achieving and alous performances.

CALL FOR JOHN BARRETT.

Unemotional and sternly practical, ihu Root is likewise imaginative, nstructive and synthetical. He beids the elements and in the chemtry and sorcery of his genius perades them to assemble. Like James Blaine, that other brilliant and ophetic Secretary of State, he inded Latin-America in the broad tlines of his thoughts and policies. sailed down one coast and up the her on an epoch-making and reconing mission. In Buenos Ayres he w a harbor full of ships, but he oked in vain for the flag of the ited States. Then he summoned hn Barrett, who, riding thirty-one ys on muleback through hills and ngles, made prompt answer to the der.

Other famous men had called John rrett. Twelve years before, Grover eveland had sent him on a state erd to Siam, remote and mysterious. McKinley's urging he had exined the Philippine question on the mp, from his native village in rmont to his home in Oregon. osevelt had dispatched him to Artina, Panama and Colombia, and each instance to meet a pressing or icate situation. Since 1906, twenty- nations agreeing, John Barrett, lomat and drummer, has been ditor of the International Bureau of American Republics. His peral story has the breeze and action a novel of romantic adventure.

Is hustle, in your case, an inherite or a habit?" I inquired.

ohn Barrett, tall, heavy-chested, p-voiced, and hearty, was unmisably embarrassed. Perhaps he had ught I meant to ask him someg professional and lofty—to cont the subtlety and treachery of leyrand, for instance, with the inrity, candor and sagacity of Benin Franklin. Well," he said, sitting down again catching at his breath, "I should that it was the natural developnt of conditions. Realizing that I to hustle, I attempted to adjust elf to circumstances."

It is only fair that I should tell why I had to do so much for my-" John Barrett went on to say. father was an old-fashioned New land gentleman—an alumnus of tmouth, who read Hebrew, Greek, French as a daily entertainment. gfellow, Whittier, Lowell, Bryant Holmes were guests at our house. father was one of the bulwarks of fton. STARTS FOR THE COAST.

was not surprised, therefore, when informed me that he couldn't give me any money for a college education. But I was determined to maintain the Barrett standard. During two years at the academy, where I paid my way by all sorts of shifts, and four years at college, six in all, I hardly had time to draw a long breath. I actually hadn't a single day to myself. Law came into my plans while a senior at Dartmouth. I would teach for a year and accumulate some working capital. One day a friend who had been in the class ahead of me telegraphed from California. 'If you want a place as teacher of English at Hopkins Academy, Oakland,' he said, 'at $700 a year and board start immediately.'

"I had never been west of Lake Champlain. To me California sounded and seemed like a foreign land. I consulted my father and mother and in twenty-four hours was making a bee-line for the Rocky Mountains. I arrived at the Sixteenth-street station in Oakland on August 16, 1889, with $16 in my pocket. That single file of sixteens has been in my memory ever since.

"From the window of my room in the academy I looked across the bay to San Francisco, seeing its smoke by day and its lights by night. Men and things were moving rapidly on the shores of the Pacific.

"School teaching would have been conventional and satisfactory back in Vermont, amid its hill farms and drowsy villages. But California was booming with life, and I wanted to get into the middle of the energy, noise, and motion. I visited the editorial rooms of San Francisco, looking for a reporter's position. A man who had relatives in Grafton published what he called the Yearly Statistician, an authority, up and down the Coast on all matters of business. He heard of me, as I heard of him. We came together and made a bargain, and thus I got started in journalism. Afterward, I worked on the Chronicle, Call and Examiner, writing for the local columns.

OFF FOR THE NORTHWEST.

"Then a rush began toward the Northwest. The Puget Sound country was to be the future center of civilization. My imagination was captivated by the opportunity of getting into an infant development and of watching it and helping it expand until it became the marvel of all creation. I joyfully took passage for the North, landing at Astoria, in Oregon, at the mouth of the Columbia River. But Astoria was a brook, and De Soto was looking for something swift and bigger. At Seattle I found employment on a newspaper, and wrote a slashing boom article. Tacoma read it, and sent for me. I was a boom specialist in Tacoma, geared to the limit, which meant about two columns a day of tremendous facts and knock-down arguments.

"A man in Portland printed a Republican newspaper in the morning and a Democratic organ in the afternoon. So I returned to Oregon at his solicitation. I wrote everything, including editorials, for the evening edition. At first, I had no definite political convictions, although I had been brought up as a Republican. But I got interested in the men who ran the Democratic party in Portland, because they were good fellows. Moreover, I was deeply concerned in the success of the paper that gave me vent as well as employment.

"Presently I looked across the Pacific and into the Orient and began writing about American commercial opportunities in that direction. 'Send ministers and consuls to China and Japan,' I argued, 'who know California, Washington and Oregon.' After Mr. Cleveland came to the Presidency, in 1893, a suggestion was made that I be appointed Consul-General to Yokohama. My ambition, however, was to stay in Portland and buy a newspaper. The Democratic organization indorsed me, and so did many leading Republicans. But Yokohama had been promised. Then my friends thought of Shanghai. It had disappeared, too, in the early distribution to clamorous applicants. I am sincere when I say that I was not disappointed.

NEEDED IN SIAM.

"Several months later I came to Washington to help with some Northwest appointments. I was packing my trunk to go home when Mr. Cleveland sent for me. When I reached the White House he introduced me to both of the North Carolina Senators. He told me he would like a young and energetic man for the Siamese mission. Dr. M. A. Cheek of North Carolina, he said, had gone to Bangkok as a medical missionary. After a misunderstanding with the missionary board that employed him Cheek remained in Siam and obtained valuable teakwood concessions. When he developed his property the government confiscated it. Cheek's heirs wanted full satisfaction. And that was the situation.

"I began to go over my acquaintances for a suitable candidate. 'I'll try to think of somebody,' I said to the President.

"'But you are the man I had in mind,' Mr. Cleveland replied.

"I was so surprised that I couldn't remember whether Siam was in the North or South Atlantic or the Mediterranean. I couldn't get its geography into my muddled recollection. I hemmed and hawed and parried for time while I could bring my scattered wits together.

"'What do you know about Siam?' Mr. Cleveland asked with demoralizing suddenness.

"'Oh,' I replied with a bluff at laughing, 'I know all about that ancient and famous country. It was there,' I said with an unexpected inspiration, 'that the Siamese Twins, celebrated all over the world, were wonderfully and happily originated.'

CLEVELAND IS SURPRISED.

"'I am glad to find a man of so much erudition,' Mr. Cleveland answered. 'Get ready and go at your earliest opportunity.'

"I asked for a day that I might consider the proposition. Officers at the State Department advised me to accept the appointment. I could settle the Cheek claim and make a reputation. Well, I agreed to go. Friends joked me, saying that I would be buried under a banyan tree or lost in the jungle. I was 27 years old and rather skeptical myself. As I looked back from the deck of the steamship and saw my native shores blur into dim mist and vanish, I thought I was headed straight for an Asiatic side-track and that John Barrett's disappearance would be permanent.

"But when I got a view of Japan, the whole Orient burst upon my imagination. 'Here,' I said, 'is the place for usefulness and for study.' Two ways were open for me in Siam. I could bulldoze the King and his ministers, or I could ask for arbitration. In either event, however, facts were necessary. I went to the teak forests and looked over the ground in person with a trained reporter's knowledge of the essentials. The documents in the case were carefully examined. I looked up all the precedents of the Orient.

"When I was ready, I asked for a settlement by arbitration. Siam had expected a battleship and a demonstration. Rolin Jacquemyns, the Belgian expert and international lawyer, was paid $25,000 to fight me. I employed an attorney at Shanghai. The case went before the British Chief Justice for China and Japan, and the decision on every point was given to this country. Dr. Cheek's heirs were paid a large sum of money. Siam was pleased because I had been fair, and hadn't bullied the King with a gunboat. Mr. Justice Field of the United States Supreme Court wrote me a congratulatory letter, in which there was an intimation that I would have made a pretty good lawyer.

INFORMED ON THE PHILIPPINES.

"When McKinley was elected President I sent him my resignation. He asked me to stay another year, and dispose of all unfinished business. Then came the war with Spain. I started home to get a commission in an Oregon regiment. In Shanghai a cablegram was waiting from John Hay, Secretary of State, asking if I would go to Manila as the correspondent for a syndicate of American and European newspapers. Dewey had just sunk the Spanish squadron. I remained in the Philippines until the war was over. Returning home by way of Europe, I met and dined with many statesmen and government officers. In London I addressed some of the members of Parliament on the Philippine situation.

"When I called on President McKinley to pay him my respects, he said he had read the address I had made in London. The Philippine question, he thought, should be explained to the American people. He didn't know anything about the islands himself until Dewey captured Manila. Popular ignorance was woeful and dangerous. He asked me to repeat my speech in different parts of the country, saying he and Senator Hanna would make all of the arrangements. I told him I would do it as a matter of patriotism, but not as politics. Invitations came from boards of trade and chambers of commerce. In Cincinnati I talked to the great Commerce Club, and sitting near me was William H. Taft, then a United States judge, with no thought, I venture to say, of service in the Philippines or of the Presidency.

"The anti-imperialistic press attacked and ridiculed me considerably. Out of the hostility then engendered, has come the stereotyped witticism that 'John Barrett is talking again.' As a matter of fact, John Barrett has not talked for two years, except after repeated urging, and he has declined invitations from every part of the United States. I deny, also, that I seek personal advertising. I have been interested in great questions, and I have been much in earnest. Furthermore, John Barrett has never believed in the indipensable man—he is non-existant—and he would be a joke or a nuisance if he were an actuality.

MONEY FOR EXPOSITION.

"Naturally, I got into the campaign of 1900. I defended McKinley's Philippine policy from New England to the Pacific Coast. After the election Mr. McKinley called me to Washington. He told me he desired me to go to China as minister within a year. In the meantime he cautioned me not to say or write anything that would offend the Chinese. Then he sent me to the second Pan-American convention in Mexico. I was delighted with the men I met—they were cultured, broad-minded and friendly. While in Mexico I was called to St. Louis by telegraph. The managers of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition offered me $15,000 a year and expenses to work up interest in the Orient. Japan had declined to take part in the exhibition. I saw the leaders of the government and Japan appropriated 800,000 yen. Mr. Conger, our minister, said China was too poor and any effort I might make would be wasted. I visited the five viceroys and in Pekin had an audience with the Dowager Empress. China appropriated 750,000 taels. I also went to Korea, India and Siam. Indeed, I saw all the crowned heads of Europe and Asia.

"After Mr. McKinley's death Mr. Roosevelt asked me to be minister to Argentina. 'We didn't know much about the Orient,' he was kind enough to say, 'until you went there. The Argentine Republic is the most progressive nation in South America. We need fuller information about that country. It will take you a year and a half to get the facts I want.'

"I traveled all over Argentine and into Chile, Uruguay, Paraguay, and Bolivia. I used boats, mules and railway trains. In six months I sent my report to Washington. John Hay told me he received the report one afternoon and looked it over at home in the evening. Next morning he put it in his portfolio and took it to the cabinet meeting that he might show it to the President. I am quoting Hay, mind you, in what I am now telling you. After the meeting of the cabinet the President said: 'We must have a man for Panama.'

"'Here is Barrett's report,' Hay replied. 'He has cut your year and a half's work 66 2-3 per cent.'

"'Ask him,' said Mr. Roosevelt, 'if he is now willing to try Panama?'"

"Of course," Mr. Barrett went on to say, "I gladly agreed to the transfer, although I was just getting settled in Buenos Ayres, had rented a house for entertaining, and had made the acquaintance of statesmen, editors and church dignitaries. When I got to Panama people were dying with the yellow fever. I was there for a year, but I wasn't ill for a minute. It was soon clear to me that the governor of the Zone should also be the minister to Panama. I gave my views to the State Department and they were accepted. Next, Mr. Roosevelt requested me to go to Colombia and try to have it forget the loss of Panama. The people there were bitterly against the United States. Women had even offered to cut off their hair to hang the first Yankee caught in the streets of Bogota, the capital.

THIRTY-ONE DAYS ON DONKEYS.

"While Mr. Root was making his tour of the south he cabled me to meet him off the west coast of Central America. I made a journey of thirty-one days on donkeys through a new country. On our way back to the United States Mr. Root asked me if I would undertake to reorganize the International Bureau of the American Republics if he could make the necessary arrangements. When Mr. Roosevelt saw me he said he would appoint me Ambassador to Brazil. I told him of Mr. Root's suggestion. 'Take the place,' the President exclaimed. 'Your work there will be constructive. The South American movement is Root's baby and you will be its wet-nurse.'

"Are you a pessimist on rainy days?" I asked, "or do you have any days of that sort?"

"'My father and mother reared me in the doctrine that a man's world was largely of his own making. 'John,' my father once said, 'other people don't want to hear your troubles; they are only interested in telling their own.' I have rainy days, but I am careful not to let any one know it.'"

Second Week Begins Tomorrow Morning

where from 40 to 80 per cent. below our own, will make it lively, even for these European competitors, when they get to it.

Finally, some of the shoe manufacturers, notably ex-Gov. Douglas of Massachusetts, gave the workmen an impression during the free-hide campaign that if hides were admitted free, the advantage to the manufacturer would be considerable enough to warrant him in paying better wages; and the workmen are after the better wages, and that, naturally enough, adds further to the manufacturers' uneasiness. Eastern manufacturers are facing still another problem. They can see their business moving to the West, not from any tariff cause, but for other reasons. Freights and labor are cheaper, and while the eastern manufacturer does not expect that his western competitor will reduce prices, he does realise that his worthy brother in the Middle States is in a way to make the money. I am not stating these facts for any purpose of argument whatever; they are simply facts denoting the trend of present events in the hide and leather industry.

There is another interesting circumstance. It is well known that some of the most active advocates of free hides were the leather belting manufacturers. One of them is now out with a letter to his customers advising them that it has been merely a popular fallacy to expect that the price of leather belting would be reduced under free hides; on the contrary, an increase of price may be looked for, owing to rising markets; higher hides or hides just as high, probably higher wages, and possibly higher distribution costs generally. The shoe manufacturer buys leather belting like all the rest; so he is where they hit him again.

The Good Workman.

You must have observed the popularity of the good workman. He gets every dollar of salary that the business will warrant. And when there is a change in the business, he is the man who is invited to take an interest. Be a good workman. Don't be satisfied with being a slouch, and saying luck is against you. Luck chases the good workman to do him favors—

KindHearts--Good Deeds

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

An unknown automobilist is the hero of Evanston, Ill., according to the Chicago Record-Herald. A white and tan bulldog was in the vicinity of Lake street and Forest avenue, and when a group of children came along the dog made a rush at them. It ran among them, snapping viciously, and several probably would have been bitten had not the automobile, with the unidentified hero, arrived on the scene. He seized the dog by the collar, and, holding the animal in such a position that it could not bit, tied a rope about its neck. Dragging the dog to a tree in the parkway he tied it, and loosing his hold, sprang away. The man then jumped into his machine and rode swiftly to the Police Station. Officer Letts was sent to the scene with a rifle, and when he arrived there he found the animal frothing and exhibiting other symptoms of rabies. The man refused to give his name to the police.

John Calvin Roberts of Kernersville, N. C., has placed in the hands of trustees of the North Carolina Protestant Conference $10,000 to be used in the establishment of a college of that denomination. He provides that if there be any delay the trustees are to invest the money in first-class securities, the interest to be devoted to the education of poor young men for the ministry. Should the building of the college be delayed as late as 1920, the said $10,000 shall remain in perpetuity for the purpose of educating poor young men for the ministry.

Mother Ernestine of Paris has received a prize of 15,000 francs given for acts of devotion by the French Academy of Moral Science. She occupies in France about the same position as is held in America by Mrs. Ballington Booth. She is known as the helper of ex-prisoners. She is now over 60, and ever since she was 20 she has given herself to works of reclamation. Almost immediately after she entered the Order of the Sacred Heart she began her labors in the prison for women at Rouen. After a few years of this work she began to wonder what became of her charges after they left prison. This led her to rent a small room and to take two of her ex-prisoners there and launch them in the trade of shirt-making. The number of her charges increased so rapidly that the police authorities decided to allow her 500 francs yearly. A few years more and it was decided to put all young prisoners in her charge. The result of this was the establishing of a refuge, with Mother Ernestine at the head. Here for a number of years she had thirty-eight sisters working under her, and often the inmates in the refuge have numbered more than 500. These women are taught dressmaking, tailoring, housewifery and gardening.

To honor the memory of his wife, to whom he was passionately devoted during her lifetime, Judge Solomon H. Bethea of Dixon, Ill., left $150,000, the bulk of his fortune, to the Dixon Public Hospital, the only conditions attached to the gift being the change of title to the Katherine Shaw Bethea Hospital, and the use of the income from his gift for the care of the poor and needy patients of Dixon and Palmyra townships without charge. Judge Bethea promised his wife on her death bed several years ago that he would never marry again, and he kept his pledge.

Little Rachel Biederman of Cleveland lost her life last week in an effort to save a nickle "for her brothers and sisters to buy candy with." She attended the kindergarten school, and on the day of the accident she told her companions she was going to walk home that she might save her car fare. When crossing a street she was hit by an electric car. She was unconscious and dying when they pulled her from under the fender. As they lifted her into the ambulance her hand relaxed and the nickel which she had given her life to save rolled out. This was not the first time that the girl had sacrificed her own pleasure for her brothers and sisters. A week before, a representative of the Salvation Army visited her home and offered to take her to the farm of that organization for a week's outing. The others would have to stay in the city while she enjoyed herself in the country. "I couldn't think of it," she said, and stayed at home with the others.

Miss Mary Harriman, daughter of E. H. Harriman, has inaugurated a novel charity. She secured the Erie Railroad ferry boat Susquehanna and fitted it up for a floating rest cure for Brooklyn, N. Y., school children, and now has it in full operation, with 103 patients on board. Those children afflicted with tuberculosis are given first consideration.

C. E. Stebbins, a former resident of Aromas, this State, provided by will in 1904 that his ranch, valued at $4000, should become the property of Taylor University. He died suddenly in Texas a few days ago, and by his forethought he prevented litigation over his estate.

For You.

I.
For you, dear heart, the light—
God's peace where'er you be,
And, if God will, the Night—
Only the Night for me!

II.
For you Love's own dear land,
Of roses fair and free,
And, if you will, no hand
To give a rose to me.

III.
For you love's dearest bliss
In all the years to be,
And, if you will, no kiss
Of any love for me!

IV.
Thankful to know you blest,
When God your brow adorns
With the sweet roses of His rest,
I thank him for the thorns!
—[Frank L. Stanton, in Atlanta Constitution.

MRS. CURTISS WINS FIGHT; CAN HANDLE MILLIONS.

Mrs. Julia Watt Morris Curtis.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Julia Watt Morris Curtiss has won a long battle to prove herself competent to manage her share of the vast estate left by Mary G. Pinkney. The value of the estate is estimated at about $17,000,000, and Mrs. Curtiss inherited one-third.

It was charged in the original action to have Mrs. Curtiss declared incompetent, that she was in the habit of engaging private boxes at theaters and remaining in them long after the final curtain had been rung down; that she had spent $12,000 foolishly in one month; that she had bought a dozen parasols ranging in price from $50 to $450 each; that she had an ungovernable temper, and that by reason of old age, loss of memory and other causes specified she was incapable of managing her affairs.

By the decision of Judge Brady in the Supreme Court, the committee appointed to take charge of her affairs has been dismissed, and she is at liberty to handle her own business matters.

HEREABOUTS.

"THE man who starts around the world with the intention of making a record-breaking trip, will now about as much about this old lobe when he gets back as when he tarted," says Burt Moran, who has ircled the earth several times. Mr. loran, who spent the past week at the lexandria, is one of the best-known vool buyers in the United States.

"I met a man once in Shanghai," he tated, "who told me that he was ircling the globe and taking notes of is impressions for the purpose of riting a book. Now I met him several times later on his trip. He never ot off a train in Australia, in an rea greater than that of the United tates. That sort of thing is laughable. I once met a man who knew nore about seeing the world and enjoying it than most people. He was wealthy old merchant of the East. met him in the Tyrols. He spent six onths of the year in travel and the est in work. His system was to alk from one village to another n the continent. He had been in almost every corner of the world that ay and his knowledge of the people, heir customs, dress and manner of e was marvelous. Incidentally he d a working knowledge of many nguages."

F. P. Morgan, formerly a prominent ailroad man of Los Angeles and at esent the owner of a ranch of 169,000 res in Southern Mexico, is visiting latives in this city. Eleven years o, because of poor health, Mr. Moran was compelled to change his place abode. For about two years he rode rseback through Mexico. He made like pilgrimage through Central merican countries and thus had unual opportunities to study labor nditions.

"The fault of most Americans who to Mexico is that they try to educate native labor to the use of modern chinery," said Mr. Morgan. "A gh-salaried boss is put in charge of big ranch, for instance. He buys ns of fine machinery, that would ap a great reward in this country ith white labor. The Mexican laborer nderstands only his own crude ethods. He takes his time at it, but results are wonderful. Let him one and he will do just as much in way as modern machinery, but try compel him to do business in a anner he does not understand and ilure results. This has occurred time nd again in Mexico and also in Central America."

Henry C. Weldon, a wealthy merant of St. Louis, who is at the Alandria, speaks in high terms of the rogress of his city since the World's ir in 1904.

"In the history of fairs," he said, t has been the rule that a slump in siness follows the close of an exposion. St. Louis proved the exception this rule. Business has picked up nderfully, and the city has passed om the 'light heavyweight' class, you ight say, into the legitimate heavyight division. There have been more an a hundred skyscrapers built there the past five years. St. Louis is ing skyward in the downtown disict in a truly marvelous manner. ness is also on the boom and the rease in population is most satisfy-."

"In the education of the masses lies e salvation of Mexico," is the statent of John A. Creel, a mine owner Chihuahua, Mex. He and his famy are at the Van Nuys. His brother Governor of the State of Chihuahua was formerly Ambassador to the ited States.

"It is with great pride that the offils of Mexico are watching the id strides in the line of education," d Mr. Creel. "The schools there are a par with those of the United ates. For every one of the laboring s who attended school five years , there are now a hundred.

"The government controls three of biggest railroads in the country the entire republic is striving to opt the latest reforms and to bene one of the greatest countries on earth. Every man, woman and ld is doing his or her best to make nation greater and better.

"This patriotism is beautiful to see. easy enough for the wealthy to patriotic, but when the poorest of poor get in and dies, it is like the dow's mite and appreciated in proortion."

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

SIR FREDERICK POLLOCK, one of the foremost English jurists and authors of that treatise on the "Law of Torts," with which nearly every American first-year law student is familiar, has arrived in New York. He is a member of the Royal Labor Commission, corpus profress of jurisprudence at Oxford, fellow of the British Academy and honorable fellow of Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

William Lake of Jackson, Miss., is believed to be the oldest traveling salesman in the world. He is 93 and still busy. For the last twenty-five years he has been in the service of the Armour Packing Company and on the road most of the time. Several times his employers have offered to retire him on pension, but he prefers to work.

Mr. Henry Suits of Council Bluffs, Iowa, celebrated his 104th anniversary on August 2. He is still able to go about without a cane and enjoys very good health for a man of his years.

Averill Harriman, son of E. H. Harman, is making his start in the railroad business by carrying the chain in a surveying crew on the Oregon Short Line in Idaho. He said he wished first to learn how railroads were located.

Col. John Patten, the distinguished British officer, has been in attendance on the Esperantist convention at Chautauqua.

Gen. William Booth of the Salvation Army recently had a cataract removed from one of his eyes, but has had to give up a religious tour of the British provinces because of septic poisoning in that eye. As the other one is also affected with a cataract he will probably undergo an operation for its removal.

There is in Columbia, Mo., a blind man, George H. Smith, who, it is said, "knows every inch" of the town. In the winter he earns his living by delivering packages for merchants and by doing other odd jobs. In the spring and summer Mr. Smith spends the most of his time fishing on the Missouri River.

President Louis Hill of the Great Northern Railroad, will, probably establish some means of identification hereafter when he goes on an automobile tour. On a trip from Helena, Mont., to Great Falls, a few days ago, his machine broke down, and on applying to a farmer for a night's lodging was told he could find a bed in a haystack, and at the haystack he spent the night.

EDUCATORS.

MISS ADELAIDE SMITH, who has been elected to the chair of mathematics at the University of California, has occupied a similar position at the university in Johannesburg, South Africa, and at San Raphael, this State. She is also noted for her deep knowledge of the dead languages.

Dr. Julius Christian Zeller of Bloomington, Ill., has been elected president of the University of Puget Sound at Tacoma. For three years the chairs of philosophy and sociology in the Illinois Wesleyan University were held by him and twelve years he spent in the ministry. He will begin his new duties next month.

Walter Williams, dean of the school of journalism of the University of Missouri, has sailed from Montreal for Plymouth, Eng., where he is to speak before the British Institute of Journalists. His subject is to be "University Training for Journalists." Mr. Williams recently was elected an honorary member of the institute, and he is the only American on the programme.

Miss Sarah D. Ottiwell of New Bedford has attained the remarkable record of having served the schools of the city for sixty years, for more than forty years of this time serving as a teacher.

After a service of sixty-five years as a teacher, fifty-seven of which were spent in the Boston Latin School, Charles J. Capen has retired at the age of 86. His friends and associates proudly point to him as the oldest professional educator in the world. Mr. Capen was graduated from Harvard in 1843.

Prof. C. L. Krautz, a member of the faculty of Augustana College, Rock Island, Ill., recently walked from Rock Island to Madrid, a distance of 202 miles, in ten days. He was accompanied by his wife, who is a pedestrian of ability. Few men can leave indoor employment and average twenty miles per day for ten consecutive days, and the number of ladies who are equal to the task is still less.

President E. B. Bryan of Franklin College, Indiana, one of the most widely-known educators of the Middle West, has been tendered the position of president of Colgate University at Hamilton, N. Y. The report has been current for several months that President Taft had been considering the appointment of Dr. Bryan as head of the school system of the Philippine Islands, but recently Dr. Bryan let it be known that he preferred to continue his educational work in the United States.

After having devoted fifty-eight years of his life to the study of the solar system, Prof. J. H. Swindell, for many years professor in a well-known southern university, is today a scissors sharpener on the streets of Atlanta. Prof. Swindell became deaf several years ago, and had to give up his place. Even in his poverty he continues his research, and lately has published a book.

CHURCHMEN.

DR. I. M. ATWOOD, the veteran Universalist superintendent and quasi-bishop of the denomination, in the Universalist Leader gives it as his opinion that in "matter of progressive methods and expert knowledge" the evangelical devisions of the Christian church are ahead of the liberals.

Rev. Alfred H. Burroughs, who is striving for the world's record of Gretna Green ceremonies, recently reached the mark of 3000 couples, dating from an incidental marriage of the kind there August 14, 1889.

Rev. Julius F. Schwartz of the First German Presbyterian Church, Omaha, three years ago determined that his congregation should have a new church. The fact that the members numbered only sixty and the whole property of the corporation was about $5000 troubled him not at all, and he began to build a church with as much faith as if he had the riches of Solomon. His plan was to gather everywhere, whenever he could, all the old but strong timbers, all the iron junk available for structural use, all the loose and irregular stone and all the generally discarded building materials that could be found in Omaha, and from them to build a church. It was not to be a mean and ugly house of worship, but a well-equipped, well-arranged, ample meeting-place for his people. He has now extended it to include an eleven-room house for his own family, and the whole property would have cost $30,000 if it had been built by contract. As built by Rev. Mr. Schwartz and his fellow-laborers it will cost less than $15,000. The other $15,000 has been saved to his people by the perseverance, energy and ingenuity of the pastor.

ARTISTS, AUTHORS.

CLARA KRETZINGER, the Chicago girl who won her way to fame as an artist in the Salon of Paris four years ago, with a picture entitled "The Woman With the Teapot," is spending the summer at home. While Chicago, she says, is a magnificent place to study, the business man looks upon the artist as a queer, inferior being, which discourages art. That is why aspiring artists go to Paris where they find an atmosphere and camaraderie that inspires them in their profession.

James Jebusa Shannon, the portrait painter, has been elected a royal academician. Shannon was born in Auburn, N. Y., in 1862. He went to England in 1887. He has had paintings in many exhibitions, receiving first-class medals at Paris, Berlin and Vienna.

Johannes Scheime, artist-scientist of Ottumwa, Iowa, though a native of Berlin and educated in the best art schools of Italy and Paris, prefers to live in the United States. He came to Ottumwa in 1879 after fifteen months spent as instructor in art in the Iowa Wesleyn University. He has twice returned to Europe for brief periods.

Charles E. Hallberg of Chicago, once janitor in a bank, but an artist by inclination, has had one of his paintings accepted by the art museum of Guttenberg, the city of his birth.

Ginzo Colza, a young Italian poet of considerable fame, is making a lecture tour of the United States on his way back home after a lecture tour in South America.

Miss Edna Dean Proctor, contemporary of Henry Ward Beecher and of the literary men of the time of the Civil War and a poetess whose productions are still published in the monthly magazines has been actively engaged in writing since the early 50's. She has made five trips to South America in the course of her globe trotting and has visited Europe, Africa and the Orient. She is now living at South Framingham, Mass., and though 85 years of age, she has recently visited the Seattle exposition.

SPORTSMEN, EXPLORERS.

JOHN T. McCUTCHEON, the Chicago Tribune's cartoonist, and C. E. Akeley, of the Field Museum, are on their way to Africa, where they will hunt big game. McCutcheon may not unreasonably expect to find the drawing pencil mightier than the high-power rifle in filling his pay envelope.

W. F. Benchoff of Blue Ridge Summit, is the champion coon hunter of the South Mountain region of Pennsylvania, according to the Waynesboro Record. Last fall he caught thirty-one coons, and during the last quarter century his average yearly catch has been twenty-five.

George Jamison of Allenwood, Union county, Pa., holds the record as a salmon fisherman for this season. On Monday he caught three salmon, measuring 19, 16 and 14 inches, respectively, and Tuesday he captured the king of all, a salmon measuring 25 inches and weighing seven pounds. The catch was made at the Allenwood bridge piers.

Mrs. Addie Walker of Rifle, Colo., killed a bear recently in the identical section in which ex-President Roosevelt hunted bear a few years ago. The animal had attacked her dog, and she had quite a fight to accomplish its death.

Sidney A. Ball of Chicago, has just returned from a two and a half years absence in Africa, where he led an exploring expedition into the Congo Free State during which he was wounded in a battle with a tribe of hostile natives though his party was victorious.

C. F. Easton of Bellingham, Wash., has completed the triangulation of the entire Mount Baker territory. His calculations show the summit of the mountain to be 10,728 feet above sea level. His calculations show numerous glaring inaccuracies on present maps of much of the unsurveyed territory.

OVER THE SEA.

EX-CROWN PRINCE GEORGE of Servia, says a Vienna report, once shot a pair of pearl pendants from a woman's ears at a distance of ten paces. His aim was so true that the bullets merely severed the gold wire on which the pearls were suspended, and the gems dropped on the woman's shoulders and thence to the floor, uninjured. The two shots were fired in quick succession without a tremor on the part of the wearer of the gems, at whose behest the Prince had consented to exhibit his skill.

Miss Constantia Elizabeth Maxwell is the first woman to become a member of the teaching staff of Trinity College, Dublin. She has just been elected an assistant to the professor of modern history. Miss Maxwell was graduated only a few months ago with a first senior moderatorship. She won a gold medal in history and political science.

Dr. Nilo Pecanna, who, by the death of Dr. Alfonso Penna, has become President of Brazil, is an experienced though not old administrator, with a remarkable gift for financial administration, his transformation of the fiscal condition of the State of Rio de Janiero during his Presidency being one of the most remarkable in the history of Latin-American financiering.

J. Pires Do Rio, of Rio Janeiro, a member of the corps of government engineers of Brazil, was commissioned some two years ago to make an investigation of the improvements of the principal harbors in Europe and America. After an exhaustive study of what is being done to better the ports of the Old World, the young Brazilian engineer, who has already won fame by his scientific achievements at home, has come to the United States on the same mission and will remain here until next May, reserving for the last an inspection of the Panama Canal.

WHAT'S DOING IN SAN FRANCISCO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—Assessor Dodge and the real estate board are making a gallant struggle with the State Board of Equalization to keep our assessment roll from being raised. They pleaded the uncertainty of values because of the losses from the big fire. The State officials say nothing but from present indications it looks as though we might get a slight rise.

Mrs. Evelyn Erskine, an Oakland negress, says she is the great-granddaughter of Thomas Jefferson and she fully agrees with the Chicago professor that the best results come from the blending of the races. "Black Jack" Johnson, champion pugilist of the world, is here to defend his title and as there is no blend in him he believes that the unadulterated article is better physically irrespective of the intellectual side of the question.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer is a hard-hearted man if he refuses the request of the visiting Congressional delegation to have the Pacific fleet here for the Portola festival. The resolutions asking for it were adopted unanimously. The time for the festival is fast approaching. The nations of the world will have warships here and our squadron ought to outnumber them all.

A fac simile signature of Congressman Bartholdt of Missouri sent by wireless from the steamer Siberia and published in a morning paper is a remarkable feat. It is all the more so in view of the fact that the Siberia has no wireless apparatus. A jealous contemporary is mean enough to say that the feat is either a miracle or a lie.

Certainly no one begrudges former Mayor Schmitz his discovery of a rich gold mine near Forbestown. As the tax rate this year is going to be higher than ever before it gives Eugene a chance to make himself popular by contributing liberally to the city treasury and so lighten the financial burdens of his fellow citizens.

The lure of a photographing business causes the city to lose David Oliver, the last of the Schmitz appointees on the school board. He says that an additional reason for his resignation is the pedagogic manner of School Director O'Connor, who has taught children so long that he thinks that he must treat grown men the same way.

After the same gas bill had been paid five times at the office of the Park Commission, Expert Accountant Dolge makes a recommendation that the system of book-keeping should be revised in order to prevent further errors. As he had no access to the books of the company he could not make the same recommendation to it.

Five men saw a revolver near the body of Edward Pincus and a Coroner's jury justified William Maxwell in killing him. A friend of Pincus with him at the time of the shooting did not see the pistol, so the lawyers for Maxwell think the friend ought to be indicted for perjury due to his defective eyesight.

Hereafter women patrons of automobiles will kindly keep their fare from their mouths is what the chauffeurs ask. Miss Virginia Wellingford, after hiring a taxicab, told the driver that she had swallowed the $5 piece she intended to pay him with. At the Emergency Hospital no aid could be given, so the man is out $5 and the lady is in that much.

Yarns of the South Seas.

'NEATH AUSTRAL SKIES. By Louis Becke. J. P. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia. (Price $1.50.)

It is difficult to believe that the stories by Louis Becke in the book he has entitled "'Neath Austral Skies" were written in this generation. Were it not for the cover and the general make-up of the book, I would swear that the stories were pulled down from some old library shelf, where they had gathered dust for the last fifty years. I do not wish to imply that the stories are not good of their kind, but they are so totally different from the literature with which we have become accustomed today, that it is difficult to adjust one's mental attitude to them.

It was only a year ago that I was visiting an old New England farmhouse, where the library had not been added to for half a century. One evening I reached up haphazard and took down a volume (I forget its title,) and opening it, saw that it had formerly belonged to a parish library. I read an amusing sea yarn in the book, written by a man who evidently was a confirmed "land lubber." Today as I read some of the tales in Mr. Becke's book, so similar were they in spirit, tone and atmosphere, that they immediately recalled this old parish library book.

So many fine things have been written of the sea by literary craftsmen (notably Verne, Loti and Kipling,) that it would seem almost futile for a man, who, apparently, makes no pretense of possessing artistic instinct, to attempt this thing. The material of the stories in "'Neath Austral Skies" differs but little from that of the majority of stories of the Southern Seas, and they are not well enough written to warrant working over this jaded material. However, there may be many who prefer the semi-juvenile, rip-snorting, old-fashioned sea stories where the yarn is the thing and literature can "go hang." If there be such, Mr. Becke's book will be gratefully received.

Kittenish Stupidity.

ONE DAY. A Sequel to "Three Weeks." Anonymous. McCauley Company, New York. (Price $1.50.)

If one wants pornographic literature, I can't see why in the name of heaven, one doesn't read pornographic books instead of the merely silly and suggestive trash like "Three Weeks." Take the cheap suggestion out of this account of a twenty-one-day orgy, and nothing is left but a string of pointless, ungrammatical and wearisome words.

I had thought the limit of platitude and inanity had been reached in "Three Weeks," but I was mistaken. "One Day" is more vapid and tiresome than its foolish forerunner; not even the salacious will find recreation here. The son of Paul is a stupid dub, who talks like a hero of a Bertha Clay melodrama. The female end of the plot is supplied by a girl evidently intended to be clever, but her lamentable delusion that she is humorous makes the conversation lugubrious and tedious. Not even the Western Christian Advocate, I think, is willing to recommend this book as it did "Three Weeks" by telling of the power and beauty of its descriptions and the undeniable pathos of its scenes.

A Drab's Correspondence.

AN ANARCHIST WOMAN. By Hutchins Hapgood. Duffield Company, New York. (Price $1.50.)

Here is a book that is interesting for an entirely different reason than that which the author intended. As a psychological development of an anarchist woman, the book fails. The woman is neither an anarchist, nor does any evolution whatever go on in her mind. She is merely a beast of the tenderloin district, who has acquired a superficial and limited knowledge of that branch of the socialist family called "Anarchy." She uses this little knowledge as an excuse to wallow in her degradation, just as all of these lawless lunatics excuse their debaucheries and crimes by their illogical doctrines. Mr. Hapgood tries to make out of this woman a philosopher, but she never once ascends above the lowest sub-stratum of intellect. She is a wallowing dog, and to call her an anarchist may be significant and to the point, but it has no psychological value whatever.

The only place wherein the book is of any interest is in the study of the type of woman found in all large cities—the type that makes it necessary for the government to maintain asylums and jails.

First Rate Travel Book.

Italy, with all its beauty, nonetheless has a very pernicious influence on visitors in whom lie embryonic germs of literary expressions, which, were it not for Italian environment, might still be undeveloped when their "three-score-ten" were over. As a result, we have more sentimental books on Italy than any other country in the world, and of the great number that has come to my hand, few have any intrinsic or extrinsic merit. I have gotten so I fear to open a book whose cover-legend hints that the contents have to do with Italy.

I was attracted by Miss Mason's "Spell of Italy," first, by its artistic cover, then by its delightful lining papers; third, by its first-rate illustrations; fourth, by its very excellent map, and fifth, by the general make-up of the book. I drew deep inspiration and set sail. To my great surprise, I became immediately interested, and was carried swiftly along by the pleasant chattiness of the style. Miss Mason has really writen an admirable book of its kind. She has avoided giving it the nature of the character of a guide book. She is a romantic sentimentalist pure and simple, but with this necessary concomitant of the travel book she combines an elasticity of imagination, a mental alacrity, and a sympathetic observation that make for enjoyable reading. Miss Mason is impressionistic, and her romantic power to penetrate and to carry the reader with her into that which lies just beyond the immediate actualities of land and water scape, shows no little literary skill. She has a delightful way of half-way collaborating with other writers.

A HUSBAND BY PROXY. By Jack Steele. Desmond-FitzGerald, New York. (Price $1.50.)

One of the worst and best of the summer novels is "A Husband by Proxy." Worst, because it is so atrociously written; best, because it has embodied in it more situations, denouements, climaxes and anti-climaxes than any novel of its size I have seen this season. In fact, there is so much structure, superstructure and substructure that Jack Steele has a difficult time getting the whole of his story inside of two covers. This, I believe, is desirable in "light" fiction. There is no padding here; there is neither room nor time for it. Had he padded, "A Husband by Proxy" would have appeared in several volumes.

To give you any idea of the story would be to consume this whole page with intricacies and developments of Steele's imagination, or, rather the composite imagination of every sensational writer for the last decade. For no matter how entertaining, how active Mr. Steele may be, no one could truthfully say that he was original. His book is really more of a compilation than a novel. I can see Mr. Steele snooping through those masters of melodrama, Old Sleuth, Henty, Nick Carter and their ilk, jotting down notes and drawing diagrams. Then, I can see Mr. Steele poring over our modern masters of sentimental lollypop, McCutcheon, Chambers and McGrath, to get the saccharine flavor which is so effective a sop for the young ladies who wear nets on their hair and have gentleman friends. Then, Mr. Steele has taken the best of what he has found, mixed and rehashed it into a very acceptable dish of vulgarian goulash.

I will start the hoop rolling and then give you the stick: a young criminologist seated in his office, somewhat startled by the entrance of a very fascinating and charming client. She is sorely in need of a husband, and our hero consents to be hired for a month or so. He has scarcely become the proxy husband when he is set on the trail of a murderer. Then the action commences with a vengeance. On investigation the young man finds that the murdered man is his wife's uncle. This is bad enough, but when the young lady is suspected of doing the deed, it is an unpleasant situation to say the least. This is as far as I am going. I might add, however, as a whet to your interest, that there are criminals, desperadoes, sleuths, wills and bombs; to say nothing of a crazy genius, who is trying to master aërial navigation.

A Serious Disease.

The little daughter of a Republican candidate for a local office down in Philadelphia, when told that her father had received the nomination, looked serious for a moment, then her wee voice trembled a bit as she exclaimed:

"Oh, mamma! do they often die of it?"—[New York Times.]

LITERARY CHIT-CHAT.

"Despite their furious energy and their genius for mechanical invention, the Americans are no more civilized than the Japanese. The men are cruel and dishonest in business, and the women are hard, immeasurably conceited and impatient of the duties of domesticity." This is the indictment of America made lately by the English "Saturday Review." Of Daphne, the American heroine of Mrs. Ward's "Marriage a la Mode," novel, the English journal says:

"She is simply insufferable, conceited, pedantic, insolent, lecturing everybody. The book may shock those who make the mistake of regarding the Americans as a civilized people. Daphne is a splendidly-drawn type, the woman who is swept into marriage by "a sudden gust of physical inclination; is disappointed and disgusted by the first experience of marriage, and then impatiently cancels the contract, talking about her career, her individuality, her chances. Of course, a great deal of the trouble," continues our critic, "is caused by so many American girls being left in uncontrolled possession of so much money. Until the United States adopt a decent and uniform law of divorce, we shall persist in regarding the Americans as semi-civilized, and as setting a very bad example to the rest of the world."

There, now!

The Catskill Mountain water system for New York, now under way, ranks as the greatest municipal water-supply enterprise ever undertaken, and as an engineering work is probably second only to the Panama Canal. An account of "The World's Greatest Aqueduct" has been written in the September Century by Alfred Douglas Flinn, engineer, headquarters department, of the Board of Water Supply of the City of New York. He shows how, ranking with the inter-oceanic canals at Suez and Panama, the Assuan irrigation works in Egypt, and the projects which are converting Western America's arid wastes into fruitful fields, the Catskill aqueduct, with its tributary reservoir, probably surpasses any one of them in the variety of problems to be solved. Rome's longest aqueduct was fifty-seven miles in length; the Catskill aqueduct will be ninety-two miles long. The Croton supply can safely furnish about 336,000,000 gallons daily. Five hundred million gallons daily is promised from the Catskill source, at an initial cost of $162,200,000.

Little, Brown & Company's popular fiction for summer reading includes "The Governors," by E. Phillips Oppenheim, which has just gone into a second printing; "Red Horse Hill," by Sidney McCall, fourth printing; "The Kingdom of Earth," by Anthony Partridge, fifth impression on the press; "But Still a Man," by Margaret L. Knapp, third printing; "The Little Gods," by Rowland Thomas, fourth impression on the press; "A Royal Ward," by Percy Brebner, second printing; "In a Mysterious Way," by Anne Warner, second printing; "The Strain of White," by Ada Woodruff Anderson, third printing, and "The Bridge Builders," by Anna Chapin Ray, second printing.

To his skill as a novelist, Rowland Thomas, the author of that notable collection of Philippine stories, "The Little Gods," has demonstrated his ability as a poet and dancer. At the recent historical pageant of the Miles Standish Monument Association, held in Duxbury, Mr. Thomas was the poet of the occasion, and he also participated gracefully in the colonial dance, which was one of the features of the pageant. "The Little Gods" has been sent to press for the fourth time, and Mr. Thomas is hard at work on a new novel.

FORTHCOMING BOOKS.

FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

The writings, theories and vagaries of no man alive today have occasioned more discussion than those of Bernard Shaw. A play of his has lately been rejected by the censor, and the orthodox British public are continually holding up their virtuous hands in horhor at his propositions and his unorthodox sayings. Yet an Englishman who is more renowned, perhaps, for his "orthodoxy" than for anything else, and whose wit is no less keen than Mr. Shaw's, has written the Irishman's biography—Mr. Gilbert K. Chesterton. This "Illustrated Biography," as Mr. Chesterton has named it, will be published by John Lane Company this fall. It has been rumored, by the way, that Mr. Shaw will come to America shortly to address the National Convention of the Unemployed.

Don't start anything in Los Angeles, George B.

B. W. Huebsch, New York, announces for publication this month, "India; Impressions and Suggestions," by J. Keir Hardie, M.P. Mr. Hardie visited America several times, and has a host of friends here. He is well known as the leader of the Labor Party in Parliament, and is one of the important personalities to be reckoned with in British politics. He spent two months in India studying social, political and economic conditions, and writes frankly and freely of what he saw. The eyes of the world are now on India, and some of the problems facing the British government there are similar to those which we are meeting in our relations with outlying dependencies. The chapter on "The Color Line" deals with a difficulty altogether different from our own, yet it has an interest for Americans. The entire subject is of the utmost importance, and, as Mr. Hardie discusses it authoritatively, the book will be indispensable to students of government, economics and ethnology.

For their younger readers, Messrs. Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., announce a new wonderland book, "The Land of Nod," by J. Walker McSpadden, for immediate publication. The volume is a large octavo, with profuse illustrations in color and black and white, by Edward L. Chase. The first edition has been practically exhausted before publication, and the book will be issued simultaneously in England.

The warfare against tuberculosis has been succinctly described in a new book soon to be published by Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., "The Great White Plague," by Dr. Edward O. Otis. The work is described as popular in treatment and designed to aid every reader with practical hints as to eating, sleeping and breathing.

A second edition of "Letters From China," by Mrs. Sarah Pike Conger, wife of the late Minister to China, is announced by the publishers, Messrs. A. C. McClurg & Co. Arrangements have also been made to publish the work in England through Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton. The demand for the book seems to come from a recognition of the new light which it throws on matters relating to China, which no previous writers had quite the same opportunity of investigating. Among the many expressions of opinion on the book received by the publishers, a characteristic one was from a Chinese student at Sheffield Scientific School, who says it is the most interesting and truthful account of his people he has ever read.

An unusual number of important novels are to be brought out this fall by the Macmillan Company. In itself the announcement of a new book by Winston Churchill is an interesting piece of news, but, in addition, there are to be new novels by the late Marion Crawford, Jack London, Robert Herrick, Zona Gale, Charles Major, C. G. D. Roberts and Putnam. The title of Mr. Churchill's new novel has not yet been determined.

"A life for a Life" is the name of Mr. Herrick's forthcoming book. The seriousness of Mr. Herrick's work has been thoroughly recognized for some time, and the new book will deal with subjects as large and as important as his previous novels.

In "Martin Eden," by Jack London, many readers will see more than a touch of autobiography in the description of Eden's rise from a fo'castle hand to fame and riches.

Zona Gale's new book is American in atmosphere and characters. It deals with public's old favorites, Friendship Village.

For lovers of romance there will be this fall the last novel by Marion Crawford, that will ever be published. At the time of his recent death, Mr. Crawford left two manuscripts that had not been put into book form. Of these, "Stradella," to be published this fall, is a historical romance of seventeenth century Italy. From a few sentences in an ancient chronicle he has constructed a love story, and a striking picture of the Italy of the period, with its luxury and culture and underlying barbarism and cruelty.

"A Gentle Knight of Old Brandenburg," the title of Charles Major's new novel, deals with the court of the father of Frederick the Great, and the strange wooing of his sister, Wilhelmina.

In "The Backwoodsmen," C. G. D. Roberts has collected a number of short stories dealing with the forest wilderness whose life he knows so well.

Putnam Weale's "The Human Cobweb" concludes this list of new fiction. "The Human Cobweb" is another story of China, revealing the author's insight into the mysteries of the oriental mind and his appreciation of the romance of his theme.

Next to these novels the general reader will probably find the greatest interest in a series of books of travel and exploration. At the head of the list, the Macmillians put Sven Hedin's new record of adventure in the bleak wilderness of Tibet, "Trans-Himalaya—Discoveries and Adventures in Tibet," is the full title of this book in which Dr. Hedin tells, with the aid of many photographs and sketches brought home by himself, of his successful effort to force his way into the forbidden city of Lhassa.

In "Labrador," Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell and others who have assisted him have put down in readable and attractive form for the first time an enormous amount of valuable information about a little-known region.

For those interested in matters nearer at home, the Macmillan Company will have a series of three volumes on New York City. "The New New York," by John C. Van Dyke, with one hundred and twenty-six illustrations by Joseph Pennell, is probably the most important attempt that has ever been made to describe accurately the second city of the world. Mr. Pennel's etchings of New York have long been considered among the finest of his many works, and Prof. Van Dyke knows his New York as few men do. "The Wayfarer in New York" is the second book, which may be best described as an anthology in prose and verse of the best things that have ever been said about the city. The third, "The Picturesque Hudson," is only partially concerned with the city, but Clifton Johnson, its author, has realized very thoroughly that the Hudson River is one of the great assets of the city.

While the foregoing works are doubtless those which will appeal to the average, the Macmillan list contains a number of serious works on history, biography, literature, religion and philosophy. Israel Zangwill's "The Melting Pot" and William Vaughn Moody's "The Faith Healer," and "The Great Divide," are probably the most important plays from a literary standpoint that have been produced in America for a long time. Prof. Curtis Hidden Page has made a collection of American verse; while in the realm of the essay Prof. Phelps has written an important volume on contemporary novelists, and E. V. Lucas, under the title "One Day and Another," has touched upon a wide variety of subjects.

In history there are to be two new additions to "Stories From American History—Daniel Boone and the Wilderness Road," by H. Addington Bruce, and a narrative, by Prof. Frederick Paxson, of the conquest of America's last frontier. As contribution to more personal history, Mrs. Roger A. Pryor, author of "Reminiscences of Peace and War," has collected in "My Day: Reminiscences of a Long Life," a great number of anecdotes of a past era.

The complete list of Macmillan publications for the fall will be ready in a short time. The few books mentioned here form only a portion of it, for in addition there are a large number of works on sociology, economics, religion, science, philosophy, as well as text books for colleges and schools.

The Fleming E. Revell Company announce the following books for the fall: "Just Boys," by Mary B. Wood. A story written from the author's own experiences in the choir loft; "The Quest of the Yellow Pearl," by P. C. Marfarlane. A story of the time of Christ. "The Big Brother," by I. T. Thurston. A new story by the author of "The Bishop's Shadow," continuing the experiences of "Tode Bryan." That the author would write the continuation was hinted at, in the conclusion of "The Bishop's Shadow." "Introducing Corinna," by Winifred Kirkland. A girl graduate's story by the author of "Polly Pat's Parish;" "The Suitable Child," by Norman Duncan; "From My Youth Up," by Margaret E. Sangster; "The Attic Guest," by Robert E. Knowles, a new novel by the author of "St. Cuthbert's" and "The Undertow," which enters a brand new field; "The Crown of Individuality," by William G. Jordan, a new collection of pointed and practical essays by the author of "Self Control," "The Power of Truth," etc.; "Court Life in China," by Prof. I. T. Headland. Prof. Headland's articles, which have been appearing in the various magazines this year, edited and put into a continuous account by the author; "The History of Christianity in Japan," by Otis Cary; "The Immigrant Tide," by Edward A. Steiner, a new work by the author of "On the Trail of the Immigrant," continuing along the same lines; "Comfort," by Hugh Black, a new work by the author of "Friendship;" "The Friendly Life," by Henry F. Cope.

The Oldest Tree Known.

The oldest tree in the world, according to the letter of a German traveler, published in the Berliner Morgenpost, is on the island of Cos, on the coast of Asia Minor. It is a plantain in the shade of which Hippocrates is said to have taught his pupils. The tree is supposed to be 2500 years old, and its trunk measures ten meters in circumference. Despite its age, every year its branches become green, but many of the larger ones have for several years been held in place with artificial props.—[Exchange.]

SINGING SONS OF WALES.

BY JOHN S. McGROARTY.

Sooner or later everything and everybody comes to Los Angeles, and now, God be praised, we are to have some Celtic music from the throats of genuine Celtic singers. On their way to their homes in Ohio from the Seattle exposition, fifty singing sons of Wales will visit Los Angeles and give a concert in Simpson Auditorium on Saturday evening next, September 4. The hall is too small by far to hold all the people who should be there that night.

These singing Celts are not stage folks nor professional musicians. Song is not a trade, but a passion with the Welsh people. It is an inheritance that has come down to them from countless centuries and which is as much prized today as it was a thousand years ago. These sweet-voiced and deep-toned Cambrians sing for the love of singing, and their present trip is just an outing from their workshops, their farms and their offices in the Buckeye State.

But they are all trained singers, just the same—trained from their very childhood by the most competent of teachers. Every Welsh boy and girl with even the semblance of a singing voice is taught to use it by men who have their degrees in music from the foremost conservatories and masters of Europe. Music in Wales is not a luxury confined to the rich, but a common possession of all the people, rich and poor alike. In the great "Eisteddfodau" or National Festival of Wales, a chorus of colliers or a glee club composed of ordinary day laborers are as likely as not to win the prize and to go forth crowned with the laurels of song.

The Eisteddfod is among the most ancient institutions known to civilization. There is extant a complete record of one of these gatherings which was held by Rhys ab Gruffydd, Prince of South Wales, in his castle of Aberteivi, in the year 1177. But the Eisteddfod is far more ancient than that; how ancient there is no chronicle left to tell. Certain it is that the Welsh held these annual gatherings and awarded prizes in music, oratory and poetry when the Tenton, the Angels and the Saxons were mere illiterate savages, dressed in skins and speaking an unwritten tongue. And we are to remember that, granting all that Germans and Italians have done for music in later centuries, it was the Celt who first produced written music.

In his "Letters on Wales," Henry Richard, M.P., says, rather ungraciously, perhaps, that "The true reason why the Eisteddfodau are held is to be found partly in the reverence which the common people of Wales cherish for old customs, and partly in the general delight they take in such intellectual excitements as are afforded them there, in exercises in oratory and competitions in poetry and music, just as the common people of England take delight in horse racing, fox hunting and pugilism."

Of the three Cymric branches of the Celtic family, only the Cornish have abandoned the uses of Celtic speech. The Breton still clings to his own tongue, and in Wales the native language is everywhere spoken and is the language of the country even to this very day. The railway traveler going out of England crosses the imaginary boundary line and suddenly knows he is in Wales because he no longer hears English spoken. There is not in all the history of the world another instance of a people who have clung so tenaciously to a sentiment as the Welsh have done by not only preserving their mother tongue, but by keeping it bright by use and resolutely refusing to allow the speech of the conqueror to occupy a place at their firesides. And this is in the face of the fact that Wales is a little country that might be regarded as a c ner of England. No narrow sea, ev divides the two. Britain has co quered, she has builded the mighti of empires, she has swept the s with flame and rested not until t sun could not set on her dominio but she could not make the We stop talking Welsh. The Gaelic Ce —the Scotch, the Manx and the Ir adopted the speech of the Saxon a allowed their own great tongue to most disappear from the face of t earth. But not so the Welsh, to th glory be it said.

As to the ancient love of the Wel for music, we have the testimony Gerald de Barry, the famous chapl to Henry II, who wrote in the twel century that "The Welsh, by sweetness of their musical inst ments, soothe and delight the They do not sing in unison like the habitants of other countries, but different parts." This proves to that the Welsh knew "harmony," ev in that remote period. There is furth proof of this in the records of tional festivals of that time which late that one of the competitions w "Singing a song in four parts w accentuations." A still more anci proof of the proficiency of the We in "counterpoint," or harmony, is p served in a poem by Aneurin, writ nearly 1500 years ago.

In awaiting, therefore, the arri of these fifty singing sons of Wales Los Angeles and to hear, for the f time in our ancient pueblo, genu Celtic music from the throats of Ce singers, we may confidently prom ourselves a treat which shall be sweeter for its rarity. They will confine themselves wholly to Ce music, but will sing from Handel other great composers, to do wh they are well fitted. Their lea Prof. Hugh Owens, is no tyro, but his degrees from the conservatories Europe.

But it is the Welsh songs we s look for, and also for other Ce songs—"Blue Bells of Scotland" "Annie Laurie," "The Shamrock" "Killarney," in honor of their Sco and Irish kinsmen who will be s tered throughout the audience w hearts aglow. Also shall we h "The Bells of Aberdovey:"

"In the peaceful evening time,
Oft I listen to the chime
In the dulcet, ringing rhyme
Of the bells of Aberdovey."

Then we shall hear "The Vale Llangollen" and "The Ash Grov which every love-sick Welsh mai has wept her bright eyes dim in si ing. And we shall listen to "The L of My Fathers," the national hymn Wales, and, finally, the great song "The Men of Harlech," that s the soul and sets running red a all the bloody tides of olden batt

"Men of Harlech, march to glory,
Victory is hovering o'er ye,
Bright-eyed Freedom stands before
Hear ye not her call?
At your sloth she seems to wonde
Rend the sluggish bonds asunder,
Let the war cry's deafening thunde
Every foe appall."

A SUNDAY SERIAL OF UNBROKEN INTEREST.

CHAPTER XII.

THE MEETING OF THE WAYS.

One Sunday afternoon, nearly two nths after Laura had parted from illiam Tankerlane, Leonore Jackn was holding one of her informal ceptions in her apartments in the amps Elyées. Her salon had alady become one of the fashionable nters of Paris. The little actress d, to use the words of one of her st fervent admirers, "struck it at st, and struck it very rich indeed."

no city of Europe does talent command such unqualified success as in gay capital of France. In other eat centers of civilization wealth d rank have more claims to attenn than the mere hall-mark of gen. But in Paris the artist can hold own against the highest and richin the land, and Mlle. Jackson s able to command as brilliant a cle of acquaintances as the Duchof Bruges herself.

he could, at least, flatter herself t her success was due almost enely to talent. Unlike many famous tresses, she had more to offer the blic than a beautiful face. She was, deed, plain-featured and insignifint. The men who admired her were t of the class that is attracted by perfect figure and lovely face of ne ballet girl, thrust into eminence her physical charms and the value her jewelry. They were men of rk. Leonore's sex meant little or thing to them. They realized that new star had arisen on the theatrihorizon, a star that would not w dim with the passing away of uthful charms, and they did homto its brilliance.

t was a triumph of pure talent, d, if any proof of this were required the cynics who believe that no man can command real admiration cept by virtue of her sex, it was be found in the significant fact t among Leonore Jackson's most vent admirers were women of evclass. The great lady of the amps Elysées and the struggling le artist of the Quartier Latin both ought Leonore Jackson one of the st charming women in the world.

Hence it came about that the Suny afternoon receptions in the use of "La P'tite Jackson," as Paris ll called her, were extremely popu, and as a rule, the rooms were ercrowded.

This particular afternoon was no exption to the rule. The grand sa, a room nearly forty feet square, s inconveniently full of people, and large number of men had to stand m the time of their arrival to that their departure. Leonore was in r element, brilliant and vivacious; moved from one little group to other, and the magic charm of her rsonality pervaded the whole room.

Shortly after 6 o'clock, when most the guests had departed, a newner was shown into the room. He s a tall, thin man of distinguished pearance, with iron-gray hair, musche, and imperial, and his pale, inutable face marked him as one o was accustomed to conceal his ughts and emotions. He was, in t, no less a personage than Sir rry Baxendale, the English Amsador in Paris.

All eyes were turned on him as he tered, for though Sir Harry's face s well known, he was rarely to be n in literary or artistic circles, and presence at Leonore's house was compliment of the highest order. She moved forward to meet him with a smile of triumph on her face.

"Ah, this is good of you, Sir Harry. I hardly hoped you would come."

He took her outstretched hand, and bowed stiffly.

"I am honored," he said, in a quiet, even voice, "and I have ventured to extend your invitation to a friend who wished to meet you."

"He is welcome," said Leonore, "but I do not see him."

Sir Harry Baxendale looked at his watch.

"He will be here in a few minutes," he said. "He could not come with me. His name is John Shil."

"Shil? Shil?" repeated Leonore. "I don't know the name. What has he done?"

"Nothing much at present," he replied; "a month ago he was an obscure land agent. Today he is one of the richest men in Europe. He proposes to do a great deal."

"Oh, a rich man," said the actress, with a laugh. "How uninteresting! There are so many of them. What has he made his money in?"

"He has not made it," replied Sir Harry. "The money was left him."

"Oh, that is even more prosaic," said Leonore. "A man who makes a lot of money must always command a certain amount of respect, however dull and uninteresting he may be, but a man who merely inherits it—well——" And she shrugged her shoulders scornfully.

"My father was rich," the Ambassador replied, "and I—well, you must not be too hard on men with money, Miss Jackson. But I think you will find this new millionaire a very interesting fellow. He is here in Paris on business, but he wishes to meet any one worth knowing, and I told him that you——"

"That will do, Sir Harry," interrupted Leonore, with a smile; "compliments are not allowed in artistic circles. We make it a rule to say unpleasant things to each other, and only praise people behind their backs."

"We do just the reverse in diplomatic circles," replied Sir Harry; "but as no one believes anything that is said, no harm is done. Ah, here is Shil. I am sure you will like him."

Leonore's eyes were turned to the open door, and she saw a tall, broad-shouldered man looking around the room, as though in search of some one. His face was hard and lined, for many years had passed over the head of the young land agent in the last few months. When he saw Sir Harry Baxendale, he came forward with the mere ghost of a smile on his lips.

The Ambassador introduced the young man to his hostess, and after a few words of general conversation left them, and went to another part of the room to talk to a famous English novelist.

"I have been anxious to meet you," said John Shil, quietly, when they were alone. "I am so glad that I was able to get an introduction to your house."

Leonore gave a sharp look at his face. She was used to little speeches of this sort, but, as a rule, they were uttered in a very different tone of voice; and the look in John Shil's eyes did not suggest any attempt at a compliment. She smiled, courteously.

"I am very pleased you have come," she replied. "I am always glad to meet English people, though I am, as you know, an American, and the English are our rivals in Paris. The French have not yet decided which of the two nations spends most money in their beautiful capital." She laughed merrily, but there was no answering smile on John Shil's face. His thoughts seemed to be far away, and a faint flush came into Leonore's cheeks. His inattention showed a lack of good breeding, and "La P'tite Jackson" was not used to the company of men who paid no attention to her. She made a quiet resolve to bring this hard-faced millionaire into the ranks of her admirers, and then show him his proper place—at the foot of the lowest rank of all.

"Shall we sit down?" she said, after a short pause.

"Yes," he replied abruptly, and then, realizing the rudeness of his reply, he smiled. "I beg your pardon," he added. "I should have said 'Thank you' or 'I should be delighted.' You must excuse my manners, Miss Jackson. I have had—I still have—a good deal of worry and anxiety. I cannot help thinking of things that I certainly ought not to think about when I am talking to you. Let us sit down. I very much wish to have a chat with you."

Leonore smiled with genuine pleasure. Her opinion of the man underwent a quick and remarkable change. He had, to some extent, opened his heart to her, a complete stranger. His words flattered her vanity. It was evident that he had discovered something in her nature that appealed to him, some evidence of womanly sympathy, some genuine worth in her character. No man speaks to a woman in the way he had spoken unless he has a high opinion of her, unless he wants advice or help. She moved towards a large sofa, which stood in a corner of the room, and seated herself at one end of it. John Shil followed her and took his place, not at the other end of the sofa, but rather close to her side.

For a few moments neither of them spoke. Then Shil looked at the actress's face, and, as though reassured by what he found there, broke the silence.

"I have particularly wished to meet you," he said abruptly, and then he paused, as if uncertain how to proceed.

"I am flattered," replied Leonore quietly, but without a trace of either sarcasm or coquetry in her voice.

"I understand," Shil continued, "that you know a very large number of English people in Paris. I have been looking for someone—a lady. It is possible you might have met her. I have reason to believe that she is, or was, in Paris. I have advertised in all the papers. The English Ambassador himself has given me all the assistance in his power. I have made inquiries everywhere, but I have heard nothing."

He spoke quickly and earnestly, and an eager look came into his hard face. Leonore noted both the look and the almost passionate note in his voice. Her curiosity was aroused. She did not, as a rule, take much interest in the troubles of strangers, but the man's face attracted her in some way that she could not clearly define, and she was pleased at the idea of being possibly able to give him some assistance.

"Paris is a large place," she replied. "But I should think if you went to the police————"

"I have done that, of course," he interrupted roughly. "Everything that money can do has been done. I feel that I must trust to chance. It is just possible that I may meet some one who can help me. The lady's name is Vane, Miss Laura Vane."

"Laura Vane," she repeated thoughtfully. "No, I certainly do not know any one of that name."

"It is possible that she has changed it," he continued.

"By marriage?" queried Leonore.

"No!" he answered fiercely. "Certainly not by marriage. But she may have assumed some other name."

Leonore noted the hungry, passionate look on his face, and knew well enough that John Shil was in love with the woman he was seeking for. She also knew that he would resent any reference to this obvious fact.

"I know several people of the name of Laura," she said after a pause, "but they are all, with one exception, married women."

"And the exception?" he asked eagerly.

"She is fifty-six years of age," she replied with a faint smile, "and she is the manageress of a society——"

"That would not be Miss Vane," Shil broke in with some vehemence.

"I thought not," Leonore said drily. "But perhaps— if you would describe the lady."

John Shil gave a halting description of Laura Vane. Like most men, and all lovers, he was totally unable to give an accurate description of the woman whose features were as familiar to him as those of his own face. But before he had finished his weak endeavor to portray the vision that was in his mind, Leonore's face grew very grave, and her eyes were turned away to a group of visitors who were preparing to depart.

"You will excuse me," she said, rising to her feet. "I will return to you in a moment." She crossed the room, chatted a few minutes with her guests, and then, when they had departed, returned to John Shil, accompanied by Sir Harry Baxendale.

"Sir Harry is obliged to go," she began.

"You needn't come, Shil," the Ambassador interrupted. "In fact, I would rather you didn't come. You couldn't accompany me farther than the door."

"Yes," Leonore added, "there is no need for you to go, Mr. Shil."

John Shil looked around the room, and saw that every one else had gone. His British ideas of propriety were battling with his desire to continue his conversation with Leonore. But he was not long in making up his mind.

"I will stay a few minutes, Miss Jackson," he said, "that is to say, if I don't bore you. I am rather interested in the matter we were discussing."

Sir Harry Baxendale smiled.

"Ah, you young folk," he said. "I envy you your interest in words; I don't think I really enjoy a conversation. It is always my business to detect the falsehood, which, to us, is inseparable from speech."

With the utterance of this cheerful sentiment, Sir Harry Baxendale departed, and Leonore was left alone to John Shil.

"Well, Miss Jackson?" he said eagerly, "to resume our conversation—did my description—have you ever met any one who might—who might——"

Leonore interrupted him with a laugh.

"My dear Mr. Shil," she said, "all I have gathered from your description is that the lady is very beautiful, and that she has auburn hair. Now, if you had a photograph."

For reply John Shil pulled out a small leather case, and opening it, gazed silently at its contents. And, as he looked, even Leonore, who knew nothing of the story of his life, felt a great pity for the sorrow that was written in every line of his face.

"Miss Jackson," he said humbly, "I feel that you are a good woman, or I should not—I should not show you this—all that is left to me of the woman I—of the woman I want to find."

She took the picture from his hand, and carefully scrutinized the features of Laura Vane. They needed no such scrutiny on her part, for the photograph was a faithful likeness, and a mere glance was sufficient to reveal the identity of the woman John Shil was looking for in Paris.

But Leonore required time to think. In the first shock of the discovery she could not decide whether to tell the man the truth or to lie boldly. It would be hard enough to tell this ardent lover that Laura was the wife of another man, almost impossible to tell him that she was the man's mistress.

Then there was Laura herself to be considered. Would Laura wish this man to know the truth? Who was he? What right had he to ask about her private affairs?

With these doubts and difficulties in her mind, Leonore did not dare to speak or raise herd eyes from the portrait to John Shil's face. At last, however, her long silence aroused the man's suspicion.

"Well, Miss Jackson?" he queried sharply. Leonore, forced to reply, resolved to temporize.

"I seem to know the face," she replied, but without taking her eyes off the photograph. "It is possible that I have met her somewhere. Have you any reason to suppose that she has been here—in Paris?"

"I have every reason," he answered; "she cabled to me from Paris about two months ago."

Leonore was silent, and still gazed at the photograph.

"Tell me the truth," he exclaimed roughly. "you know her. You have met her—here, in Paris. For God's sake tell me the truth, Miss Jackson."

Leonore raised her eyes, and saw the agony on the man's white face and the eager desire on his trembling lips. She felt that she would require all her strength of mind to resist his pleading. She resolved to let him know part of the truth.

"I have met this lady," she said slowly, "and here, in Paris. She has been in this very room. But she did not call herself Laura Vane."

John Shil rose to his feet, and his lips opened, as though to frame some question. Then he turned abruptly, and, walking over to the window, looked out into the street.

"Mr. Shil," said Leonore gently, "this interview is very painful to you, and also to me. I think that it had better come to an end."

John Shil turned on her fiercely, and threw all courtesy to the winds.

"You said just now," he exclaimed, "that you only knew one unmarried woman in Paris of the name of Laura—a woman of fifty-six. Is that the truth?"

"It is certainly the truth," Leonore answered coldly.

"What did Miss Vane call herself?"

"Please recollect, Mr. Shil," she replied, "that you are a stranger to me, and that I am not in the witness box."

"I humbly beg your pardon," he said gently. "But please tell me this. Did you know this lady's name was Laura?"

Leonore hesitated. She saw the purpose of the question, and all the answer would imply.

"I must know," he cried, savagely. "I must know."

Leonore's pity for the man gave place to a natural irritation at the tone of his voice.

"Her name was Laura," she answered, rising to her feet. "Mr. Shil, this interview is at an end."

"Thank you," he replied, in a low voice. "I understand. Miss Vane is married."

Leonore shuddered as she looked at his face. She felt half inclined to ring the bell for a servant, but she was a brave little woman, and decided that she could deal with her visitor in a more gentle manner.

"Mr. Shil," she said, coming close to his side, "I am very, very sorry for you."

"Her name?" he asked, hoarsely. "What is her husband's name?"

"I don't think I need answer that question," Leonore replied. "It would do you no good to know her husband's name. It might do her a great injury."

"I insist on knowing."

"Again I must remind you, Mr. Shil, that I am not in the witness-box. I am very sorry for you, but I cannot excuse your rudeness."

"Can you tell me where she is—where they are?" he continued, without heeding her rebuke.

"I cannot," Leonore replied, sharply. "I have not seen the lady or her husband for more than two months, and have not heard from either of them. I have no idea where they went to when they left Paris. It is probable that I shall not meet either of them again."

John Shil was silent. He did not believe that she was speaking the truth. But, distraught with pain and anger, he was at a loss how to acquire the knowledge he desired. He only knew one thing clearly, that he was likely to gain nothing by prolonging the interview.

"Please leave me, Mr. Shil," Leonore said, after a pause.

The young man looked into her face. It was not a beautiful face, but it had a singular charm of its own. It was, moreover, the face of a good and clever woman. And, as he looked at it, a sudden idea came into his mind, and, as it grew more definite, he smiled and held out his hand.

"Forgive me, Miss Jackson," he said, softly. "You must make allowance for my conduct. I have behaved like a cad. I am not myself. But still I should have known better than to offend a lady who has taken so kindly an interest in a stranger's affairs. Let us part friends, at any rate. I should like to feel that you thought well of me."

Leonore smiled as she took his outstretched hand. "I forgive you," she answered, pleasantly, "and I am very, very sorry for you. But I think I am right in taking the line I have adopted. And may I give you a word of advice before you go? I am not very old, but I have seen a great deal of the world, and I speak from bitter experience when I advise you to take no further steps to discover Laura—Vane. A meeting between you can only be painful to you both. She has passed out of your life; she is married——"

"Is she happily married?" he interrupted sternly. "Is her husband kind to her? Does he love her? I know that she does not love him. She cannot be happy."

"Thrust all thought of her out of your mind," Leonore continued, "that will be best and wisest. Good-by, Mr. Shil. I shall always be pleased to see you, but on one condition only, that you do not refer to this matter again."

"I will observe the condition," he replied with a grave smile, "and I shall certainly come to see you again. Good-by, Miss Jackson, and thank you—for your forbearance."

When he had left the room, Leonore flung herself into an armchair by the window, and, lighting a cigarette, relapsed into a very unpleasant train of thought. Her mind went back to her last interview with Laura, when the latter had learnt the terrible truth from her lips. She had not seen Tankerlane's victim since that afternoon. Two days afterwards she had called at the hotel, and both the man and the woman had departed without leaving any directions for the forwarding of letters. She could not even guess at the result of Laura's interview with William Tankerlane. It was possible that she had left him; it was also possible that she had reviewed the situation more calmly, and had decided to make the best of an unholy bargain in order to conceal her shame. In this respect Leonore was as much in the dark as John Shil. She was not surprised that she had received no communication from Tankerlane, but she was much hurt at Laura's silence.

The appearance of John Shil had introduced a new and puzzling factor into the problem that had often presented itself during the last two

GLEANINGS FROM THE MANUAL.

"What is my duty to the fellow travelers whom I meet on life's highway?"

"To be cheerful, kindly, helpful, myself, always welcoming the cheerfulness, the kindliness, the helpfulness of others."

"Does this mean charity to the poor?"

"It means charity to rich and poor, to high and low, to all those fellow travelers."

"What is the Sunshine way of giving?"

"As one equal passes the salt to another equal at table, kindly, courteously, without the spirit of patronage, without the feeling of having imposed an obligation."

"What is the Sunshine way of receiving?"

"As one equal receives the salt passed to him by another equal at table, confident that the giver has done nothing that the receiver would not have done had the conditions been reversed."

"How does the International Sunshine Society seek to emphasize the right way of giving, and the right way of receiving?"

"By having no initiation fees, and no dues except kind acts, which the poorest may pay as easily as the richest, the humblest as well as the most exalted."

"And what is the world-call of the International Sunshine Society?"

"Be good, cheerfully, in all things; do good, cheerfully, to all people; help as best you can to make life better worth living for everybody."

The Venice branch of Sunshine is planning a series of entertainments by which they hope to swell their treasury considerably.

The Tropico branch has become interested in the blind babies. They now have a blind babies' mite box on the table at each meeting, and will send on the offerings from time to time.

Several "shut-ins" have written to headquarters the past week, thanking Sunshiners and the readers of The Times for "sunshine" sent them.

SURGEONS' OPINIONS.

Strong Words from Strong Men on the Subject of Vivisection—All Condemn It.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

In the three articles so far written, I have endeavored to give sufficient information to shaw what vivisection is, as it is practiced over the world, on the dumb creatures so helpless in our hands. I have given out a few cases, and only of the least cruel, as I know if I had shown you the worst tortures, the large proportion of my readers would have turned away with horror, unable to endure to learn what for the sake of humanity, we all so much need to know.

I am giving only the bare, cold statement of facts, cases, and references, all of which I can substantiate if called into question, or criticised.

The animal creation is subject to man. Whether it was made so, or has become so through the dominating power of man, matters little for the purpose of these articles. The fact remains, and it should appeal to us in all justice. Many of them are our dependants, and some are capable of the strongest love for us and become the most devoted friends. Even the wild animal has been known in its distress to appeal for human help. Very often animals, especially the dog, save human life.

Cats, horses, elephants and some of the other animals, have saved human instinct.

What gives them power to know our danger? These are two of the deepest questions connected with animal life. Here is another—have we the right to put to the torture of long-drawn out agony, this creature of sentient being, so wonderfully made, and with rights as clearly defined as our own? Do not these questions give us pause? With reference to this point, I quote the words by Herr D. L. Ortt:

"In our decision on the morality of an action, we may not ask whether it will be useful or prejudicial. We admit in other cases that a human life is not to be esteemed the highest and most important of all things. We esteem it brave and noble that a man should offer up his life for an ideal. We admire the heroes who died for their fatherland, or from loyalty to a cause or person; we extol the martyrs who died for their creed, and thereby we proclaim that we esteem ideals higher than a human life.

"We should hold it cowardice if any one, to rescue his life, had renounced loyalty to his prince, his fatherland, or his creed.

"Is it not then cowardice that out of fear to lose our miserable life, we should forsake loyalty to our highest feeling of humanity, and allow innocent creatures to suffer in order to prolong somewhat our days on earth, or to improve a little the condition of our health?"

But does this "torture of the most atrocious description the mind of man can conceive," to quote the words of Claude Bernard,) enable us to prolong life?

Sir B. W. Richardson, in his work, "Biological Experimentation," says: "It is utterly impossible to observe natural function under the shadow of pain either in man or animal." Claude Bernard was the master vivisector of his time; the leading physiologist of France. Not content with giving him high honors while he lived, he was given a public funeral at the expense of the State, and a monument has been erected on a street in Paris to his memory. After having performed thousands of the most cruel operations in testing his theories on animals, he voiced his opinion on this question in one of his lectures to his students, by advising them while pursuing the study of human disease, "to forget all that they had ever learned from vivisection."

The late Prof. Lawson Tait, F.R.C.S., one of the most brilliant surgeons of this century, not only affirmed that vivisection was useless, but also declared that it led to erroneous conclusions. In a letter to the Birmingham Daily Post, December 12, 1884, he says:

"Like every member of my profession, I was brought up in the belief that by vivisection had been obtained almost every important fact in physiology, and that many of our most valued means of saving human life and diminishing suffering, had resulted from experiments on the lower animals. I now know that nothing of the sort is true concerning the art of surgery; and not only do I believe that vivisection has not helped the surgeon one bit, but I know that it has often led him astray."

In an address delivered at the annual meeting of the British Medical Association, held in August, 1899, the president of the section of State Medicine, George Wilson, M.D., L.L.D., on Preventive Medicine—a subject upon which he is one of the greatest living authorities, says: "After all these long years of flickering hope, I am prepared to contend that the indiscriminate maiming and slaughter of animal life with which these bacteriological methods of research and experimentation have been inseparably associated, can not be proved to have saved one single human life, or lessened in any appreciable degree the load of human suffering. I have ventured to make that pronouncement before, but in halting, academic fashion; I reiterate it here and now with the strongest and fullest conviction."

These quotations are strong words from strong men who are the medical giants of their profession, words all the more worthy of consideration, because they dare to take this stand before the world.

OUR PLEDGE.

"To make one another happy, to lighten one another's burdens, to share one another's cares, to be lifters, not leaners, to make the world a little sweeter place to live in, to be mutual encouragers, never discouragers of any one, to start songs, not complainings, and to do every day something beautiful, some kindness which will cheer and strengthen another."

For and Against.

"No," the tourist lady remarked, "I do not approve of woman's suffrage. Why should woman want to vote, anyway, when she already controls the ballot through her husband and sons?"

"Yes," replied the Each and All girl. "In many cases that is true, but what about the widow and the bachelor girl, who have neither husband nor sons, and who are property owners and, therefore, taxpayers? They are not exempt from taxation, but are required by the law which they have no share in framing to do their part toward the maintenance of the government of the land in which they dwell."

"Should they not be given the privilege of the ballot by the government they are forced to help support?"

"Yes, I think they should," assented the tourist lady.

"Not that I," continued the Each and All girl, "care for the ballot for myself. In fact, I am certain I never should vote even if I had the privilege."

"Oh, yes, you would," quickly replied the tourist lady, "for if you did not you would be harassed to death, simply harassed to death. I resided in a suffrage State, and I know whereof I speak. You would have to vote in order to have peace."

"Perhaps that might be," the Each and All girl answered. "Still I am in favor of equal rights, though I am essentially a woman's woman. When I look back through the history of ages and view the depths from which woman has arisen and the heights to which she has attained, when I pause to think of the battles she has fought, to gain the position she now occupies, when I review the sufferings she has endured for the liberty she enjoys today, I cannot consider that she is asking for anything extraordinary when she asks for equal rights. Neither do I think her freedom can be too great for all that she is and has today she has earned."

"But I do not think the ballot will aid her in advancing, neither do I think it will elevate her in any way," returned the tourist lady. "Rather do I think it will lower her. I do not believe women can ever purify the ballot."

"That remains to be seen," the Each and All girl replied. "The reports from New Zealand, where women have been casting their ballots, are, to say the least, gratifying. In no way has the ballot lowered woman's morals there; in fact, we read that the cause of morality has been aided and the condition of woman bettered. We also know along every line woman has taken up she has advanced and risen, her liberty has never lowered her, her presence has been the power that has elevated and purified. If this is so, why not along other lines with the ballot as well?"

"My view of the matter," the tourist lady quietly replied, "is, let woman stay at home and do her duty there. I think then she will be doing far better, and more effective work, than she ever could through the ballot."

Elements of Success.

Have you not read articles of such deep interest that you were filled with enthusiasm to a point of exclamation? Such is the case after reading Mr. Beal's article on "Some Elements of Success," portions of which are here quoted:

"The matter of desire is an important thing in the attainment of success. I agree with other writers when they say that the reason that many people fail to attain success is because 'they do not want it hard enough.' Desire, or aspiration, if you prefer the latter term, is the great motive power of the individual. Everything that man has ever accomplished has been attained largely by reason of the ardent, burning flame of desire, that, acting on the water of thought in the boiler of the mind, produces the steam of will and action. The more earnest the desire for a thing the more powerful is the resulting activities, providing that the spring of the will be released. We speak of will power, and all the rest of it, but the strong, ardent, positive desire is really the flame that produces the steam that runs the engines of life. Things are done because some one desires strongly that they be done. Without desire, the world would not advance an inch. Just imagine what would be the state of affairs if every one were to lose the desire for accomplishment tomorrow morning. The wheels would stop revolving; the machinery would cease to operate; the trains would stop; the entire activities of life would come to a standstill. Without desire there would be no work, no action, no progress.

"In the case of employés in an office, store or workshop one may easily pick out those who throw themselves into their work as distinguished from those who merely give time-service, without taking any interest in the task. The rule operates on all planes of activities, and seems to be based on some primary principle of life."

Politics and Population.

Dear Each and All Girls: Barbara says she believes there are more women who prefer to be governed by men than there are women who wish to vote.

Suppose there are; does she think the few women who wish to become physicians should be denied that privilege because all women do not wish to study medicine?

Open the way for all, then there will be freedom and not coercion. Apply the same reasoning to voting—then those women who have no opinions, or who do not care to have their opinions counted, need not vote, and those who wish to spend fifteen minutes once a year in expressing their opinion at the ballot box can do so. This gives every woman a "square deal."

There are four million paupers, one million unemployed men and one million and a half children employed in factories, in the country. These six million people are a useless burden upon society, yet Barbara advises women to marry and become mothers. The invention of machinery has decreased the necessity for human workers.

Is a cow, or cat, or pig any better because they have given birth to offspring?

Does procreation make a woman holier? Most certainly not. Barbara should study sociological problems She would soon realize that the overproduction of human beings is the cause of all poverty.

Why longer continue to produce that product of which there is already on hand a surplus of six million?

There is an oversupply of quantity; the quantity should be lessened and the quality improved.

FREEDOM.

Wants Woman Suffrage.

One who signs herself "A friend of Each and All," gives the following views on the subject of woman suffrage.

"I cannot resist writing to you on the subject of woman suffrage. I am a strong advocate of woman's rights. Sincere women have proved themselves to be equal to man in everything (except physical strength.) I think they should have the same rights and privileges that man asks for himself. Every man who has a "sense of justice" is willing to let her have them.

That is not the only reason why I favor woman suffrage, but I will not take time to mention more. I think "Nellie's" argument in The Times, splendid, but it does not go quite deep enough. If all women thought as she did and would take a little of their time to teach their children her doctrine of right, there would be no need for them to fight for their rights. I am sure her boys will never object to giving their mother, sisters and wives all the advantages that they wish or care for and that they enjoy.

"Nellie" seems to forget that it is owing to the brave fight for woman's rights that she has now a great many privileges that her mother and grandmother did not have, and that if she is safe in a good man's home, there are thousands of poor abused women and girls who are not, but are compelled to fight an unequal battle for existence.

I wish I could tell you how glad I am to see Mrs. E. M. Deardorff's letters again on the page and that you approve of the efforts made in behalf of God's poor, helpless, tortured creatures. May God bless the Each and All girls a thousand times, is my prayer.

How About It?

The following letter from "Blossom" should appeal to Each and All girls:

"Dear Girls: You will recall the member for whom we had a Valentine party, and to whom we have sent other cheer from time to time. That these kindnesses were appreciated, none can doubt. Word just comes that a letter party would have been much enjoyed on July 29 by this same member, but since we could not comply with this desire, can we not do as we did for another shut-in member, celebrate a month later? All who wish to let their lights shine are urged to send a birthday greeting on August 29 to Mrs. M. A. Strickland, Box No. 722, Union City, Mich., and if any member cares to share her Times Each and All page with Mrs. Strickland, it will be thankfully received. For the information of those unadvised it may be added that this dear soul has been an invalid for over twenty years, and now her husband is stricken down and both are helpless; death may have claimed the latter by this time. For those who are able to make this event a dime shower, it would be a pleasant surprise and great blessing to this long-suffering woman. Do not forget the date and start your letters off in good season, so delay may not be added to the disappointment of not having been remembered on the real birthday."

THE GAY BUTTERFLY.

The poor worm crawled in the dust of the earth,
While the butterfly circled on high,
Where the air was pure, the sunshine bright,
And a clear azure tint filled the sky.

The butterfly danced in gladness and glee,
The worm sadly toiled through each day.
He saw but the darkness, the gloom and the dirt,
And the rocks that obstructed his way.

When the butterfly spied the worm
in the dirt,
And her heart filled with grief and pain,
While she quickly resolved as on charity bent,
The worm to lift up to her plane.

So she fluttered quite low and the worm she addressed
In tones condescendingly kind.
She bade him arise to the brightness above,
And no longer be foolishly blind.

But the worm replied sadly: "It's impossible quite,
With no wings I never can fly."
"Oh, how stupid you are," the butterfly said,
"I presume you never did try."

"Oh, yes," the worm answered; "the effort I've made,
But I never can do it alone;
Please give me your aid and lift me
I pray,
Somewhere near to that place you call home."

"Why, you're impudent, sir, me thus to address,
Who gave you the liberty, pray?
I in charity came, not to lift you
above,
But kindly to point out the way.

"Your ingratitude now, I can scarcely believe,
When such kindness to you I have shown,
To expect me to aid you," the butterfly said,
Then she fluttered indignantly home.

"Lady Don't Care" is never rea for a discussion. I think it is h laziness. I notice she's equal to r ceiving all the benefits of a discu sion. The books containing these stories were never read, owing to the quaint language and the lack of certainty as to their containing real stories. But the story telling has stimulated such a literary appreciation in the school children of the grammar grades that number of them now read and characters have become familiar in hundreds of Philadelphia homes.

"The Merry Adventures of Robin Hood" forms another series, and is very popular with the older children. The story of Rhinegold is treated in another series; Brunnhilde, the war maiden; Seigfried, the fearless; "The Magic Ring." These stories have become as popular as Cinderella and "Jack the Giant Killer." Then there is a series of historic legends. "King Oliver," "Adventures of the Cid," "William Tell; the Boy and the Apple." It has been found that after hearing one tale, the interest has been awakened and it has led the children to ask for the very books to which it was desired to draw their attention. Another series deals with historic boys and girls; Olaf, the brave; Alexander, the Great; Joan of Arc; the Princess in the tower, and Pocahontas. Through this series Olaf and Joan have become great favorites, and the old Viking tales and French history have been made popular.

There is a series of American pioneers. Pontiac, the Great Chief; Elizabeth Zane, the girl who saved the fort; Daniel Boone, the Indian fighter; Kit Carson, the scout. This series has a great drawing power among the boys. Robert Bruce and the Black Douglas form still another series. A series of tales from Shakespeare has proved very interesting to the children, and the story of King Lear was readily understood by the little ones. Each story carried a lesson of respect for the aged and duty to parents. Heroes of the sea and a series of Norse stories have become very popular through the story-telling plan.

The popularity of the story hour among the children of Philadelphia has become so great that it has been found necessary to distribute cards of admission, and this is done through the teachers of the schools.

Children's Symphony.

Do you know that Haydn, the great musical composer, wrote a symphony for the special delight and exercise of children—a real symphony, wilder and sweeter than the chorus of a thousand birds? The children required to perform it need not be trained little musicians. They must only be attentive, and possessed of a quick true ear for music, and able to keep the dimples quiet, while the very funny, yet beautiful performance is going on. The music can be obtained at almost any first-class music publisher's, and the toy instruments, at any importing toy house.

To perform the "Children's Symphony" successfully, an experienced musical director is required, and four instrumental performers, with first and second violins, violoncello, and bass viol. Then eight children with toy instruments, etc., the cuckoo, with two tones, G and E. (The violins and bass viol must be tuned by this instrument.) The whistle is a large clarionet-shaped toy, which must be in G. The trumpet, a large metallic toy, must also be in G. The part for the drum is identical with the trumpet. For the quail (if a proper quail-pipe cannot be obtained) a second whistle can be used, which must be in F. The night-owl a mug-shaped instrument with an orifice in its side, through which a whistle is inserted—when used, it is partly filled with water, to give the tremulous owl-hoot sound. The common rotary rattle and ordinary triangle are used. The cymbelstern is an upright standard with two horizontal rings of different diameter, on which are fastened many bells, various in shape and tone. The four leading instruments playing in concert, seemed to inspire the timid toys with confidence and with persuasive and kindly notes to draw them out, each in its proper place, so that "Cuckoo! cuckoo! cuckoo!" appears as harmonious among the peerless notes of the great master as in the beautiful twilight of the summer sky, and the shriek of the night owl as weird and gloomy as at midnight hour in the dark recesses of its woodland haunts. When we see one so eminent wending his heavenly art, like the rainbow touching the earth, to meet the capacity and to make glad the hearts of children, we can well believe that his own soul, must have been touched with the spirit of Him who took little children in His arms and blessed them.

Owls' Houses.

Owls' houses are, for the most part, quite without lining. Whether from design or pure laziness, the bones and skulls of small animals which they have killed are left scattered about the floor. Gruesome playthings for the owl children! But one can scarcely imagine even a baby owl being anything but wise and dignified. It is easiest to picture them apparently gravely musing on these skulls like monks in their dark cells.

Since so many of the owls have their homes in hollow trees, we might expect some of their near relatives, the hawks, to be inclined to live in the same way. One of them, the little sparrow-hawk, does nest in comfortable knot-holes. Once I found him quartered snugly in a branch which had decayed at the end where part had been broken off. The bird, too, is satisfied with perfectly bare walls and floor, though the floor consists of small chips left by the decaying wood or by some woodpecker.—[St. Nicholas.

A SUNDAY SERIAL OF UNBROKEN INTEREST.

By J. B. Harris-Burland.

[Copyright, 1908, by J. B. Harris-Burland.]

CHAPTER XII.

HE MEETING OF THE WAYS.

One Sunday afternoon, nearly two nths after Laura had parted from lliam Tankerlane, Leonore Jackn was holding one of her informal eptions in her apartments in the amps Elysées. Her salon had alady become one of the fashionable nters of Paris. The little actress d, to use the words of one of her st fervent admirers, "struck it at t, and struck it very rich indeed." no city of Europe does talent command such unqualified success as in gay capital of France. In other at centers of civilization wealth d rank have more claims to attenn than the mere hall-mark of gen. But in Paris the artist can hold own against the highest and richin the land, and Mlle. Jackson able to command as brilliant a cle of acquaintances as the Duchof Bruges herself.

he could, at least, flatter herself t her success was due almost enly to talent. Unlike many famous resses, she had more to offer the lic than a beautiful face. She was, leed, plain-featured and insignifint. The men who admired her were of the class that is attracted by perfect figure and lovely face of ne ballet girl, thrust into eminence her physical charms and the value her jewelry. They were men of rk. Leonore's sex meant little or thing to them. They realized that new star had arisen on the theatrihorizon, a star that would not w dim with the passing away of uthful charms, and they did home to its brilliance.

t was a triumph of pure talent, d, if any proof of this were required the cynics who believe that no man can command real admiration cept by virtue of her sex, it was be found in the significant fact t among Leonore Jackson's most vent admirers were women of evclass. The great lady of the amps Elysées and the struggling le artist of the Quartier Latin both ught Leonore Jackson one of the st charming women in the world.

Hence it came about that the Suny afternoon receptions in the use of "La P'tite Jackson," as Paris ll called her, were extremely popu, and as a rule, the rooms were ercrowded.

This particular afternoon was no exption to the rule. The grand sa, a room nearly forty feet square, s inconveniently full of people, and large number of men had to stand m the time of their arrival to that their departure. Leonore was in element, brilliant and vivacious; moved from one little group to other, and the magic charm of her rsonality pervaded the whole room.

Shortly after 6 o'clock, when most the guests had departed, a newner was shown into the room. He s a tall, thin man of distinguished pearance, with iron-gray hair, musche, and imperial, and his pale, inutable face marked him as one o was accustomed to conceal his ughts and emotions. He was, in t, no less a personage than Sir rry Baxendale, the English Amssador in Paris.

ll eyes were turned on him as he tered, for though Sir Harry's face s well known, he was rarely to be n in literary or artistic circles, and presence at Leonore's house was compliment of the highest order.

She moved forward to meet him with a smile of triumph on her face.

"Ah, this is good of you, Sir Harry. I hardly hoped you would come."

He took her outstretched hand, and bowed stiffly.

"I am honored," he said, in a quiet, even voice, "and I have ventured to extend your invitation to a friend who wished to meet you."

"He is welcome," said Leonore, "but I do not see him."

Sir Harry Baxendale looked at his watch.

"He will be here in a few minutes," he said. "He could not come with me. His name is John Shil."

"Shil? Shil?" repeated Leonore. "I don't know the name. What has he done?"

"Nothing much at present," he replied; "a month ago he was an obscure land agent. Today he is one of the richest men in Europe. He proposes to do a great deal."

"Oh, a rich man," said the actress, with a laugh. "How uninteresting! There are so many of them. What has he made his money in?"

"He has not made it," replied Sir Harry. "The money was left him."

"Oh, that is even more prosaic," said Leonore. "A man who makes a lot of money must always command a certain amount of respect, however dull and uninteresting he may be, but a man who merely inherits it—well——" And she shrugged her shoulders scornfully.

"My father was rich," the Ambassador replied, "and I—well, you must not be too hard on men with money, Miss Jackson. But I think you will find this new millionaire a very interesting fellow. He is here in Paris on business, but he wishes to meet any one worth knowing, and I told him that you——"

"That will do, Sir Harry," interrupted Leonore, with a smile; "compliments are not allowed in artistic circles. We make it a rule to say unpleasant things to each other, and only praise people behind their backs."

"We do just the reverse in diplomatic circles," replied Sir Harry; "but as no one believes anything that is said, no harm is done. Ah, here is Shil. I am sure you will like him."

Leonore's eyes were turned to the open door, and she saw a tall, broad-shouldered man looking around the room, as though in search of some one. His face was hard and lined, for many years had passed over the head of the young land agent in the last few months. When he saw Sir Harry Baxendale, he came forward with the mere ghost of a smile on his lips.

The Ambassador introduced the young man to his hostess, and after a few words of general conversation left them, and went to another part of the room to talk to a famous English novelist.

"I have been anxious to meet you," said John Shil, quietly, when they were alone. "I am so glad that I was able to get an introduction to your house."

Leonore gave a sharp look at his face. She was used to little speeches of this sort, but, as a rule, they were uttered in a very different tone of voice; and the look in John Shil's eyes did not suggest any attempt at a compliment. She smiled, courteously.

"I am very pleased you have come," she replied. "I am always glad to meet English people, though I am, as you know, an American, and the English are our rivals in Paris. The French have not yet decided which of the two nations spends most money in their beautiful capital." She laughed merrily, but there was no answering smile on John Shil's face. His thoughts seemed to be far away, and a faint flush came into Leonore's cheeks. His inattention showed a lack of good breeding, and "La P'tite Jackson" was not used to the company of men who paid no attention to her. She made a quiet resolve to bring this hard-faced millionaire into the ranks of her admirers, and then show him his proper place—at the foot of the lowest rank of all.

"Shall we sit down?" she said, after a short pause.

"Yes," he replied abruptly, and then, realizing the rudeness of his reply, he smiled. "I beg your pardon," he added. "I should have said 'Thank you' or 'I should be delighted.' You must excuse my manners, Miss Jackson. I have had—I still have—a good deal of worry and anxiety. I cannot help thinking of things that I certainly ought not to think about when I am talking to you. Let us sit down. I very much wish to have a chat with you."

Leonore smiled with genuine pleasure. Her opinion of the man underwent a quick and remarkable change. He had, to some extent, opened his heart to her, a complete stranger. His words flattered her vanity. It was evident that he had discovered something in her nature that appealed to him, some evidence of womanly sympathy, some genuine worth in her character. No man speaks to a woman in the way he had spoken unless he has a high opinion of her, unless he wants advice or help. She moved towards a large sofa, which stood in a corner of the room, and seated herself at one end of it. John Shil followed her and took his place, not at the other end of the sofa, but rather close to her side.

For a few moments neither of them spoke. Then Shil looked at the actress's face, and, as though reassured by what he found there, broke the silence.

"I have particularly wished to meet you," he said abruptly, and then he paused, as if uncertain how to proceed.

"I am flattered," replied Leonore quietly, but without a trace of either sarcasm or coquetry in her voice.

"I understand," Shil continued, "that you know a very large number of English people in Paris. I have been looking for someone—a lady. It is possible you might have met her. I have reason to believe that she is, or was, in Paris. I have advertised in all the papers. The English Ambassador himself has given me all the assistance in his power. I have made inquiries everywhere, but I have heard nothing."

He spoke quickly and earnestly, and an eager look came into his hard face. Leonore noted both the look and the almost passionate note in his voice. Her curiosity was aroused. She did not, as a rule, take much interest in the troubles of strangers, but the man's face attracted her in some way that she could not clearly define, and she was pleased at the idea of being possibly able to give him some assistance.

"Paris is a large place," she replied. "But I should think if you went to the police————"

"I have done that, of course," he interrupted roughly. "Everything that money can do has been done. I feel that I must trust to chance. It is just possible that I may meet some one who can help me. The lady's name is Vane, Miss Laura Vane."

"Laura Vane," she repeated thoughtfully. "No, I certainly do not know any one of that name."

"It is possible that she has changed it," he continued.

"By marriage?" queried Leonore.

"No!" he answered fiercely. "Certainly not by marriage. But she may have assumed some other name."

Leonore noted the hungry, passionate look on his face, and knew well enough that John Shil was in love with the woman he was seeking for. She also knew that he would resent any reference to this obvious fact.

"I know several people of the name of Laura," she said after a pause, "but they are all, with one exception, married women."

"And the exception?" he asked eagerly.

"She is fifty-six years of age," she replied with a faint smile, "and she is the manageress of a society——"

"That would not be Miss Vane," Shil broke in with some vehemence.

"I thought not," Leonore said drily. "But perhaps— if you would describe the lady."

John Shil gave a halting description of Laura Vane. Like most men, and all lovers, he was totally unable to give an accurate description of the woman whose features were as familiar to him as those of his own face. But before he had finished his weak endeavor to portray the vision that was in his mind, Leonore's face grew very grave, and her eyes were turned away to a group of visitors who were preparing to depart.

"You will excuse me," she said, rising to her feet. "I will return to you in a moment." She crossed the room, chatted a few minutes with her guests, and then, when they had departed, returned to John Shil, accompanied by Sir Harry Baxendale.

"Sir Harry is obliged to go," she began.

"You needn't come, Shil," the Ambassador interrupted. "In fact, I would rather you didn't come. You couldn't accompany me farther than the door."

"Yes," Leonore added, "there is no need for you to go, Mr. Shil."

John Shil looked around the room, and saw that every one else had gone. His British ideas of propriety were battling with his desire to continue his conversation with Leonore. But he was not long in making up his mind.

"I will stay a few minutes, Miss Jackson," he said, "that is to say, if I don't bore you. I am rather interested in the matter we were discussing."

Sir Harry Baxendale smiled.

"Ah, you young folk," he said. "I envy you your interest in words; I don't think I really enjoy a conversation. It is always my business to detect the falsehood, which, to us, is inseparable from speech."

With the utterance of this cheerful sentiment, Sir Harry Baxendale departed, and Leonore was left alone to John Shil.

"Well, Miss Jackson?" he said eagerly, "to resume our conversation—did my description—have you ever met any one who might—who might——"

Leonore interrupted him with a laugh.

"My dear Mr. Shil," she said, "all I have gathered from your description is that the lady is very beautiful, and that she has auburn hair. Now, if you had a photograph."

For reply John Shil pulled out a small leather case, and opening it, gazed silently at its contents. And, as he looked, even Leonore, who knew nothing of the story of his life, felt a great pity for the sorrow that was written in every line of his face.

"Miss Jackson," he said humbly, "I feel that you are a good woman, or I should not—I should not show you this—all that is left to me of the woman I—of the woman I want to find."

She took the picture from his hand, and carefully scrutinized the features of Laura Vane. They needed no such scrutiny on her part, for the photograph was a faithful likeness, and a mere glance was sufficient to reveal the identity of the woman John Shil was looking for in Paris.

But Leonore required time to think. In the first shock of the discovery she could not decide whether to tell the man the truth or to lie boldly. It would be hard enough to tell this ardent lover that Laura was the wife of another man, almost impossible to tell him that she was the man's mistress.

Then there was Laura herself to be considered. Would Laura wish this man to know the truth? Who was he? What right had he to ask about her private affairs?

With these doubts and difficulties in her mind, Leonore did not dare to speak or raise herd eyes from the portrait to John Shil's face. At last, however, her long silence aroused the man's suspicion.

"Well, Miss Jackson?" he queried sharply. Leonore, forced to reply, resolved to temporize.

"I seem to know the face," she replied, but without taking her eyes off the photograph. "It is possible that I have met her somewhere. Have you any reason to suppose that she has been here—in Paris?"

"I have every reason," he answered; "she cabled to me from Paris about two months ago."

Leonore was silent, and still gazed at the photograph.

"Tell me the truth," he exclaimed roughly. "you know her. You have met her—here, in Paris. For God's sake tell me the truth, Miss Jackson."

Leonore raised her eyes, and saw the agony on the man's white face and the eager desire on his trembling lips. She felt that she would require all her strength of mind to resist his pleading. She resolved to let him know part of the truth.

"I have met this lady," she said slowly, "and here, in Paris. She has been in this very room. But she did not call herself Laura Vane."

John Shil rose to his feet, and his lips opened, as though to frame some question. Then he turned abruptly, and, walking over to the window, looked out into the street.

"Mr. Shil," said Leonore gently, "this interview is very painful to you, and also to me. I think that it had better come to an end."

John Shil turned on her fiercely, and threw all courtesy to the winds.

"You said just now," he exclaimed, "that you only knew one unmarried woman in Paris of the name of Laura—a woman of fifty-six. Is that the truth?"

"It is certainly the truth," Leonore answered coldly.

"What did Miss Vane call herself?"

"Please recollect, Mr. Shil," she replied, "that you are a stranger to me, and that I am not in the witness box."

"I humbly beg your pardon," he said gently. "But please tell me this. Did you know this lady's name was Laura?"

Leonore hesitated. She saw the purpose of the question, and all the answer would imply.

"I must know," he cried, savagely. "I must know."

Leonore's pity for the man gave place to a natural irritation at the tone of his voice.

"Her name was Laura," she answered, rising to her feet. "Mr. Shil, this interview is at an end."

"Thank you," he replied, in a low voice. "I understand. Miss Vane is married."

Leonore shuddered as she looked at his face. She felt half inclined to ring the bell for a servant, but she was a brave little woman, and decided that she could deal with her visitor in a more gentle manner.

"Mr. Shil," she said, coming close to his side, "I am very, very sorry for you."

"Her name?" he asked, hoarsely. "What is her husband's name?"

"I don't think I need answer that question," Leonore replied. "It would do you no good to know her husband's name. It might do her a great injury."

"I insist on knowing."

"Again I must remind you, Mr. Shil, that I am not in the witness-box. I am very sorry for you, but I cannot excuse your rudeness."

"Can you tell me where she is—where they are?" he continued, without heeding her rebuke.

"I cannot," Leonore replied, sharply. "I have not seen the lady or her husband for more than two months, and have not heard from either of them. I have no idea where they went to when they left Paris. It is probable that I shall not meet either of them again."

John Shil was silent. He did not believe that she was speaking the truth. But, distraught with pain and anger, he was at a loss how to acquire the knowledge he desired. He only knew one thing clearly, that he was likely to gain nothing by prolonging the interview.

"Please leave me, Mr. Shil," Leonore said, after a pause.

The young man looked into her face. It was not a beautiful face, but it had a singular charm of its own. It was, moreover, the face of a good and clever woman. And, as he looked at it, a sudden idea came into his mind, and, as it grew more definite, he smiled and held out his hand.

"Forgive me, Miss Jackson," he said, softly. "You must make allowance for my conduct. I have behaved like a cad. I am not myself. But still I should have known better than to offend a lady who has taken so kindly an interest in a stranger's affairs. Let us part friends, at any rate. I should like to feel that you thought well of me."

Leonore smiled as she took his outstretched hand. "I forgive you," she answered, pleasantly, "and I am very, very sorry for you. But I think I am right in taking the line I have adopted. And may I give you a word of advice before you go? I am not very old, but I have seen a great deal of the world, and I speak from bitter experience when I advise you to take no further steps to discover Laura—Vane. A meeting between you can only be painful to you both. She has passed out of your life; she is married——"

"Is she happily married?" he interrupted sternly. "Is her husband kind to her? Does he love her? I know that she does not love him. She cannot be happy."

"Thrust all thought of her out of your mind," Leonore continued, "that will be best and wisest. Good-by, Mr. Shil. I shall always be pleased to see you, but on one condition only, that you do not refer to this matter again."

"I will observe the condition," he replied with a grave smile, "and I shall certainly come to see you again. Good-by, Miss Jackson, and thank you—for your forbearance."

When he had left the room, Leonore flung herself into an armchair by the window, and, lighting a cigarette, relapsed into a very unpleasant train of thought. Her mind went back to her last interview with Laura, when the latter had learnt the terrible truth from her lips. She had not seen Tankerlane's victim since that afternoon. Two days afterwards she had called at the hotel, and both the man and the woman had departed without leaving any directions for the forwarding of letters. She could not even guess at the result of Laura's interview with William Tankerlane. It was possible that she had left him; it was also possible that she had reviewed the situation more calmly, and had decided to make the best of an unholy bargain in order to conceal her shame. In this respect Leonore was as much in the dark as John Shil. She was not surprised that she had received no communication from Tankerlane, but she was much hurt at Laura's silence.

The appearance of John Shil had introduced a new and puzzling factor into the problem that had often presented itself during the last two months. As Leo

GLEANINGS FROM THE MANUAL.

"What is my duty to the fellow travelers whom I meet on life's highway?"

"To be cheerful, kindly, helpful, myself, always welcoming the cheerfulness, the kindliness, the helpfulness of others."

"Does this mean charity to the poor?"

"It means charity to rich and poor, to high and low, to all those fellow travelers."

"What is the Sunshine way of giving?"

"As one equal passes the salt to another equal at table, kindly, courteously, without the spirit of patronage, without the feeling of having imposed an obligation."

"What is the Sunshine way of receiving?"

"As one equal receives the salt passed to him by another equal at table, confident that the giver has done nothing that the receiver would not have done had the conditions been reversed."

"How does the International Sunshine Society seek to emphasize the right way of giving, and the right way of receiving?"

"By having no initiation fees, and no dues except kind acts, which the poorest may pay as easily as the richest, the humblest as well as the most exalted."

"And what is the world-call of the International Sunshine Society?"

"Be good, cheerfully, in all things; do good, cheerfully, to all people; help as best you can to make life better worth living for everybody."

The Venice branch of Sunshine is planning a series of entertainments by which they hope to swell their treasury considerably.

The Tropico branch has become interested in the blind babies. They now have a blind babies' mite box on the table at each meeting, and will send on the offerings from time to time.

Several "shut-ins" have written to headquarters the past week, thanking Sunshiners and the readers of The Times for "sunshine" sent them.

"Be not swift to take offense,
Let it pass.
Anger is a foe to sense,
Let it pass.
Brood not darkly o'er a wrong,
Which will disappear ere long,
Rather sing this cheery song.
Let it pass."

SURGEONS' OPINIONS.

Strong Words from Strong Men on the Subject of Vivisection—All Condemn It.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

In the three articles so far written, I have endeavored to give sufficient information to show what vivisection is, as it is practiced over the world, on the dumb creatures so helpless in our hands. I have given out a few cases, and only of the least cruel, as I know if I had shown you the worst tortures, the large proportion of my readers would have turned away with horror, unable to endure to learn what for the sake of humanity, we all so much need to know.

I am giving only the bare, cold statement of facts, cases, and references, all of which I can substantiate if called into question, or criticised.

The animal creation is subject to man. Whether it was made so, or has become so through the dominating power of man, matters little for the purpose of these articles. The fact remains, and it should appeal to us in all justice. Many of them are our dependants, and some are capable of the strongest love for us and become the most devoted friends. Even the wild animal has been known in its distress to appeal for human help. Very often animals, especially the dog, save human life.

Cats, horses, elephants and some of the other animals, have saved human instinct.

What gives them power to know our danger? These are two of the deepest questions connected with animal life. Here is another—have we the right to put to the torture of long-drawn out agony, this creature of sentient being, so wonderfully made, and with rights as clearly defined as our own? Do not these questions give us pause? With reference to this point, I quote the words by Herr D. L. Ortt:

"In our decision on the morality of an action, we may not ask whether it will be useful or prejudicial. We admit in other cases that a human life is not to be esteemed the highest and most important of all things. We esteem it brave and noble that a man should offer up his life for an ideal. We admire the heroes who died for their fatherland, or from loyalty to a cause or person; we extol the martyrs who died for their creed, and thereby we proclaim that we esteem ideals higher than a human life.

"We should hold it cowardice if any one, to rescue his life, had renounced loyalty to his prince, his fatherland, or his creed.

"Is it not then cowardice that out of fear to lose our miserable life, we should forsake loyalty to our highest feeling of humanity, and allow innocent creatures to suffer in order to prolong somewhat our days on earth, or to improve a little the condition of our health?"

But does this "torture of the most atrocious description the mind of man can conceive," to quote the words of Claude Bernard,) enable us to prolong life?

Sir B. W. Richardson, in his work, "Biological Experimentation," says: "It is utterly impossible to observe natural function under the shadow of pain either in man or animal." Claude Bernard was the master vivisector of his time; the leading physiologist of France. Not content with giving him high honors while he lived, he was given a public funeral at the expense of the State, and a monument has been erected on a street in Paris to his memory. After having performed thousands of the most cruel operations in testing his theories on animals, he voiced his opinion on this question in one of his lectures to his students, by advising them while pursuing the study of human disease, "to forget all that they had ever learned from vivisection."

The late Prof. Lawson Tait, F.R.C. S., one of the most brilliant surgeons of this century, not only affirmed that vivisection was useless, but also declared that it led to erroneous conclusions. In a letter to the Birmingham Daily Post, December 12, 1884, he says: "Like every member of my profession, I was brought up in the belief that by vivisection had been obtained almost every important fact in physiology, and that many of our most valued means of saving human life and diminishing suffering, had resulted from experiments on the lower animals. I now know that nothing of the sort is true concerning the art of surgery; and not only do I believe that vivisection has not helped the surgeon one bit, but I know that it has often led him astray."

OUR PLEDGE.

"To make one another happy, to lighten one another's burdens, to share one another's cares, to be lifters, not leaners, to make the world a little sweeter place to live in, to be mutual encouragers, never discouragers of any one, to start songs, not complainings, and to do every day something beautiful, some kindness which will cheer and strengthen another."

meeting of the British Medical Association, held in August, 1899, the president of the section of State Medicine, George Wilson, M.D., L.L.D., on Preventive Medicine—a subject upon which he is one of the greatest living authorities, says: "After all these long years of flickering hope, I am prepared to contend that the indiscriminate maiming and slaughter of animal life with which these bacteriological methods of research and experimentation have been inseparably associated, can not be proved to have saved one single human life, or lessened in any appreciable degree the load of human suffering. I have ventured to make that pronouncement before, but in halting, academic fashion; I reiterate it here and now with the strongest and fullest conviction."

These quotations are strong words from strong men who are the medical giants of their profession, words all the more worthy of consideration, because they dare to take this stand before the world.

E. M. DEARDORFF.

For and Against.

"No," the tourist lady remarked, "I do not approve of woman's suffrage. Why should woman want to vote, anyway, when she already controls the ballot through her husband and sons?"

"Yes," replied the Each and All girl. "In many cases that is true, but what about the widow and the bachelor girl, who have neither husband nor sons, and who are property owners and, therefore, taxpayers? They are not exempt from taxation, but are required by the law which they have no share in framing to do their part toward the maintenance of the government of the land in which they dwell."

"Should they not be given the privilege of the ballot by the government they are forced to help support?"

"Yes, I think they should," assented the tourist lady.

"Not that I," continued the Each and All girl, "care for the ballot for myself. In fact, I am certain I never should vote even if I had the privilege."

"Oh, yes, you would," quickly replied the tourist lady, "for if you did not you would be harassed to death, simply harassed to death. I resided in a suffrage State, and I know whereof I speak. You would have to vote in order to have peace."

"Perhaps that might be," the Each and All girl answered. "Still I am in favor of equal rights, though I am essentially a woman's woman. When I look back through the history of ages and view the depths from which woman has arisen and the heights to which she has attained, when I pause to think of the battles she has fought, to gain the position she now occupies, when I review the sufferings she has endured for the liberty she enjoys today, I cannot consider that she is asking for anything extraordinary when she asks for equal rights. Neither do I think her freedom can be too great for all that she is and has today she has earned."

"But I do not think the ballot will aid her in advancing, neither do I think it will elevate her in any way," returned the tourist lady. "Rather do I think it will lower her. I do not believe women can ever purify the ballot."

"That remains to be seen," the Each and All girl replied. "The reports from New Zealand, where women have been casting their ballots, are, to say the least, gratifying. In no way has the ballot lowered woman's morals there; in fact, we read that the cause of morality has been aided and the condition of woman bettered. We also know along every line woman has taken up she has advanced and risen, her liberty has never lowered her, her presence has been the power that has elevated and purified. If this is so, why not along other lines with the ballot as well?"

"My view of the matter," the tourist lady quietly replied, "is, let woman stay at home and do her duty there. I think then she will be doing far better, and more effective work, than she ever could through the ballot."

ESTELLA BUHLINGER.

Elements of Success.

Have you not read articles of such deep interest that you were filled with enthusiasm to a point of exclamation? Such is the case after reading Mr. Beal's article on "Some Elements of Success," portions of which are here quoted:

"The matter of desire is an important thing in the attainment of success. I agree with other writers when they say that the reason that many people fail to attain success is because 'they do not want it hard enough.' Desire, or aspiration, if you prefer the latter term, is the great motive power of the individual. Everything that man has ever accomplished has been attained largely by reason of the ardent, burning flame of desire, that, acting on the water of thought in the boiler of the mind, produces the steam of will and action. The more earnest the desire for a thing the more powerful is the resulting activities, providing that the spring of the will be released. We speak of will power, and all the rest of it, but the strong, ardent, positive desire is really the flame that produces the steam that runs the engines of life. Things are done because some one desires strongly that they be done. Without desire, the world would not advance an inch. Just imagine what would be the state of affairs if every one were to lose the desire for accomplishment tomorrow morning. The wheels would stop revolving; the machinery would cease to operate; the trains would stop; the entire activities of life would come to a standstill. Without desire there would be no work, no action, no progress.

"In the case of employés in an office, store or workshop one may easily pick out those who throw themselves into their work as distinguished from those who merely give time-service, without taking any interest in the task. The rule operates on all planes of activities, and seems to be based on some primary principle of life."

Politics and Population.

Dear Each and All Girls: Barbara says she believes there are more women who prefer to be governed by men than there are women who wish to vote.

Suppose there are; does she think the few women who wish to become physicians should be denied that privilege because all women do not wish to study medicine?

Open the way for all, then there will be freedom and not coercion. Apply the same reasoning to voting—then those women who have no opinions, or who do not care to have their opinions counted, need not vote, and those who wish to spend fifteen minutes once a year in expressing their opinion at the ballot box can do so. This gives every woman a "square deal."

There are four million paupers, one million unemployed men and one million and a half children employed in factories, in the country. These six million people are a useless burden upon society, yet Barbara advises women to marry and become mothers. The invention of machinery has decreased the necessity for human workers.

Is a cow, or cat, or pig any better because they have given birth to offspring?

Does procreation make a woman holier? Most certainly not. Barbara should study sociological problems She would soon realize that the overproduction of human beings is the cause of all poverty.

Why longer continue to produce that product of which there is already on hand a surplus of six million?

There is an oversupply of quantity; the quantity should be lessened and the quality improved.

FREEDOM.

Wants Woman Suffrage.

One who signs herself "A friend of Each and All," gives the following views on the subject of woman suffrage.

"I cannot resist writing to you on the subject of woman suffrage. I am a strong advocate of woman's rights. Sincere women have proved themselves to be equal to man in everything (except physical strength.) I think they should have the same rights and privileges that man asks for himself. Every man who has a "sense of justice" is willing to let her have them.

That is not the only reason why I favor woman suffrage, but I will not take time to mention more. I think "Nellie's" argument in The Times, splendid, but it does not go quite deep enough. If all women thought as she did and would take a little of their time to teach their children her doctrine of right, there would be no need for them to fight for their rights. I am sure her boys will never object to giving their mother, sisters and wives all the advantages that they wish or care for and that they enjoy.

"Nellie" seems to forget that it is owing to the brave fight for woman's rights that she has now a great many privileges that her mother and grandmother did not have, and that if she is safe in a good man's home, there are thousands of poor abused women and girls who are not, but are compelled to fight an unequal battle for existence.

I wish I could tell you how glad I am to see Mrs. E. M. Deardorff's letters again on the page and that you approve of the efforts made in behalf of God's poor, helpless, tortured creatures. May God bless the Each and All girls a thousand times, is my prayer.

How About It?

The following letter from "Blossom" should appeal to Each and All girls:

"Dear Girls: You will recall the member for whom we had a Valentine party, and to whom we have sent other cheer from time to time. That these kindnesses were appreciated, none can doubt. Word just comes that a letter party would have been much enjoyed on July 29 by this same member, but since we could not comply with this desire, can we not do as we did for another shut-in member, celebrate a month later? All who wish to let their lights shine are urged to send a birthday greeting on August 29 to Mrs. M. A. Strickland, Box No. 722, Union City, Mich., and if any member cares to share her Times Each and All page with Mrs. Strickland, it will be thankfully received. For the information of those unadvised it may be added that this dear soul has been an invalid for over twenty years, and now her husband is stricken down and both are helpless; death may have claimed the latter by this time. For those who are able to make this event a dime shower, it would be a pleasant surprise and great blessing to this long-suffering woman. Do not forget the date and start your letters off in good season, so delay may not be added to the disappointment of not having been remembered on the real birthday."

THE GAY BUTTERFLY.

The poor worm crawled in the dust of the earth,
While the butterfly circled on high,
Where the air was pure, the sunshine bright,
And a clear azure tint filled the sky.

The butterfly danced in gladness and glee,
The worm sadly toiled through each day.
He saw but the darkness, the gloom and the dirt,
And the rocks that obstructed his way.

When the butterfly spied the worm in the dirt,
And her heart filled with grief and pain,
While she quickly resolved as on charity bent,
The worm to lift up to her plane.

So she fluttered quite low and the worm she addressed
In tones condescendingly kind,
She bade him arise to the brightness above,
And no longer be foolishly blind.

But the worm replied sadly: "It's impossible quite,
With no wings I never can fly."
"Oh, how stupid you are," the butterfly said,
"I presume you never did try."

"Oh, yes," the worm answered; "the effort I've made,
But I never can do it alone;
Please give me your aid and lift me I pray,
Somewhere near to that place you call home."

"Why, you're impudent, sir, me thu to address,
Who gave you the liberty, pray?
I in charity came, not to lift yo above,
But kindly to point out the way.

"Your ingratitude now, I can scarcel believe,
When such kindness to you I hav shown,
To expect me to aid you," the but terfly said,
Then she fluttered indignantly hom

"Fairie Queen," "Una and the Lion," "St. George and the Dragon," "Britomart and the Magic Mirror," and the "Sea Nymph's Son."

The books containing these stories were never read, owing to the quaint language and the lack of certainty as to their containing real stories. But the story telling has stimulated such a literary appreciation in the school children of the grammar grades that a large number of them now read and characters have become familiar in hundreds of Philadelphia homes.

"The Merry Adventures of Robin Hood" forms another series, and is very popular with the older children. The story of Rhinegold is treated in another series; Brunnhilde, the war maiden; Seigfried, the fearless; "The Magic Ring." These stories have become as popular as Cinderella and "Jack the Giant Killer." Then there is a series of historic legends. "King Oliver," "Adventures of the Cid," "William Tell; the Boy and the Apple." It has been found that after hearing one tale, the interest has been awakened and it has led the children to ask for the very books to which it was desired to draw their attention. Another series deals with historic boys and girls; Olaf, the brave; Alexander, the Great; Joan of Arc; the Princess in the tower, and Pocahontas. Through this series Olaf and Joan have become great favorites, and the old Viking tales and French history have been made popular.

There is a series of American pioneers. Pontiac, the Great Chief; Elizabeth Zane, the girl who saved the fort; Daniel Boone, the Indian fighter; Kit Carson, the scout. This series has a great drawing power among the boys. Robert Bruce and the Black Douglas form still another series. A series of tales from Shakespeare has proved very interesting to the children, and the story of King Lear was readily understood by the little ones. Each story carried a lesson of respect for the aged and duty to parents. Heroes of the sea and a series of Norse stories have become very popular through the story-telling plan.

The popularity of the story hour among the children of Philadelphia has become so great that it has been found necessary to distribute cards of admission, and this is done through the teachers of the schools.

Children's Symphony.

Do you know that Haydn, the great musical composer, wrote a symphony for the special delight and exercise of children—a real symphony, wilder and sweeter than the chorus of a thousand birds? The children required to perform it need not be trained little musicians. They must only be attentive, and possessed of a quick true ear for music, and able to keep the dimples quiet, while the very funny, yet beautiful performance is going on. The music can be obtained at almost any first-class music publisher's, and the toy instruments, at any importing toy house.

To perform the "Children's Symphony" successfully, an experienced musical director is required, and four instrumental performers, with first and second violins, violoncello, and bass viol. Then eight children with toy instruments, etc., the cuckoo, with two tones, G and E. (The violins and bass viol must be tuned by this instrument.) The whistle is a large clarionet-shaped toy, which must be in G. The trumpet, a large metallic toy, must also be in G. The part for the drum is identical with the trumpet. For the quail (if a proper quail-pipe cannot be obtained) a second whistle can be used, which must be in F. The night-owl a mug-shaped instrument with an orifice in its side, through which a whistle is inserted—when used, it is partly filled with water, to give the tremulous owl-hoot sound. The common rotary rattle and ordinary triangle are used. The cymbelstern is an upright standard with two horizontal rings of different diameter, on which are fastened many bells, various in shape and tone. The four leading instruments playing in concert, seemed to inspire the timid toys with confidence and with persuasive and kindly notes to draw them out, each in its proper place, so that "Cuckoo! cuckoo! cuckoo!" appears as harmonious among the peerless notes of the great master as in the beautiful twilight of the summer sky, and the shriek of the night owl as weird and gloomy as at midnight hour in the dark recesses of its woodland haunts. When we see one so eminent wending his heavenly art, like the rainbow touching the earth, to meet the capacity and to make glad the hearts of children, we can well believe that his own soul, must have been touched with the spirit of Him who took little children in His arms and blessed them.

Owls' Houses.

Owls' houses are, for the most part, quite without lining. Whether from design or pure laziness, the bones and skulls of small animals which they have killed are left scattered about the floor. Gruesome playthings for the owl children! But one can scarcely imagine even a baby owl being anything but wise and dignified. It is easiest to picture them apparently gravely musing on these skulls like monks in their dark cells.

Since so many of the owls have their homes in hollow trees, we might expect some of their near relatives, the hawks, to be inclined to live in the same way. One of them, the little sparrow-hawk, does nest in comfortable knot-holes. Once I found him quartered snugly in a branch which had decayed at the end where part had been broken off. The bird, too, is satisfied with perfectly bare walls and floor, though the floor consists of small chips left by the decaying wood or by some woodpecker.—[St. Nicholas.

Fun from the Tots.

When I was teaching in the kindergarten I always tried to impress on my pupils the necessity of neatness. One little girl repeatedly forgot her handkerchief. One day I said to her, "Use your kerchief." She, as usual,

"fordot it." I said, "You did not f get your lunch, did you?" She loo up in great surprise and said, "I t wipe my nose on an apple, tan —[The Delineator.

"I won't wash my face," said D defiantly.

"Naughty, naughty," reproved gra mother. "When I was a little gi always washed my face."

"Yes, and now look at it."—[Eve body's Magazine.

Teacher: Johnny Jimson, why w not you at school yesterday.

Pupil: Please, ma'am, I was c valescin'.

Teacher (in surprise:) From w pray?

Pupil: Three apple dumplin's a batch o' fudge.

A friend, who lived in another c had repeatedly promised our child one of his fine dogs, which, as he n lost an opportunity to remark, had unusually long pedigree.

One day, as I was returning h the children ran to meet me and of them cried, "Oh, sister, Mr. R has sent the dog. Do come bac the stable to see it. It has the l est pedigree and it just wags it cute!"—[The Delineator.

It is true that his fee is more than some others charge. However, he believes that he has passed the experimental stages and finds no one who is not willing to pay this small fee of $1.00, providing they receive reliable advice. If after the reading is over and you are not perfectly satisfied, he will not accept one penny of your money.

Without any attempt at mystification, but with unerring sight into the inner nature of things, he reveals that which you most wish to know. His advice on all matters, business, lawsuits, marriage, health, is invaluable. It is exact and correct—not guesswork. He gives names, dates, facts and figures, and shows clearly and distinctly the road to success in business as well as in domestic and family affairs.
Before you go into anything of importance—or undertake anything serious—in business or love, or marriage, or before you make any change—you should consult the master mind of psychic.

If you have already made a mistake, thrown away your money, and lost confidence through dealing with much-advertised and self-styled palmists and clairvoyants, and their cheap, claptrap methods, start anew, consult Prof. Stanley. He will tell you frankly your condition and what you may expect; if nothing can be done for you he will not take a cent of your money. Has not this honesty on the face of it?

PROF. STANLEY IS THE OLDEST LIFE READER in experience, the richest in knowledge and skill, crowned with years of unparalleled success. His advice has saved and made thousands happy. It will benefit you.

MUNDO
MUNDO
The man of mystery is still here; acknowledged peer of all psychics and known as the wizard of India and the only graduate of the Ordoo College of Occultism to ever leave his native land. He is unlike any you ever saw, does positively all that others claim to do and demonstrates the power of mind over matter free to every patron. The only man in America possessing this power. Seeing is believing. Try him, then try others and see if they can do the same. A capable man has confidence in his ability and will not require to deposit your money before his work is done. Mundo has read for many of America's leading citizens and a few titled foreigners, but he has more respect for his patrons and more consideration for their feelings than to publish their names broadcast for the sake of advertisement. Nor does he claim to have read for dozens of prominent people that common sense will tell you he never saw. If you need advice and want a reading from a real life reader who does not spend half his time slandering his competitors, see Mundo, the real life reader who really tells what you desire to know or no charge. A foolish weakling only will pay for a reading that gives no benefit. Stop and think, then. See MUNDO, the Hindoo psychic. Special readings, 50c.

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,
305½ S. SPRING, NEAR THIRD ST.
EXPERT ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST.

A resident of Los Angeles 25 years.
PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The HOROSCOPE—calculated from the PLANETS at your birth, will show what a powerful influence they have in all affairs of life. It shows diseases, deaths, domestic affairs, financial affairs; your talents; your environments; tells about children; when and where to travel; what to seek and what to avoid; when in danger of illness, accidents, death, losses, troubles, etc., etc., also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES OF THESE EVENTS FOR THE FUTURE. In fact, the HOROSCOPE gives ACCURATE AND RELIABLE information on ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. He read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Maxine Elliott, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, Senator Clark, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans. These are the names of PUBLIC persons, all personally met and read by Prof. Althouse—besides hundreds of others. Beware, however, of cheap, illiterate humbug readers, styling themselves as great readers, but who, by their vile and disgraceful practice of these noble sciences, drag them into the mire of fortune telling and fraud.
PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING GIVES ALSO AN ASTROLOGICAL READING.
PAPINTA, actress, writes and says: "Everything has turned out just as you predicted, when reading my hand and Horoscope. YOU ARE WONDERFUL, and I cannot express myself of what I think about your WONDERFUL TRUE READINGS."
MME. BALDWIN writes: "The Horoscope you wrote for me is absolutely CORRECT. My friend, MME. NORDICA, the singer, first showed me her Horoscope, and recommended your work to me. Inclosed find check for four more Horoscopes—all friends of mine."
MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK says: "I was greatly surprised to find how many of your warnings were well founded. YOUR READING WAS MOST MARVELOUS."
DR. ALEX. J. McIVOR TYNDALL SAYS: "Your work along the lines of Astrology and Palmistry is highly spoken of on all sides."
FREDERICK WARDE says: "Your reading was MOST SATISFACTORY."
LOUIS JAMES, actor, says: "Your reading was ENTIRELY SATISFACTORY."
PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of horoscopes and hand reading has brought him a large and successful practice. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances.
HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and experience can produce; therefore, HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.
Daily and evening, Sunday 10 to 5.

PERSONAL—

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store,) by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.
The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT INFORMATION.
PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.
Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions, success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.
MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

EDUCATIONAL—
Schools, Colleges, Private Tuition.

WILLING TO LEARN SPANISH IN A VERY SHORT TIME?

In January, 1908, when I began to take a course in Spanish with Prof. Uribe (619 S. Hill st.,) I did not know a word of Spanish. In June of the same year I was elected teacher of that language at Covina High School.

This short story tells better than any words of praise what Prof. Uribe's method is worth. It makes one acquire the practical use of the language in a very effective way and master the difficulties of grammar without any drudgery.

C. J. VAN VLIET, teacher at Hollywood High School. x29

EDUCATIONAL—
Schools, Colleges, Private Tuition.

WILLING TO LEARN SPANISH IN A VERY SHORT TIME?

In January, 1908, when I began to take a course in Spanish with Prof. Uribe (419 S. Hill st.,) I did not know a word of Spanish. In June of the same year I was elected teacher of that language at Covina High School.

This short story tells better than any words of praise what Prof. Uribe's method is worth. It makes one acquire the practical use of the language in a very effective way and master the difficulties of grammar without any drudgery.

C. J. VAN VLIET, teacher at Hollywood High School. x29

Tuberculosis

"I am convinced that in Mercury we have a specific for tuberculosis." (U. S. Naval Medical Bulletin, Washington, Government Printing Office, 1908.) This statement, which could hardly be made stronger, is occasioned by the almost incredible results obtained at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Las Animas, Colo., where a careful and scientific investigation of the treatment of Tuberculosis by Imidosuccinate of mercury is being conducted. The improvement in many cases is almost startling: In one, death was expected in a few days, but after less than six weeks' treatment the patient had gained 23 lbs. The report adds: "This transformation from a dying condition to one of such marked improvement in so short a period is most gratifying." The latest bulletin (April, 1909,) states that of the 83 patients under this treatment 83.16 per cent. have improved, several discharged cured. "The results obtained by this method of treating tuberculosis have been exceedingly gratifying, both to the patients and to the staff of this hospital." (1908 report.) As but few of the general public have, as yet, even heard of this treatment, and realizing its great importance, it has been decided to open a department at the Los Angeles Dispensary, 214-215 Columbia Trust Building, 313 West Third street, where a physician will be in attendance from 3 to 4 daily (except Sundays) to explain the method to any one interested (no fee charged,) and treat those suitable cases who may desire it.

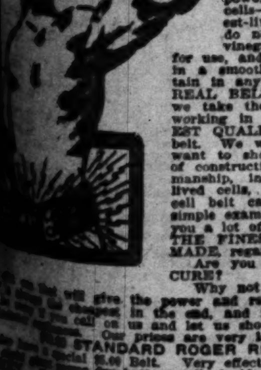
Restore Health and Strength



Dr. Roger Redfern's Dry Battery Electric Belt is a powerful high-grade appliance that is worn about the body.

All night long it sends a powerful, invigorating current of electricity through the ailing parts, giving them new life, strength, circulation, nerve life. This belt generates its own power by a number of powerful little dry cells—the smallest, most powerful and longest-lived dry cells ever manufactured. You do not have to soak the batteries in nasty vinegar or acids—the power is always ready for use, and it goes direct through the ailing parts in a smooth, gentle current that you cannot obtain in any similar appliance. If you want a REAL BELT—a powerful belt, a belt with which we take the greatest care in manufacture—perfect working in every way; in fact, THE HIGHEST QUALITY BELT MADE—call and see our belt. We will not insist on your buying—we only want to show you what we offer. In perfection of construction, elegance of materials and workmanship, in the greater power and small, long-lived cells, the Dr. Roger Redfern "London" dry cell belt cannot be equaled by any belt, and a simple examination will prove it. Are you interested in ELECTRICITY AS A CURE?

Why not get a good belt while you are about it—one that will give the power and results—A HIGH QUALITY BELT. The cheapest in the end, and if you are interested in belts you will call on us and let us show you before you pay out your money. Our prices are very low for the quality appliances we offer.

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How to Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bed-ridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, prepaid.

Ormsby McHarg,

stant Secretary of Commerce and Labor, who yesterday declared too many dreamers are trying to direct reclamation and conservation. He advises them to let the West alone.

WISDOM NOT ALL IN WASHINGTON.

T THE WEST ALONE SAYS ASSISTANT SECRETARY M'HARG.

Department of Commerce and Labor Official Finds Too Many "Dreamers" Are Trying to Direct Forest nd Reclamation Projects—He Believes in Red-Blooded Men Who Are on the Ground.

ASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Common sense has been displaced by visionary theories, already d unsuccessful in the problems of West's development, according to by McHarg, Assistant Secretary e Department of Commerce and , who is outspoken in the decla- that "too much dreaming" has indulged in in dealing with the nment irrigation projects and conversation policies in the McHarg handled vigorously the ct of the "uplift" movement, de- g that to have directed a move- of "uplift" among the American rs was an insult to the finest nt in the country's body politic, he "absurdest of absurd dreams." McHarg, in an interview, flatly dicted the assertion of the for- rvice that the lumber supply of untry will virtually be exhausted other generation if the present f cutting is not curtailed.

rthermore," said Mr. McHarg, forest service has been put in sion of facts and figures prov- e truth of what I say and it has to make them public.

thods too dreamlike are being pursued in our forest administration. It is attempted to designate what tree the logger may cut down and that which he may not. Men who are doing the practical developing work of the West are thwarted and you hear nothing but cursing from them for the present methods of forest conservation.

WOMAN'S HEINOUS CRIME.

"Out near Cheyenne recently, a woman settler went on a forest reserve and cut rails for a small corral. The forest service had her indicted for this heinous crime. What do you think the attitude of every man in that community is toward the forest service? That's the feeling you encounter throughout the West.

"Leave the West alone. Let it go ahead and develop. Let the red-blooded men out there do the work. It won't be long then until the East will be the back door of the nation."

Mr. McHarg said there was much complaint in the West against the Reclamation Service as it has been conducted.

"Extravagance and incompetency are the charges that have been made," he explained, "and these are now being investigated, I am informed, in the present tour of the West by Secretary of the Interior Ballinger and the Senate committee."

Mr. McHarg said he knew that in engineering projects of the Reclamation Service in the state of Washington, it had assured settlers that the cost would be no more than $35 an acre.

"The cost is already $75 an acre," said the Assistant Secretary, "and the end is not yet."

A ball game was attended by large numbers of fans. The team of Court La Fiesta, No. 880, defeated the one of Court Morris Vineyard No. 532 by a score of 12 to 4. The first ball was pitched by Frank B. Hand, Superintendent of Organizers, while High Chief Ranger Dickson caught the first three balls. Jack Lee and Jack Hollingsworth, who rooted impartially for both sides, lost their voices before they left the bleachers.

At 7:30 o'clock the Foresters crowded the pavilion when a pleasing vaudeville entertainment was given. Organizer Hand delivered a brief address telling of the order and its work and then introduced Dr. Dickson, the High Chief Ranger. Dr. Dickson talked briefly, though to the point, congratulating the committees and the members of the order on the success of the picnic. He spoke in a congratulatory way of the work of the committees, as they had done all of the work. He had done nothing, he said.

George W. Wood gave a reading and numbers were given by the following professionals: Swan Wood, Charles E. Royal and Theodore Foucher.

The day concluded with a ball, Dr. and Mrs. Dickson leading the grand march.

RUSHING WHARF WORK.

A large force of men is working on Wharf No. 3 in an effort to complete the extension of it by September 10, in readiness for the big British freighter, the Carlton, which is due here then. The Carlton sailed August 18 from Hongkong, with 100,700 ties for the Santa Fé, which is the biggest cargo of freight ever received at this port.

DR. BURDETTE GAINING.

"Dr. Burdette is resting more comfortably today than he has before in the past three days" is the report given from the Burdette residence tonight. He passed a tolerably comfortable night. Although Dr. Burdette has not been so well the past few days his condition is not alarming, when the unusual nature of the disease is considered.

A Remarkable Chapel.

The most remarkable mortuary chapel in America is located in Calvary Cemetery, Long Island City, N. Y., and cost $180,000. The crypts or catacombs are for the burial of priests of the dioceses of New York, under the charge of which the cemetery is maintained. At present, but one section of the catacombs has been completed with accommodations for twenty-four bodies in the concrete niches. But the section can be extended underground in four directions, and at any time an addition for seventy-two more bodies can be made. For a cryptal burial there is a lift set into the floor of the chapel to lower the body to the level of the crypts. The record for burials at Calvary indicates that the mortuary chapel will be in almost constant use. The burials average seventy a day and often run as high as 120.—[Popular Mechanic.

cross-section plan of a good road extended by the imagination into a stretch of a mile, certainly presents a fascinating picture. Thirty feet of well-constructed road, either concrete, with asphalt surface, or good brick down the middle of the road, then along the outer edges of the highway six feet of well-constructed sidewalk, and between the sidewalk and the carriageway on each side a fourteen-foot strip nicely sodded, with trees at convenient distances and between these a few flowering plants. Let us extend the scope of our imagination and picture such a road all the way from the eastern edge of the city to the western edge of Alhambra, from the eastern confines of that city to the San Gabriel River at El Monte; or out Pico street from the western edge of the city there or at Washington, along the foothillc or the lower plain to the limits of Santa Monica; again, down from the lower end of Main street or Moneta avenue to the harbor; or from out at the eastern end of First street to Whittier, and on farther to the Orange county road. If we had half a dozen such roads radiating from the city, the fascination of life under our sunlit skies and in our glorious climate would certainly be enhanced many times.

The Cost of Roads.

It is going to cost this country a good deal of money in the next twenty years for good roads. The work will give employment to a great many people, and use up a great deal of raw material, for which somebody will receive the money, but it will be the best-spent money the country has ever put out. It will enhance the joys of life in the country about a thousandfold and will save the farmers and others who use the highways for heavy hauling, 25 to 50 per cent, per annum on the money it will cost each one for the construction of such roads. It seems to be with us an accepted axiom that the macadam road is good enough for any purpose. They have had a good deal of experience in this matter at the East, and where the traffic is heavy there has been a very radical change of sentiment on this head. The concrete base with asphalt surface has taken the place of plain macadam, and now the conclusion is general among the intelligent that vitrified brick is the coming roadway. It will be a long time before we have a national highway all the way across the continent constructed of this lasting material, and it will be a long time before we have a chain composed of links built by several States or by States and counties combined. In California there is no law at present authorizing the undertaking of vitrified brick roads to be paid for by money raised upon county bonds, but it will have to come. We have a dispute between the merchants of this city and the railroads at present about freight rates between here and the harbor. The city now extends to tidewater, and it is within the power of the city authorities to construct, when they shall deem it advisable, any kind of highway which exigencies may demand. The merchants say they may be forced to haul merchandise from the harbor to the city by automobile trucks if the railroads insist upon maintaining their high rates. If this is ever done it will not take many months of experience to demonstrate the necessity of a vitrified brick road.

Now for Definite Figures.

A roadway thirty feet wide constructed properly of vitrified brick, it is estimated would cost about $8 per running foot. Divided between the property on each side of the roadway, this would mean $4 per running foot. If a property holder's lot were fifty feet wide, at this rate such a street would cost for the roadway alone $200. There would be the sidewalk, gutter and parking still to provide for. If the construction were done under the Vrooman act the cost for the roadway alone would be $20 a year, plus interest at 7 per cent. for the first year on the entire amount of the cost, and in the last year nothing at all. The average would be about 3½ per cent. a year on the entire cost, $200. Of course there will be a good deal saved in repairing and also in keeping the streets clean.

What They Find at the East.

A report from Allegheny county, in Pennsylvania, shows that there is there a system of macadam roads covering about 300 miles. It is said that the cost of keeping these roads in repair is $800 per mile per year, or a total charge upon the taxpayers of $240,000 annually. This expense is so staggering that as rapidly as possible vitrified brick pavement is being laid on top of the macadam. The reason for the rapid decay of the macadam road is attributed to the automobile, which whizzing past so rapidly draws out the fine "binder" and then the road crumbles to pieces, the rain gets in, and the macadam is gone.

Keeping Our Roads in Repair.

The Times has adverted several times to the necessity for giving consideration to the keeping of our good roads in repair. If it is going to cost us for our 300 miles what it does Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, it will be a pretty heavy burden. The roads there are probably used much more than those here. If we had undertaken the construction of 300 miles of vitrified brick road we would have had to issue bonds to the amount of $7,000,000, or twice as much as what we have issued. If such bonds could be sold at 4 per cent. and we could save the difference in expense of maintenance indicated by the experience of the Pennsylvania people, we might possibly be getting off cheap.

REPORTS BUSY TIMES.

Local Real Estate Firm Does Two Hundred Thousand Dollar Business in Two Weeks.

Jonathan S. Dodge, president of the First National Bank of South Pasadena, has sold to F. E. Edwards, vice-president of the Bank of Southern California, seventy-one and one-half acres on White Oak Drive, the consideration being $71,500, or $1000 an acre. The purchase is a portion of the original Chapman ranch. The deal was made through Giles & Kells, managers of the house and lot department of the Wright & Callender Company. Mr. Edwards will improve the property with a magnificent country residence, which he will occupy as his home.

Through the same agency Mr. Edwards sold to Mr. Dodge the property at No. 2415 Western avenue. The lot, which is 200x210 feet, is improved with a beautiful dwelling, and elaborately gardened. The price paid was $64,000. Mr. Dodge will make the place his home. Mr. Edwards has also sold to a local investor a one-tenth interest in the Hinman Syndicate for $27,500 This syndicate owns the northeast corner of Seventh and Figueroa streets, occupied by the Hinman Apartments.

The same dealers report the following for the past two weeks: Minnie E. Hill to Susan S. Summers, the six-room cottage at No. 1323 Rich street, on a lot 50x125 feet, for $5000. Anna Leland to George H. Rector, a lot in the Copenhagen tract. This lot is on the west side of New Hampshire street, sixty feet south of Sixth street. The consideration was $3500. Mr. Rector has already started to build a handsome residence to cost about $9000. Sarah Ellen Chanslor to Emma H. Henderson, a lot in the Copenhagen tract, for $6500. CALIFORNIA FURNITURE CO.

REPORTS BIG LEASES.

Dan Miller reports the following leases through his agency: The Prather-Croad Company, the store room situated at No. 535 South Broadway for a term of five years for a total consideration of $48,000. The firm is located at present at the Central Department Store. Winifred C. Stone, at present at No. 200 East Fourth street, will occupy the sixth floor of the Forrester building at No. 640 South Broadway for a term of five years at a total consideration of $12,000. J. Korn, at present in the Parmelee-Dohrman building, has leased the store room situated at No. 740 South Broadway for a total consideration of $7200, the term being three years. The studio that was formerly owned and controlled by C. Cowles on the second floor of No. 535 South Broadway, to Albert W. Witzel of Seattle. The price paid was $5000. Mr. Witzel took a lease on the second floor of No. 535 South Broadway for five years, at a total consideration of $12,000. The north half of the store room situated at No. 640 South Broadway, in the Forrester building, to George B. Bonnerson & Co. of New York for a total consideration of $42,000, the term being five years.

BUYS ON FLOWER STREET.

The sale of fifty feet frontage on the west side of Flower street between Eighth and Ninth, is reported. The lot is occupied by the Palmyra Apartments. The buyer is Frank J. Hess, a wealthy capitalist of this city. The sale was negotiated by Frank M. Vale of the Arthur W. Kinney Company. Taylor M. Gronen of Hobart boulevard was the seller. The price is understood to be $30,000. This emphasizes the inherent values of property in this section of the city.

BUY FOR INVESTMENT.

L. A. Dalton & Co. report the sale of the property at Nos. 1505-7 South Grand avenue for T. C. Radbone, to a local investor, the consideration being $17,500. The lot is 49x140 feet. The improvements are nominal. The place was bought for investment.

SKYWARD.

MAY ADD AN EIGHTH STORY.

HANDSOME BROADWAY BUILDING TO BE STARTED AT ONCE.

J. E. Carr Building to Be Occupied in July, Nineteen Ten, by California Furniture Company—Will Be Fireproof, Well Lighted and Modern in Equipment.

On this page is reproduced the architect's perspective of the attractive and substantial building which J. E. Carr will at once erect for the California Furniture Company, on the east side of Broadway, between Sixth and Seventh. The structure, which was designed by R. B. Young, will be one of the handsomest and most commodious business blocks in the city. It is highly probable that the height will be continued to eight stories, instead of to seven, as originally planned, and that the total cost will be increased to approximately $95,000. The work of construction will be under the supervision of Mr. Young and of his son, Frank Wilson Young.

The building will be of Class A construction, and fireproof. It will have mezzanine floor and basement, the latter being ten feet high. The first floor will be twenty feet in height, the second fourteen feet, and the remaining floors eleven feet each. The structure will have a frontage of fifty-seven feet, and a depth of 150 feet. It will stand 107 feet above the sidewalk. The front will be faced with cream-colored enameled terra cotta and pressed brick, with ornate copper frames and cornice. An unusual amount of plate glass will be used, thus insuring the occupants of one of the best-lighted stores on the Coast.

The interior will be finished in quarter-sawed oak, and the floors will be hardwood. Two plunger elevators, one for passengers and the other for freight, will be installed. Each floor will be equipped with a complete sprinkling system. The plumbing and other interior fittings and appointments will be of the most modern and approved types for this class of building.

The structure will be occupied by the California Furniture Company immediately upon its completion, about July 1, 1910, and under a ten-year lease. The total consideration involved is reported at approximately $250,000. The future tenants are now located directly opposite to the building site. The firm is forced to seek larger and more commodious quarters because of the growth of its business.

BUYS SEVEN LOTS.

Black Bros. report the sale by R. G. Davis to E. Elkeler, of seven lots in the Bowen's Slauson Junction tract. The consideration was $4000 cash.

BUYS NEAR-IN CORNER.

Capitalist Pays Sixty Thousand for Fifty-five Feet Fronting on Hope Street at Eighth.

W. B. Merwin & Co. report the sale through their agency of the northwest corner of Hope and Eighth streets to C. E. French. The property consists of a lot with fifty-five feet frontage on Hope and 126 feet depth on Eighth, improved with two three-story frame rooming-houses.

The sellers were members of a local syndicate which acquired the corner early in the summer. Mr. French will hold his purchase for awhile, and will in all probability eventually build. The consideration involved in the deal, which was partly in the nature of a trade for property in Boston, was $60,000.

REAL ESTATE NOTE.

A portion of the 180-acre tract known as the Beachwood Park, Hollywood, owned by Albert H. Beach, comprising twenty acres, has just been placed on the market. The property lies north of Franklin street and east of Gower street. It has been subdivided into lots averaging from seventy to eighty feet in width, and 225 feet in depth. All improvements have been completed, and consist of complete street work, twenty-foot parkways, and six-foot cement walks. It is considered high-grade foothill property adapted for homes.

BUY HOLLYWOOD TRACT.

For the consideration of $32,000, eight acres of the tract known as the Rapp property, lying between Gower and Shermoyer streets, Hollywood, north of Franklin street and south of Beachwood Park, have just been sold to a Los Angeles syndicate headed by Sanford Rich and H. C. Galloway. The property is to be immediately subdivided into lots of large dimensions for the erection of homes.

GETS YUMA COURTHOUSE.

R. B. Young has been awarded the contract for the lareg and expensive Courthouse which will soon be erected at Yuma, Ariz. Mr. Young's plans were adopted by the County Commissioners of that city yesterday afternoon, according to word received late last evening. Seven Los Angeles architects competed for the rich prize.

IN THE WESTLAKE DISTRICT.

John B. Cornwell, with Mines & Farish, reports the following sales: Clara R. Shatto to Alice Covert, the northwest corner of Virgil avenue and Fifth street, 80x170 feet, for $6500; Eliza W. Steck to Stephen Rice, a lot on the west side of Occidental boulevard, 70x175 feet, for $4000. Handsome homes will be erected at once. Mr. Cornwell says the indications point to great activity in this handsome residence section this fall.

This home of twelve rooms will be completed Monday, and a more beautiful property for the price cannot be found in the Wilshire district. It is located within a half block of Wilshire boulevard and the West Sixth street car; has hardwood floors throughout, large cellar, gas, furnace, etc. On the first floor there are living room, library, dining room breakfast room, kitchen and large porch. Second floor has five bedrooms, including sleeping porch, and a full tiled bathroom with shower. On the third floor are ballroom, trunk room and servants' quarters complete. See this home with us; we will be pleased to show it to you. $4500 will handle it; the balance to suit you.

INVESTMENT IN A WESTLAKE HOME.

$15,500.
$15,500.

Located on a northwest corner of Seventh street, within one block of Westlake Park, we have a 65x122 ft. lot, improved with a nine-room home, strictly modern and less than two years old. Hardwood floors, cellar, furnace, Ruud heater and one of the finest bathrooms in the city, it being 14 feet square and fully tiled and equipped with the latest improved plumbing. Vacant corners in that vicinity are selling for $300 per foot and, conservatively speaking, this corner is well worth $20,000. Rating the cost of the building at $9000, you will readily see that at the above price of $15,500, the place is a decided bargain; within a few years it can be sold for four times the present asking price and will prove a delightful home in the meantime. Restrictions will allow a hotel or apartment house to be built at any time. We recommend this as a excellent investment and firmly believe the lot will be worth $50,000 within five years.

FUTURE HOTEL SITE.

$16,000.
$16,000.

This house is on the high ground between Wilshire Boulevard and Seventh street, facing east, with 107½ feet frontage by 122 feet deep; has ten rooms, in need of a little repair, but $1000 will convert it into a most livable home. Circumstances compel the owner to sacrifice it at the above price. There is no question but that the property is well worth $200 per foot now and in a few years it will undoubtedly bring $500 per foot; within two hundred feet of Westlake Park and two blocks of Sunset Park, one-half block from Wilshire Boulevard and one-half block from Seventh street, there is no better hotel or apartment house site in the Westlake section. We will be pleased to show this to any prospective purchaser as we believe it is the best value in Los Angeles for $16,000.

ARTISTIC HOME ON WILSHIRE BLVD.

$30,000.

In the most desirable portion of Wilshire Boulevard we have a delightful and elegant home which must be sold this week. Looking up a broad boulevard, on a lot 80x175 ft., which is highly improved with trees, shrubs and flowers, with an unsurpassed view, its peer cannot be found at $30,000. If desired, the furnishings can be sold with the house and possession can be given immediately. This is the first time we have had an opportunity to offer such a beautiful home at such a low figure for more than a year, but it must be sold, and we can readily explain the owner's wish for selling it in a few words. The ten large rooms with two tiled baths, equipped with every convenience that money can buy, make a most attractive home at a price which is certainly low.

One of the most artistic bungalows in the Wilshire section, located on Cahuenga blvd., on a west front lot 50x160; containing a living-room, dining-room, den, two large bedrooms, maid's room, commodious bathroom, kitchen and screen porch; also an 8-ft. cement porch across the entire front of structure.

The inglenook, which is a distinctive feature, contains an exceptional mantel 18 inches wide, extending to ceiling with paneled and recess effects. Handsome bookcases built into the face of the mantel, form a very novel effect.

The very pretentious buffet has leaded glass doors, beveled plate mirrors, etc. The dining-room opening on a cool and inviting patio (or court) permit an art glass treatment above the buffet.

Beamed ceilings, polished quartered oak floors, wood and heavy paneling form some of the features of the living-room, dining-room and den. The exceptionally large bedrooms have commodious wardrobes, polished floors, and being finished in white enamel make them especially inviting. The fixtures in the bathroom as well as kitchen and screen porch, are the best of their kind and the linen and medicine closets add to the many conveniences.

Beautiful electric fixtures, shades, handsome hardware, unusually good construction and very fine cabinet work, a fence and lawn combine to make this one of the best values on the market.

TWO FEET ABOVE GRADE.

GAS, ELECTRICITY, CITY WATER.

We all know that home builders and lot buyers are all buying out Wilshire way. There are only two reasons why double the number of lots are not sold in this beautiful district. One of them is the price; the other, terms. We are going to make both satisfactory to all buyers. The lot we advertise today at $2750 is the equal, if not the superior, of any lot you can get for $3500 in this whole section. Think of it—only 150 feet from Wilshire Blvd. Try and see if you can get a lot 60 feet wide anywhere within 150 feet of this famous boulevard for even $3500. Many people wish to buy in this fashionable district, but, as a rule, the very best terms that can be made are from one-third to one-half cash. In a year or so lots within one block of Wilshire Blvd. will be worth not less than $4000 apiece. Then perhaps some who wish to buy now will be able to purchase on the basis of one-third to one-half down. In order to give these buyers the same opportunity as if they were able to pay one-third or one-half cash at the present time, we will sell a few lots on the following terms—$300 cash, balance easy. Remember there is gas, electricity and water in this tract. Also, all the lots are in the city limits.

FOR SALE—
HAVE YOU HEARD OF ANYTHING LIKE THIS?

L. A. INSIDE PROPERTY AT HALF ITS VALUE?

OR EVEN LESS THAN HALF?

Then see here. These two properties are owned by two parties, who, for reasons of their own, desire to dissolve partnership, which necessitates the sale of said holdings. One is a large corner, having a frontage of 122 feet on a prominent thoroughfare and car line, close in, S.W., in the heart of the best apartment and family hotel district in the city; a swell site for high-class hotel and stores. Adjoining it is a 3-story apartment, and the ground is valued by owner at $600 a foot. This figure would not touch the opposite corners, which are improved with brick stores and apartments. It has been decided to close this out at $300 per foot—only half the price of adjoining INSIDE property.

The other piece is even closer in, being in the heart of the wholesale district, and in the midst of immense improvements now under way. This 50-foot lot would be cheap at $600 a foot, or $30,000. A bank loan of $10,000 leaves an equity of $20,000, which will be put in at $10,000.

No offers will be considered; nor will any commission be allowed from these prices. Address K, box 127, TIMES OFFICE. 29

FOR SALE—

It is in the best business section of Pico st. We have a price at about one-half its value.

E. J. BALDWIN ESTATE.
E. J. BALDWIN ESTATE.
E. J. BALDWIN ESTATE.

With few exceptions, the entire estate will be sold. This vast estate comprises thousands of acres of the richest farming land in this State. Its merits are so well known that but little comment is necessary.

The Rancho La Puente, in the heart of the great San Gabriel Valley, consisting of thousands of acres of the most fertile soil in Southern California, will be offered for sale and will be sold in tracts of 10 acres up.
Only 14 miles N.E. of the city, between El Monte and Covina, by the S.P.R.R., Pacific Electric and Salt Lake Railroads.
Perhaps you are curious to know what this land is adapted to.
Well, it cannot be beaten for growing
ALFALFA,
WALNUTS,
Fruits, vegetables. Yes, and around Covina, Monrovia and Arcadia, it's first-class
ORANGE LAND.

THE WATER QUESTION.

That is already demonstrated.
There is water under this land.
One plant in operation pumps 800 miner's inches of water. There are numerous small plants, none of which pump less than 150 miner's inches of water.
There is not another tract of land in Los Angeles county or at least that is as close to the city of Los Angeles that can be bought at so reasonable a figure. We are simply besieged with buyers, don't wait until it's too late. Now is the time to buy. If you are looking for a location for a home or for an investment, here is your opportunity.
There is a good home market for all produce, especially for alfalfa.
Go out and see for yourself, that is all that we ask. You will be convinced. One thousand acres sold during past three weeks.
Prices and terms at our offices.

Have you ever heard about the DAMP LAND
just south of EL MONTE, 12 miles from Los Angeles, one mile from the electric car line?
This land requires no irrigation whatever to grow
ALFALFA, VEGETABLES,
CELERY.
Just think of it. No labor or expense for irrigating; just plant your crops, cultivate them and watch them grow. Perhaps you don't believe this to be possible in this land of rainless summers; well, then, just board the Covina line car for El Monte, go out with us to the tract, and let us "show you" where 10 tons of alfalfa, per acre, can be grown each year, without irrigation. Get in on the ground floor and double your money in one or two years.
We have about 2000 acres of this land for sale, but at the rate it's selling it will not last long. Prices and terms at our offices.

FOR SALE—OR EXCHANGE.
A first-class, well-furnished apartment house; in a choice location. About seventy rooms, including twelve three-room apartments which are all rented. I have extensive land holdings both here and in the North and have simply got to let loose of something and as this is the smallest, it must go. I own the lease which runs three years at a remarkably low figure and you will find upon investigation that this is about the cheapest proposition in a good lease in Los Angeles. Winter is upon us and good apartment and rooming-houses will be in demand. This business is worth more than I will ask for it as an investment alone. If you are interested answer this ad and I will show you that everything is on the square and will give you an opportunity that will astonish you. If you are a responsible party, I will accept a small cash payment and will give you time to make the balance out of the business or will take something in exchange if it is all right. The business simply demands more time than I can give it and must go and I will not haggle long over price nor terms. Address K, box 152, TIMES OFFICE.

FOR SALE—
Lemon or Orange Groves.

FOR SALE—
ORANGE GROVES.

Take it one year with another the best investment in California is a good income producing orange grove. You can buy an orange for less money now than you can a few months hence.

Later on when fruit is colored and matured and the eastern homeseekers are here, orange groves and lemon groves will bring higher prices, consequent upon the increased inquiry and demand. The coming orange crop will undoubtedly bring good prices, as, from all reports, the crop will be short. If in the market for an orange grove, let me show you some of the BEST BARGAINS IN ORANGE GROVES IN POMONA VALLEY.

HAVE A LARGE, EXCLUSIVE LIST.

Who hasn't heard of THE CURRIER CITRUS GROVE NEAR CLAREMONT? It comprises nearly 60 acres set solid to citrus trees. Eleven acres in lemons in full bearing. Balance in Washington Navel oranges. Grove in first-class condition and well fertilized; ONE OF THE BEST ORANGE GROVES IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. Has never changed hands. During recent years parties have wanted to purchase this grove, or portions of it, but the owner refused to sell. Now, however, is an opportunity to purchase it at a LOW PRICE AND ON EASY TERMS, but it must be sold en bloc. If you want a GILT-EDGE INVESTMENT, better see me soon, as I purpose pushing the sale of this property. The owner having other extensive land and business interests to look after, and being advanced in years, is why this property is now for sale.

Considering the valuable appurtenant water rights, soil and location, at the price I can now deliver it for, THIS IS ONE OF THE CHEAPEST ORANGE GROVES IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. To the right party, if desired, two-thirds of the purchase price can remain on the property on easy terms at 6 per cent.

Considering the season, the coming orange crop on this grove is particularly good. Probable crop will be about the same as season just closed, which was over 12,000 boxes oranges. Good lemon crop on trees. Part of the orange trees not yet being in full bearing; under intelligent management grove will increase annually in income for some years.

Valuable appurtenant Loop and Meserve Canyon water rights. Abundant water supply. No pumping required. One of the best and cheapest irrigation systems in California; $6000 reservoir; capacity one and one-half million gallons. Lemon curing house, cottage, barn, four good horses, harness, wagons, implements, 1000 lemon boxes, all equipment necessary to a ranch, also 500 shares Indian Hill Citrus Association stock goes with property. Fine property for a syndicate to handle.

Grove fronts Central, San Antonio and Harrison avenues. Can be profitably segregated into five-acre groves, for which there is considerable demand.

THERE ARE OTHER ORANGE GROVES FOR SALE WHICH ARE PARTICULARLY GOOD BUYS—

$17,000—14 acres, half Valencias, half Navels. About 125 trees of the Valencias are 8 years. Balance about 4 years, just commencing to bear. The Navels are fine, large, full-bearing trees in excellent condition. Good coming crop, estimate 2500 boxes. Finely located between Claremont and Pomona. Five-room cottage, barn; this grove has recently been held at $20,000, but owner now contemplates embarking in business in Pomona, and, in order to carry out his present plans for quick sale has just reduced price to $17,500. of purchase price can remain on property on very easy terms. Owner might consider clear Pomona property for a home on deal if rightly located, but it must not over about $6000, and must be put in cash price, as the grove is offered at a K-BOTTOM PRICE.

HARBOR INVESTMENTS.
With present limited opportunity probably the last for investing in Pacific Wharf and Storage Company's 6 per cent. bonds at present prices, on installment plan and with bonus stock, we offer a small block as one of the most attractive investments ever presented.

The company by an underwriting oversubscribed and in which we have participated, has now financed its needs to a probable revenue basis, in the near future, having already spent judiciously and economically $250,000 in continuous and telling work.

Consolidation and control of San Pedro Harbor by a great and responsible municipality is not only looked upon with great satisfaction, but has created an increased interest in the securities as well as in the property and the project of the PACIFIC WHARF AND STORAGE COMPANY, which shows for itself, is likely to be the first completed of any extension of the dockage and warehouse facilities now in progress and in harmony with the intention and project of making San Pedro a great harbor.

MRS. BELMONT GETS CROWDS.

SUFFRAGE AT SUMMER PALACE IS VERY POPULAR.

Governor of Rhode Island Presides at Marble House Lecture, Charles Zueblin Delivers Able Address and Rich and Poor Drink Tea and Are Flattered to Be There.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEWPORT (R. I.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An even larger crowd today than last Tuesday's attended the second suffrage lecture at Mrs. Belmont's Marble House.

The Governor of Rhode Island, Aram J. Pothier, presided as a special compliment to the hostess.

The Governor, in introducing the speaker of the afternoon, Prof. Charles Zueblin of Boston, formerly of the University of Chicago, said that he was not present to further the movement in any way, but to introduce the speaker and to read the laws of the State in regard to woman's rights and privileges.

All the suffragists in the city who have been stopping at Marble House and elsewhere were on the platform, with the exception of the venerable Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who was indisposed. Prof. Zueblin made a most convincing argument in favor of the cause, and was liberally applauded. The enlarged Casino orchestra played patriotic pieces throughout the afternoon, and every one enjoyed tea, millionaires and the less fortunate sitting side by side.

The treat of visiting this wonderful home of this thoroughly American woman was greatly appreciated by those not of the social elect.

The avenue was lined for a mile with automobiles and carriages of every kind. Even the cabbies are for the moment, at least, converts to equal suffrage.

Mrs. Belmont will continue her public campaign among her friends, and each day her following grows greater. She is being heartily indorsed by nearly all of the women, and by a great many men, some of the latter offering financial support. She said tonight that she was at a loss for the published reports that she was meeting opposition from those in the social sphere in which she moves.

"No one is opposing me, at least, publicly, so far as I know," Mrs. Belmont said. "I am greatly encouraged with the success of my efforts here, and I want to thank everybody, and particularly the press for their support."

ROBBERY AT WHITE HOUSE.

Burglar Gets Away With Tools Belonging to Mechanic Engaged on Repairs.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A robbery at the White House was reported to the police today. The bold thief who entered where policemen keep a special guard did not envy the President or any of the members of his family their earthly possessions. He coveted the tools of a mechanic, not, it is supposed, for the purpose of emulating his laudable example of earning his bread by the sweat of his brow.

According to charges which have been lodged with the police involving one midnight prowler, three saws, a spirit level, hatchet, square and a collection of other tools used by a carpenter were stolen.

To expedite the work of constructing a wing to the office building during the absence of President Taft at Beverly, three shifts of mechanics, each working eight hours, are employed, and it is beyond the comprehension of the sleuths how in a glare of light, in the presence of a force of workmen, to say nothing of a special guard of policemen on duty, the prowler could be so bold.

Resignation of La Follette's Man Taken to Mean That Senator Realizes Own Peril.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The resignation of Herman L. Ekern as deputy insurance commissioner is taken as tacit admission by Senator La Follette that he will have a hard fight to retain his toga. Ekern is one of his staunchest supporters, and his voluntary separation from the State machine means an early lining up of forces.

A factor that politicians of both parties in Wisconsin must reckon with, but which has been given scant attention up to this time, is the position the Society of Equity will take toward individual candidates. Except its officers, no one in the State knows the real strength of the organization, but that it is a power in certain sections of the State, especially in the northwest, is admitted.

Chinese Slave Girl Brought Over in Entourage of Ambassador, Declare Society Investigators.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An investigatiton of the history of a young Chinese slave girl has led the Society for the prevention of cruelty to children to the doors of the Chinese legation in Washington.

The Society is withholding Ngou Fung from her alleged father by adoption, Chin Hung, on the charge that Chin Hung's possession through a series of sales. The society has obtained possession of information that Ngou Fung was brought into America with the entourage of the legation, when Dr. Wu Ting Fang returned early last year. The girl was entered as a student. She was taken from the railroad station in Washington, not to the legation but directly to Ung Wah's restaurant.

ARMY ROW.

KING EDWARD'S BROTHER EXPOSES MILITAR[illegible]

Duke of Connaught by Refusing to Stay in t[illegible] less Mediterranean Command Lays Bare a Ne[illegible] Plot by Which He Was Shunted to Make R[illegible] a Friend of Lord Esher, the Unofficial "Boss."

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—One of the biggest rows which has disturbed British politics and society and the British army for a long time is threatened as the result of what at first was merely a little plot to find a job for a friend of the man who at the present moment seems to be the "boss" of England.

The man is Lord Esher who holds no official position, but who seems to get pretty much what he wants in every department of the British government and particularly in the two fighting services. One of his closest friends is Gen. Sir John French, a dashing cavalry leader whom no one ever accused of being a heaven sent military genius. Lord Esher's friendship seems to be quite as useful as genius, however, and it was an excellent thing for Sir John when Lord Esher's second son became his aide de camp.

A couple of years ago Sir John's term in command at Aldershot was about to expire, and in the usual course of events he would have gone on half pay for a year or two until another command was open for him. Sir John is a poor man, however, and could not afford to be idle, so he called on his friend Lord Esher to see if anything could be done. At this time the Duke of Connaught, King Edward's brother, was occupying the post of Inspector General of the Forces, with headquarters at the war office. Lord Esher thought this was a desirable post for his friend and set about securing it for him.

The first problem to be solved was to get rid of the Duke of Connaught, and getting rid of a royal duke is no easy matter, particularly when the person to be got rid of, in addition to being a royal duke, is one of the keenest, most competent and most popular soldiers in the British army. Lord Esher, however, saw his friend War Secretary Haldane, and the Duke was bounced out of the war office by the creation for him of a new post, that of Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean with headquarters at Malta.

As soon as the Duke heard what was in the wind he declared that he wouldn't go, and he added that the job was a useless one anyhow, and its creation a great waste of the public money Secretary Haldane and Lord Esher first implored and then threatened, but the Duke declined to budge from the position he had taken and finally the conspirators appealed to King Edward and convinced him that the post was an important one and that his brother was just the man for it. The King then persuaded the Duke to give the job a fair trial and he promised to do so.

Now after giving the job a trial for two years he has resigned and has declared that his first impressions were right. Every effort was made to induce him to reconsider, but he solved the problem by coming home and declaring that he intended to stay at home. Now the Liberal government which was elected on a platform of economy and efficiency, is placed in the awkward position of being convicted before the country of having wasted the public money either in order to find a place for a royal duke or for a favorite of a person entirely devoid of official responsibility.

Some of the revelations which have been made are really laughable. One of the Duke's duties was to inspect the military forces in the Mediterranean, but when he got to Malta he discovered that no provision had been made for his transport from [illegible] The officials in Whit[illegible] ten apparently that [illegible] miles from Gibraltar [illegible] is a long way from [illegible] made such a row about [illegible] admiralty was called [illegible] things straight, and [illegible] Aboukir, was detached [illegible] terranean squadron and [illegible] the job of carrying the [illegible] spection tours. All [illegible] cost money. The [illegible] $70,000 a year to [illegible] salaries of the Duke and [illegible] away with nearly [illegible] erals who had been [illegible] the various stations [illegible] duke found himself [illegible] of a very expensive [illegible] coach, a position [illegible] to remain.

Now an effort is being [illegible] ish the Duke by [illegible] place on the Selection [illegible] chooses officers for [illegible] has raised more oppo[illegible] than anything [illegible] There is no man in the [illegible] more popular or who [illegible] fidence of the entire [illegible] to a greater degree [illegible] junior and senior alike [illegible] interests are safe in [illegible] that he is removed [illegible] from the possibility of [illegible] by any intrigues and [illegible] reason why it is said L[illegible] anxious to get him [illegible] Army men say that L[illegible] that when the Duke [illegible] tion Board he could [illegible] his plans to promote [illegible] personally agreeable to [illegible] back those whom he [illegible]

PELLAGRA CORN BELT DISEASE.

GOVERNMENT SURGEON REACHES STARTLING CONCLUSION.

Believes Malady Under Observation at Insane Asylum Is More General Than Suspected and Attributes Cause to Too Exclusive a Corn Diet.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PEORIA (Ill.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With more than 100 cases of pellagra in all stages of development under observation at the Illinois General Hospital for the Insane at South Bartonville, Capt. and Assistant Surgeon E. Siler of the United States Army Medical Corps has come to the conclusion that the disease is not confined to that institution, but exists in all parts of the corn-growing sections of Illinois and other Middle-Western States.

Furthermore, Capt. Siler thinks the disease is of less recent origin than has been supposed, and he declares that he is of the opinion that it has existed and been spreading insidiously in the corn belt for at least three or four years.

Over-indulgence in corn as an article of diet, and especially the consumption of corn in a moldy or nearly moldy state, is given by the army surgeon as the probable cause of the disease, and in his report to Washington, which will be made in a short time, he will give this phase of the pellagra problem a prominent part.

The discovery of pellagra at the Bartonville institution several weeks ago has attracted the attention of the entire world of medicine to this point, and many other physicians are working with Capt. Siler in his attempt to get all the data on the disease in its various forms and stages. Dr. Bulig of Chicago, bacteriologist for the State Board of Health, and Dr. Bondurant of Springfield, a member of the board, are with Capt. Siler at the hospital. The investigators are being assisted in every way by Supt. Zeller and the entire staff of the hospital.

VALUES ARE INCREASING

Development of Home Building and Public Improvements Increases Worth of Mt. Washington Lots.

The establishment of costly public and private improvements naturally enhances the value of property in the immediate vicinity of the improvements. When "Mt. Washington No. 1" was placed on the market, a scale of prices for the lots was decided upon, and these prices have never been increased notwithstanding the fact that since the opening of the subdivision vast sums have been expended for public and private improvements. Many of those who purchased lots a comparatively short time ago would now refuse almost double what they originally paid for their property. And that is only logical—for today Mt. Washington is known from coast to coast as the highest, most picturesque and most unique residence section of famous Los Angeles.

A magnificent automobile road to the summit has been constructed. An incline railroad has been built. Beautiful homes have been erected and many others will soon rise. Is it any wonder that values on Mt. Washington are rapidly increasing? The coming development is bound to force a sharp advance in present prices.

HE LIKES MT. WASHINGTON

What a Prominent Eastern Attorney Says of "Los Angeles' Finest" Residential Subdivision.

Mt. Washington—nearly 1000 feet above the city's level—enjoys absolute freedom from fog, frost, dust and smoke. Eliminating these disagreeable elements leaves an almost ideal residential condition.

No city in the world possesses a more magnificently elevated residence subdivision from a strategic, climatic and scenic standpoint, than Los Angeles, with its beautiful Mt. Washington—a real mountain with real mountain views—yet right in the city and just a few minutes from the heart of things commercial.

The stately and picturesque Sierras, including snow-covered Old Baldy, Mt. Lowe and Mt. Wilson, loom up vividly before the Mt. Washington resident in the full glory of their rugged grandeur. The beautiful Eagle Rock, San Fernando and Cahuenga valleys present a charming vista.

Practically all of Los Angeles may be seen from this splendid viewpoint. The view at night is a truly magnificent spectacle—the lights of Los Angeles, Pasadena, Glendale and other surrounding towns literally carpeting the earth with a myriad of stars.

NEW EQUIPMENT ON INCLINE RY.

The Cars "Florence" and "Virginia" Equipped With New Wheels—Is Now the "Velvet Ride."

The Los Angeles and Mt. Washington Incline Railroad was closed to the public a few hours this week in order to equip the cars with new chilled steel wheels. The improvement is quite noticeable, and one of the property owners on the mountain now terms the incline trip "the velvet ride." Another improvement is the inauguration of a new schedule on both week days and Sundays. The incline trip is rapidly becoming one of the most popular of week-end diversions. Thousands are traveling over the wonderful little scenic railroad. One visitor to the mountain said this week: "You can 'do Mt. Washington' and return home for 20 cents—but it's better than many $5.00 trips I have taken."

WIDELY ADVERTISED

Fame of Mt. Washington Spreads From Coast to Coast.

Mt. Washington is certainly becoming well advertised. It is today well known all over the United States as one of Southern California's great points of interest. This rapidly growing prestige has a tendency to strongly stimulate values on the lofty residence district. Prominent real estate authorities who have recently visited Mt. Washington predict that present values will double within a year. According to this prediction, property on the mountain ought to be a strong subject from an investment standpoint.

Church and W. O. Reed have purchased twenty acres in the Cherry Valley West tract for $1400. The joint owners will build a dwelling on the property and engage in grain raising and general farming. T. L. Hill, Jr., of Beaumont has acquired a lot in the Apple Valley tract for $882.50 and will plant deciduous fruit trees.

G. W. Goode of Los Angeles, who recently acquired from the land company two lots in Apple Valley for $2764, has rented a house in Beaumont and will remain on the ground to superintend the planting of his land. Mr. Goode recently sold a large orange ranch in Claremont and reinvested in Beaumont. W. D. Poole of Wyoming has purchased two city lots in the Apple Valley tract for $1450.

P. A. Powers has bought seven and one-quarter acres of grain land in section 22 for $296. Albert Leon of San Francisco has bought five acres in the Cherry Valley West tract for $700. C. W. Constable of Index, Wash., has bought ten acres in the Cherry Valley West addition for $1400 and will plant apple trees.

Bailey, formerly of Billings, Mont., is on the ground to supervise the erection of a farmhouse on five acres in Cherry Valley. HOMESEEKERS BUY.

SOUTH PASADENA, Aug. 28.—The following recent sales have been reported: Paul Blades to William Stringfellow, a lot 55x150 feet in the Short Line Villa tract, one block from Huntington Drive. The consideration was $1000. Mr. Stringfellow will improve this lot immediately with a modern bungalow. E. Ayres of Los Angeles to L. T. Peed, a lot on the west side of Avoca avenue, between Columbia and State streets, 55x160 feet, improved with a two-story ten-room residence, a large barn and chicken corral, for $5000. Mr. Peed bought this place as an investment.

Real estate dealers state that notwithstanding the summer season is still on, there is a good inquiry for property in all sections of the city. Most of this is on the part of homeseekers, but the investor also is in the field and picking up lots here and there. Values as a rule are being held, there being little pressure to sell. Vacant houses are also scarce, while the demand for them is steadily increasing. The strength of the real estake situation here is based primarily on the growth of the city and the many advantages that are offered here to homeseekers. Los Angeles can be reached more quickly from here than from any other point ten miles from the cenuter of that city in any other direction. The taxes are lower, the elevation higher and conditions generally much more healthful. All these things count with the man who is looking for a home.

A strong realty company has been formed of men from this city that will conduct a general real estate investment business in and around Los Angeles, composed of Charles B. Ingram, John C. Hamm, recently of Wyoming, and George W. Lawyer. Mr. Lawyer will not actively engage in the work on account of his duties as cashier of the First National and South Pasadena Savings Bank, but the other two members will devote their entire time. The personnel of this firm is such as to give confidence to the public.

EXIT THE "LAND SHARK."

Realty Men, Far and Near, Organizing to Eliminate Unscrupulous Dealers from Midst.

One of the real estate agents who is most scrupulous about the statements made in his advertisements and by his salesmen for publication and who was present Friday at the outing of the Los Angeles Realty Board at Redondo Beach, remarked upon the gratifying recurrence, in nearly all the talks on that occasion, of the sentiment that "honesty is the best policy." Then and at the big convention in Oakland two weeks ago, it was reiterated that the chief work of the local boards and of the State Federation of Real Estate Agents is and should be the suppression of falsehood and misrepresentation and the gradual driving out of the business of the irresponsible and unscrupulous.

Incidentally, the same man remarked upon the steady growth of the organization idea among the agents on the Pacific Coast. Seven years ago there was no ta single organized body of real estate men in any of the large cities. At that time a new man, who had seen and taken part in some of the good work done in Colorado and other Middle Western States through realty organizations, urged the need of such a board in Los Angeles. It was a success from the start.

A few years later Los Angeles came to the front with an invitation to the real estate men of the entire State to assemble here and discuss the advisability of a State Federation. Oakland, Berkeley and San José all had strong organizations and sent delegates, as did most of the other cities of much importance, except San Francisco. The California State Realty Federation came into being and has flourished since, to the sorrow of many land sharks and fake promoters of worthless and fraudulent land schemes.

Herbert Burdett, who has been secretary of the local board and of the federation since their inception, recently visited the northwestern States and believes that a Pacific Coast league of both real estate agents and property owners will be eventually developed. He declares that there is room for a score more big cities like San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Portland on this Coast and that not rivalry but fraternity should be the spirit animating the men who lay out the tracts and subdivisions that grow into cities and suburbs.

Meanwhile, a national organization has been formed in the Middle States, which held a convention at Detroit last month and will meet in Minneapolis next year. If the Pacific Coast league becomes a reality, it will probably affiliate with this national body and then the gradual adoption of more methods and more uniform legislation relactive to real estate may be anticipated. This would be, as was pointed out at the Oakland meeting, in the public interest, as it would tend to familiarize people with the methods of transferring property and would dispel much of the ignorance upon which crooked agents and unscrupulous owners depend for the success of their nefarious schemes.

meeting of the Wilmington of Commerce Tuesday night committees were appointed, those on Harbor, Finance, ng and Publicity, Manufac- nd Industries, Streets and Light and Water, Entertain- Parks. An Executive Committee, consisting of Messrs. Eubanks, Woods, Bailey, Moore and Cary, was also appointed to do things.

Resolutions were adopted requesting the Board of Public Works of Los Angeles to establish necessary grades and prepare to put curbs and sidewalks on all the principal streets.

The board is also asked to institute at once the necessary proceedings which may be required to construct and complete a satisfactory sewer system for the former city of Wilmington.

The Bank of Wilmington is working under government charter, as the First National Bank of Wilmington, by authority of a telegra mreceived Monday from T. P. Kain, Deputy and Acting Comptroller of the Treasury at Washington. He wires that he has mailed the charter.

REDONDO HAS PLANS.

Public improvements under way and many elaborate and extensive plans for others, to be made during the coming year, show that Redondo Beach will not stop with the improvements of the past year, costing about $2,000,000.

Work will be started September 1 on a fine three-story mission-style building, near the site of the old bath-house, at the foot of Diamond street, for a commercial hotel, which will cost about $18,000. The building will be 100x50 feet and contain forty-six rooms.

Plans are being drawn for a country clubhouse and hotel, with cottages, golf links and polo course, to be built within the coming year by H. E. Huntington on his land at Clifton. The main building will have thirty-eight apartments.

Negotiations are being made by a Los Angeles capitalist with the Los Angeles and Redondo Company for a site along the water front, in the vicinity of the old bath-house, with a view to erecting a large hotel, to cost about $75,000.

The extension of wharf No. 3, at a cost of $15,000, will be completed within thirty days. It has been extended 100 feet, giving a length of 400 feet, and widened to 100 feet. Warehouses and offices of the Los Angeles and Redondo Company will be removed to wharf No. 3 from No. 1, leaving No. 1 free for a pleasure pier.

Camino Real and Hermosa avenue in and between Redondo Beach and Hermosa Beach are to be improved to comply with the Highway Commission provisions, as these roads connect with the county highway to be built to Redondo Beach.

Improvements are being made on the Union High School grounds, amounting to $1500. A tennis court, ball grounds and athletic fields and landscape gardening are included in the plans.

The Baraca Club of the Congregational Church will erect, this winter, a clubhouse at the rear of the church auditorium.

A new lighting system of cluster lights will be installed on Pacific avenue and along the water front east of the bath-house by the Los Angeles and Redondo Company.

Funds for extensive improvements planned by Mr. Huntington at this place are available out of the $5,000,000 bond issue recently floated on his Redondo interests.

BUSY SANTA MONICA.

Santa Monica is expending $150,000 for the installation of an electrolytic sewage purification plant and the construction of a municipal pier. This money was raised by a bond issue, and the work, in progress for more than a year, will be completed and the pier publicly dedicated on Admission Day. The structure is of reinforced concrete, the first pier of the kind to be attempted in the West. The pier is to be equipped as a pleasure place, and will also be used as a landing place for small boats.

At an expense of but little less than $30,000, a new school building of brick has just been finished, and will be occupied for the first time when the school year opens in September.

Work has commenced on the grading, terracing and beautifying of the old Hotel Arcadia grounds. These improvements, which will include a paved, winding boulevard through the grounds, will cost $25,000.

Plans are being matured for the widening of Fremont avenue and its conversion into a great boulevard from the ocean to the city limits on the east. The object is to have this highway for a link in an air-line boulevard between Los Angeles and the sea.

OCEAN PARK AND VENICE.

At an expense of $10,000, the pier at the foot of Marine street is being rebuilt. While this structure is primarily a private enterprise, maintained for the purpose of carrying the salt water intake pipes for bathing, yet the pier is to be made a pleasure promenade for the accommodation of those who like to fish. The piles for the pier, which has a length of 600 feet, are of reinforced concrete.

The Edison Electric Company has just completed the building of a large gas holder, and has made extensions of mains representing in all an expenditure of about $50,000.

The trolley line has met the growing demands by erecting a modern passenger station, at an expense of $7000.

VENICE IS AMBITIOUS.

The Venice of America Company has approved plans for the early building of a Continental Garden and on this work is expected to commence soon. IMPERIAL VALLEY DEVELOPS.

Every city in Imperial County has made notable progress this summer, and much new work is planned for the fall and winter. Imperial County general improvements are also important.

The County Highway Commission has completed its plans for a system of highways to connect all of the towns and main country districts, and to open a thoroughfare from the center of the valley to the western edge of Imperial County, in the vicinity of Mountain Springs, where it will connect with one of the highways planned by the San Diego County Highway Commission, thus giving a good thoroughfare from this valley to San Diego.

Many hundreds of acres of virgin land will come under cultivation this fall and winter, especially in Water Districts Nos. 8 and 6.

The dairy interests have made wonderful expansion in all parts of the valley, and fully 1000 high-grade milk cows have been placed on ranches here within the past three months.

At El Centro work is to start at once on the plant of the Imperial Valley Gas Company, which is to furnish domestic gas for El Centro and Imperial. Machinery is now on the way and the plant will be in operation by January 1.

A large alfalfa meal mill is to be established there. H. H. Peterson will move his brickmaking plant here from Holtville and will enlarge its capacity. The Simons Brick Company of Los Angeles will establish a tile and clay products factory here this coming fall.

Holtville is to acquire this fall a municipal water system.

Contracts have been awarded at Heber for the erection of the administration building of the Imperial Valley Collegiate Institute located here, and the structure will be ready for use about January 1. Heber is to have a railroad station before long.

VENTURA'S GOOD VENTURES.

The city and county of Ventura are right in the forefront of the "go-ahead" procession, and there has been no dull season there this summer. The town was never so busy, and substantial public improvements are under way.

In Ventura city, with approximately 5000 people, something like $90,000 is being expended in the paving of streets. The bond issue voted for this work was $86,289. The paving is a kind of macadam-petrolithic process, oil and crushed rock being employed.

The entire bond issue for public improvement was $150,000. Of this amount $3000 went to purchase a site in the center of town for a new $8000 fire house, now just completed, in which will be installed an auto fire engine especially constructed for Ventura at a cost of $3000.

A block of land fronting the sea has been bought for a public park, at a cost of $7000, and will be improved at once.

Storm sewers aggregating in cost $22,500, have been finished, to take care of the flood water from the hills just behind the town. And $16,500 have been spent for concrete culverts, to go with the petrolithic streets.

In the county, the good roads movement has developed so rapidly that three special road districts have been organized to issue bonds to build petrolithic roads. The first of these to build a good road through the Casitas Pass, fifteen miles long, will issue bonds for some $30,000.

The second district, which will construct a road between Ventura and Nordhoff, will expend not less than $60,000. The petrolithic road which the third district proposes to build between Ventura and Santa Paula, will cost close to $100,000.

The county is now building a steel-truss bridge across the Santa Clara River, between Fillmore and Bardsdale, the contract price for which is $34,867. A second bridge in contemplation, and soon to be started at the Saticoy crossing of the river, closer to the sea, will cost probably close to $100,000.

Three new high school districts have been created within the county in the past three months, at Fillmore, Nordhoff and Moorpark. In Fillmore bonds to the amount of $40,000 have been voted to construct a high school building. Work will begin upon it at once.

Ventura, it will be seen, is not feeling any dull season. This past summer a new addition to the town proper was opened, extending eastward along the ocean front for a mile or more, and a Chautauqua pavilion, money for which has already been subscribed, will be built there.

SANTA BARBARA IS BUSY.

The "dull season" is dull only in name at Santa Barbara. While nothing so unladylike as a "boom" is on, public improvements under way and about to be started herald a new era of growth.

Picks and shovels are busy at Montecito, and in two months it is expected that the $50,000 worth of street improvements will be finished. Work on the Booth Point road, to cost $15,000 will be started the first of the month, and before long the rest of the extensive plan of city street improvements, for which the citizens recently voted at the bond election, will be under way.

Every wooden bridge and culvert in Santa Barbara county is being replaced by stone and concrete structures at an expense of $75,000 to $100,000. A new $5000 bridge over Mission Creek at Chapala street, was authorized at the Council meeting August 19.

At Punta Gorda, for so long one of the worst stumbling blocks on the Coast line, the Southern Pacific is doing a work that will be of incalculable benefit not only to itself and to the city, but a great boon to Los Angeles autoists. Hundreds of thousands of dollars is being spent in building a seawall, filling it in and laying the tracks so that winter landslides will be a thing of the past. Room is to be left beside the tracks for an automobile road, making a sea-level highway from Ventura to Santa Barbara.

Many thousands of dollars are to be spent on the highways of the Hope ranch and work has already been begun by the Pattillo Contracting Company of Los Angeles. The Pacific Improvement Company, which owns Hope ranch, has obtained a franchise for a trackless trolley line out to the ranch from Santa Barbara. It is said that this will be the first trackless trolley line in America.

The site for the new $100,000 Federal building has already passed into Uncle Sam's possession, and another fine building that is assured this city is a home for the new State Normal Sloyd School, which begins its first term in temporary quarters this month.

Work on Santa Barbara's pride—her new water system—is being pushed rapidly. This big project consists of boring a tunnel through the Santa

NEW SHIP A MARVEL.

Battleship South Carolina Shows Wonderful Speed in Trial Spins Over Measured Course.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—The battleship South Carolina reported at Cramps's shipyard, after having completed a successful trial, in which it was demonstrated the vessel is the fastest of its class in the navy. In the four-hour full-speed run, the ship made 18.88 knots, the contract requirement being 18.5 knots. In the five-hour high-speed run over the measured mile, the battleship attained a mean speed of 19.25 knots.

During the standardization run, the fastest mile was 2.52 knots.

Coal consumption of the battleship likewise was superior to that of other ships in the four-hour trial, only 1.39 pounds per indicated horsepower being used.

It is presumed Fulmer will bid in the property and then expend large sums in developing.

The property is recognized as among the best gold producers of the southwest, and the Eagle Mining and Improvement Company is the present owner.

Secretary of Kansas Department of Agriculture Takes Fall Out of "Pullman Car Experts."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] This is the season in Kansas when Secretary Coburn of the State Agricultural Department has his inning. Once each year this official pays his respects to the expert "crop killers" who ride through the State in Pullman cars, and estimate crop conditions "on view" from the car windows, or who make up tabulations in Wall Street from reports sent in by local correspondents.

Secretary Coburn's latest invective leveled at the crop killers comes at a time when the farmers of the State are in deep distress over the condition of the coming corn crop. Instead of the 200,000,000 bushels predicted and hoped for, the farmers of Kansas will be rejoiced if they harvest half that amount.

n the fire swept Bisbee, in Nor, the Hoy home was burned. g daunted, he rebuilt it. The general manager of the paper returned and Hoy resumed his former post as head of the mechanical department. He had allowed his union card to lapse. Although he was part owner of the paper and entitled even by the union rules to operate in the machine room, the union thugs of Bisbee felt themselves aggrieved and ordered a general walkout of all the printers connected with the company. Hoy refused to be bullied. His brave wife went to Douglas to assume control of the machine room of the International American, while Hoy stuck to the Bisbee shop.

BLOODTHIRSTY SCOUNDREL.

At this point in the story it is necessary to mention the name of William Pffankuch, a bloodthirsty scoundrel now in jail at Tombstone awaiting trial on a charge of having murdered Hoy and William Bockholt. Pffankuch is one of those worthless, dangerous men who are allowed to live for some reason unknown. His mother and Mrs. Hoy had been friends. William, at the age of 15 years, expressed a desire to become a linotype operator. Hoy befriended him, took him into his office in Texas and taught him the trade. Pffankuch worked there awhile and at the time of the Spanish war enlisted. His record was a "brilliant" one. When he wasn't drinking or sleeping off a "drunk," he was trying to pick a quarrel. He murdered a man in a saloon fight while in the army during the Spanish War, but in some way managed to escape punishment.

After the war he promptly returned to Hoy and told him that he wanted to make a man of himself and start over again. Hoy secured work for him in Bisbee and paid his fare west. He nursed Pffankuch through a hard case of typhoid fever and, in fact, was a father to the young man.

Pffankuch remained sober for a time but at last took to drink again and asked to be shifted to Douglas. His record in that city was notorious and when the strike was declared he was the first to take up the fight against the hand that had fed and nursed him.

Pffankuch sneaked into the office of the Review early one morning, walked up to Hoy, who was bending over a machine, and shot him in the back, killing him instantly. He then turned and killed Bockholt, who had been at work in Bisbee only three days.

Pffankuch bragged of the heartless killings. He was taken to Tombstone to avoid a lynching.

Mrs. Hoy's interests are with the newspaper and the children. She has determined to keep the paper in Bisbee running, no matter what the opposition. The company and the good citizens of that section are with her.

The mother intends to operate her office as an open shop despite the threats that have been made by the union bullies.

The management of The Times Linotype School does not require any pledge from its graduates that they will not join the union after learning the trade; but it is singularly appropriate that this family should come to The Times school to acquire the skill to earn a livelihood at the printing trade.

Then the little vials would be put back on the shelves out of sight, out of mind, until the public wished again to hear the tales of gallium and germanium and radium, and to estimate what it would cost to make a pound of these rarities.

ALUMINUM IN COMMERCE.

With the advent of the electric furnace and the use of temperatures hitherto unheard of, these little vials have been taken down for another purpose. Oxides of the rare metals have been introduced to the fearful heat and reduced to the form of pure metals, and these rare metals, now rare no longer, on account of the cheapness of reduction and abundance of ore, are taking their proper place in the sphere of industrial activity. The little dust-covered vials are looming up, and keen, hard-headed scientists are studying them, with a view to their possibilities and the best means as to their utilization.

Take aluminum, for example. In 1888 aluminum first appeared on the market and sold for $5 a pound. It was still a curiosity, and here and there some one would get hold of an ounce or two and muse over its extreme lightness, its beautiful color and its avid and oxygen-resisting properties. But still a curiosity. Then comes the electric furnace. Aluminum drops from $5 a pound to 35 cents a pound, and the world suddenly sits up very straight and takes notice. A metal more useful than gold or silver, possibly than iron, has joined the great procession of modern business opportunities, and immediately the business man frantically seeks the man of science and talks about "possibilities."

Aluminum has had a remarkable growth, commercially; but the next few decades will show its real value and use. It is popularly supposed that iron is the commonest of all the metals, but analyses of the earth's crust show that aluminum is the king of all the metals as far as quantity is concerned. There is just a little more than 8 per cent. of aluminum in the crust of the earth, or almost twice as much as there is of iron, and more than eighty times as much aluminum as there is copper.

AT A FEW CENTS PER POUND.

Some time aluminum will be made for a few cents a pound, and it will eventually displace iron in many places where iron is now considered to be indispensable. It is about one-third the weight of iron; is about as strong in tensile strength as cast iron, and and a number of other thoroughfares

just as soon as the proper alloy of aluminum can be found it will be steel's strongest rival.

At present metallurgists are handicapped by the fact that aluminum can be made from only one ore, bauxite, and this ore is to be found in few places, and is rapidly being exhausted. There is no doubt, however, that in a short time we shall know how to extract the aluminum from ordinary clay, economically—then every clay bank will be a mine of high-grade ore, every bit of slate will yield its precious prisoner of pure aluminum, which it has so jealously guarded for untold ages—and then iron, with its rusting, its crystallization and its queer eccentricities, as shown when in its peerless young rival, aluminum. the form of steel, will be displaced by Another rare metal that has yielded to the magic of the furnace is tantalum. So called from Tantalus, as it was so elusive, but it has finally been reduced by high temperature to the metallic form, and has found extensive use as a substitute for carbon in the manufacture of incandescent electric light filaments. Carbon is a very wasteful substance when used as a filament.

For the past two or three decades search has been made for a substance that would give more light and consume less current. The older a carbon filament gets the less light it gives and the more current used. It is, in fact, cheaper to discard an old carbon filament lamp and replace it with a fresh one on this account.

Tantalum, however, owing to its high melting point, 5200 degrees F., is a very satisfactory substitute for carbon. It gives more light and uses only two watts per candle power, while carbon uses three and a half.

EXTREMELY HARD METAL.

Another use for tantalum depends upon the fact that it is extremely hard. Various attempts have been made to drill through a thin sheet of this metal; a diamond drill, running at the rate of 5000 revolutions per minute, resulted in a penetration of only a small fraction of an inch, although the boring was kept up continuously for three days, and the sheet of tantalum was only one-third of an inch in thickness. No doubt it will eventually be used for bearings and dies and drills, or for any other purpose where extreme hardness is desired. Fortunately for us we have abundant supplies of this valuable substance in South Dakota and North Carolina.

Although tantalum is better than carbon for filaments, there has lately come into the field another Richmond. Tungsten, another rare metal, is even more valuable in this respect than tantalum. It has a higher melting point, 5500 deg. F., and gives a much more efficient light, with less expenditure of electrical energy. It uses only one-third of the energy used in a carbon light, and, working at such a high temperature gives far more candle power. It is true that the first cost of a tungsten light is almost prohibitive, but that is now. Wait until the magic work of the furnace is completed, and we are able to obtain tungsten cheaply, then a carbon lamp will be a curiosity on account of its rarity.

Large quantities of tungsten ore have been found in Montana and California, and there is no lack of raw material for the future development of this industry.

RARE METALS AND CHEAP LIGHT

Tungsten has other possibilities than the one indicated, and is employed in fire-proofing cloth for curtains, etc., and is invaluable in its use in dyeing, being a powerful mordant, a substance that forms an insoluble compound with any coloring matter and holds it within the tissue of the fabric.

Cerium and thorium are rare metals, and were until recently regarded as curiosities. Now they are looked upon literally in an entirely new light, as they form the basis of the chemicals used in impregnating the meshes of the Welsbach mantle, so common now as an illuminant in our houses. And these rare metals furnish us with the radiant, powerful light that enables the man of moderate means to illuminate his house better and cheaper than if he used the more costly electricity.

Chromium, whose melting point is beyond that of platinum, is another rare metal that has done marvelous things in the way of bettering steel. By its wonderful magic it has almost transformed this useful metal and has greatly increased its value and reliability.

Molybdenum and uranium are also of high value for the betterment of steel, and the future alone can reveal the possibilities that lie in this direction.

WONDERS OF VANADIUM.

And now comes vanadium, the most wonderful of all the rare metals. Vanadium, known to the world for about eighty years, was little more than a chemical curiosity until quite recently. Then some wise experimenter added a mite of it to steel, and found that its effect was almost marvelous, wonderfully improving the quality of the steel. It increases the tensile strength of the steel about twofold, and at the same time acts as a scavenger and rids it of nitrogen and certain obscure oxides. Vanadium steel is not only statically stronger, but dynamically stronger than ordinary steel. In other words, it will not only carry greater loads, but will withstand heavier shocks. A bar of steel of high tensile strength would make a poor axle for an automobile if it could be fractured by a sudden jar against a cobble stone, and vanadium seems to strengthen steel remarkably in this respect. Vanadium steel seems to be less liable to what is commonly known as "crystallization," or more properly speaking, the molecular disintegration which in some mysterious way changes fine steel into a substance but little better than cheap pot-metal. It has been recently reported that vanadium steel has been made in the form of wire having the tensile strength of 400,000 pounds to the square inch! One remarkable property possessed by vanadium steel is that of self-lubrication, an immense advantage in the case of high-speed tools. Until recently there was very little known of vanadium, and it was obtained with great difficulty and expense, owing to its extreme rarity. Within the past few years an immense deposit of it has been found on the top of the hitherto inaccessible the local depot has had a fifty foot exand now long strings of llamas are carrying this precious ore down the steep slopes to the seaports and the marts of the world. Nature has again demonstrated her wonderful power of always providing for our needs, when these needs arise. If vanadium has this wonderful effect on steel, what may it not have on other metals, aluminum, for example? It may, possibly, be the one element that aluminum needs to give it the tensile strength so much desired.

Another use of vanadium has already been indicated, as a medicinal agent. If reports from Paris, where Dr. Helouis has been using it for the cure of tuberculosis, cancer and kindred diseases, are trustworthy, and they seem to be, then the greatest medicinal agent the world has ever known has been discovered. The "white plague" will cease to be a menace, and happiness and joy will enter many an abode where grief now abides owing to the fact that this wonderful monster has laid its skeleton hand on some loved one therein. The whole world is intensely interested in this phase of vanadium, and if it proves to be the panacea that is claimed, we shall be everlastingly indebted to "The Magic of Rare Metals."—[J. Gordon Ogden, in Pittsburg Gazette.

Industrial Independence.

CLOSED SHOP MEANS RESTRICTION OF OUTPUT, SACRIFICE OF INDIVIDUALITY AND MONOPOLY OF LABOR.

VALUE OF THE INDEPENDENT WORKMAN.

The importance of insisting on the anti-union shop and the independent workman was sharply called to mind last week by the complaint made by unionists that a local contractor had worked his employees overtime for the completion of needed hospital buildings and the preservation of the county building. The employees concerned made no complaint. They had been asked in view of the apparent need, to work extra hours for extra-time pay, and they had done so. No one was the sufferer. The sick people at the hospital and the taxpayers of the county were the beneficiaries. Under closed shop conditions the extra hours emergency work would not have been performed, but the contractor would have been required to put on additional union men, and if these could not be found then the work would have suffered delay. The sick people would have been neglected. The county building might have slid down into the adjoining hole. But union principles would have triumphed. The taxpayer should take careful note of this fact.

The independent workmen were ready for the emergency and responded promptly to the call for their services.

The anti-union shop has always proved its industrial advantage when it has been brought into comparison with union requirements. The community always respects the independent workman, for he stands representative of his industrial value. He does not require to be bolstered up by rules and regulations calculated to squeeze from the employer the maximum of wages for a minimum of labor, with no right to insist upon a greater production as a condition for keeping certain men in his employ. When the strike occurred in the Underwood Typewriter Works at Hartford, Ct., the independent workmen saved the shops from being closed, and thus saved the community from the loss that always results from such an industrial suspension. When the forge men in the employ of the Winchester Arms Company struck because they were asked to do a full day's work, though it was for their own advantage, as they were on piece work, it was the independent workmen who saved the shop from a shut-down. The same independent workmen also earned $6.50 per day by doing a full day's work, where the men who struck were earning only $4.50 and $5.00 per day. It is the independent workmen who have enabled the Pressed Steel Car Company at McKee's Rocks, Pa., to keep the shops in operation. Wherever a community is prosperous and progressive it will be found that the independent workman is in the majority and the closed shop is unknown.

The attempt to limit the hours constituting a day's work, which has been one of the chief pursuits of unionism, is an infringement upon men's rights. Already the Supreme Court of the United States has declared unconstitutional a law of the State of New York which imposes such a limit. This decision establishes the right of employer and employee to contract with each other relative to the hours of labor and denies the right or authority of any State to interfere with the exercise of the right of the individual to employ or be employed for such number of hours per day or at such wages as may be agreed upon. The independent workman is thus entirely within his rights when he makes any agreement with his employer that may please both.

Union Men Sued for Damages.

The filing of suits for $200,000 damages against fifty-six strikers at Newcastle, Pa., by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company has dumfounded the officials of the Amalgamated Association in Pittsburgh. It reminded the union officials of the suits which the hat manufacturers of Danbury, Ct., won against the unions, and of the victory over the machinists' union at Indianapolis, when one striker lost his home to satisfy judgments against the union.

The tin company's officials say it is the only method to strike a crippling blow at the men who interfere with the operation of their plants.

At present the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company is operating twenty mills in Newcastle, and in all 140 tin plate mills are in operation. This is a gain of sixty mills since the strike began.

Assaulted by a Unionite.

To fulfill threats made in a heated argument Fred Payne, a lineman, deliberately kicked a ladder from under Paul Mallott, an electrician engaged in making repairs at the Rutland Hotel, First and Clay streets, early last evening. As a consequence, Mallott was hurled backward and fell ten feet to the floor. He struck on his head and remained unconscious until revived by City Physician Zeigler an hour later. Payne was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

Witnesses say Mallott while engaged in his work upon a ladder in one of the hallways of the hostelry was approached by Payne who demanded that Mallott produce his union card. Unable to present the credentials Mallott undertook to explain his inability to do so, Payne's kick following.

On the way to police headquarters Payne struck Patrolman Flack and a lively tussle ensued. After regaining his senses, Mallott, who is a member of the firm of Mallott & Hunt, was removed to his home.—[Portland Oregonian.

Strike Called Off.

As a result of some contractors erecting school buildings in Chicago employing non-union painters a strike was called by the Painters' Union with the prospect that building and repair operations on all the public school buildings would be tied up. Among the painters called out were fifteen who were under the civil service. When it became understood that these men would have their names discharged from the civil service lists, the strike promptly came to an end.

Losing All Around.

The plantation owners at Honolulu have refused to reëmploy the striking Japanese and their places have been filled by 2000 strike-breakers.

The Orange (N. J.) hat manufacturers who have been harassed by strikes are beginning to seek new fields where labor conditions will allow them to control their own business.

A regiment of militia was promptly called out by the Canadian authorities when the dock strikers at Fort William, Ont., attempted violence upon the property of the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

The striking mine workers at Cape Breton have returned to work without gaining any recognition of their union.

Miss Mollie Bradin led the strike-breakers at the mills of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company at Newcastle, Pa. She is the daughter of a former superintendent of the mills and has a thorough knowledge of tin-plate making.

PERILS OF AIR WORKERS.

Breathless Risks Are Daily Braved by the Iron Workers on the Skyscrapers.

[Everybody's Magazine:] As you watch them at work on the girders, clinging to massive steel corners, perched on the tops of columns, or leaning out over the street far below, it is not the recklessness, but the cool, steady nerve that you notice most. Under all the apparent unconcern you can feel the endless strain. It shows in the looks of their eyes, in the lines of their faces, in the quick, sudden motions, in the slow, catlike movements. Endlessly facing death, they are quiet and cool by long training.

Up on the Metropolitan Life, some twenty-five tiers above the street, an enormous circle of stone was being built in as a frame for the clock. A dozen men were at work on the scaffold that hung outside, and projecting from overhead was the boom of the derrick that hoisted the massive stone blocks. Suddenly the cable caught and the full power from the engine below was brought to bear on the derrick. All this in an instant, but in that instant somebody saw what was going to happen. With a quick, warning cry he made a leap from the planks to the solid steel beams of the building. There was a rending and tearing above, and, just as the last man leaped in to safety, the derrick crashed down, bearing with it the scaffold and part of the stone. One empty, breathless moment, then a roar from far below, and a cloud of gray dust came slowly drifting upward to the girders. Then some one broke the spell with a husky laugh, another gave an explosive halloo—and the gang set about repairing the damage.

WORLD'S BIGGEST TREE.

Believed to Stand in Parish Church Yard at Tule, on Ancient Mexican Town.

[Exchange:] The great tree in the courtyard of the parish church at Tule, Mex., is famous all over the world, and is an object of great veneration on the part of the natives, who come from all parts of Central America and Mexico to see it. It is reputed to be the largest tree in the world, in girth, and must have still been a great tree long before the advent of the "Conquistadores," and perhaps was a respectable twig when the builders were at work on the palaces of Mitla. It measures 154 feet, 2 inches in circumference six feet above the ground; following its irregularities, greater diameter of the eliptical trunk, forty feet; diameter of the spreading mass of branches and foliage, 145 feet; height about 160 feet, and as a native said, "It takes two looks to see the top."

Its vast bulk is a conspicuous feature of the plain in which it stands, and attracts attention long before one reaches the village. It is said to have sheltered the army of Cortez, when on its disastrous expedition to Honduras nearly four centuries ago. On the east side of this venerable "arbol" is a wooden tablet, with an inscription, now almost illegible, signed by Humboldt, the great German traveler, who visited this locality in 1808.

An Unwritable Sentence.

There is one sentence in the English language which cannot be written properly, though it is correct when spoken. Here is the sentence, though, of course, there is no rule for writing it: "There are three twos in the English language." But the problem is, how is one to know which two—or to— or too— to write? We have the three twos—but we must spell each of the three differently, so the sentence cannot be written correctly.

BOOTH TELLS HOW HE FOUNDED SALVATION ARMY.

BY GEN. WILLIAM BOOTH.

[illegible] Army, from what- [illegible] standpoint it is viewed, has, [illegible] become a matter of some [illegible]. I must say that, at any [illegible] years after I commenced [illegible] of which it has grown, [illegible] I, so far as I know, any of [illegible] any expectation that [illegible] reach its present in- [illegible] proportions. Contrary, to [illegible] generally accepted idea, I had [illegible] preconceived plan of campaign [illegible] I began. I knew very little of [illegible] problems I was to attack. I had [illegible] little experience of work among [illegible] poor and working classes, [illegible] among the children of [illegible] whom I have since come [illegible] and speak of as the "sub- [illegible]" I was a Methodist minister, [illegible] to work chiefly among the [illegible] middle classes in provincial cen- [illegible] no doubt, many of the limi- [illegible] of thought and outlook, [illegible] common to those conditions. [illegible] early association with the [illegible] England—the Church of my [illegible] far as he could be said to [illegible] at all—prevented my en- [illegible] of some of the Non- [illegible] views of denominationa- [illegible] gave me, perhaps, a more [illegible] towards the work of all [illegible]

But so far from having [illegible] formation of a new re- [illegible] when I began my [illegible] warfare in Whitechapel in [illegible] possessed of the idea that [illegible] send my converts to [illegible] existing churches of the [illegible], in fact, I did so. [illegible] to draw them together [illegible] into small societies [illegible] model of which I then [illegible] experience showed me—per- [illegible] my convinced me—that [illegible] converts or "members," as we [illegible] to call them, I had a [illegible] agency, and a most [illegible] for reaching men and [illegible] condition, to those un- [illegible] they themselves had been [illegible] that ordinary working [illegible] corduroys and bowler [illegible] command attention from [illegible] which was refused [illegible] with my theological [illegible] knowledge. I found [illegible] of intemperance were [illegible] the influence and testi- [illegible] bands of reformed [illegible] and that their message was [illegible] was only too often [illegible]. I found that the [illegible] East Enders, whose [illegible] of happiness was too often [illegible] a skittle-alley, or a box- [illegible] or a "penny gaff," could [illegible] that there was, after [illegible] in religion," when they [illegible] old acquaintances living [illegible] happy and prosperous [illegible] influence.

[illegible] what may be called the [illegible] Salvation Army. From [illegible] everything else, or nearly [illegible] in our peculiar propa- [illegible] succeeded.

[illegible] found that such work [illegible] could be best done by [illegible]. Combination in- [illegible] and organisation [illegible] and government [illegible]. As to the kind of [illegible] would prove most [illegible] the ends I had in view [illegible] undecided. It was [illegible] should be so. And [illegible] resulted in [illegible] experience many les- [illegible] proved of the [illegible] circumstances, and [illegible] by the good hand [illegible] several experiments. [illegible] mediate assistants. Great and small, principle and detail, all that concerned the inception, control and management of the work, was referred to me. I soon found that to be an impossible arrangement for myself, and one unsuited to the people with whom I had to deal.

I then adopted a more commonplace plan. I called into co-operation with me certain selected—in point of fact, they were elected—persons representing the various stations or societies which had up to that time been established, and with the missionaries or evangelists who were already employed in the direction of the work, formed them into a conference with the committees and sub-committees usually found in association with that type of governing body.

But this plan also failed. After a few years, spent chiefly in debating abstract questions and passing resolutions which ceased to be of any practical interest the moment they appeared on the minute book, a few of my most trusted lieutenants came to me, and in effect said: "This method of work will never shake the kingdom of the devil. We are only growing daily more and more like the societies around us. We are losing much that is best, and all that is distinctive in our work. We do not wish to become another little sect."

My mind was already made up. "Government by talk" had been tried, and was found wanting. The leading spirits at once—there was not a single dissentient—placed themselves in my hands. We reorganized ourselves on—without at all intending it—semi-military lines, and shortly afterwards took the name of "The Salvation Army." The work at once made great strides, and came forthwith into touch with a wider public.

I am very far from under-estimating the value of what had already been accomplished. In fact, all, or nearly all that has since proved of such effect, and has seemed so powerful in striking the imagination of multitudes of the people, had its inception before this change took place; but from the moment of our adopting in our organization the simple methods of responsible and individual command and personal obedience, our whole campaign partook of a new character; and, in place of the hesitation and almost total want of progress which had marked the conference period, every department of the work leaped forward.

And here I ought to mention one of the most powerful agencies for guiding and maintaining both the spirit and manner of our operations. The moment the work assumed anything like considerable proportions, it became difficult, and soon impossible, for me to express my wishes and give my instructions to my various helpers by word of mouth. For a time I had, therefore, to issue these instructions in the form of correspondence; but this, also, I soon found to be a task beyond my ability; and yet if unity and harmony were to be preserved among those who had gathered around me, and if they were to be helped in conserving the results which God had enabled them to achieve, it was evident that they must know my wishes. I was, therefore, compelled to print such special directions as I had formerly issued in other forms. This method has been continued up to the present, and, in deed, has been extended by reason of the advances of the work in a degree I could never have anticipated. It is now just twenty-one years since I issued a volume of "Orders and Regulations for Field Officers of the Salvation Army," and not only has that volume been revised half a dozen or more times since then, but other volumes, dealing with the work of other classes of officers engaged both in our evangelistic and our social operations, in this country and in other lands, have been issued.

These various "Regulations" form a remarkable compendium of Salvation Army plan and purpose, and they also constitute a kind of history of Salvation Army work. While I always have been conscious in some measure of the guidance of the Holy Spirit in preparing them, it is equally true that they are themselves the outcome of the labor and experience of our most active and capable workers in every part of the world.

But I have never placed too great [illegible] ever been deeply impressed by a vivid sense of the utter powerlessness of any mere system, however wisely it may have been framed, which has not in its application that Spirit of Life which alone can impart that vital force without which no extensive or lasting good can be accomplished. God forbid that any regulation, which I have issued, no matter how effective for their immediate purpose, should go to swell the number of the dead forms and powerless systems already in existence.

The extension of the Salvation Army to lands beyond the seas has, in the main, been the result of events similar to those which have led up to its establishment in different parts of the old country. One of the most frequent means—or should I say occasions—for such extensions has been the removal from one place to another of persons who had received benefit through its influence in their former homes. Arriving in their new surroundings, they have desired to impart something of the same spirit which they had received, and to see bestowed upon their new associates something of the benefits which they have observed flow from its operations elsewhere. Accordingly, in some cases, they have set to work to hold meetings, which have proved immediately successful, and they have then asked from us the appointment of leaders.

In other cases, they have not ceased entreating us to send them competent pioneers, until we have been compelled—often reluctantly—to comply with their wishes.

It was in this way the work began in the United States in 1881, through the influence of a silk worker who had moved there from Coventry, and similarly in Canada a little later. In the same way our flag was unfurled in Australia in 1881, through a milk dealer who had emigrated from Stepney. In Sweden, a short visit of an officer from England who was seeking health, resulted in the holding of meetings, and out of that casual effort the opening of the work there, and in other parts of Scandinavia, followed. Here again there was no concerted or deeply laid scheme of extension. Everything has been a process of natural development, which, although quite unsought, and largely unconsidered, has nevertheless, been irresistible.

When first the work of the army was established in other than English-speaking countries, there arose the interesting question of language. It was quite natural that, at any rate, in the earlier years of the work, leaders would be required for the various nations who had enjoyed the advantage of association with myself and being trained in England. But then a very large proportion of my officers were uneducated and comparatively ill-trained. So far from having any acquaintance with other languages, it was the utmost they could do to speak their own correctly. But the passion of true sympathy is the parent of many valuable inventions; and it soon proved possible, through the use of interpreters who were themselves touched by the same Spirit, and inspired by the same motives, to enable English leaders to do all the work, both public and administrative, connected with their important positions.

These interpreters came forward in a surprising way. A little attention was shown to them, certain helps provided in the way of improving their fluency, until now we have developed a corps of specialists in this matter; and wherever an English-speaking officer appears in the Salvation Army world, whether in Tokio or in Berlin, at Ahmedabad or Madras, or at Milan, whether in Trondhjelm, or in Buenos Ayres, there he will find a duly-appointed and capable translator, who is as well able to interpret his thoughts and words, and even his emotions, as if he were a delicate musical instrument at the disposal of the master musician.

But my officers, as a whole, are one of the most remarkable, and, I think, most important facts of the army. In the earlier days my chief difficulty—as also my chief necessity—was to obtain the help of men and women whose spirit would fit them for the work I wanted done. From the very first I saw that I must raise these co-workers from amongst the class to whom I wished them to minister. If they were to be for the people in the sense I required, it was a necessity that they should be of the people. I recognized this, and I set myself to do it. I resolved that no disadvantage as to birth, or education, or social condition should debar any one from entering the list of combatants, so long as they were one with me in love of God, in faith for the salvation of men, and in willingness to obey the orders they should receive from me and from those [illegible] not a few of them very hard to bear at the time—but from the early days of 1865, when I engaged my first recognized helper, to 1878, when the number had increased by slow degrees to about 120, and on to the present day, when their number is rapidly approaching 20,000, there has not been a single year without its increase, not only in quantity, but in quality.

I am sometimes asked, what about those who have left me? Well, I am thankful to say that we remain in sympathetic and friendly relations with the great bulk of them. It was to be expected that in work such as ours, demanding, as it does, not only arduous toil and constant self-denial and often real hardships of one kind or another, some should prove unworthy, some should grow weary, and others should faint by the way. It could not be otherwise, for we are engaged in real warfare, and whoever heard of war without wounds and losses? But even of those who do thus step aside from the position of officers, a large proportion—in this country nine out of ten—remain with us engaged in some voluntary effort in our ranks.

As a body, the men and women who make up the total sum of our leadership are a signal evidence of the presence of Christ in our midst, proving themselves to be no mean successors of the Apostles. They are sent from God to proclaim the demands of His law and the provisions of His salvation to all who have not realized the one or experienced the other. They are pioneers of a religion that demands from them a high example of labor, of a faith that makes them gentle among the rebellious, the false, the ungrateful and the cruel; of a love that sends them with the touch of divine compassion to the careless, the sensual, the revilers, the extortioners, and that brings them down into close and intimate touch with the outcast and forlorn and heartbroken.

Indeed, religion means to them not merely the purification of motive and the rectification of life for themselves, but it involves the whole disposal of life for the service of others. They are not only servants of God and servants of the Salvation Army, but the servants of all who suffer, of all whose burdens break them down, of all whose unbelief or sorrow, or rebellion, or misery, is but the outward sign of that awful famine of love and hope which devastates the heart.

And the simplicity of our creed has been, as I believe it will remain, one of the principal helps to our unity. We stand for the old truths. The faith which can be interpreted in terms of duty, of unselfishness, of purity, of love to God and man, is the only faith we really care about. Whatever may be the case with the select minority, the consciousness of sin, the force of evil habit, and the influence of passion are all vivid realities with the great masses of the population. To them we bring the promise of deliverance by Jesus Christ.

We have no more need than we have desire to concern ourselves or to trouble our audiences with the problems of the doubters and the critics. That old-fashioned, if rather inelegant formula, covers a great deal of debatable ground—"The proof of the pudding is in the eating." "Here," we say to all sorts and conditions of men, "is a remedy for the power of evil in your nature, in your lives. Here, by repentance towards God and faith in His Son Jesus Christ, you may find the cure of sin and the strength to live lives of purity and unselfishness. Try Him." And they do try Him, and the results are ungainsayable. "Where was your Saviour born?" asked a derisive critic of a fellow-workman who had been transformed from a life of sensualism and violence to one of sobriety and honest service. "I do not know," was the reply. "Where did He live?" "I do not know." "Where did He die?" "I do not know about those things," was the answer; "But I do know this; that He has forgiven my sins and changed all my life, and that He is my Saviour." That is the answer—perhaps the only effective answer to unbelief—the answer of experience. Anyway, it is this practical translation of the old doctrines, especially the greatest of them all, into the daily life and consciousness of the people, which is at once their great apology and their great defense.

Declares the Crop Is Far Better Than He Expected to Find It—Machinery for Gin and Compress Will Reach El Centro Within Two Weeks.

EL CENTRO, Aug. 28.—A general inspection of the Imperial Valley cotton fields last week, by expert cotton men from the south, and by W. R. Emery, buyer for the California Cotton Mills at Oakland, shows the growing of cotton in this valley is a success.

J. A. Watkins of Little Rock, Ark., who has been one of the inspectors here, and whose business is to size up the cotton crop along the Mississippi said, after he had made the rounds here:

"Far better than I had expected to find it. There is no question as to the suitability of the valley soil and climate for cotton growing. The quality of the crop as indicated by the bolls already matured is very great, and the fiber is first-class. The staple is of good length, and it is very fine and white. It will grade high and bring good prices."

Machinery for the cotton gin and compress will arrive in El Centro within two weeks. The mammoth cantaloupe packing shed to the east of the Southern Pacific tracks here has been secured for the temporary housing of the plant.

RICH SUGAR CANE.

Tests of Imperial Valley sugar cane, made by a prominent chemist in Los Angeles, show 19 per cent. of sugar. The investigators are enthusiastic over the result of this analysis and predict that Imperial Valley will have a great future as a sugar producer.

TAKE OVER LAND.

The City Trustees have started legal proceedings to condemn the land now used as a sewer farm, so that the title may pass into the city's keeping. The land was to have been purchased at private sale, but it was discovered that this would conflict with certain technicalities connected with the United States Land Office rulings, and that regular condemnation proceedings must be started. In the meantime, the land is in use by the city.

Numerous business houses and residences are being connected with the new septic sewer system. This week the Trustees authorized the drawing of the last warrant in full payment to Frick & Ware of Los Angeles for the construction of this system.

GROWERS DISSATISFIED.

It is probable that cantaloupe growing in Imperial Valley next year will be attractive to but few ranchers. Several of the most prominent growers in this section of the valley have become so dissatisfied with the season's returns that they declare they will plant no more melons. While the crop was an excellent one, and the commission men gave constant assurance that the melons would net the growers an average of one dollar per crate, the final returns show in numerous instances the sale of the crop at a very small margin of profit, or even a loss. Those who had early melons in the market made the most money, but the latter part of the season involved loss to the growers.

BAMBOO FOR VALLEY.

William Kelly, nurseryman here, arranging for a shipment of the mammoth bamboo from the Philippine Islands to Imperial Valley. He secured a shipment of cuttings of this bamboo from Japan last year, but they arrived in such bad condition that not one cutting grew.

George L. Cooper has begun an action against Water Company No. 5 in the Imperial County Superior Court, for an order directing the corporation to issue to him duplicate certificates of stock for twenty shares which have been lost or destroyed. The hearing is set for September 17.

The single call of yesterday on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange was marked by comparatively light trading, only two petroleums, three mining stocks and a single utility being handled. The institution has a capitalization of $250,000, and its deposits are considerably over half a million. Jade Oil was listed with the petroleums. This stock has a par vaaue of 1.00. REVERSAL IN WHEAT MARKET.

HEAVY TONE PREVAILS COMPARED WITH PREVIOUS DAY.

Slight Firmness at Opening Disappears and Closing Is at Almost Lowest Point—Rains in Kansas and Nebraska Bring Out Liberal Sales, Resulting Decline.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Complete reversal of sentiment marked wheat trading today, compared with yesterday, a heavy tone prevailing. A little firmness was manifested early on an advance of 5-8 to 7-8d at Liverpool, but before the end of the first hour the market weakened and continued so as the trading progressed. The closing was almost at the lowest point of the day. Rains in Kansas and Nebraska brought out liberal sales of corn, which resulted in material declines in all deliveries. The market closed weak with prices down 5-8 to 3-4.

Trade in oats was dull and the market was weak all day. At the close, prices were 1-2@5-8 to 2-4@7-8 below yesterday.

Provisions were firm, showing gains of 2½ to 7½@10 cents at the close.

Cash quotations were as follows: Flour—Firm; winter patents, 4.70@5.10; straights, 4.40@5.20; spring patents, 5.60@5.80; straights, 4.80@5.55; bakers, 3.25@4.80; No. 2 rye, 69@73; feed or mixing barley, 48@52; fair to choice malting, 50@60; flax seed, No. 1 southwestern, 3.17; No. 1 northwestern, 1.45; timothy seed, 3.60; clover, 11.30; mess pork, per bbl., 22.45@22.50; lard, per 100 lbs., 12.25; short ribs, sides (loose,) 11.60@11.80; short clear sides (boxed,) 12.25@12.37½.

Grain Statistics.

Total clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 247,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 898,000 bushels, compared with 870,000 bushels the corresponding day a year ago. Estimated receipts for Monday: Wheat, 66 cars; corn, 219 cars; oats, 184 cars; hogs, 26,000 head.

New York Cotton Market.

[By Private Wire to E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, No. 111 West Third street.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Speculation in cotton for future delivery during the past week has been at generally rising prices on bullish ideas as to trade and crop outlook. Many, however, have been awaiting events to furnish new light on the general situation. More particularly they await the government report of September 2, with decided interest. Most people look for a decidedly bullish report, something less as to the condition of the crop than the 71.9 given in the August report. The ten-year average for September is 73.6. The September condition in that time has been as low as 64 in 1902 and as high as 84.1 in 1904, the year of the 13,566,000-bale crop. The consensus of opinion is that the crop is late by one to two weeks. Visible supplies are smaller than they were two years ago when the crop was approximately 11,400,000 bales.

Logan & Bryan's letter follows: "A very decided effort was made yesterday and today to lift cotton to a higher level. Disturbing conditions in the stock market and a spirit of conservatism prevented the plans from maturing and the market from developing any runaway tendency. That the coming crop is a very poor one cannot be doubted, but the entire trade is pretty well informed on that fact, and have made up their minds that the forthcoming bureau report will show the usual six to seven-point August deterioration. The report which is expected next week is now expected to show a crop condition of about 65, and the majority of the trade is hoping that figures of that kind will precipitate buying by the spinner of sufficient volume to lift the market to very much higher levels and permit the liquidation of long cotton. In our opinion, this report will have to show below 65 to induce the spinner to indulge in any hysterical buying. The market feels the absence of a short interest keenly, and it will require new buying by the old bulls or new buying by new bulls to sustain it."

TUCSON WANTS MORE RAILWAYS.

Niece of Aged Miner Scanlon Arrives and Consults Attorney in Relation to Her Interest in $60,000 Estate Which Has Been Kidnaped With the Old Man.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

TUCSON, Aug. 27.—Now that by action of the taxpayers themselves has been assured construction of a railroad from Tucson to the international line, another idea is materializing—to connect the city with the Phoenix and Eastern Railroad at Winkelman, thus drawing the trade of the Kelvin, Winkelman and Mammoth districts which now are beginning to be tributary to Phoenix. It is probable that the Southern Pacific will connect Winkelman with the main line at Benson, but that would be too remote to satisfy the business interests of Tucson. Still another railroad planned is to Helvetia camp, by means of a spur of the Twin Buttes road. At present the trade of Helvetia is handled through Vail station, east of Tucson.

New interest has attached to the Scanlon kidnaping case by the arrival in Tucson of Mrs. T. A. Murray of Louisville, Ky., a niece of the aged miner. Though she refused to answer any queries concerning her journey here, she has consulted an attorney and is understood to be looking toward participation in the $60,000 Scanlon estate should the hold secured by Miss Melarky be pried loose. At present Scanlon is with his abductor in Guaymas, Sonora, and seems perfectly happy about it.

HOW BEAUMONT HAS MADE GOOD ON WATER QUEST

This dry season has been a splendid test of the water supply at Beaumont. The summer season is the time to prove the amount, constancy and quality of any irrigation project, and Beaumont has come off more than victorious. The Four magnificent wells and Three running mountain streams have kept a steady stream of water, aggregating over 350 miners' inches, sufficient for all possible needs of this fertile deciduous fruit valley. The splendid quality of the soil, too, has been shown in many instances, where economical ranchers have experimented with semi-dry farming. In any test you wish to subject Beaumont lands to, they make good. Water here is king, so that the rich soil and ideal climate insure bounteous harvests. Vast acreage is being planted to apples and cherries, which banner fruits for this valley. $900 yield per acre may be ly expected by Beaumont ranchers, making these lands present price among the able in Southern California.

RENAULT THE WINNER OF LONG AUTO RACE.

Ranier Second and Acme Third—Time Far Short of Record—Citizens Try to Stop Race But Fail—All Sorts of Smash-ups.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BRIGHTON BEACH (N. Y.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The gruelling twenty-four-hour automobile race, which caused the death of two persons, a driver and a spectator and brought serious injury to five persons, wound up at 10 o'clock tonight with the honors going to the Renault car, No. 1, which covered 1050 miles during the allotted time.

The Ranier car, No. 2, which had lagged behind the leader for a distance of 100 miles during the last four hours of the race, was second with a total of 938 miles. The other cars to complete the grind finished as follows:

Acme, No. 3, 888 miles; Palmer-Singer, 870 miles; Allen Kingston, 866 miles; Acme, No. 4, 760 miles.

The cars had traveled in this order during the last four hours of the contest. The Renault, which set a dizzy pace, however, gained a lead of 100 miles on its nearest rival, settled down to a steady drive in the last six hours, averaging about forty-five miles an hour. The car's average for the twenty-four hours was a trifle over forty-three miles an hour.

More than 15,000 persons saw the final stage of the contest, and were enlivened by a great exhibition of speed in the last hour by the Acme, No. 3, which simply flew around the track in an endeavor to beat its own record of fifty-five miles. It fell short, however, of the previous best mark.

The prize of $200 for the car covering the greatest number of miles in any one hour was awarded to Cyrus Patschke, driver of the Acme, No. 3, for the fifty-five miles rolled up from 10 to 11 o'clock on Friday night.

PRIZE TO PATSCHKE.

Acme No. 4 was credited with an equal performance in the same hour, but the referee ruled that Patschke's car had finished its mile and was therefore the special prize winner.

Only the Acme took any chances of a spill in the last two or three hours. The remaining drivers were content to rest with what they had done, and maintained only a steady pace. Some of the six that were on the track at the end were, of course, unable to do any speed work because of crippled resources.

Immediately after the finish, John F. Ranier of the Ranier company announced that his firm is through with track racing, at least until it is proved to his satisfaction that the game is safe. He refuses further, he says, to place in jeopardy the lives of his employés.

Except for a long-continued duel between the Ranier and the Acme No. 3, the day was a rather tedious one for the spectators. The Renault had a good lead, having enjoyed virtual immunity from set-backs. Its only trouble during the twenty-four hours had been a bent steering cross rod, said to have been sustained when the Stearns made its spectacular exit the night before. In other respects the red French car was on its best behavior and entered the paddock only for an occasional tire change or the filling up of gasoline and oil tanks.

The Ranier on the contrary had been having plenty of trouble. A cracked crankshaft hampered it from 6 o'clock in the morning, necessitating the fitting during the day of three the last available pair was placed in use and after that it was a case of hoping they would last. All of the others had trouble of one kind or another.

Efforts to make a good showing with the Lozier were given up early in the morning, when the car turned over a second time as a result of a wheel collapsing. The mishap occurred at the beginning of the back stretch and the machine was left there for hours. In both spills Heina was at the wheel, but he escaped with barely a scratch.

TRIED TO STOP IT.

Citizens of Brighton Beach appealed to the police tonight to have the twenty-four-hour race stopped after the accident to Mechanician Cole, but failed.

Early in the morning a Pinkerton detective, P. Corrigan, who was on duty on the back stretch, was hurt when a car skidded and hit a lamp post. The lamp fell on the policeman, broke his right leg and dislocated the left knee. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital at Coney Island.

The Acme No. 4 was in trouble again at 4:35 o'clock, when a cross-bar of the steering gear broke as the racer was whistling along the back stretch near the spot where the Lozier jumped the fence to the outfield this morning. The Lozier had turned upside down shortly before 1 o'clock, but no one was hurt.

DEATH HALTS.

Outside of a short time taken out last night following the death of Mechanician Leonard Cole of the Stearns car, the thrilling race went on with ever increasing interest.

After being in second place for a long time the Acme car No. 4 was driven through the fence to avoid a collision and lost almost an hour for repairs. Just prior to this, driver Ludd of the Ranier was called to the stand and cautioned for crowding the Acme. He was allowed to continue, however. When the Acme No. 4 returned it was in fifth place, the other Acme third. In the afternoon the Acme No. 4 had another misfortune when it caught fire while running down the back stretch. The blaze was caused by the magneto wire burning out. The car had to drop out for almost an hour, Van Tine, the driver, having to sacrifice his position.

Hughes was driving at a heartbreaking speed, with his badly burned face swathed in bandages. Only his eyes, nostrils and lips were visible, giving him a most uncanny appearance as his car shot around the course, belching forth blue flames from its exhaust valves, making explosions like artillery. The grit he had exhibited in face of the severe pain he was known to be suffering made him a hero in the mad race.

In a terrific spurt during the fifteenth hour Disbrow wrested second place from Van Tine, pilot of car No. 4. Disbrow's successful effort won for him a great ovation.

Despite the fact that their number has been cut almost in two by serious accidents, the relentless drivers continued their death-defying pace this afternoon, and time and again more narrow escapes were experienced.

TEN FIGHTERS ARE TO APPEAR.

LONG PROGRAMME MADE UP FOR NAUD JUNCTION SHOW.

Thirty-six Rounds of Boxing Provided for the Pacific Athletic Club on Tuesday Night of Next Week. Each of the Five Bouts Appears to Be an Even One.

Local fight bugs should get all the action they want next week on Tuesday night in the card that is to be dealt at the Naud Junction fight-house, for there will be no less than five bouts, if all go through as scheduled. A curtain-raiser was added yesterday, to consist of four rounds between Young Jeffries and Joe Livermore at catch weights.

If all the contests go the limit there will be thirty-six rounds of thumping, and if any of the bugs should howl about any scarcity, they should be made to themselves supply supply any scrap that is needed. The card is as follows:

Young Jeffries and Joe Livermore, four rounds.

Gene Sullivan and Herb White, six rounds.

Young Solomon and Dick Given, six rounds.

Frankie Sullivan and Curley O'Connell, ten rounds.

Phil Brock and Frank Picato, ten rounds.

Brock and Picato are to weigh 133 pounds at 3 o'clock, and White and Sullivan, 133 at 6 o'clock, while the others are to meet at catch weights. Every one of the boys, with the exception of Young Jeffries, is well known to local fight bugs, and little need be said of any of them, but all of them have done good work here. The semi-final between Frankie Sullivan and Curley O'Connell is really a main event in itself, if one may judge from what these boys have done in the past.

The pugs have started training, and if they stick to it for the next ten days each should be in good shape to fight. Picato is at Doyle's Vernon camp, and will work this afternoon with Jack Stewart, Herb White and Charley Picato. Brock is doing his work at the Naud Junction pavilion, and was busy yesterday, but will take life easily today. Frankie Sullivan has started at Venice, where Young Solomon is also working.

Jim Barry made a flying trip to Murietta Springs on Friday intending to have a vacation for ten days, but he returned yesterday with the statement that the mountains were too hot for him, and he would recreate at the JOLIET (Ill.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There will be no races at Ingalls Park next week. The blow-off came today with the bang-tails in hasty exit after a card of six races. An army of deputies under the command of Sheriff Williams swooped down on the track early and stayed late. This had a discouraging effect on the would-be speculators and the money which circulated on the chance of the latter day Hindoos was passed through the knotholes in the fence.

"There is one best bet and I guarantee that if you play it across the board you won't lose, and that is, that there will be no betting today," said Sheriff Harry Williams. "We have no orders from the Governor or no one else us we know how to take care of law violators by our own accord.

"The three touts who were arrested yesterday were fined $50 and costs each this morning, and sent on their way. That ought to show that we mean business.

"There isn't a chance to make a bet in this county unless they go down in a well. Winks, nods, signs, oral or anything else will look alike to my deputies. If you don't believe it go behind the stand and take a look at two wagons which are headed towards the jail."

Owner Ingalls, of the track, asserted that he hadn't made up his mind whether he would have a meeting or not.

"The crowd isn't quite so big as I expected and I may close down."

"Don't seem to be a chance for the continuance of the meeting," said Secretary Flaws, "people don't come to a race track as a rule, to look at the scenery."

The card of six races were run off, but the Joliet Derby was called off and a $200 handicap substituted.

Cincinnati Club Secures Promise of Members Never to Take Part in Contest.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CINCINNATI (O.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Red hot resolutions condemning the auto races at Indianapolis last week as hazardous and detrimental to the advancement of the automobile were unanimously passed today at a special meeting of the Cincinnati Automobile Club.

Officers of the association addressed the membership and deplored the fact that automobile enthusiasts would place the stamp of approval on races such as were held in Indianapolis. It was also announced that it was the sense of the meeting that members refrain from entering all races, and especially those similar to the tests held in Indianapolis.

The members present agreed to refrain from entering races and went on record as opposed to races like those in Indiana. It was agreed to send copies of the resolutions, together with a letter outlining the sense of the

HAYNE TAKES GOLF HONORS.

First in Opening Round in Del Monte Golf Play

Los Angeles Players Are Not Up to Their Form.

"Pros" Will Meet Today for Money Prizes.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DEL MONTE, Aug. 28.—[Exclusiv Dispatch.] R. Y. Hayne of the Burlingame Country Club won the pri for the best score of the qualifyin round at 36 holes in the Del Mont tournament today. Eight cards wer taken out, which constitutes a recor in number for any tournament eve held here, and from such a big fiel including as it did most of the be known golfers in the State, some ex cellent golfing was expected.

The first couple left the tee at 8: a.m., and the last card was not re turned until 6:30 tonight.

The first good score to be turned was a 71 by C. H. Walter of San Jos which, but for a 5 at the short fou teenth hole, might have easily been 69. At this hole he put his ball in th rough ground to the left of the tee and failed to get well out. Then succession came Lawson with 77, Fr zier with 78, and Douglas Grant wi 73. W. R. Millar, the Los Angel crack, returned a disappointing 82.

The next card was F. C. Newto of the Claremont Country Club Oakland, who also returned a 71 whic strangely enough, might have be two strokes better but for a mista at the long hole. His club mate, F. Garby, returned a 77, as did Vi cent Whitney, of the San Francis Golf and Country Club. C. D. Why of whom great things were expecte had to be content with 73. He play perfect golf for the first nine hol reaching the turn in 36, but comi home his ball constantly refused find the bottom of the hole, and "four resulted where he should have h "threes."

MUMFORD NOT RIGHT.

T. P. Mumford, the star of Anna dale, was disappointing, his card re ing 80. R. H. Hayne, who was a lit unsteady, had 74, as did J. A. Folg who played consistent golf, keeping of all trouble. Others who play steadily were H. Spence Black, w 76; G. Nickel, with 79, and S. S. D of Sacramento with 79.

The result of the morning's pl gave very little idea of who wou constitute the first two divisions sixteen players each who will pl off by matches for the Del Mon championship and the Del Monte c as there was but a difference of tw strokes between the first and thir second best scores, and golf is no riously an uncertain game.

At 1:30 o'clock the players were s on their second journey, C. T. Tu and C. H. Walter again leading. Tu improved on his morning score, Walter was many strokes worse. were Lawson and Newton. Most the cards showed figures around until Hayne came in with a 69, whi with his morning round of 74, g him a grand total of 143, and the fi place, and incidentally the amat record of the course for a thirty- hole competition. C. D. Whyte had 74, making his total 147, but Vince Whitney came to grief, with 87. scores follow:

ONE MORE.

ANOTHER ENTRY IN BALDY RACE.

Ryus and the Corbin May Be Allowed to Start.

Entrants Discuss Plan for Letting Down Bars.

Fenner and Shettler Are Willing, But Ruess Balks.

Four cars may start in the Baldy race on the morning of September 19. H. D. Ryus and the Corbin may be the fourth entry. F. C. Fenner of the White Garage and Leon T. Shettler are willing. Bill Ruess may be won over.

Should Ryus be allowed to enter he will drive a racing car which has been well seasoned. The Corbin was turned loose on the Indianapolis speedway recently, and made eighty miles an hour. It is wonderfully fast, and should be a likely contender in the Baldy climb.

With four cars in the race, the contest will be more exciting than ever. The cars will start thirty minutes apart, and the last machine, which, of course, would be the Corbin, would leave Seventh and Broadway at 6 o'clock.

There is not a man in the world who knows the Baldy course as well as Ryus. Not a rock or a rut, not a boulder or a watercourse is new to the man who three times has won the race. Ryus could drive the course almost blindfolded.

It takes nerve to drive the race, but it also takes road knowledge. Ryus has both in abundance. There will be many who will wager odds that Ryus will win if he is allowed to start.

IN THREE WEEKS.

Three weeks from today the race will be run. The first car will start at o'clock Sunday morning. When Hanshue in the Apperson "Jackrabbit" gets away the race will be on for the coveted honor of reaching the mine first.

Should only three cars start, the race will be the best ever held. The Baldy climb has always attracted considerable attention. This year there is more interest than ever in the race. On the top floor of the White Garage, F. C. Fenner is fixing up a racing monster the like of which has never before been put on the road. Stripped of all unnecessary paraphernalia, the White Steamer which will go to Baldy should go like the wind. It has a forty-horse-power engine, which, according to gasoline rating, is of eighty-horse-power capacity, with a speed of from eighty to ninety miles an hour. It is as fast as the Apperson "Jackrabbit," Fenner says.

This big steam devil cannot be driven "wide open" on any part of the Baldy course. If Gus Seyfried should let the car out it would leap from the course by its own momentum. The White Steamer which Fenner will turn out of his workshop this week will be the fastest White ever seen in these parts.

RACING MONSTER.

This White is a stock factory car, but it will carry sixty-five gallons of water and an equal amount of gasoline, with plenty of lubricating oil. It will have other special attachments. The car looks larger and is bigger than anything the White people have ever shown here. It will look like a gunboat when Fenner sends it to the line on the morning of the race. From the appearance of the car it would seem that the race belongs to the White. Several bets on the White against the field have already been made. Indications are that White will win another victory unless the car meets with an accident.

Fenner fears the Apperson "Jackrabbit." This is the car he says he must beat. The White is being rigged to take the measure of Hanshue's fast machine. It will be a speed contest between these two racing types. Leon Shettler is confident that this Baldy race belongs to him.

While the two giants fight out the battle, the Pope-Hartford may slide into a victory. Ruess is tuning his car. The Pope was never tuned before. The car is fast enough to win. The car can be driven as fast as it is to drive either the White or the Apperson.

BILL'S CHANCES.

Bill knows the road. He will take desperate chances, and because of this combination he may win. The Pope-Hartford is a comfortable bet, as it is one of the fastest models the Pope factory has ever turned out.

Work has been done on the Baldy course. The road beyond Palmdale has been somewhat improved. The road to Palmdale is in wretched shape. Ruts axle deep make the going between Los Angeles and the summit of Newhall Pass the worst ever. This section of the road has been chopped to pieces by the heavy hay wagons which are constantly pounding the surface into dust.

Beyond Newhall the road is bad. Through Saugus the surface of the road is chopped into a thousand ruts. The Soledad Cañon road is also bad. The fastest stretch is between Acton and Palmdale, where Ryus made his wonderful run of a mile a minute last year.

MOTORCYCLE MEET.

Fast Professional and Amateur Riders Will Be Seen at Ascot Park Admision Day.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for a motorcycle race meet at Ascot Park Monday, September 9, Admission Day. The meet will be held under the auspices of the Los Angeles Motorcycle Club and some of the fastest bike riders in the world will be on hand to take part in the races.

One of the features of the meet will be a match race between Paul Derkum and Ben Bresee. These two fast professionals have been matched several times but have never met. Something has occurred each time to prevent the race. The last proposed match was called off because of the death of John Derkum, Paul Derkum's brother, who was killed during a tryout at Agricultural Park.

Fifteen events are scheduled for the Monday meet. There will be races for private owners, a thirty-minute race, ten and five and one mile events. Already a number of entries have been received by the club secretary.

MAKING GREAT RECORD.

Western Motor Car Company Far Ahead of Record for This Time Last Year.

That this season is the greatest ever in the local automobile world is shown by the record made to date by the Western Motor Car Company. Earle C. Anthony, manager, announced yesterday that four times as many Packards have been sold to date as were sold up to this time last year.

Packard "Thirties" were delivered last week to the following: Daniel Murphy, George Burnall and D. T. Althouse of this city, and Edward Groenendyke of Pasadena.

Arrangements have been made by the Western Motor Car Company to deliver two carloads of Chalmers-Detroits and Hudson cars each week after September 1.

The Chalmers "Forty" seven-passenger touring car will be here in about ten days. This high-powered and handsome machine is said to be finer than ever. It is making a record for itself in the east.

TOURISTS AT STATE FAIR.

Auto Vehicle Company Will Make Exhibit at Sacramento in Connection With Chamber of Commerce.

Four Tourist cars, 1910 models, will be features of an exhibit to be made this week at the State Fair in Sacramento by the Auto Vehicle Company of this city. The cars were shipped the early part of last week. W. J. Burt, superintendent of the local factory, will accompany the exhibit and will remain in Sacramento during the fair, which opened yesterday and will close September 4.

The cars shipped were a type B two-cylinder touring car; a type G thirty horse-power toy-tonneau four-cylinder touring car; a type H forty-horse-power California touring car and a fifty horse-power California touring car.

This exhibit will be held in connection with the display to be made by the Chamber of Commerce of this city for Los Angeles county. The Tourist cars will be shown as some of the home product manufactures of Los Angeles.

Take Them Straight.

A motorist experienced in mountain driving says water breaks, commonly known as "kiss-me-quicks," should be taken straight at a slow enough rate of speed that the jar to the passengers is not too great and the occupants of the tonneau will not be thrown out of their seats. If they are taken at an angle the frame will be racked and twisted.

AN OUTING.

SIMPLEX PARTY ENJOYS TOUR.

MISS RUTH BEKINS DRIVES TWO-CYCLE CAR AFAR.

Up the Valley and Down the Coast Over Good, Bad and Indifferent Roads—Automobile Fire and Herds of Cattle Incidents of Pleasant Tour Which Ended Yesterday.

Milo W. Bekins of the Bekins-Corey Motor Company, returned yesterday from a three weeks' tour in his American Simplex. His sister, Miss Ruth Bekins, who was a member of the party, drove the car the greater part of the journey. The Simplex was driven to San Francisco over the inland route through Bakersfield and the return was made by the coast route by way of Oakland.

The trip was made primarily for pleasure, but it was the first time the two-cycle car had been shown in the north. Bekins spent several days showing the car in San Francisco, Oakland and San José. After a hard run over the roughest of roads only two punctures occurred to delay the tourers.

Herds of cattle in the country above Fresno delayed the tourists, but only added to the interest of the drive. It was necessary to drive slowly through the Miller & Lux ranch because of the hundreds of cattle which lazily occupied the center of the road and refused to give way even for the motor car until driven from the dusty highway.

According to Bekins the road over the Pacheco Pass is in wretched condition. The valley roads, however, are reported to be in better condition than the coast route. The roads out of Bakersfield are good as far as Pixley, but after passing that little town they are fierce. The road by way of Cross Creek is as bad as ever, according to the tourists.

Out of Fresno the going is splendid. Along the canals the roads are in fine shape and the Simplex hummed along at a lively clip. Miss Bekins drove the car for many miles, at times reaching as high as speed as fifty miles an hour over the smooth highways.

After leaving Oakland on the return journey the American Simplex was driven to Monterey and thence around the seventeen-mile drive. The coast route was much cooler than the inland route and though the roads were rougher the run down was more pleasant. The worst roads were found between Gaviota and Santa Barbara.

At the foot of the Tejon Pass Bekins met an autoist whose machine had refused, for an unaccountable reason, to make the climb. The driver had removed a rear wheel and was intently studying the bearings while the ladies of his party were grilled by the hot sun.

An examination of the car, hastily made, showed the machine in perfect working order. The disgruntled autoist was induced to replace the wheel and the throttle was manipulated with good results. The car climbed the grade without missing a shot. The last seen of the party the auto was proceeding on its way.

Another incident was an automobile fire. Driving along the highway not far from Oakland, the American Simplex was halted near an automobile from which dense clouds of smoke were issuing. The driver stood disconsolately by the machine. The Simplex party aided the man, but the flames gained headway and all were forced to retreat. An explosion of the gas tank ended matters and the car was destroyed.

NEW MOTOR CAR HOME.

Eastern Motor Car Company to Enter Their Larger Quarters This Week. Stevens Cars Change Base.

The new home of the Eastern Motor Car Company, at Nos. 825-827 South Olive street, will be completed this week. W. E. Sparks and L. F. Dunbar, members of the firm which is handling the Stevens-Duryea cars, are preparing to move on Thursday.

The salesroom of the new motor car headquarters is 34x50 feet. It has beam-ceilings, a tile floor, and rink-panelling. The interior finish is light and pleasing. Private offices for members of the firm have been fitted up sumptuously.

Huge fireplaces, with comfortable looking mantels and a redwood finish gives the place a homelike appearance. There is a reading room and rest rooms. A hallway leads from the front salesroom to the garage in the rear.

Before reaching the garage the stock room can be visited. Here a complete line of Stevens-Duryea parts will be kept. The garage is 48x163 feet. There is room for a score of cars. Repair work will be done on nothing but Stevens cars.

The Eastern Motor Car Company will make its new home a place where all Stevens owners can go whenever they desire. The place is to be homelike. Lockers which will take a forty-two inch tire, accessories for the motor cars, in fact everything needful, will be on hand.

The new headquarters for Stevens-Duryea cars is one of the neatest garages in this city. It is not the largest, but attention to neatness and design has made it one of the most pleasing and attractive.

LONG RUN.

MANY MILES IN POPE-HARTFORD.

THIRTY-SEVEN NIGHTS PASSED UNDER THE STARS.

Roughest Roads in State No Obstacle to Hardy Tourers Who Make Four Thousand Miles on Continuous Run Which Ended at Long Beach Friday.

Thirty-seven nights passed in the open, without hotel accommodation or even a house to shelter them, is the experience of C. H. Thornberg and family of Long Beach, who returned Thursday in a Pope-Hartford from a trip to Seattle.

There are six stalwart sons in the Thornberg family. They are hardy and enjoy outdoor life. With a camping outfit, which contained everything but a tent, the Thornbergs left the latter part of July for a run up the coast.

"We left here on July 21," said Thornberg, "with a full camping outfit. This we had attached on the back of the machine and wherever we would find a nice place for passing the night we would stop the machine and make camp. We never found it necessary to light a lamp on the entire trip. We were not running on schedule.

We stayed the first night at Pismo Beach and the next morning we were on our way north through San Luis Obispo and Paso Robles to San Juan, where our second night was passed. The San Juan grade was reserved for the next morning's drive and we were into San Francisco after an easy run of 100 miles.

"From Long Beach to the State line our speedometer showed 885 miles. The running continued fair although we had been warned that we would have all kinds of trouble in the many cañons and the deep fords. We were really disappointed not to find the bad places promised, as we had become proud of our car and were anxious to show that no matter how bad the places were we would have no trouble getting through.

"One of the exciting days came when we were nearing Portland. The regular road is being worked and was not open. We were left the choice between two trails, with barely room to run the machine. At a fork where the two trails branched are two signs. One reads: 'Take this road and you will slip in the river.' The other: 'Go this way and you leave all hope behind.' After thinking it over, we decided to leave all hope behind.

"Before reaching Seattle we went over a fifteen-mile stretch of corduroy road. This kind of a road is just a succession of logs on the ground. It is always wet and swampy. In the trip we found 300 miles of this kind of road.

"The last sixty miles into Seattle we ran over a fine road, just like a boulevard for the greater part of the way.

"Our return took us through Grant's Pass to Crescent City, where we crossed over to the coast, taking the road through Del Norte, Humboldt and Mendocino counties. We found this road much the best. The highways of California are better than those in Oregon and Washington."

Lighted Lamps.

The local authorities of a Pennsylvania town arrested a motorist at 8 o'clock in the evening because his lamps were not lighted. The accused pointed to the fact that the sun did not set until 7:26, and that the State law ordained that lamps must be lighted one hour after sunset. The Automobile Club of Delaware county, Pa., has taken the matter up for the accused, and proposes to see if the State law is not paramount.

ON THE GO.

PEERLESS MAN IN FAST RUN.

FLYING VISIT TO LOS ANGELES BRANCH WITH GOOD NEWS.

Conditions in North Are Only Equaled by Busy Hum of Industry in This City—H. O. Harrison Soon to Make Extensive Tour of Cities of This State.

H. O. Harrison, agent for Peerless cars in California, made a hurried visit to Los Angeles the early part of last week. He reports business booming in San Francisco and says Peerless sales in that city are far ahead of the record made at this time last year.

Though he was only able to remain in Los Angeles about forty-eight hours, Harrison sized up the situation here during his visits to the motor car men. He found conditions here, he said, better than they have ever been. The demand for cars is brisk and every dealer reported advance sales of all cars with the prospect of a shortage. It is to be a question of deliveries with almost everybody, says Harrison.

"We are facing a situation in San Francisco the like of which has never been seen by the autoists there. It is to mean a struggle to supply the demand," said Harrison. "We are taking orders so fast that it will need from two to three carloads a week of Peerless cars to keep abreast of our business during September and October.

We will sell our entire allotment of 100 cars at least two months sooner than we disposed of our 1909 allotment. The factory cannot give us more than the 100. We could sell more but it will be impossible to get another car from them. It was a struggle to pull the extra ten from them.

"This year is to be the greatest ever in the automobile industry. All records are to be broken. All over California I find agents busier than they have ever been before. This means a trade that will keep us all on the jump."

Before leaving San Francisco Harrison opened a branch in Oakland where several orders have already been taken. There is said to be a lively field for autos in the bay cities and Harrison will take advantage of the demand for cars by opening a number of other branches.

It is the intention of the Peerless man to make a tour of the State before long. Harrison must visit almost every city during his 1910 campaign, as he expects to put his Peerless cars into every corner of this State.

PERFECT SCORE WINNERS.

Handsome Souvenirs of the Tour of the Tourist Presented to Twenty-six Lucky Drivers.

Twenty-six souvenirs of the tour of the Tourists were presented to the twenty-six perfect score winners who recently drove two and four-cylinder Tourist cars from Los Angeles into Mexico and back on the tour of the Tourists. The souvenirs are done in leather, in the form of the new Tourist radiator. Burnt on the face of the leather are the words: "Los Angeles to Mexico and return. Annual tour of the Tourist, July 3 to 7." Below is the name of the winner and of William H. Burnham, president of the Auto Vehicle Company.

The souvenirs were prepared under the direction of Volney S. Beardsley, sales manager of the Auto Vehicle Company. Those who will receive the prize were obliged to send their cars over 500 miles of rough road under the same conditions which governed the Glidden tour. That twenty-six of the thirty-eight cars came through with perfect scores is a tribute to the man who arranged the tour.

Some of the drivers had never before handled their machines on the country roads. Those who failed to get perfect scores, but who made the entire trip, will receive some favor from the officials of the Tourist factory.

GOSSIP ALONG GASOLINE ROW.

Dr. West Hughes has purchased a Simplex roadster, which he will use on short trips in and about the city.

F. M. Baird left Friday morning in a two-cylinder Tourist for Independence by way of Mojave. He will pass several days in the Owens River country.

Robert Stanton has accepted a position as salesman with the Woods R. Woolwine Motor Car Company. Stanton will handle the Oldsmobile line.

W. H. Halliwell has closed a contract with the H. O. Harrison Company for 100 Warner speedometers.

Linford Lull left Friday for Stanford University, where he will enter the sophomore class.

L. A. Denker, R. C. Hamlin and H. W. Keller and a number of friends left Friday morning in Franklin cars for a four days' trip to Delmar and San Diego. They drove down the coast, the first stop being at the Delmar hotel, the new resort overlooking the ocean. Today they will drive to Coronado, returning to Los Angeles Monday.

Dr. T. C. Meyers and L. A. Denker purchased Franklin cars last week and accepted delivery. Denker secured a six-cylinder seven-passenger car and Dr. Meyers took a model G. A six-cylinder touring car was delivered to W. L. Stewart.

Three carloads of Franklins will arrive this week. Six machines are expected in tomorrow.

C. C. Hakes has purchased a twenty-eight-horsepower Franklin touring car and is planning a vacation trip through the southern end of the State.

The first shipment of 1910 Baker electrics arrived last week at the salesroom of the Stoddard-Dayton Company. The first shipment consisted of a four-passenger coupe, a Chelsea and a Victoria. The cars are finished in the regular Baker blue with broadcloth upholstering.

Norman Church, the Western representative for the Stoddard-Dayton, attended the opening of the Indianapolis speedway, after which he went up into Michigan on a fishing trip. During Speedway Week the Stoddard-Dayton Company held its annual banquet and convention of agents at Indianapolis. On the Speedway grounds there was also a special exhibit of 1910 Stoddard-Dayton models. They were shown in a large tent, the interior being arranged as an Italian garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Lyon and a party of friends will leave this week in their Pope-Hartford touring car for Seattle. They will go up the coast and after a few days in San Francisco will go up into Lake County on a fishing trip. Mrs. Lyon is an expert driver and will drive most of the way.

ONCE A YEAR.

UNIQUE MOTOR CAR PAGEANT FOR VENICE AUTOMOBILE DAY.

One hundred and forty automobiles swung into line along the Venice speedway yesterday for the Venice Automobile Day parade. Cars of almost every make handled in Los Angeles were represented. The long string of motor cars wound its way through Ocean Park, Santa Monica and along the seashore back to Venice. The parade was viewed by thousands of persons.

Lined along the seashore bathers watched the cars as they rolled over the road. Ward McFadden, with his crew of fat men, caught the fancy of the throngs along the shore. Chief of Police Parent of Venice led the parade, and with other fat men took the majority of the honors.

George E. Cummings, with the "Green Dragon" White Steamer, took the prize for the showiest car in line. Mrs. Abbot Kinney and a company of women took the prize for the car containing the prettiest women.

William Mountain, with a Royal Tourist, 1910 model, took the prize for the handsomest 1910 car in line. The Royal is one of the latest arrivals, and is a seven-passenger touring car. It has plenty of power, and during the run down to Venice showed its speed by passing a number of cars on the road. The Royal has made sixty-five miles an hour on a test. Mountain's car attracted considerable attention.

Two prizes went to the Auto Vehicle Company, which had the greatest number of machines. California cars of the 1910 vintage, and an old-timer Tourist, which is still running in good shape, made the unique procession which Volney S. Beardsley headed into line. The showing of the Tourist cars was one of the features of the parade. The home product automobiles were given a good send off.

For unique display the Thomas New York to Paris car took the prize. This machine, which won the race around the world, was the center of a group of curious onlookers ever time the line stopped.

Mrs. Abbot Kinney drove the car which took the prize for the prettiest women in line. Besides Mrs. Kinney the car contained Mrs. George Sibley, Mrs. J. M. Arthur and Mrs. N. N. Marry.

With Ward McFadden, who drove the Oldsmobile which contained the winning fat men, were John Akin, Andrew Lee, Morton Caster and Chief of Police Parent.

After the parade dinner was served at a Venice café. Hundreds of autoists remained for the dancing and festivities of the evening.

GASOLINE AGAIN MAKES RECORD ON RAILROAD LINES.

Passenger Service Between Isolated Points May Bring Outlying Towns Miles Closer to Large Cities. Coaches to Take Place of Antiquated Stage Lines.

Twelve passenger gasoline motor cars to run on rails are being turned out by the Fairbanks-Morse Company. These midget motor cars are being used rapidly to replace stage lines between small towns in the interior and points cut off from railroad communication.

The passenger coaches are designed for short runs and a gasoline line can be equipped at small cost. The coaches will make fast time and are far ahead of the stage lines, which are still in operation in several corners of Los Angeles county.

George J. Major, western representative of the Fairbanks-Morse Company is in this city to confer with officials of several large mining concerns who contemplate installing motor car lines from isolated points to the nearest railroad stations. He will leave this week for San Francisco and Sacramento, where he will confer with railroad officials with regard to installing the gasoline coaches on sections of their lines.

One of the lines which the Fairbanks-Morse Company has perfected may revolutionize the section work on western railroads. The section motor car has been so far perfected that a section five times as long as the ordinary run can be covered by a foreman in a third the time used by the handcar man.

These little gasoline one-man cars go skipping along at a lively clip from point to point. In the tank five gallons of gasoline is carried and the foreman can make any section along the line readily, as the machines will travel twenty-five miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Installed in the car is a two-cylinder air-cooled motor of about eight horsepower. The engine has a friction drive. The entire car weighs about 700 pounds, about 160 pounds more than the ordinary handcar. It can be lifted readily from the rails when necessary.

Miles and miles of tracks can be covered at from five to twenty-five miles an hour. A foreman can inspect twenty miles of track as easily as he formerly could examine five miles of rails.

On one railroad where thirty-two handcars were used the railroad began experimenting with the new motor cars. Each section was increased five miles and the services of seven foremen were dispensed with. There are now twenty-five sections as against thirty-two when the handcars were used.

Seven tool houses were abandoned and there was a decrease in the expense account of the maintenance department. The gasoline cars gave excellent service and more than paid for themselves in the first six months of the experiment. The road has installed all gas cars on its section line.

BRANCHING OUT.

Western Rubber and Supply Company to Occupy New Quarters on Olive Street This Week.

The Western Rubber and Supply Company will remove to its new headquarters at Nos. 1011-1015 South Olive street this week. An increase in the amount of business being done by the concern and the necessity for added room makes the removal to larger quarters imperative. The new location will be in the center of the Olive street auto row.

Guy M. West, manager of the Western Rubber and Supply Company, is one of the well-known supply men of this city. He has been actively engaged in the trade for a number of years and has built up a large trade in Los Angeles and surrounding towns. H. H. West, his brother, is president and T. McCaffery secretary and treasurer of the firm.

The present location at No. 1010 South Main street has been central up to a few months ago. When the exodus toward Olive street began the Western Rubber and Supply Company cast about for a location. It chose Tenth and Olive streets and will occupy a new building there.

The Western Rubber and Supply Company handles the Prest-o-lite tanks, G. & J. tires, Splitdorf magnetos, Stewart Speedometers, Stromberg carburetors, oils and a full line of other automobile accessories.

DUKE WELL KNOWN.

Ed Duke, who was killed by William Ball at Henderson, Ky., yesterday, was a well-known character around this city during the racing seasons and held minor positions at both the Ascot and Arcadia tracks. In fact, on the Rialto some of the sports say he first came here with Caesar Young when they used to run the goats out at the old Agricultural Park meetings five or six years ago. During the Ascot meetings he divided with others the position of "Hold On Jimmy," or assistant starter and at the last Ascot meeting acted as starter during the last few days of the meeting.

When the Arcadia track opened Duke was given minor positions and last winter worked for the judges around the stand and looked after the jockeys in the weighing room when they weighed out after a race. Last summer at Seattle he acted as starter. He was a very square sport and had a large number of friends and acquaintances both in this city and on the coast.

FINGER BOARDS.

An odd and unused law on the statute books of Missouri, requiring road overseers to maintain finger boards or sign boards on all principal crossroads, has been resurrected by the Good Roads Committee of the St. Joseph, Mo., Automobile Club, and its execution in all parts of the State is hoped for by the motorists.

Minnesota Auto Races.

The automobile races to be run as one of the attractions of the Minnesota State Fair will be conducted jointly by the automobile clubs of Minneapolis and St. Paul. The managers are trying to get Walter Christie and his new 135-horse-power Christie front wheel direct drive racer. The present mile record of 51 seconds for a one-mile horse-racing track was made on the Hamline track by Ralph de Palma, and Christie will receive a substantial bonus if he appears this year and succeeds in lowering De Palma's record.

Good Roads.

The work of improving the roads for the national stock chassis races at Lowell, Mass., September 6, 7 and 8, is progressing satisfactorily, and nearing completion. A large force of workmen has been engaged on the construction of a pontoon bridge across the Merrimac River, and the grand stand is well under way.

Get Square Deal.

Connecticut has given fresh evidence of its intention to deal fairly with motorists. Car registrations which expire between now and the end of the year will be permitted to remain in force until January 1, when the new motor law goes into effect, and all owners of cars will have to obtain new licenses.

Road Signs.

The automobile clubs of Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Or., have evolved a novel way of dividing the work of signboarding the roads connecting their cities. Location of guideposts will be indicated on a chart. Corresponding numbers will then be drawn from a box by entrants in a run from Portland to Seattle. The entrants will then erect the signboard which falls to his lot.

Match for Papke.

KEWANEE (Ill.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Billy Papke today signed articles for a ten round go with Willie Lewis in New York, October 1. The bout will be staged by the National Athletic Club. Papke is contemplating a match with the winner of the Klaus-Kelly fight. He has received articles but has not signed.

LOCAL MOTORISTS.

E. V. Stephenson, formerly salesman with the Woolwine Motor Car Company, has accepted a position as salesman with the White Motor Car Company.

The Bosbyshell-Carpenter Company have received the Sterling demonstrator. Other consignments of Sterling cars will reach here the early part of September.

J. F. Burkhart, Crippen Motor Car Company, agents for Interstate cars, has returned from the factory at Minneapolis. He has arranged for his deliveries of 1910 Interstate cars.

BRIGHT SPARKS OF MOTORDOM.

There are approximately 2,000,000 miles of earth roads in the United States.

The Automobile Club of Buffalo, N. Y., now has more than 1800 members, forty-six having been added to the rolls during July.

A road race, to be held annually between Kansas City and St. Louis, is being talked of by the Automobile Club of Jefferson City, Mo.

A contribution of $5000 toward the construction of a new road connecting Nice with Morocco has been made by the Touring Club of France.

The city of New York covers 327 square miles and has 5040 miles of streets. If placed in a straight line the streets would reach to San Francisco and half way back again.

Coyote hunting in motor cars is a favorite sport at Valier, Mont. The sport is exciting and the bounties on coyote scalps pay the gasoline bill.

Machines are now being imported for the spreading of tar on roads, so as to save labor, and many counties and cities are preparing complete tarring apparatus.

More improvement has been made within the last few weeks to roads in the vicinity to Macon, Ga., than in years, due almost entirely to motoring.

Ralph De Palma, who holds the one-mile track record, declares the circuit in Suffolk county, Long Island, over which the stock sweepstakes are to be run on September 21, is one of the finest courses he has ever seen.

Because it opens the door to graft, the Delaware State Automobile Association has filed a protest with the Levy Court against an offer of $15 reward, made by the court, for the arrest and conviction of any person violating the speed law.

It is expected most all the Minneapolis dealers, as well as a number from St. Paul and other near-by cities, will exhibit at the automobile show to be held in Minneapolis from September 6 to 11, in connection with the State fair.

Oil treament of roads in the vicinity of Baltimore has been employed so successfully that this plan for the prevention of dust and the preservation of roads throughout the State has been advocated and will likely be put in operation before long.

When a brake approaches the limit allowed for adjustment, have the blocks renewed.

The Rhode Island Automobile Club is reported to have given up the plan to conduct a race meet at the Narragansett Park this fall.

A leading automobile manufacturing company is already suggesting a route from the Atlantic to the Pacific for next year's Glidden tour.

If a squeak develops in the brakes, the trouble should be looked for in the drums, which may need readjusting or a drop or two of oil.

The Scottish Automobile Club is to present a gold badge, as a souvenir of the recent reliability trial, to each driver whose car obtained a non-stop certificate.

To stimulate touring through the Shenandoah Valley region, and in the interest of better roads, a garage company at Shenandoah, Va., offers free storage to all tourists.

Indiana is rapidly coming to the front as an automobile-producing State. Indianapolis alone expects to put out fully 10,000, and the record for the State no doubt will reach 25,000.

A number of capitalists are interested in a project to establish an auto omnibus line between Bellefontaine, O., and Richwood, O. The country is thickly populated and not served by any electric line.

Below twelve miles an hour the additional tractive effort necessary to overcome the wind resistance on heavy vehicles is comparatively small. But on the light high-speed vehicles when running at speeds above twelve miles an hour, the wind resistance becomes quite a large factor.

Traffic Problems.

Gen. John T. Cutting, who is widely known for his interest in motoring, believes that the coming solution of New York City's traffic problem will be the use of iron cross girders on the streets, to which will be bolted and riveted heavy plates of boiler iron. These, he argues, can readily be replaced when damaged, and will form the perfect ideal road of the future, because they will be smooth and jointless from curb to curb, and will have proper crown to shed water.

Big Auto Parade.

The automobile organizations of St. Louis are coöperating in organizing a parade for October 9, during Centennial week. There will be divisions for decorated pleasure cars, for those flying the pennant of the A. C. of St. Louis, for commercial vehicles and for humorous and grotesque decorations. Many prizes will be awarded.

Lack of Sign Boards.

So much complaint has been made by automobilists in Michigan on account of the lack of sign boards throughout the State that the Michigan association has begun systematically the work of posting all the important crossroads of the State.

BIG TUNA PUTS UP HARD FIGHT.

Phil O'Mara Battles Four Hours at Night.

Club Official Routed Out of Bed to Weigh.

Youngest Member of Anglers Gets Blue Button.

AVALON, Aug. 28.—Four hours out in the darkness, fighting a tuna by the light of a lanter, part of the time with a broken tiller on his boat, and with the line wrapped around the powerful fish giving it added pulling power, was the experience of Phil O'Mara of Salt Lake City who brought in a 153-pound tuna at 11 o'clock Wednesday evening, the largest caught this season up to date.

O'Mara's success was partly due to the expert management of the launch, dgeria, by his friend, E. N. Hillegas of Riverside. When the tiller broke, O'Mara was in the thick of the battle with the huge blue-finned projectile, and he played the fish while Hillegas mended the broken steering gear. All but a few inches of the line was reeled out—another instant and his majesty, the tuna, would have snapped the thread, but the boat started forward just in time to save the record catch. The strike was made off Seal Rocks, but the fish carried the boat eight miles out to sea before it was conquered. When brought in, it was entirely dead, and not a flutter was left in its fins. A member of the Weighing Committee was pulled out of his bed at midnight to weigh the tuna before shrinkage.

O'Mara will add the tuna button to the gold tarpon button already in his possession. Mrs. O'Mara has been out after tuna, but has not been successful. She is the possessor of five gold buttons and a gold medal for tarpon caught off Aransas Pass. She made the largest catch on record in one day's time last year.

LIGHT TACKLE.

Up to Wednesday the largest tuna of the season was caught by Dr. John Kirkpatrick of Los Angeles, in Capt. Danielson's boat. It weighed 128 pounds. Dr. Kirkpatrick is going after the fish now with light tackle. Other anglers on Tuesday's tuna roll are win O. Palmer of Hollywood, who brought in a tuna weighing 111 pounds, fishing in Capt. Stoughton's launch; W. Polkinghorn who caught a 113 pounder in Tad Gray's launch.

The proudest angler on the Island is Kirkpatrick, aged fifteen years, landed a 126 pound tuna yesterday one of the gamest fights of the season, lasting three hours. His father, Dr. John Kirkpatrick and Danielson watching the battle. One time the rod slipped from its t in the bottom of the boat, Dr. Kirkpatrick reached out a to replace it, but the boatman d him back just in time, for this have disqualified the youthful r who made the fight absolutely ed.

"fought like a veteran," said Danielson," he reeled and unreeled I was afraid the line would burn and the fish was alongside twenty tes before I could gaff him." father would have given $500 button like this," said the lad as looked at his new possession, with of a regret that his father who not a great while ago could not experienced this sportsman's triumph. Young Kirkpatrick has been youngest member of the Light Club since he was twelve years but that honor has been forgotten in the greater glory of a tuna membership.

huge fish is the nearest approach whale which has been seen at for a long while, and was floating in the water when found by Mr. and George Marchalies in the Junita. It had been dead for some time, and was almost cat in two by some steamer.

As soon as the launch was sighted with its unusual freight in tow, crowds gathered on the beach, an one could scarcely get a sight of the immense black shark for the bathers who clustered about and the small launches cruising around it. It was beached and left on exhibition.

This variety is the largest of the shark family, but feeds on the smaller sea life after the fashion of a whale. It is the bone shark of the northern waters, and is very scare in this locality. It is also called an elephant shark on account of the tough dark hide, which a gaff can scarcely penetrate.

smashed, so fast is the pace that is being maintained.

At the end of eleven hours' racing two cars left the track. The Lozier was abandoned on the far side of the course and the Haupt car was being repaired at the shop. They were hopelessly out of the race and were later withdrawn by the managers of their camps. The Lozier had jumped from the track into the outfield at a turn on the back stretch. This was caused by the bursting of a tire.

SCENE OF CARNAGE.

The killing of Cole was a fulfillment of the prophesy of many who had followed the events at the recent Indianapolis motor races, where the death list was more impressive, but not so early in the contest.

Following the fatal accident, the race was interrupted for a short time, and thereafter the timing was taken at twenty-five minutes after each hour. With the Stearns car eliminated, and nothing left of it but a heap of débris, and the Fiat withdrawn, after a collision with the Allen-Kingston, eight cars continued the contest.

With the fatal wrecking of the Stearns car, the plunge of the Acme No. 4 to the fence, the accident to the Lozier and the collision between the Fiat and the Allen-Kingston cars, the excitement held the crowd of 15,000 persons spellbound, and many of them remained all night in anticipation of witnessing further carnage.

Eight of the ten automobiles which started in the twenty-four hour race last night were rushing over the blood-stained course today at a speed of more than fifty-five miles an hour, passing over and over against the spot on which death came in the first hour of the contest, to one man and where five other participants were seriously injured.

Leonard Cole, the mechanician of the Stearns car, had not been dead ten minutes, after his juggernaut had somersaulted over the Acme No. 3, when the race was resumed, and his blood and that of Laurent Grosse, the injured driver of the Stearns car, had not curled in the dust when the other racing machines were speeding through it, their rubber tires strewing it down the course.

The record for speed and distance was farily well help up during the early hours of the contest, but at the end of twelve hours racing the leading car, the Renault, with 568 miles to its credit, was more than forty miles behind the record made here nearly a year ago.

Six of the original ten starters still remained in the race at the end of the twelfth hour, the two withdrawn being the demolished Stearns and the Fiat, which was badly bent and twisted in the collision with the Allen Kingston during the third hour, and the Lozier and Haupt cars.

Acme No. 4, which was driven desperately through the infield fence by A. H. Van Tyne to avoid a collision, was quickly repaired and made a strong bid for first honors.

Twelfth-hour score: Renault, 560 miles; Acme No. 4, 512; Rainier, 479; Acme No. 3, 442; Palmer-Singer, 424; Allen Kingston, 379.

The Lozier, which was out of the race for three hours during the night, jumped from the track into the outfield at 8:20 a.m., when a tire burst. The car turned over twice, and although the machine was wrecked, neither of the occupants was scratched.

The Acme No. 4 was in trouble again at 4:35. The cross-bar of the steering gear broke as the racer was on the back stretch, near the spot where the Lozier jumped to the outfield.

The nineteenth-hour score was: Renault, 869; Rainier, 776; Acme No. 3, 770; Palmer-Singer, 676; Acme No. 4, 676; Allen-Kingston, 657.

The McCormicks and the Los Angeles Giants will meet in the second game of the series. The McCormicks won from the Giants in the last game.

The Giants have been putting a week of practice and have secured a new player, Beal, who is expected to do great things, and they look forward to giving the McCormicks a run for their money. Atchison, a new pitcher, will be given a try-out with the Giants.

The Pasadena team and the Santa Ana nine will try play at the latter city.

Batteries—Santa Ana, Coleman and Meats; Pasadena, Rich and Pfirrman. Giants, Atchison, McClain, Cleveland and Slater; McCormicks, Buckles and Wiessel.

Evading the Law.

England's new children's act limiting the sale of cigarettes is responsible for this: A boy in a London tobacconist's shop shortly before the act went into force had ordered a packet of cigarettes. The members of the team are to have new uniforms consisting of gray with white stripes. The team will use the same formation as is used at the northern universities.

Prospects look good notwithstanding the fact that this will be the Blue and White's first year with the English game. Ted Gessler, who is to captain the team, expects a fast bunch in the scrum, as well as in the field.

The candidates that in all probability will be out for the scrum position are: Baldbridge, Dorn, Maguire, Bryant, Secombe, Dawson, and Hall. On the wings there will probably be Rubio, Newman and Phil Harrigan. Capt. Geissler will also be one of the wing candidates.

Coach Ralph Noble is in San Francisco, learning the fine points of the English pastime and, although he does not expect to make an excellent showing the first season, he predicts a srong squad next year.

GLENDORA GROWERS PROSPER.

More Than Half-Million Received for Oranges Shipped During Season.

GLENDORA, Aug. 28.—At the annual meeting of the Glendora Citrus Association today the following-named were elected directors: J. J. West, W. R. Powell, U. S. Rogers, W. G. Hall, C. C. Warren, J. B. Nitzley and J. C. Wright. The annual report of the secretary showed that there were shipped during the season 464,629 1-2 boxes, or approximately 1200 carloads of oranges, for which the growers received $547,141.91, after all expenses had been paid. The average price per box for all fruit shipped was $1.20.

A resolution was passed enabling those stockholders to withdraw who preferred to join the Foothill Association, which is to be organized, and a committee was appointed to appraise the property interests.

It was decided to levy a tax of one-cent a box to cover the expenses of employing an expert to inspect the orange groves to guard against the scale pest.

President Woodford of the Southern California Fruit Association, was present and delivered a very entertaining and instructive address.

HUNTINGTON PARK.

Union High School to Open With Polytechnic and Also Other Courses of Study.

HUNTINGTON PARK, Aug. 28.—Crowded conditions in the schools of Los Angeles will result, it is thought here, in a large attendance for the newly-organized Huntington Park Union High School

This school will be open for the first time September 7, occupying temporary quarters in a business block here, pending the completion of the $65,000 building which will probably be ready for occupancy in January.

Complete polytechnic, manual training, domestic science and commercial coures will be presented by the new school.

Four large districts, Huntington Park, Vernon, Bell and Fruitland, have joined to organize the school, thus insuring large attendance and ample funds. The fact that the school is located near to Los Angeles is also expected to bring pupils here to gain the advantages of a polytechnic course.

Some New Hunting Sport.

Sportsmen ought to devise some new hunting sport whereby carniverous and destructive animals might be killed, instead of the deer and birds which do not prey on other animals and are harmless. Mountain lions, wild cats and coyotes are well worth hunting for the sport, and a bounty is paid for their slaughter. It is asserted by old hunters that these animals kill more game than all the hunters put together. If that is the case, it would not only be sport but a blessing to kill these animals. It would save the game and furnish the hunters excellent trophies. The skins of all the animals named, even the coyote, make excellent parlor adornments and may be mounted or made into rugs at comparatively small cost. Why not form a club to kill these animals in the off season? Prizes might be offered for the greatest number of kills.

Immediate Action Needed.

The continued list of dead and injured and smashups in automobile racing calls for prompt action on the part of racing organizations for the control of the sport. There is danger that sentiment will be aroused against auto racing unless it can be shown promptly that the accidents were due largely to carelessness and that improvements will be made at once. Danger in auto racing can be reduced until the percentage of accidents is very small and little more than that in other hazardous sports. The speed mania, which formerly included only horsemen and bicycle riders, has centered in the automobile, and until this tendency is controlled there are bound to be accidents. It is a condition, and as such must be met with improvements in conducting meets and handling machines.

Catching Catalina Tuna.

If the leaping tuna has come back to Catalina waters to stay the island should be the center of the greatest fishing sport in the country, not excepting the tarpon fishing at Aransas Pass and the sport in Florida waters. Catalina is ideal for fishing. The weather is always pleasant, the water is always smooth and rains in summer are always absent. An angler could ask for nothing more when the tuna are running.

HUNTING NOTES.

The Game and Fish Protection Association of California will hold a convention at Lake Tahoe, September 14, 15, 16 and 17. Delegates will be sent from all over the State, and it is expected a special car will be run from Los Angeles.

R. Bradley and C. W. Jill returned yesterday from Decker ranch, where they had great luck deer hunting. Both men killed two deer, Bradley getting a couple of forked horns and Jill knocking down two spikes. One deer weighed 130 pounds dressed, while the others tipped the scales at a little over 100 pounds. Decker ranch, which lies about eighteen miles above Santa Monica, is a favorite place for deer hunters this season, and a number of bucks have been killed there.

George Locke went dove shooting last week by automobile, at San Fernando, but came back with a brown taste in his mouth. The boiler of his machine burnt out and he had to be pulled in by a farmer's team, with no doves. G. M. Jones, W. H. Anderson and R. A. Armstrong, who accompanied his party in another machine, brought back forty-eight doves.

A hunting party from Downey, consistinf of Juan Newcomb, Jay Wiley and Leo Bramlett, killed two deer in the mountains west of Monte Vista last week. Both bucks had two points and weighed 125 and 140 pounds respectively.

NOTES OF ANGLERS.

A fishing party made up of Dr. Menken, Dan Miller, R. E. Morse and "Kid" Allen went to Santa Monica last night and are fishing today off Point Dume. They are after Chinese sheephead. These fish are very gaudy, but they are logy and spend most of their time feeding on the bottom.

"Pete" Peterson is fishing at Catalina. Last week he caught a tuna which weighed 126 pounds, and a number of white sea bass and sculpins.

Miss Paul, the daughter of the vice-president of the Southern California Rod and Reel Club, accompanied by a woman friend, went to Catalina today where they expect to fish for yellowtail.

L. R. Brear went to Catalina last Thursday, where he is fishing for yellowtail and tuna.

Roy Shafer and his wife spent last week on the launch Gertrude at Catalina. They have been fishing but report little luck. They will be back tomorrow.

Joe Cox and Smithey Warren are fishing for tuna this week at Catalina.

Commodore George Reynolds, who is an expert swimmer, is putting in the day bathing at Huntington Beach. In the evening he expects to have some moonlight fishing.

Charles B. Valkenburg, who has been camping at Clemente for some the last week, but had no luck with the tuna.

J. W. Schmitz, a well-known local fisherman, is staying for a short time at Hermosa Beach.

"Pink" Hedderly is fishing for tuna at Catalina today.

Commodore Tom Potter is trying his luck at fishing this week at Catalina.

EARLY START.

STUDYING RUGBY AT CALIFORNIA.

COACH NOBLE AND GEISSLER JOIN THE SQUAD.

Los Angeles High School Representatives Learning the Rudiments in Northern Universities—"Mother" Howe Arrives from Australia to Help Coach.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Aug. 28.—Coach Ralph Noble and Capt. Ted Geissler of the Los Angeles High School team have been on the football field each evening, studying Rugby, under the direction of Coach Schaeffer. Both Noble and Geissler have been included in the fifteens which have lined up against each other and every opportunity is being given them to learn the game.

Geissler gives promises of developing into an ideal five-eighths, for he is fast on his feet, tackles hard, passes accurately, and punts exceptionally well. The two High School representatives plan to pass the entire time that intervenes between now and the opening of High School in studying Rugby here and at Stanford.

William J. Howe of New Zealand, the assistant football coach engaged by Head Coach Schaeffer on his recent trip to the Antipodes will arrive in Berkeley this evening. He will begin active work on Monday, and is expected to be of immense aid to Schaeffer. Howe knows Rugby from beginning to end, and is just as familiar with the work of the back field as he is with the duties of the front rank in the scrum. "Mother," as Howe is known in Australia and New Zealand, is the secretary of the Metropolitan Rugby Union. He is captain and lock of the Glebe team, which for several years has held the Rugby championship of Australia.

Close to 200 men have been out for football practice every evening for a week, the 'varsity men coming out at 4 o'clock and the freshmen squad, numbering more than 100, an hour later. Schaeffer has been assisted in the instruction of the candidates by Trainer Christie and Capt. Cerf.

The 'varsity men passed the fore part of the week in limbering up with passing and dribbling exercises. Thursday afternoon the first heavy work of the season was indulged in, when two fifteens were lined up for scrum work. The question of scrums is to be an interesting one this year, as the coach is experimenting with the seven and eight-man formation. The seven-man formation, which is used chiefly in New Zealand, consists of two front rankers, a lock, two side rankers and two rear rankers, while the ball is put in the scrum by the wing forward. The eight scrum, commonly used in Australia, has three men in the front rank, two in the center and three in the rear, while the half-back puts the ball in play.

Both the California and Stanford teams have always used the seven-man scrum, but at present it is still a matter of doubt as to the formation California will use this season. As yet Schaeffer has given no indication of which formation will be his final choice, although the seven scrum has been used in all the team line-ups.

The 'varsity squad has been strengthened by the appearance of "Midget" Jordan, the gigantic lock of the 1911 freshman team. He will be a strong opponent to Calvin Haffey, captain of the 1906 'varsity, for the center position of the 'varsity scrum. By the middle of next week the 'varsity squad will have become sufficiently segregated so that it will be fairly easy to pick the men who will make the strongest fights for 'varsity positions.

To forget the American game and learn the rudiments of Rugby has been the task imposed upon the freshmen squad this week, and, everything considered, the babies have done well. As, in other years, many of the best prep school stars are slower in catching on to the points of Rugby than are the men who have not had the intercollegiate game thoroughly drilled into them. In physique, the freshmen are a husky bunch, and, judging from the material on the field at present, the 1913 team will not fall behind its predecessors.

The first game of the year will be on September 4, when the 'varsity lines up against the Reliance Athletic Club team from Oakland. The freshmen play their first game September 6, with the Barbarians of San Francisco, while three days later the 'varsity will meet the same fifteen. In all the 'varsity schedule includes twelve games, eleven preliminary matches and the all-important big game at Stanford on November 13. The Reliance Club will twice be opponents, the Barbarians and Olympic Club each three times, Vancouver twice, and the University of Nevada once.

While the major interest is in football, over fifty men have signed up for fall baseball practice. Lewis of Anaheim, 'varsity captain, will direct the fall work, with the assistance of Trainer Christie. Games are being scheduled for every Saturday with the crack amateur teams about the bay. Seven of last spring's victorious 'varsity have returned to college, while there are second team men and freshmen with prep records galore.

SAN CLEMENTE FISHING.

Van Valkinburg Wins Silver Button for Big Yellowtail—Many Fish Caught.

A fishing party composed of Charles L. Logan, John Winston, and Chas. Van Valkinburg returned last week from San Clemente, off which island they have been fishing for three days.

Van Valkinburg received a silver button for landing a 38½ pound yellowtail. The big fish measured 54½ inches in length and is the longest one brought in this season.

The party was very successful as it landed all told twenty-eight yellowtail. At one time the anglers were among the tuna and saw the fish leap from the water, but none of them were lucky enough to get a strike.

FINALLY DECLARED OFF.

Swimming Tournament at Seattle Will Not Be Held As Arranged.

The swimming tournament for the championships of the Pacific Coast, which was to have been held August 24 on Lake Union, at Seattle has been called off. Lack of interest and an order from the health department of Seattle forbidding that the lake be used for swimming are the reasons given for such a move.

Marcus Lee, holder of the Pacific Coast record in the 220 and 880 yard swim and Frank Holborow, western champion in the fifty and 100 yard-dash, are in Portland waiting to enter

Even up to the last the Seals had steadied himself and the locals hit the ball into the air where it was easily captured.

All the comedy of the game was wrapped up in the fourth inning. No one at Recreation Park ever saw anything like it, and they howled their heads off in delight.

Melchoir drove the ball through short for a single. Jimmy Lewis followed with a double to the left field bleachers and it looked a great chance to score. Berry hit a grounder to Devereaux and Brick hurled it home to get Melchoir. Melchoir dodged back and forth between third and home and finally dashed back to third.

In some unexplained manner he dodged Devereaux, who lost his head so completely that he tried to touch the right fielder while he was standing on the base. There was a scurrying on the part of Lewis and Berry to get back to second and first and when the dust had cleared away, the bases were full with no one out. McArdle's out scored Melchoir but after Griffin Walked, Zeider hit into a double play and but one run scored.

The Vernon action came in the sixth and seventh innings. Brown opened the sixth with a single to center, but was forced at second by Vance. Stovall put the ball into center and Devereaux filled the bases with a hit that went through the infield. With the bases full, Bernard sent a liner sizzling past Mohler and two runs scored. Brashear stopped the run getting when he grounded out to Tennant.

In the seventh, the game was finally settled. With two out, Haley singled to left. Brashear hit through Mohler and the ball was returned to Zeider in an effort to get Haley. Failing in that, Zeider made a bad throw to Tennant and when the leather was dropped, Haley scored.

CAMERON PUT OUT OF GAME.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 28.—Graham's cohorts today annexed another game from the Oakland team. The exhibition was tiresome to the fans, as neither team was imbue with any life. Boice worked too fast in the first inning and the extreme heat immediately tired him, the Senators getting two runs. Cameron was put out of the game in this inning for shoving Umpire Irwin about the diamond after the latter had called Darringer safe at third base on a close decision. Lewis went to first and Christian was sent into left field.

Walter McCredie, champion Marathon vocalist.

BY GREY OLIVER.

IF YOU hear any one on the Portland bench asking the umpire if he knows the difference between a strike and a piece of cheese, or if you happen to look over into right field and see a fellow looking down at his toes and trying to break all existing Marathon walking record, don't make a bad guess and tell any one that you have seen and heard a new kind of philosopher, for you will get the big laugh. All you have seen and heard is only Walter McCredie, playing manager of the Portland team.

When McCredie is busy he is merely swearing under his breath at some porch-climbing umpire or commenting on the actions of some of his own men who get a Class A salary and then sometimes give bush league services for it. Mac only has these fits when he is on the ball field and trying to win ball games, for off the field he is about as pleasant a fellow as you would care to meet, for he has seen a lot of the world and has had all the rough edges worn off him and new ones put on, so he is there when it comes to anything.

Big Mac was born in Manchester, Iowa, in 1877, and is now 32 years of age, according to his own story. Like every American citizen who can say boo to a goose, he played town-lot ball when he was a boy, and began his career as a pitcher. He went to the Des Moines club in 1896 as a pitcher, but played at short that year and the next. He was also with that team in 1898, when that club, with many others, broke up as a result of the Spanish War excitement.

In 1899 he went as a center fielder to the Youngstown, O., team in the Interstate League, and while playing there broke his right leg, or one of the two, for he does not remember now which one it was. During the next five years he played either right or center field for the teams in Sioux City, Minneapolis, Oakland, Brooklyn and Baltimore, and in 1905 went to Portland on a visit to friends, played ball there for a time, and that fall bought the Portland team, in conjunction with his uncle, Walter McCredie.

He has been with the team ever since. In 1906 he won the pennant, finished last in 1907, and second in 1908, and figures to finish close up this year. In addition to his Coast League Portland team, he also has a similar team in the Northwest League, and makes money with each team. He is in the strongest possible position of any club in the West, for if anything happens to either of his leagues, he can transfer his affections to the other.

Show Mac a decision where he thinks he is getting the worst of it, and you will not have to start something, for he begins it without getting out any permit. There is not much noise, but you can feel the earth tremble if you are three miles from the ball ground. He says the ground in right field is in awful shape because it is full of holes, and that is no lie, for he has tramped them there while trying to "step out"—as the German lady says—some of his feelings on umpires and bone-headed players. If he could hit the ball right when he feels this way he could knock four home runs at once, and would naturally be a very valuable player for any team in the world.

The only trouble is that he does not hit it when he is that way, but he slams it hard enough at other times to keep the fielders nervous. He hit about .245 last year, but this was doubtless due to the fact that he tired himself out doing his famous Marathon stunt in right field. Some of the fans think he must have been in jail once and learned how to walk back and forth in a cell, and others say he does it so he will not be tempted to bite an umpire's eye out. Why he does it is the riddle of the Coast League. Can you guess why?

LEAGUE PROSPECTS.

LANGE TOUTED AS PRESIDENT.

Former Chicago Star May Replace Ewing.

Eight-Club League Seems to Be Impracticable.

McCredie's Troubles Appear to Be Personal.

Bill Lange for president of the Coast League in 1910.

Eight-club idea to be passed up as impracticable.

Outlaw league possible in Northwest next year.

Continuous ball for Los Angeles.

These are some of the things the baseball fans may look forward to in mixing the dope for the next year in baseball on the Coast, and from the indications all of them will become realities, although the first and last seem assured.

Although placed first the selection of a president to succeed Cal Ewing is not of the importance it would seem, for Cal has been ready to resign for several months, and would have done so had there been any organized opposition to his leadership or if some capable man had been mentioned for the place.

The office of president of the Coast League is not such a sinecure as some persons imagine, and Ewing has not been very anxious to retain it for the very good reason that whenever anything happens out of the ordinary the president of the league is always to blame, according to the critics.

Ewing apparently has no choice for a successor to himself, but it is believed that he would favor Henry Berry of this city because Berry is a liberal-minded man, who is desirous to see the Coast League succeed, for he has his money invested in a franchise covered by it, and is willing to spend money to see it go ahead. The fact that he took hold of the Los Angeles club in 1906 when it lost $7000 indicates that he would be on hand in any crisis.

It seems to be the opinion of several of the league directors, however, that some man should be chosen as president who has no interest in any club, and at the present time Bill Lange appears to be the choice of some of the directors, and it need surprise no one if he is elected. He is in the insurance business in San Francisco, but his business is such that he could probably take the office. In all probability San Francisco will get the presidency, as long as the Coast League is in existence, for the powers seem to think that all the good men in the State are in that town.

At this time the eight-club idea looks bad for the simple reason that the bush league magnates in the Northwestern League will not agree to come into the Coast League. Dugdale, who runs things up in the rain belt, is not only so chesty as to scorn the Coast League, but threatens to put a Northwest club into Portland, and the report is out that he will turn the Northwest League into an outlaw organization in order to do this, if necessary.

This is almost beyond belief, for Dug should know by this time that the Portland fans do not want the kind of Class B ball that the Northwest League puts up. It will do for Seattle, Spokane and Vancouver, but not for Portland, as has been proven by the attendance of the fans at the game played in Portland by McCredie's Northwest team.

FIGHT UP NORTH.

Walter McCredie, the manager of the Beavers, who is now in this city, does not profess to know how the cat will jump in Portland next year, but declares he does not want any outlaw ball in his. Of course, if the bushers put a team into Portland he will have to fight it, and whether or not the McCredies are popular in Portland would not prevent them from beating the bushers to a frazzle, for a Northwest team that could compare with the Beavers in strength would far outshine the other teams in the Northwest League, which contains a number of Coast League cast-offs. Manager Berry states that he once offered to bet $1000 a game for a series of seven games between the Los Angeles club and any Northwest League club, and in addition would "spot" the bushers one run every game, but no one up there cared to accept the wager.

McCredie, of course, would not go into an outlaw Northwest League, for he does not care for outlaw ball with its uncertainties, but even if he did jump, the Coast League would lose no time in putting a team into Portland, where a franchise is worth at least $50,000.

Aside from the opposition in the Northwest that will prevent an eight-club league, there is another thing against it, and that is the proposition of continuous ball for Los Angeles. It has proven a money-making thing for the various clubs and certainly would not be dropped merely to help out something in another part of the Coast.

The McCredie-Ewing row is something that does not concern the general public and relates entirely to McCredie's belief that Ewing has given him the worst of several matters relating to ball players. Big Mac states that he is really not as much opposed to Ewing as some of the newspapers assert that he is, and yet he has sufficient cause to be, from what he says:

Mac declares that he cannot imagine why Umpire Toman was suspended for one week except that he called Zeider of the San Francisco team out at the plate in one of the recent games that Portland and San Francisco played up north. Mac thinks that Toman umpired good ball in that series, and was naturally very much surprised last Tuesday when Toman asked him if he could umpire the past week.

Mac said he surely could, and that there would be no objection from Portland. Then Toman showed a telegram from Ewing, in which it was stated that Jimmy could umpire again if McCredie was willing.

This is only a petty personal row, but it shows the existence of a feeling that will have to be overcome if the next annual meeting of the Coast League is to be harmonious. Still, as Ewing will step down and out, to give way to Lange or Berry as president the alleged animosity may die a natural death. In any event, the directors of the league will have their hands full of important matters when they meet this winter.

Owns Many Cars.

It is reported that there are 151 automobile owners residing in Washington county, Pa., and that more than half of them live in the town of Little Washington. It is declared that no other town in Pennsylvania of the same size as Washington has so many cars. A great many of the machines are comparatively expensive ones, and are owned by retired farmers, who have sold their coal lands and are now living in Washington.

Scenes at the Baseball Game Yesterday Between the Portland and Los Angeles Pacific Coast League Teams. are shown Daley and Godwin on bases being advanced by Wheeler's sacrifice to the pitcher. A curious feature is that the umpire, catcher, pitcher and centerfielder are in line. Above are scenes seen every day at the ball park.

Each of the teams turned out with about fifty rooters, and the noise made would have done credit to a championship game of the Coast League.

George Cutshaw, star second baseman of Bloomington, Ill., bought by the Oakland club.

IS PINCH HITTER.

NEW OAKLAND PLAYER.

BLOOMINGTON (Ill.) Aug. 23.—The sale of George Cutshaw, the premier second baseman of Bloomington and the star of the Three I League, to Oaklaind, Cal., for $1000 was conditional upon immediate delivery, and Cutshaw left at once for the Coast. This was his second season as a professional, being secured a year ago by Bloomington from the bush. His work with the team of Notre Dame University and other independent aggregations attracted the attention of Bloomington, and he was signed.

Cutshaw's hitting has been around .275 all year, being especially strong in pinches, while his fielding and base running have been sensational. Only the near approach of the drafting season led the Bloomington managemnet to dispose of him for the sum stated. He was believed to be worth more money. Scouts who have watched his work have without exception recommended him, and he is believed by experts to have a good future.

The Syracuse Automobile Dealers' Association announces the annual race meet to be held in connection with the State Fair will be run on September 18. The track is one of the fastest one-mile circuits ever built and is particularly well adapted to automobile races, as the surface is hard.

SPIKE DISC BETTERS ROADS.

Upland Street Superintendent Succeeds in Greatly Improving Condition of Main Thoroughfares.

UPLAND, Aug. 28.—The city is now using a "spike disc" in the betterment of various roadways oven the municipality. With a thorough scarifying of the surface, to a depth of several inches, followed by a systematic grading, then rolling with a heavy steam roller, Street Superintendent Hostetler has succeeded in greatly improving the condition of a number of the main highways. Later it is probable the Council will order petrolithic pavement to be laid on Ninth and Tenth streets, as well as upon First, Second and Third avenues. The sidewalk and curb work on Tenth street has now been let to W. C. Cline, a local contractor.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Harwood and daughter Miss Aurelia, and Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Harwood and daughter Mrs. Thayer, accompanied by the two little sons of the latter, have left for Seattle for a visit to the exposition, and will be absent for several weeks.

G. L. Moore and family, residents of Upland for several years, left today for their new home in Oklahoma.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klindt and son Irving leave early the coming week for San Francisco, where the boy will enter a school of assaying.

Chester Dewey of this city has samples of a peculiar powder, a large deposit of which he says he has located in this territory, and the exact nature of which has not, as yet, been ascertained. A small bit of the powder used on brass, gives it a beautiful polish, it is said, though in its raw state the mysterious powder seems to be too well mixed with grit and sand to serve as a cleaner for fine ware.

MENACE AVERTED.

Cutting of Banks by Alamo River at Holtville Is Stopped by Use of Brush.

HOLTVILLE, Aug. 28.—The Alamo River has been catrying a larger volume of water the past few days than at any time since the Colorado River broke into this valley. For several days the Holton Interurban line had men stationed at its bridge across the river to keep the piles cleared of driftwood, trees and poles that came down the stream. On Thursday it was discovered that the south banks of the river at this city were cutting and that the county wagon bridge was in danger. Men were set to work placing brush and trees in the current, to divert it to the center of the river, and the bridge is now out of danger.

J. C. Nale has gone to Los Angeles to order the machinery for the Holtville planing mill. It is to be in readiness for operation by the 1st of October.

BUILT FOR GLASS HOUSE.

Alexander Stewart and wife, who own valuable property in Water District No. 7, near Holtville, and who have been residing at Waitsburg, Wash., have both been declared insane and have been committed to the insane asylum of that State. The Stewarts recently engaged in building a house entirely of glass, and their eccentric conduct caused their attorney to file a petition for an examination as to their sanity.

It is probable that the Holtville library building, located in the center of the city park, will be purchased for a city hall.

ELSINORE.

ELSINORE, Aug. 28.—The local telephone office was put out of commission for awhile Thursday afternoon during a thunderstorm, when lightning struck and severed two of the Sunset's big wires just outside the building on Peck street. The lightning entered the office by the Sunset switch with a loud report and filled the room with smoke. Fortunately the operator was not on the line. Many fuses were burned out and nine local lines besides the long-distance lines, were put out of commission. Only a few drops of rain fell in this locality, but there was considerable thunder and lightning.

The last of the three carloads of comb honey purchased by the Gregory Fruit Company was shipped yesterday, making in all a total of about thirty-six tons shipped this week. The price was 8 and 9 cents and there was about onethird of a crop. The three cars netted the producers about $7500.

N. W. Hasley made the highest bid on the $10,000 Elsinore High School bonds offered for sale in Riverside this week, his proposal being for the bonds taken at par with accrued interest and a premium of $860. Work has been begun on the clearing of the site. The erection of the handsome concrete building will be begun soon, as it is desired to have it ready early in the present school year.

THIRTEEN IN JEFF'S PARTY.

Friends from Los Angeles Take Trip Into Mountain Waiting for Big Fellow.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EUGENE, Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Thirteen members of the Jeffries hunting and fishing party left at 5 o'clock this morning for their camp up the McKenzie River into the Cascade Mountains. Jim Jeffries is to join the party about September 10, when he will return from Europe and visit the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific at Seattle on his way to his favorite hunting ground.

In addition to the regular stage to McKenzie Bridge, a special was put on to accommodate the Jeffries party. Those who left were: W. J. Oblinger and wife, of Dayton, O.; F. G. Schumacher, Harry Burt and wife, H. W. Lewis and wife, H. S. Lewis, E. W. Hopperstead, wife and boy, and Huntley L. Gordon and wife of Los Angeles; Alf Walker and Eugene and Walter Baker and wife of Cottage Grove.

The provisions for the party were taken into the camp some days ago and the members passed last evening assembling their ammunition and fishing tackle and arranging details for the start in the morning.

FLY FISHING.

LIMIT CATCHES IN BEAR LAKE.

SANTA ANA AND TRIBUTARIES FURNISH SPORT.

Los Angeles Sportsmen Enjoy Great Angling in Mountains Back of Seven Oaks—Winn McDonald of Oakland Catches Largest Trout Off the Bear Lake Dam.

Limit catches of trout are still to be had in the Santa Ana and tributaries near Seven Oaks, according to the reports of Art MacFarland and Jack Duncan, two Los Angeles trout enthusiasts, who returned yesterday from the San Bernardino Mountain resort with a hundred of the fish.

South Fork, Fish Creek, Barton Creek, Louis's Creek and the Narrows afford excellent sport to the expectant fisherman, and the angler who fails to catch a good mess on any of these locations is considered a novice. The trout producing streams present strenuous scrambling and severe climbing to the fisherman, and it is only with constant care one may negotiate a safe trip through the Narrows, where walls of precipitous rock slides force the angler often to wade to the armpits in the boulder-stream bed of the stream.

Both MacFarland and Duncan secured the limit along the Narrows stretch early in the week, though the excursion was replete with thrilling experiences. Literally clinging to the side of a rugged slope in an endeavor to pass a plunging waterfall, the two anglers came face to face with a huge rattlesnake, coiled on a tiny shelf of a rock scarcely a stride distant and directly in the trail of the fisherman. They were helpless to dislodge the snake, to pass on or retrace their way. Fortunately the rattler behaved himself, and after "an hour," as it seemed, the reptile crawled down the hill. Farther into the cañon the boys were forced to slide fifteen feet down a slippery boulder into a deep pool, where they were soused from head to foot in the cold water.

The creeks above camp were visited frequently with equal success and in a fortnight's vacation the two anglers averaged forty fish a day apiece. MacFarland hooked the largest trout taken in the Santa Ana this season, the fish measuring fourteen and one-half inches long, and was brought to basket two miles below the South Fork on the main stream. Quite a few fish in the "Narrows" catch were twelve and thirteen inches long. Worms were used exclusively for bait, flies being impracticable, owing to the dense brush and rugged country adjacent to the streams.

SANTA ANA RIVER.

A. K. Brauer and W. L. Graves have been busy with hook and reel on the Santa Ana for a couple of weeks, and report uniform sport, averaging close to limit baskets. Graves is a successful fisherman under conditions where the beginner would fail to get a strike, and the return angler rarely failed to return to camp without forty or fifty fish. Picking "gliders" from riffles is easy work for Graves and on a recent trip the angler snagged four beauties on the sides in three inches of water.

Brauer returned yesterday from Seven Oaks, bringing the limit. He reports intermittent sport the last week, owing to heavy showers, which rolled and swelled the streams, putting a damper on the fishing. Fortunately the summer showers are as often cloudbursts, last but an hour or so and the surplus water will run down stream in a short time and the streams will clear in a half day. Every freshet of water, however, brings in its wake all manner of food for the trout, and the fish generally fail to rise to bait till the streams clear again.

W. T. Webber and wife, George E. Taylor, Russ Avery, Judge J. S. Noyes, and Willoughby Rodman of Los Angeles have enjoyed excellent sport above Seven Oaks. Webber, Taylor, C. C. Wagner of Fullerton, and George H. Drown of Riverside fished below the South Fork Thursday, the party getting great sport for two hours, when a sudden downpour clouded the stream and drenched the anglers, spoiling the fishing for the rest of the day.

George A. Mansfield of Redlands reports satisfactory returns during a month's stay at Seven Oaks. Mansfield is an enthusiastic fisherman who takes pains to have his tackle right, his bait box full, and his stomach likewise. Fishing on an average four times a week, Mansfield never failed to bring home a mess sufficient for his table of six covers. Using an ordinary cane rod Mansfield was able to catch fish when a companion with a light fly bamboo rod would lose every strike. Will and Dudley Glass are also devotees of the cane pole, who rarely fail to get the limit. A fly paraphernalia lacks the necessary rigidity to be a useful fishing instrument where the trout are small and the brush thick.

What little fly fishing has been done on the Santa Ana has resulted in poor catches and the fly enthusiast has usually forsaken his assortment of winged beauties for the common grub worm. The brown hackle fly has been the popular favorite with the fly anglers and has been about the only artificial lure that would bring the fish to the hook.

Winn McDonald of Oakland has caught plenty of trout, mostly off the Bear Valley Lake dam. His largest was twenty-four inches long and weighed five and a quarter pounds.

Sand-Clay Highway.

Thirty-odd counties in Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia are coöperating in the construction of a continuous sand-clay and gravel highway, 770 miles long linking the capitals and winter resorts of these States with New York and Washington. The route will be known as the "Capital Highway," because it will connect the State capitals, Richmond, Raleigh, Columbia and Atlanta. From Atlanta there will probably be an extension down to the Florida and another via Montgomery and Mobile to New Orleans.

GIRLS TO WRESTLE.

Anna Johnson to Meet Lulu Olson in Bout at the Chutes.

Jack Lee will wrestle Traveller in a finish bout, two falls out of three, next Sunday afternoon at Chutes Park. On the former occasion when Lee and Traveller met, the latter was unable to throw Lee in fifty minutes. The bout will be for a side bet of at least $50.

This afternoon Tony Munkers and Jack Mackenter will wrestle catch-as-you-can, the weight to be 158 pounds. Miss Lulu Olson will meet Miss Anna Johnson in the same style. Miss Olson has been in two matches so far in Los Angeles, and has won both of them. Miss Johnson has a weight advantage of ten pounds, and has also had some former experience on the mat, so a good contest is looked forward to. The winner if this event is to meet Miss Zoe Gollie in another event, to take place at 4:45.

Thed winner of the Traveller-Lee event next Sunday will meet Dan Balz, "the butcher boy," from Yuma. Balz holds the record for being the strongest man in that part of Arizona. He can easily lift and place on the hook a half of a beef. He makes a practice of drinking a cup of blood from the beef when they are slaughtered. He met Traveller in Yuma in a draw bout. He claims that he was not in good condition at the time, and wants another crack at the butcher.

FIGHTING FOR GAME RIGHTS.

Acting Gov. Oglesby of Illinois Appealed to to Prevent Trouble With Hunters.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fearing an outbreak of hostilities between hunters and fishermen along the Illinois river on one hand and employés of hunting and fishing clubs that are claiming ownership of Spring and Thompson lakes, in Tazewell county, members of the submerged and shore lands investigating committee today called upon acting Governor John G. Oglesby to act for the preservation of the public peace and to protect the rights of the people in the matter.

Gov. Oglesby immediately communicated with Sheriff James A. Norris, at Pekin, advising the officer of the situation and calling attention to the fact that the sheriff is responsible for the preservation of the peace. The acting governor also communicated with acting Attorney-General Dempsey, advising him of the action that had been taken and asking him to communicate with the legislative investigating committee, as the representative of the legal department of the state.

Trouble has been threatened at Spring and Thompson lakes for several weeks. When it was announced that the state was preparing to claim title to all navigable waters within the confines of the state, it is said that the officers of the hunting and fishing clubs at these places prepared to construct dykes to disconnect the lakes and the Illinois river. Hunters and fishermen along the river prepared to resist such procedure, but the truce was declared, after the matter had been brought to the attention of the attorney general's department and no more trouble was threatened until the present time.

SALOON MEN KICK.

Declare Drug Stores Are Violating State and City Liquor Laws With Impunity.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LINCOLN (Neb.) Aug. 28.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Saloon men of Nebraska, who assert that they have been obeying strictly the 8 o'clock closing law and other rules bearing on the liquor traffic, have made complaint that drug keepers are violating not only the State enactments, but municipal laws, illegally selling intoxicants at all hours of the day and night, and in a majority of cases have not been molested.

If the municipal authorities do not act, the matter will be laid before Gov. Shallenberger on his return from his vacation on the Pacific Coast.

The Omaha saloon violation has been particularly embarrassing, inasmuch as to proceed against the Fire and Police Commissioners means to include Mayor Dahlman, who is a member of the board, and the most active rival of Gov. Shallenberger for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

AGED WOMAN BURNS.

Widow of Cyrus P. Leland Sets Clothing on Fire With an Alcohol Lamp.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Helen Leland, widow of Cyrus P. Leland, who at the time of his death was auditor of the Lake Shore Railroad, is dead from burns she received in her apartments.

Mrs. Leland, who was 70 years of age, lived with her son, William S. Leland, treasurer of the Northwestern Railroad. Her gown caught fire from a small alcohol stove on which she was heating a pot of water in her room.

Before the flames had been extinguished by other members of the family and by neighbors, Mrs. Leland had been fatally burned.

DISTINCTIVE.

SCHOOL MAKES REAL FARMERS.

Gardena High Is Connecting Soil and Science.

Prof. Bolster Outlines the Work in Progress.

Will Stem Tide Flowing to City from Ranch.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

GARDENA, Aug. 28.—Before the Farmers' Club, Thursday evening, F. H. Bolster, head of the department of agriculture of the High School, delivered an interesting address. In the course of it, he said:

"The work of the Gardena High School is distinctive not in that it is a city high school offering agriculture, for some city high schools in other States have been offering agriculture for some time. But it is distinctive in that it is the first city high school to offer agriculture as the one principal purpose of the school.

"The work the past year was elementary, but the elements are necessary before more advanced work can be done. We could not expect to make a big start the first year. There are always difficulties in instituting anything new. Then Gardena has some difficulties all her own. The problem of working dobie soil is problem enough for one year for a man who has never handled it before.

"The elementary course which was given to first year high school pupils was called general science. The aims of the course were to give a little general knowledge of several sciences, to show how all these sciences are related to agriculture, and last and most important, to develop the individual by teaching him to reason.

"We used no text but performed experiments which had a direct bearing on agriculture. We would state the experiment as a question and then try to answer the question. For example, How deep should seed be planted? When seeds germinate, what gas is given off? How may we best retain moisture in soils? How can we control alkali? Do vetches grow better if inoculated with bacteria, or if not inoculated? The material would be placed before the pupils. The method would be described and the precautions given. Then they would go about it and from the result draw their conclusion which was the answer to the question. But that was not enough. Take for instance an experiment whose relation to agriculture is least obvious. What gas is given off by germinating seeds? They came to the conclusion that carbon dioxide was given off. But what difference does it make whether this gas is given off or not? What bearing does that have on agriculture. If the experiment is left there, we have only learned an interesting fact which is of no use whatever. The experiment must be applied if it is to be made valuable. I try to draw out of the pupil the application to agriculture by reasoning from one step on to another. What is carobn dioxide? A gas composed of carbon and oxygen. If carbon dioxide is given off by germinating seeds, what must be going on in the seed? Oxidation or burning, the same as in our bodies when we exhale the same gas or when wood burns. Where does the carbon come from? From the seed itself. Where does the oxygen come from? From air in the soil. Can this oxidation go on in the seed if there is no air in the soil? Certainly not. Then air must be present in the soil in order that seeds may germinate just as much as moisture must be present. This brings up the whole matter of soil ventilation—the whole matter of thorough preparation of seed bed and the pupil begins to understand that tillage is just as necessary, to give air to the seed, as to keep the weeds down.

"By such experiments as this the pupil learns many valuable facts, but more than this his mind should be developed so that he can apply the same form of reasoning to experiments outside the school room and answer for himself questions which may arise in the mind of any normal boy or girl.

"But we do not stop even here. After hitting a point from as many sides as possible, we go out into the garden and try to apply our knowledge. If the knowledge learned in the laboratory cannot be applied in the field, then it is useless. We plant our seeds, we give them air and moisture, and after they begin to grow, we till the soil to give air to the roots and to retain moisture.

"What is farming but the production of plants and animals? What science should be most valuable to the farmer? I would say that if one science is more important to the farmer than another, that science would be the one that relates itself most closely to the laws governing the growth of plants. Botany is the science that confines itself to the subject of plants and the laws governing their growth. Botany must be the foundation of future work in agriculture. We cannot teach fruit growing or the diseases of plants or the growing of vegetables and flowers and field crops scientifically until the pupil has had botany. A model course in horticulture, marked out by a committee appointed by the Association of Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, requires three years of botany to two of chemistry. Chemistry is important, and physics, as the foundation of all science, also. But botany cannot be properly taught without drawing on chemistry and physics and other sciences.

"The coming year botany will be the agricultural science. The method of teaching it will be the same as for general science. In fact, it will be made a sort of advanced course in general science. A text-book will be used as a sort of frame work around which to group the experiments and garden work.

"As some of the practical outdoor work we will plant trees, both and shade. When we study the structure of stem and consider the cambium layer we will naturally take up the subject of grafting and give lots of practice in the different modes of budding and grafting. I hope to interest the class, too, in plant improvement. That is becoming something of a fad, but it is a practical fad, for when the farmer understands its principles he will choose better seed and raise better crops. We will handle the matter of seed selection in general, and then I want the class to take up a special fruit and a special flower to hand down to the next class for them to follow out and improve.

"The old-fashioned botany consisted of plant analysis. While the least important part of botany it is one of the most interesting parts. A child ought to have a natural curiosity to know the names of the flowers of the fields, and when we show him how to take up a flower he has never seen before and to determine its name for himself, we have made all outdoors a laboratory for him, and a laboratory that goes with him constantly. If we had had botany in the school last year, we would have been a year ahead of what we are now, both in preparation for advanced work and in the sentiment of the pupils toward the work.

"Chemistry will be given this year, as a foundation for a course in soils and for the domestic science work. Manual training or carpentry will be given as a part of the course in agriculture.

"What will the work described lead to? The advanced courses marked out for work after this year are only tentative, and I am sure will be revised before the year is over. Agriculture is the production of plants and animals useful to man, and the uses of such plants and animals so far as they are closely related to their production. Then, in my opinion, our work should be along two main lines—plant production and agrotechny as related to plant production, and animal production and agrotechny as related to animal production.

"Both plant and animal production deserve consideration in our school because of the large values of both plant and animal products that are shipped from Gardena. Few people realize how great an agricultural community Gardena is. Here are a few figures:

"During one month 76,534 crates of berries were shipped from the vicinity, valued at $100,000. During the year Gardena shipped $450,000 worth of berries. Eight tons of vegetables leave Gardena every day, valued at $30,000 per year. We ship 40,000 tons of barley hay per year. Valued at $10 a ton, our barley hay alone is worth $400,000.

Milk shipments amount to $60,000 per year. One man carries out of Gardena $7800 worth of poultry a year, and there are other men who buy poultry whose estimates I could not get. The Gardena hatchery alone ships more than 150,000 chicks a year, and during the time it is running full blast pays from $1500 to $2000 per month for eggs. There are two other men who hatch chickens, and I have no figures for ducks and geese. Estimating the amounts paid by the hatchery as one-fourth of the eggs produced in Gardena we have close to $96,000 worth of eggs per year, and the total animal products nearly $200,000.

"The animal products are about one-fifth that of the vegetable products. Plant products should be more than animal products, but the difference should not be so great. This great difference is one reason why the school should do some work in animal husbandry. It indicates that the people of Gardena are shipping all their products from the land and never putting anything back on the land. Diversified farming is the only insurance the farmer can have against the ultimate impoverishment of his land.

"An agricultural school owes as great a duty to the city as to the community. But our duty to the community is to look out for the interests of the small farmer and the small producer, rather than the large. I mean the man who has from five to fifty acres, rather than the man who has a hundred and fifty. We will give a really useful and practical education. We will educate toward the farm instead of away from it by showing the city boy who may take our work that farm life is, after all, the healthiest, most comfortable, and sanest life; by showing the farm boy that there is a side to farm life beside the drudgery; that it calls for a man of as much ability and intelligence to be a good farmer as to be a good lawyer or a good man of any other profession.

RESOLVED

THAT TALK IS SO CHEAP THAT MOST OF IT IS WORTHLESS. DON'T BE A PARROT — LET YOUR REMARKS BE OF YOUR OWN INVENTION. DON'T SAY "IT'S A HOT DAY" TO THE ICEMAN. DON'T SAY "I LIKE PIE" — EVERYBODY LIKES PIE. DON'T SAY "IT'S A COLD WORLD" — EVERYBODY SAYS THAT, AND IT ISN'T TRUE, ANYWAY. — DON'T SAY WHAT EVERYBODY SAYS, FOR NOBODY WANTS TO HEAR IT. BUT SAY SOMETHING WORTH WHILE, AND PEOPLE WILL STOP TO LISTEN. SAY SOMETHING ENTIRELY NEW, AND THE WORLD WILL PAY REAL MONEY TO HEAR IT.

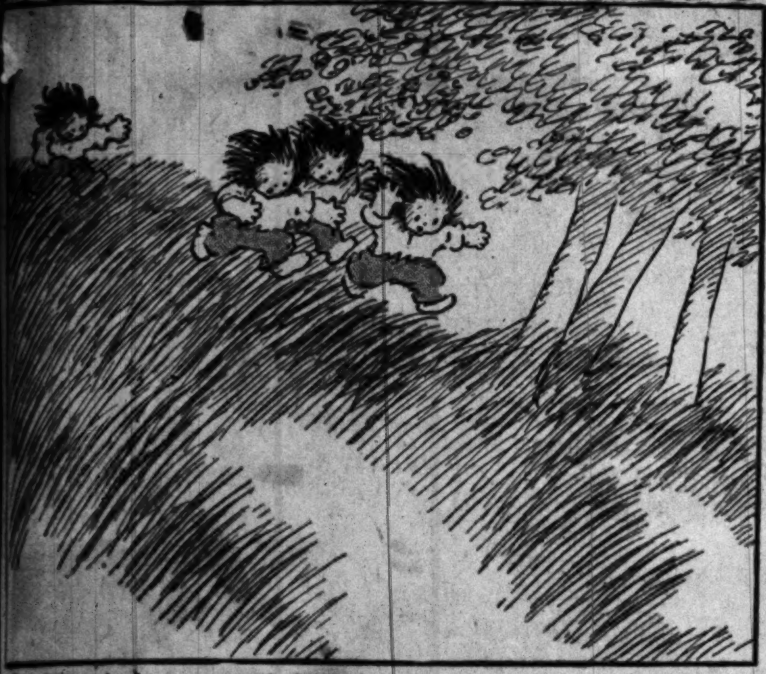
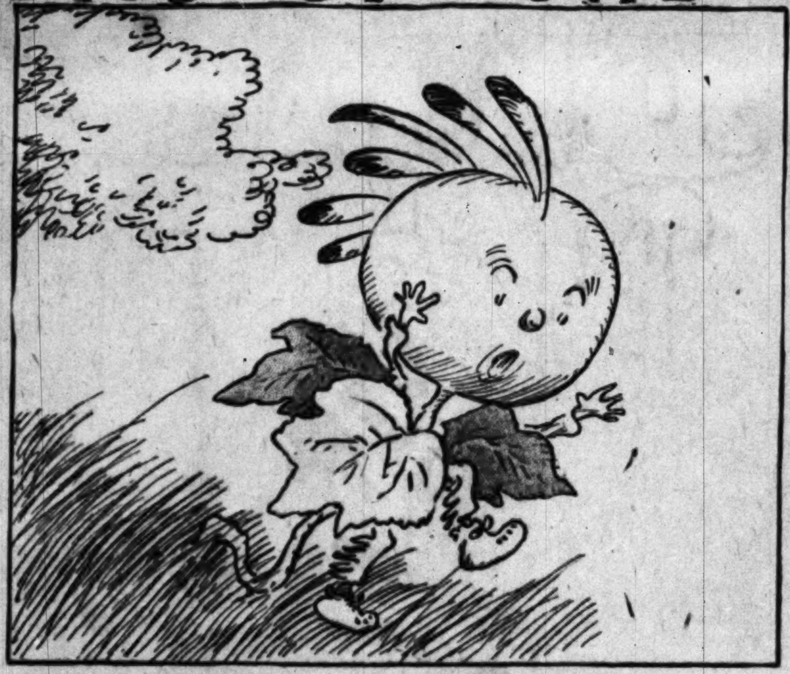
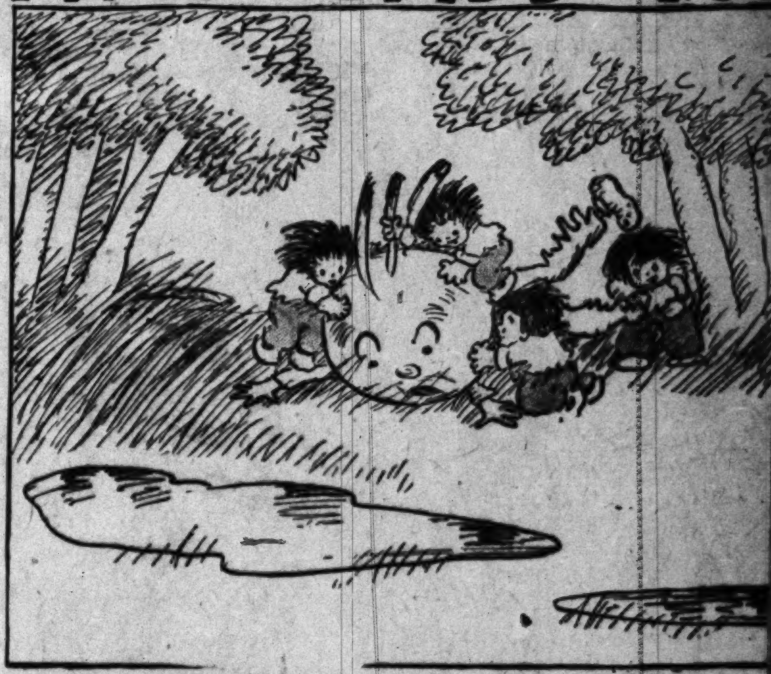
THE TERRORS OF THE TINY TADS



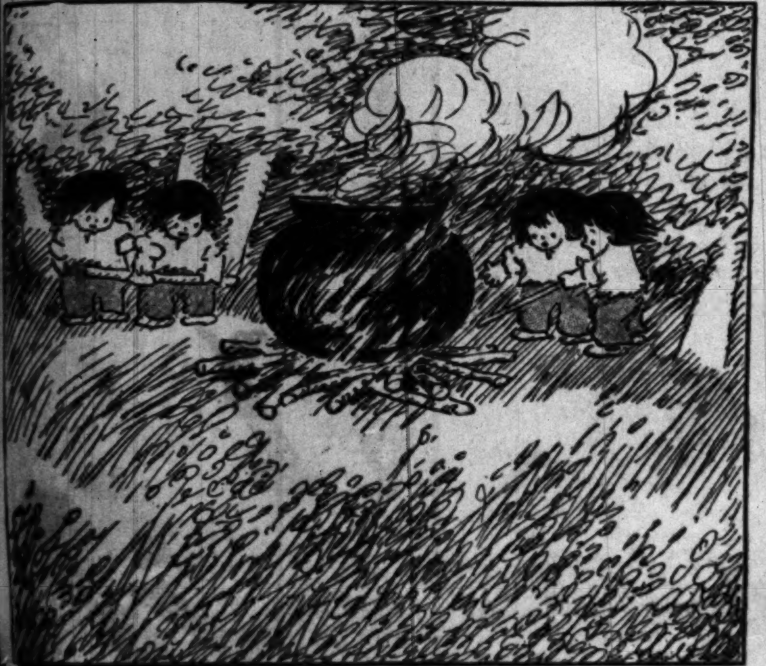
1.—What is the matter with the Tads? They see something, no doubt;
Perhaps if we, too, look around we'll find what makes them shout.



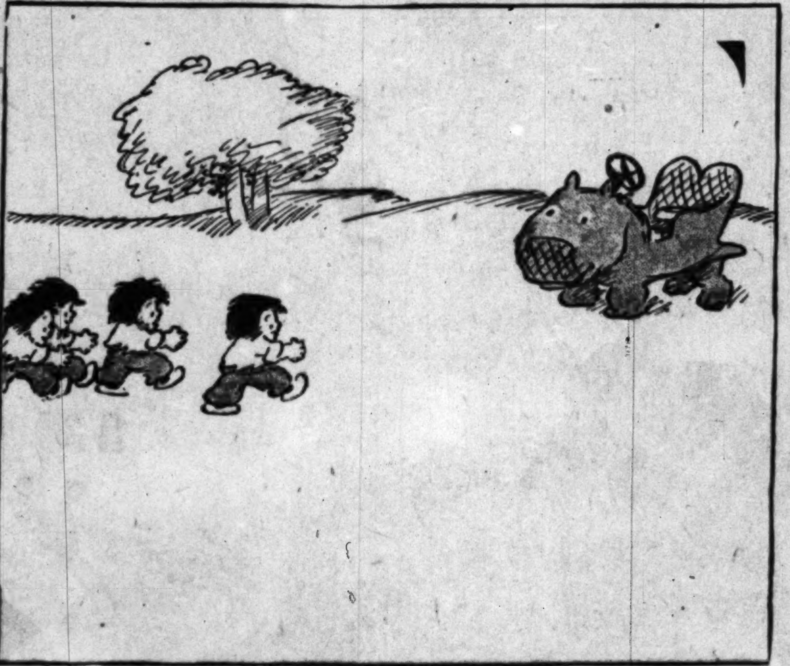
2.—Oh, here it is, a Pumpkindian, poor thing, he seems so frightened,
His eyes are popping from his head, his lips are sort of tightened.



3.—"We want you," cry the Tiny Tads, and then they punch his nose,
Which really doesn't hurt him, for he's just a thing that grows.



—They slice this vegetable up and put him in the pot
And boil him till he's soft all through and eat him while he's hot.



5.—And when they have partaken of this most refreshing meal,
They call upon their good old friend, the Hippopautomobile.

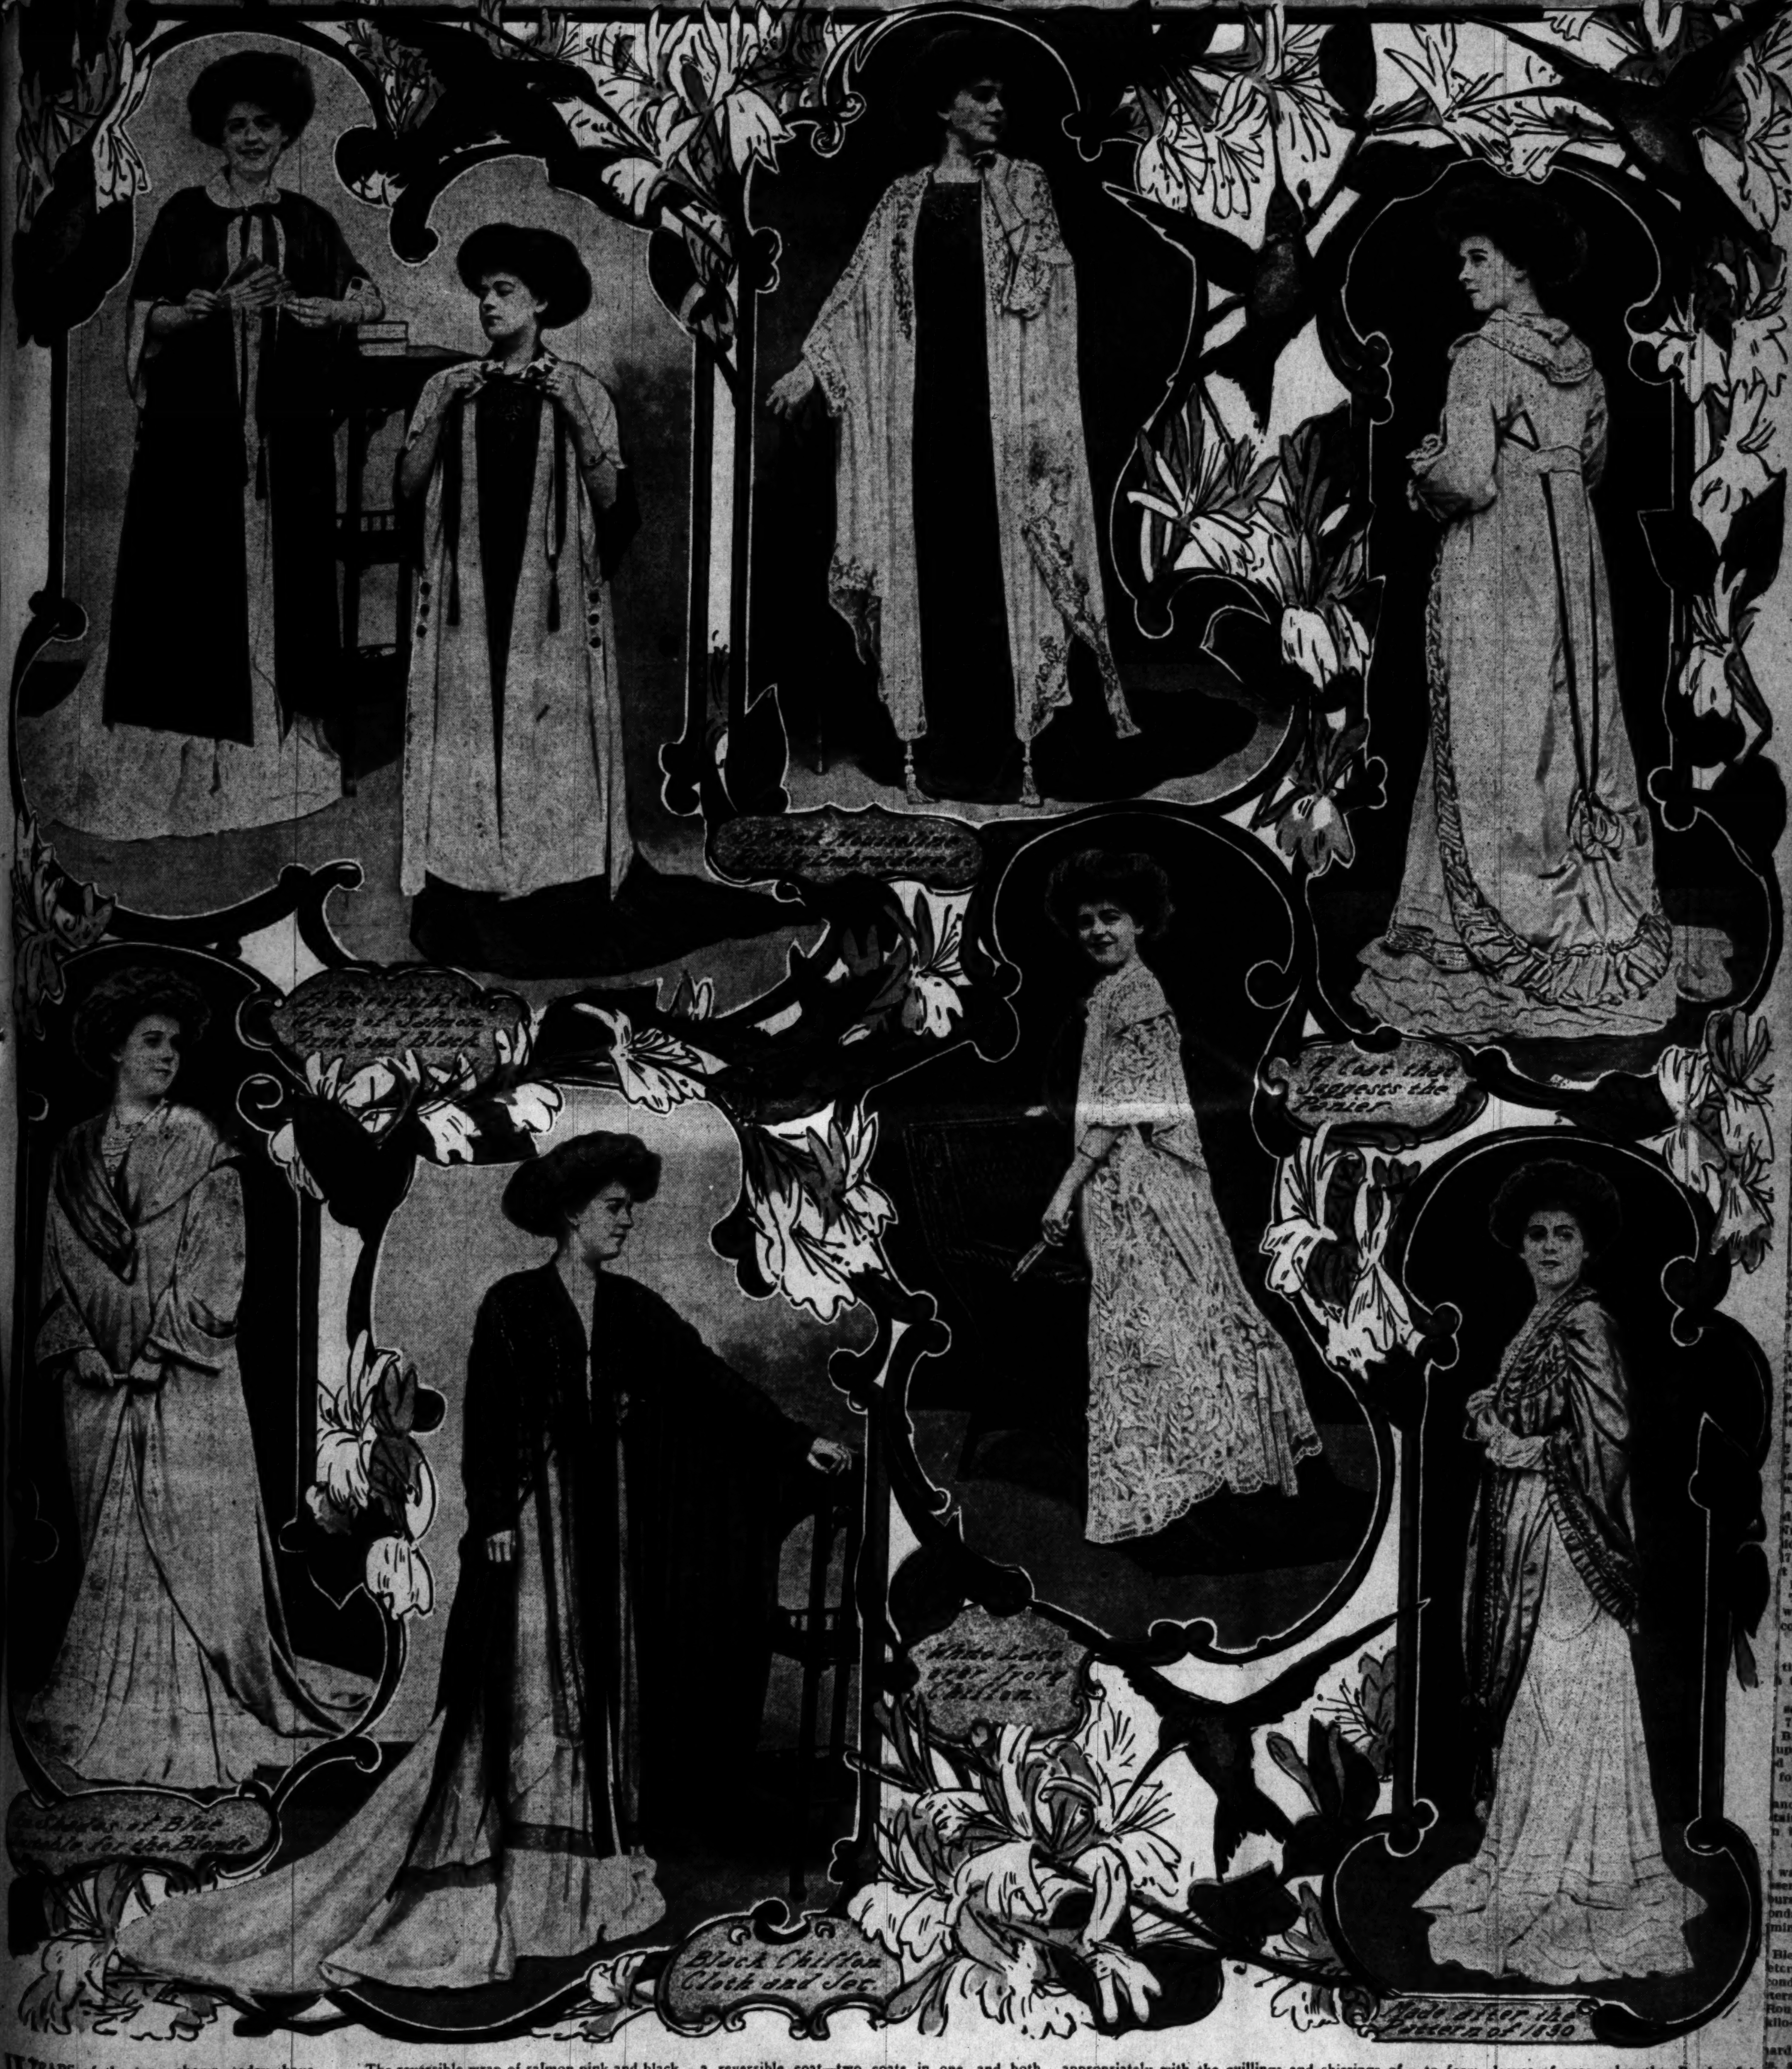
Wraps to Protect the Delicate Gown



A Reversible Wrap of Salmon Pink and Black

A Pink Mousseline Richly Embroidered

A Coat that Suggests the Panier

White Lace over Ivory Chiffon

Shades of Blue Suitable for the Blonde

Black Chiffon Cloth and Jet.

Made after the Pattern of 1830

WRAPS of the type shown today have heretofore been worn only over delicate evening gowns after 6 o'clock. But since the first days of spring [illegible] have been bound by no such clock-made [illegible] They have worn wraps when and wherever [illegible] gown was appropriate. This fact was de[illegible] and proved in Paris quite recently, and, [illegible] at first such dressy wraps seemed out of [illegible] in broad daylight, to become reconciled it [illegible] necessary to remember how crushed our [illegible] used to be under the woolen ulsters once [illegible] Satin and chiffon cloth are both mate[illegible] closely woven enough to give sufficient [illegible] on cool spring and autumn days. Why, [illegible] should they not be worn if the fashion has [illegible] by the best of the world's dressers?

The reversible wrap of salmon pink and black is an admirable example of what a comparatively untrimmed wrap can be. If one wishes to wear a coat of sable hue, it is only necessary to turn the pink side in and button the revers under the arms, turn up and button the bottom of the sleeves and fold outward the collar. This makes a black coat with pink collar and cuffs, pink satin buttons at the side for decoration and black satin buttons to hold the cuffs in place.

This coat would be lovely worn over a pink gown. But should a dark gown and a coat of lighter hue be desired, the owner need but turn it inside out again. Then she will have a black collar embroidered with pink, black cuffs held in place by pink satin buttons and the black satin buttons at each side under the armholes. Truly a reversible coat—two coats in one, and both of real beauty!

A wrap of white lace over ivory chiffon is of almost usual cut, its distinguishing feature being its scarfs of ivory crepe de chine. These appear from among the lace at the back of each shoulder; then they run over the shoulder, around the armhole and under the lace and out again to the foot of the coat in the center back, where they are tied together in a knot. Another scarf of the crepe encircles the neck and hangs in straight lines down the front. Both scarfs are finished with deep silk fringe. This coat is but little more elaborate than the lace coat of last year, and it might be worn over any of the dressy afternoon gowns of the season.

A coat that suggests the panier is trimmed appropriately with the quillings and shirrings of the period to which it belongs. The material is soft taffeta of a lovely faded blue. The back is rounded at the foot, pulled up and held by a rosette of blue taffeta.

A long wrap of pink mousseline, richly embroidered around the border, cuffs and collar, is arranged in one piece. The material is laid on the shoulder and closely shirred under an embroidered band, while the cuffs hold the fulness in place. They shorten the sides of the wrap, too, which gives the effect of the tunic, so popular this year. The points at the front are finished with long silk tassels.

A wrap of black chiffon cloth and jet is arranged very much in the same way; but in this case the full width of the cloth is simply thrown over each shoulder and sewed in under the arms to form sleeves of proper length. Bands of jet and beadwork are used as decoration, and the neck line is bound with bands of bias black satin.

Made after the fashion of 1830 is the short taffeta wrap of the shade called ashes of roses. This is much shirred and corded, while the entire edge is trimmed with a band of gathered material. The coat is quite long in front and finished with flat rosettes of velvet to match the taffeta.

A longer wrap, with rolling collar and soft turned-back cuffs, is of satin in two shades of blue, suitable for a blonde. The fact that the coat is so long as to reach to the end of a trailing skirt makes it remarkable. Few have been cut in this way. The collar and the bands on the cuffs are both in the deeper shade of blue. Would this not be just the wrap to wear on a cool afternoon over a white embroidered chiffon gown?

ERSONALLY CONDUCTED"

ossed with one of them last summon the homeward voyage from bourg. I knew her by name and were her antecedents. She comes cellent lineage; she was well edu- in private schools, although she a college graduate, and has the at home of being a decorous genman.

hout making myself known to her, t I was cognizant of her social station and environment, I watched her and five other girls as well born and reared as herself. They were "personally conducted" by a staid spinster who earns her living by taking parties of girls abroad. She was an indifferent sailor. The sextet of "buds," as I heard them call themselves repeatedly, were without exception "jolly tars." That was another of their sayings.

CHANCE ACQUAINTANCES

While the nominal chaperon lay back in her deck-chair and dozed or lazed with closed eyes the bachelor girls promenaded the deck with youths of the opposite sex, not one of whom they had ever seen prior to the voyage; ran potato and egg races in the "events" that diversified the monotony of steamer life; played shuffleboard and bet upon games, and contrived in these and countless other ways to keep the eyes of the whole ship's company fixed upon them and the wits of several hundreds of men and women on the qui vive, wondering what "those girls would do next."

I am no prude, and I dearly love to see young people merry and vivacious. A bright young girl, with her life before her, in full flush of springtime, rejoicing in health, hope and happiness, is one of the loveliest things in God's creation. It is not a hundred years since I, too, was in love with the wonderful new life bestowed upon me, and eager to extract all the sweetness "from every opening flower." I have brought up girls of my own, and joyed in their pleasures, sympathized in their perplexities, and delighted to lift their burdens when the privilege was vouchsafed to me. When I cease to feel with and for them may my right hand forget its cunning!

But—it jarred hard upon what the "buds" would have derided as antiquated notions of propriety to hear from the men of my party that the sextet, having gone to their staterooms and presumably to their berths under the convoy of the duenna at 10 o'clock, shortly thereafter reappeared upon deck, radiant with the triumph of outwitting their guardian, and forthwith proceeded to light cigarettes and, with them between their cherry lips, to resume the interrupted promenade of the deck in company with their newly made acquaintances.

It was more than a jar—it was a hard shock to see the bachelor girl lie back in her deck-chair next day, yawning between her laughs, that she "was sleepy after last night's carouse" (they had supped with their escorts at midnight) and that she was "bent upon catching forty winks."

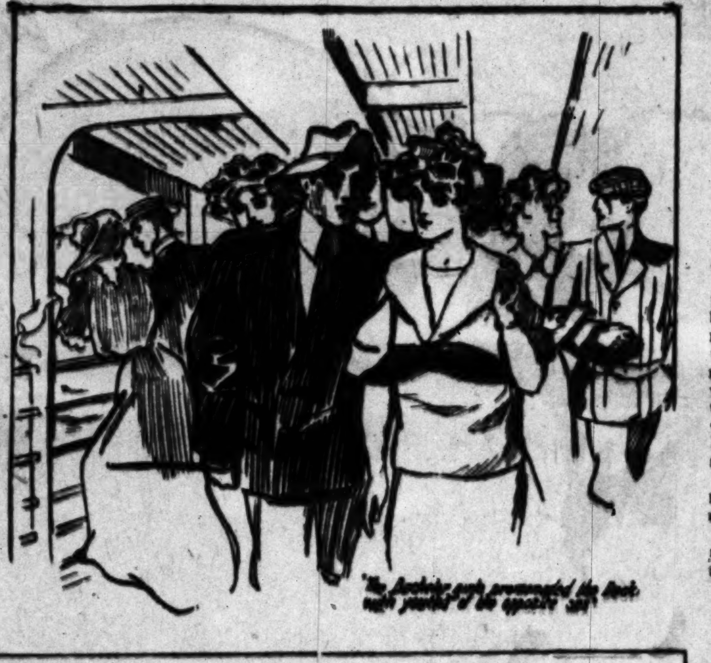
KIDS AND LAMBS

Motioning to a lively college-boy whose name she had never heard three days ago to take the chair adjoining hers, she raised her parasol to screen them from the sun, and the two remained in the semi-seclusion without moving or speaking for half an hour.

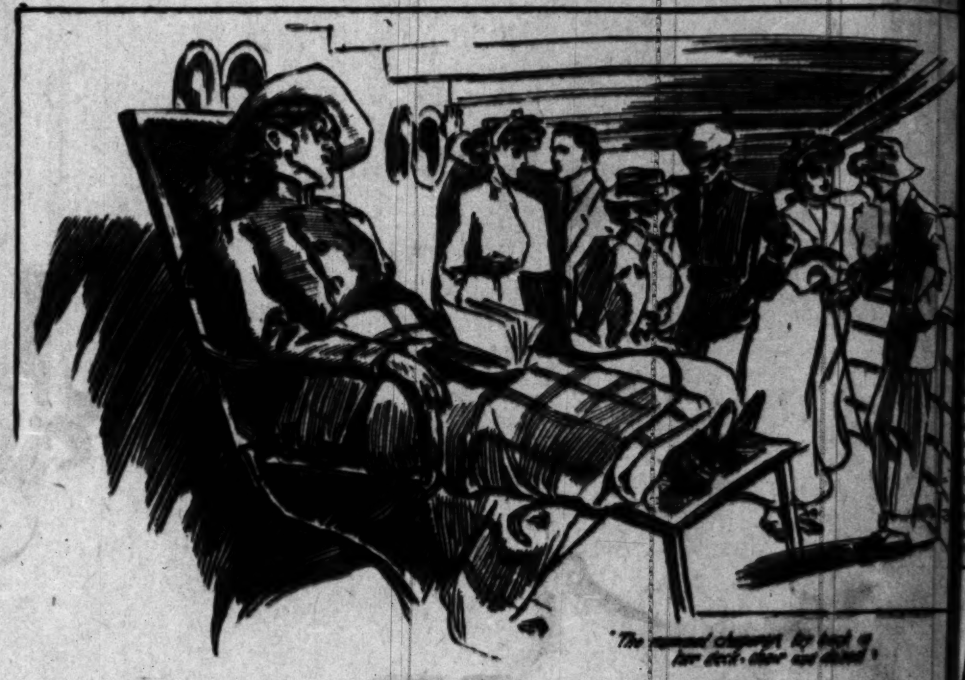
"Fast" and "immodest," do you say? I have been assured since, by those who know her well, that she is neither, but a girl of clean heart and life and, when the summer pranks are over, as well-mannered as your daughter or mine, my dear Madame Critic.

I have been the pained witness of like prankishness in summer hotels.

Our B. G. would tell you, in summer, that she is "out on a bat." She varies the expression, but not the deed, by saying that she is "in for a lark," or maybe "a bender." All winter long she was a bondslave to Conventionality. Young blood must bubble, and if it riot sometimes under the influence of holiday freedom and fresh air, who can blame her? It is as natural for the summer girl to defy rules and to flirt with any convenient man as for colts and lambs to gambol when given the run of the pasture.



"The Bachelor girls promenaded the deck with youths of the opposite sex"



"The nominal chaperon lay back in her deck-chair and dozed"

Again I say, I grudge her no recreation and frolic that come well within the bounds of propriety. I am willing to acknowledge her kinship with the kids and lambs so far as animal gayety goes. Scamper and gambol are innocent within certain limits.

A gentle, white-haired matron who had been a belle in her day, and who has brought up a family of young people of whom any parent might be proud, voiced my sentiments when she murmured in my ear, as the string of deck-walkers frowned or grinned in passing the tableau of what I overheard a foreigner sneer at as "a new edition of Paul and Virginia," to wit, the couple secluded by the parasol.

"Poor child! If she could only know how grievously ashamed she will be to recollect it some day!"

I would save her from the "grievous" reminiscence if I could. The most interesting blend of "bat" and "lark" and "bender" is too dear a price to pay for the loss of self-respect that is bound to follow the frolic which transcends the limits of maidenly modesty.

If that reads like the alliterative cant of a hypercritical dowager, sketch the deck scenes, including the stolen strolls and cigarettes and the midnight supper, to your own mother when the summer madness for fun at any price has passed from your brain, and let her pronounce judgment upon it. Ask her what she would have thought and said had she stumbled upon the daughter of her next-door neighbor, as I happened upon you last month, when you believed yourself and your partner in the last waltz to be quite out of sight of all except yourselves, in the corner of the hotel veranda, and you lighted his cigar, giving it a pull or two with your own lips before putting it to his. He kissed the tip of the weed, as in duty bound, and proceeded to suck complacently upon it.

You "had forgotten the silly scene"? You will recollect it, and not with a laugh, when you would lift unpolluted lips to the true man who reverences you too sincerely to let you forget what is due to your womanhood.

Don't I know that it was "in the merest fun" that you let that Harvard boy clip a stray lock from your head the day you were climbing the rocks in the Maine woods, and your hair got caught in the underbrush?

He promised to wear it [illegible] for the rest of his life, [illegible] should be buried with him [illegible] place. He probably had [illegible] ten other heads with the [illegible] You never saw him until [illegible] and you do not expect [illegible] him again. "Summer [illegible] count."

one more word, please? Won't you devote a whole page to "stepmoth-. I am a happy stepmother with four n. You might fill one line with exion marks, as my friends did when ard of my marriage. The oldest boy was 12 and the only girl a tiny baby of 18 months. Now, in four short, busy, Strenuous years (capital "S," if you please!) I have a fine family growing up around me. I must stop! I hope against hope to hear from other stepmothers.

L. D. P. (Los Angeles, Cal.).

I, too, could write volumes, as you tell me you could, upon the stepmother. Somebody catalogs her among the "necessary evils of family life." I resent the classification on behalf of the many noble women whom I see daily fulfilling the arduous duties of the position. I am not, however, a stepmother, nor did I have a stepmother of my own. My stepmother-in-law was one of my best friends while she lived. A woman said to me once: "Every second marriage has in it an element of the ridiculous." I retorted: "Thanks to meddling friends (?) of the first wife, a majority have a large element of the tragic."

I will consider the suggestion of the "whole page."

Thrift Versus Meanness

The soul of Mrs. B., of Joliet, Ill., is so like my own that I have been wanting to tell how to economize, but did not dare for fear of being ridiculed. I go even further than she, for I use up fried potatoes, too. Can you make room for a couple of homely hints that may be serviceable to other economizers?

To Use Stale Bread.

Butter a bakedish abundantly. Butter slices of stale bread and line the dish with them. Fill the central hollow with stewed and sweetened rhubarb. Cover this with about a cupful of sugar, and leave it until next morning. Then bake. Serve in the dish, and eat either hot or cold. It is as good as rhubarb pie and less expensive; likewise, far less troublesome.

Potatoes That Have Greened in Keeping.

Wash and peel them until no trace of the greenish hue is left. It is caused by lying in the light, and is poisonous. Wilted potatoes may be revived by leaving them in water all night. If badly wilted they may require a longer time, perhaps three days. Change the water daily. If they are not plump and crisp in three days they are hopeless. Carrots, parsnips and cabbages may be treated in the same way. They will lose the rank taste of old vegetables.

DELLA P. (Appleton, Wis.).

No sensible person ridicules one for being economical. And the laughter of fools is not worthy of consideration. Thrift is not meanness.

For Starving Plants

I have a word for the correspondent who mourns the frailty of potted plants. Many come into our home as gifts, and used to be considered as a passing pleasure. I find that an occasional dose of the fertilizer put out under the general name of "plant food" renders them thrifty and contented in their new environment. Plants that have grown withered and dejected have begun life over again and put forth blossoms which logically belong to the early spring. These fertilizers are used in forcing them in the greenhouse, and, consequently, they starve upon plain water.

S. S. (Kansas City, Mo.).

A good plant food for potted house-plants is sheep manure. A half pint in a gallon of water, left to soak for some hours, will infuse new life into "dejected" newcomers. Stir well from the bottom before using.

Our pleasant correspondent calls attention to what we flower lovers are prone to overlook in our treatment of the house plants, namely, that they were doctored and forced into apparent vigor in the greenhouse, and pine for the accustomed regimen.

Home Dyes for the Rugmaker

I send recipes that have been used in my family for generations and have never failed:

Black Dye for Woolens That Won't "Crock."

One ounce extract of logwood, one ounce of copperas, half an ounce of verdigris. Tie up the verdigris in a bit of cloth and dissolve the copperas in an iron kettle. Soak the material for forty-five minutes in scalding water, dissolve the logwood and add to the verdigris water. Soak the material in this for three-quarters of an hour.

Blue Dye for Cotton.

Four ounces of prussian blue, four ounces of oxalic acid. Dissolve in separate waters (cold). Put together and soak the cotton, stirring up often and sousing the cotton up and down.

Lemon Yellow for Cotton.

For eight pounds of cotton dissolve half a pound of sugar of lead in hot water and three-quarters of a pound of bichromate of potassium in cold. Dip the cotton first in the leadwater, then in the potassium until you have the right shade of yellow.

If you want to make the lemon orange, dip it into limewater made by dissolving quicklime in enough water to cover the cotton.

To Dye Cotton Green.

Dip blue into lemon dye.

Catechu for Dyeing Cottons.

Three pounds of catechu, one-quarter pound of blue vitriol, one-quarter pound of bichromate of potassium. Dissolve them in hot water enough to cover the cotton, and soak the latter overnight in a copper or brass kettle. Dissolve the potassium in an iron kettle, bring to a boil, dip the soaked stuff in the potassium water, then in the catechu until you have the right shade. This will be a fine, never-fading brown.

Mrs. M. A. P. ([illegible], N. Y.).

Delicacies of the Tea Table

FIRSTLY, have the very best of tea, tea of a truly delicious flavor, and your particular veranda in summer or your drawing room in winter, will prove the most attractive spot in your particular suburb.

The serving of this beverage at its best is, to a woman with the tea habit, as is chocolate cake to a man, even although he may strenuously deny all fondness for things sweet. Good tea isn't a great extravagance, because the richer flavors usually require a scant allowance to the cup, and a smaller caddy of tea, if tightly closed, will last a long, long time.

The serving of some delicious dainty with your tea may prove a more satisfactory little treat than sandwiches or crackers. Certain it is that the ginger crystal kept in tin will be ready to serve when the crackers you've carefully saved will need reheating, and the sandwiches will call you away from your guests or require previous preparation.

If the afternoon tea is not allowed to drift into a troublesome function, it will more likely become an easy and frequent thing that all will enjoy and nobody will dread.

A hostess sometimes lives a terrible life, and more's the pity! for her guests cannot be comfortable if it is apparent that she is uneasy or overworked.

There is an assortment of tea-table dainties, all requiring no care in the keeping, and any of which may be bought ready to serve. We have the ever-reliable ginger in blocks, in the natural root shapes; and then there is stem ginger. Nut-stuffed dates and figs are well known. Raisins, too, are stuffed, sometimes with nuts and again with bits of fig. Large and luscious prunes are filled with nuts and also fig paste. Nut-filled cherries are a new dainty, and all of the crystallized fruits form a fragrant and luscious accompaniment to the cup of hot tea. A Japanese flagroot—no doubt a product of the wonderful iris of Japan—is crystallized, and ranks with pineapple, orange and lemon.

Fruits glaces are almost as "passable" as are those crystallized. Marrons are a great delicacy, while cumquats (those absurdly small oranges) are of lesser value. Some people consider them most unusual and interesting in taste, although they have been characterized as "only peculiar."

Rice candy is another sweet; while olives and cheese straws appeal to those who scorn the saccharine.

Have you ever cut English cheeses into triangles? Or pressed them out into flat disks with a small round cutter? These give a unique and painstaking touch that means a bit more trouble, perhaps, than the list of ready-to-serves.

Remember that, in going into these extravagances of the tea table, the hostess is not expected to pass them in quantity. Delicacies should, properly speaking, be kept more or less sacred. Afternoon tea is not a heavy meal, and should never be allowed to drift into anything other than an excuse for conversation.

A Jelly for Invalids

HAS it ever occurred to you to jelly fruits in the smallest possible glasses for the invalid friend? Glasses may be had which will hold but a quarter of the jelly usually put into the ordinary tumbler size.

While you may not want to carry to your friend just one of these tiny playthings, the variety that you could take in four of the little glasses would be novel and so much more acceptable to the delicate appetite than a quantity of one kind.

A Quick Lunch

LUNCH at a railroad station means, for some people, two pieces of half-raw dough, called bread; a sample of butter hidden beside a small scrap of partially cooked ham, that won't stay inside of the sandwich and won't come out. And the description is not complete without the admission that it is "grabbed" and "bolted" while the clock hand jumps from minute to minute. It doesn't sound nice, and the description ought to be enough to insure a well-developed case of indigestion.

Concerning Peppers

MRS. BLANK had a small place in the country, and one of the most successful crops were green peppers. As fall approached she soon found that unless she made some use of her peppers they would be frozen on the vines, so she looked round among all her recipe books and found that a good pickle might be made of the peppers, seeded and chopped up fine. So she gathered them in and started on her work.

She began by cutting open the peppers and taking out the seeds, and after about five minutes of this she felt her hands begin to burn. She stopped handling the peppers. All this occurred about 9 o'clock in the morning, and by 9.30 the burning sensation became so violent that she was unable to stand the pain. She sent for a doctor, and he said that her hands were as badly burned as if she had put them in fire, and that the only relief he could suggest was to hold her hands in a basin of cold water. So poor Mrs. Blank obeyed his orders and kept her hands in water until 4.30 o'clock the following morning.

The misfortune of the amateur cook may save others the same trouble. Peppers are very difficult to handle, and should never be touched with the bare hands. If they must be cut up, wear rubber gloves or else use a knife and fork, so that the oil cannot get into the pores of the skin.

By the way, if Mrs. Blank wanted to keep the peppers she would have done just as well had she spread them out on the cellar floor. Arranged this way, they keep wonderfully well all winter long.

Brevities for the Housekeeper

FRUIT and wine stains upon table linen may be removed with a little sweet milk and salt. Make a paste of the two, cover the stain, and let it stand for several hours. Repeat until the stain disappears.

It is said that prunes are greatly improved if a little cider is added to the water in which they are cooked.

Milk may be kept from scorching, says a good cook, if the pan in which it is to be cooked is rinsed in cold water before the milk is poured in.

Ivory knife handles that have become yellowed by constant washing may usually be whitened by a rubbing with emery paper and a polishing with chamois.

Celery may be kept for several days if it is placed in a glass jar, sealed and kept in a cool place. When wanted, it should be soaked in ice water.

A vanilla bean kept in the sugar box will impart a delicious flavor to the sugar. This is a bit of advice from a French chef.

When frying mush, dip the slices first in the white of an egg. This makes it crisp.

After washing the lamp chimney polish it with dry salt. It makes the glass bright and will prevent its breaking.

To clean pewter, wash it well with hot water, rub it with fine sand and, when dry, polish it with leather.

BWANA HUMPTO IN AFRICA

NATIVE BEATERS ROUNDED UP THE GAME

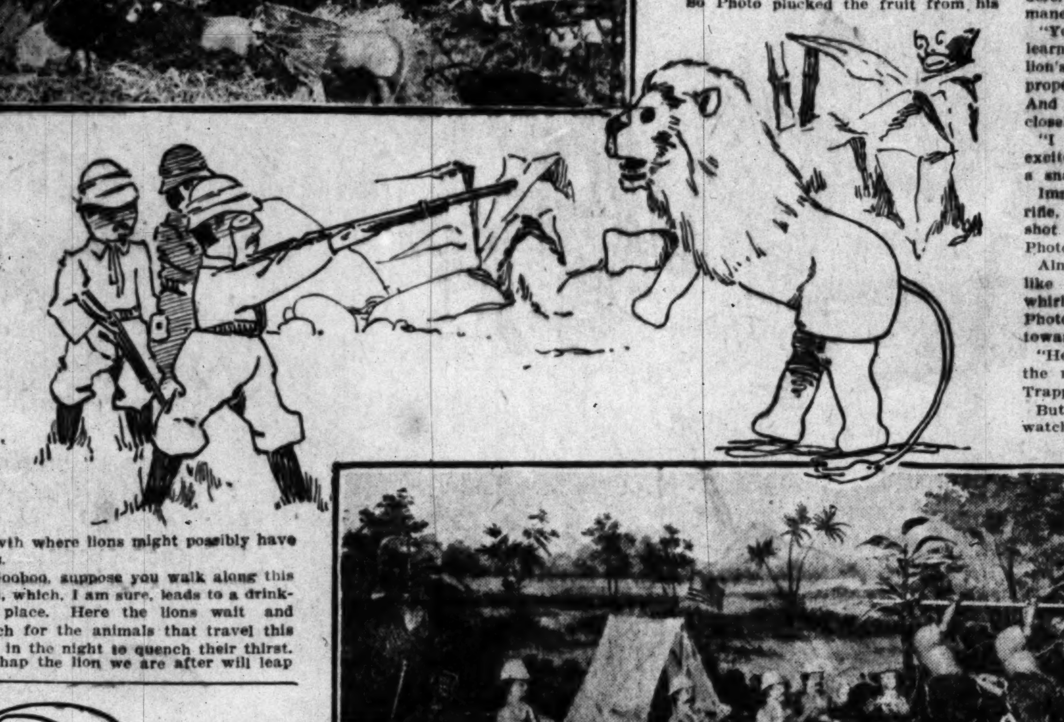
By Raber Mundorf

OTO HUMPTO took a flashlight. But Photo had ventured too far away from the campfire. When the flashlight powder had burn apparent nothingness, one of owling lions, who was not pleased the style of Photo's helmet ealed by the flame, made a wild for the boy. It may be supposed Photo was a little nervous. Had t been, he hardly would have is directions mixed and have fled e forest instead of into camp.

shall not have my precious kodak," cried the boy, as he hugged his ured possession close and ran the The covetous lion, however, his eyes greedily upon the kodak ent more earnestly to the chase. doubtless the animal would have his prize in the Marathon race t not for a pitfall which one of nergetic negroes had fitted up as urious apartment for some inno lion. The pitfall was used, t by the lion. It was while he was scampering madly over a grass-covered clearing that the boy suddenly found himself treading upon nothing. The nothing was covered with a thin layer of grass, so that when Photo's feet went through the grass covering he speedily found the bottom of a deep pit.

Photo was trapped by the lion. As he sat, looking up at the stars and thinking how very beautiful they were, along came his pursuer.

"Come up!" invited the lion. But Photo was sure there was a much better view of the stars from the pit than from above, so he said he would not come just then; nor would he chuck up the kodak, as the lion suggested. "No one shall have my kodak!" said the brave lad.



Meanwhile a search for the missing lad was begun. Bwano Humpto started from camp with a band of trusty hunters. Carefully they explored over the wide-ranging Mau Hills, examining the thickets of thorny bushes, prodding among bush-covered rocks, peering by the light of torches into all the dense growth where lions might possibly have lairs.

"Goohoo, suppose you walk along this path, which, I am sure, leads to a drinking place. Here the lions wait and watch for the animals that travel this way in the night to quench their thirst. Mayhap the lion we are after will leap from his hiding place upon you. Then we can chop him open and see if poor Photo is inside."

"Very well, mighty Bwana Humpto; but what will become of me after the lion jumps?" demurred the headman of the beaters.

"What if you do die?" responded the doctor. "Know ye not that we shall put up a handsome tombstone upon which I shall inscribe the following sad verse:

"Good Goohoo died just like a dear—
(In concert let us shed a tear;)
Just like a dear, he sought a place
Where he could wet his little face.

"But not a drop did his lips touch—
(It certainly does beat the Dutch!)—
For naughty Lion knocked him flat
And used him for a front door mat.

"Anybody would be glad to die in order to have such a verse written about him," said the doctor modestly.

Lucky, indeed, it was that the party at this moment approached the pit in which Photo lay, because it gave the doctor another opportunity to display his poetic talent. He reached the pit first, having heard the shouts of the boy. Bending over the edge of the pit, the doctor cast into it the fruit of the "monkey-bread tree," or baobab.

"Eat that," directed the wise physician. "I shall help you out in a minute."

So Photo plucked the fruit from his eye, where it had landed, and munched the acid pulp, while his soon-to-be rescuer sat down by the pit, opened a memoradum book and wrote industriously therein.

Finally, with a chuckle of satisfaction, the Doctor loudly called:

"Here is a little verse for you to memorize:

"In a pit
Now you sit,
Looking at the stars.
Twinkledee!
Can you see
The busy marts on Mars?"

Photo said he couldn't. Neither could he see how ever he was going to escape from the pit unless Doctor Pillo paused in the making of rhymes. So Doctor Pillo paused.

The hunting party now being gathered, Goohoo sent out the game beaters with noise-making devices, such as tomtoms, cymbals and horns. This din, of course, was supposed to frighten lions from lairs in rock or thicket, from patches of tall grass or reeds. Dawn was creeping from the east; all eyes were strained to catch a glimpse of the king of beasts.

"Come see what I have found, Trappo!" exclaimed Photo, as he peered into a cavernous hollow in a mass of boulders. "As I live, 'tis a lion with his mane shaved off!"

"You speak wrongly," said the learned Trappo. "Examine closely, the lion's wife, the lioness, who might properly be called the 'queen of beasts.' And see the three little whelps cuddled closely to her for protection."

"I see," said Photo, quivering with excitement. Then Photo Humpto took a snapshot.

Immediately there was the report of a rifle, and the enraged lioness lay dead, shot by a bullet from Trappo's firearm. Photo Humpto took another snapshot.

Almost simultaneously a stealthy, catlike tread from the rear became a whirlwind. A huge lion leaped for Photo, seized the kodak and bounded toward the plain.

"He thinks it was the kodak that did the mischief to his wife," remarked Trappo.

But the lad did not hear. He was watching the lion gallop far away over the plateau, still carrying the prize in his mouth.

After awhile other lions joined him, and he who bore the kodak—a big-maned fellow he was, pale tawny in color—found himself surrounded as all inspected the booty. Yellows and reddish yellows and almost blackish yellows were contrasted with the white grit of the ground. Manes, darker than the coats and some splashed with black, were blown slightly by the feebly stirring wind. "'Tis a chawming pictyah!" murmured the Titled Englishman.

"Thunderation!" yelled Photo. "He's so tickled with the kodak that he's forgotten all about the lioness. Look at 'im trying to get a picture of the other lions!"

Sure enough, the lion who had captured the kodak was endeavoring to photograph a group of his fellows, posed like big pussy cats for their ture.

"From the sweet expressions on t faces one might suppose that each mal had just lapped up a saucer milk," ventured Trappo.

Photo said he supposed the lions seen so many hunters and kodaks by this time they were entirely fam with the use of a simple mechan like a camera. What he wished e cially to know, however, was method to be used in regaining property. As no plan suggested it Bwana Humpto was consulted.

"I would advise you to impress service our little portable balloon, boy," said Bwana Humpto.

The boy took the hint. Very sh he was seated in the balloon, w was always inflated for use in just emergencies. Coiled handily at the tom of the car were two long r Each bore a hook at one end, and one of these hooks was fastened a chunk of raw meat.

When the balloon hovered uncert above the troop of lions, Photo low the raw meat to within a few inch the lion photographer. In his eage to reach the meat, the big fellow ped the kodak. Like a flash, the dropped the other rope and haule his trusty instrument by means o hook. Then Photo Humpto too snapshot.

Refusal to act or failure to perform means expulsion from the circle as a coward. Taking the sentence seriously, the lad steals away at midnight, spends the night in a wood and sets out at daylight in company with Bugs, a tramp, whom he meets and who shares his food. They cross a river on a raft, and after a day's tramping obtain a good meal and night's lodging from a kind farmer. After breakfast the two board a freight. Bugs is able to give valuable advice on the best methods of freight riding. When their destination is reached, they dodge the trainmen and make for a lodging house. This, Bugs explains, is a house provided especially for hobos. Inside are gathered a number of men, who, after a hearty supper, spend the evening in exchanging stories of tramp life. Conrad spends a sleepless night, but in the morning is ready to start again for the railroad. A glance at the engineer of a freight locomotive strangely excites Bugs, who vows vengeance for some previous wrong, and then springs into the cab, calling to Conrad to follow. Another mo

"I'm going to find some other place to sleep," muttered he.

His comrade laughed, kicked aside the bones and settled himself for a continuation of his nap, while Conrad wandered aimlessly about the tumbled heap of stones and crumbled masonry until he found a spot which gave some protection from the wind. For the most part, however, it was a sleepless night he passed.

There is more difficulty for a tramp in traveling by daytime, but as both were anxious to quit the desolate region and gain food, they resolved to try to make Denver that day.

"This is where time is changed one hour," observed Bugs. "People comin' West on the cars often get hungry hereabouts, 'count o' the mealtime bein' put back one hour."

Our wayfarers were fortunate in stealing rides on freight trains, thus reaching Denver within the time set. Here they found something to eat, and thence journeyed to Colorado Springs, where Conrad could not resist the temptation of inspecting various places of interest. Bugs lay down in the shade of a rock while the boy trudged toward the Garden of the Gods, to see the immense shafts and pinnacles of stone that reared themselves in fantastic shapes.

Not only did he enjoy the scenery, but he also obtained the price of a meal. Tourists were having their photographs taken in front of the curious Balanced Rock, which looks as though it were just going to topple over, but never does. The lad assisted a man in holding the little burros upon which tourists mounted to pose for pictures. For this service he received 10 cents.

That evening the adventurers resumed travel. Before morning they reached Glenwood Springs. Bugs had been telling Conrad of the sulphur springs and the pond that maintained an even heat by reason of the hot spring feeding it. In spite of his weariness from hard travel, Conrad took a dip in this spring. At midnight he came from the water, feeling much refreshed. Then he sought the comfortable nook in which Bugs already had hidden himself.

Further westward the pair went the following day. When they paused they were in the town of Grand Junction, on the western borderline of Colorado.

Sauntering through the streets of this town, the attention of Bugs and Conrad was attracted by a commotion inside a building where motion pictures were being exhibited. Drawing closer, they found the audience clamoring indignantly for the return of their money. It seemed that other entertainment was offered besides motion pictures, but the actor who was to provide the amusement failed to appear. Bugs saw his chance. He found the manager, and made the following suggestion:

"See here, if yuh want some real good fun let me try. I wunst was an actor, an' can give 'em the proper stunts."

The manager surveyed Bugs rather doubtfully. But something had to be done to placate the audience, so he consented.

Bugs created furious laughter. The people assembled imagined that the tramp attire was merely a stage costume. They howled at the jokes and comical songs contributed by the tramp. So pleased was the manager with the success of the plan that he engaged Bugs for the rest of the evening, promising $5 for the work. This was a windfall to Bugs, who hadn't seen so much money for years.

Across the desert Conrad and his friend rode to Salt Lake City. The boy was almost exhausted when he arrived at this Mormon city by the great inland sea of salt. He decided to proceed no more in this manner. Therefore, much to the regret of Bugs, he announced his intention of getting work to do in order that he might earn money for the rest of the journey to San Francisco.

"Well, so long, sonny," said the tramp when they parted; "you've been a good sort an' I'm sorry to lose yuh. Take care o' yourself; an' take my advice an' get home soon's yuh can. Trampin' ain't the right thing for boys."

If Bugs regretted leaving the boy, Conrad was more sorry at the prospect of losing such a good friend as the tramp. Such friendships are rare in tramp life. Conrad learned that many an older tramp chooses a boy for a companion, but that the boy always is compelled to forage for the food and to submit to brutal treatment from the elder man.

Conrad found odd jobs about town, working until he had accumulated enough money to pay his fare to San Francisco. To such good purpose did he labor that within a week he had accumulated the necessary amount.

The boy reached San Francisco with not a cent in his pockets. It was late in the afternoon. He had had nothing to eat since the evening before, so that he was faint for lack of food. While he was gazing longingly upon the edible dainties displayed in the windows of a restaurant, he observed a well-dressed man looking at him closely. Conrad was growing restive under the steady gaze of the stranger, when the man approached and asked:

"You look hungry, sonny. How would you like to have a meal?"

Conrad was willing, very willing indeed, to accept the gentleman's kind invitation. They entered the restaurant, where Conrad ate and ate until he could hold no more. Never had a meal tasted so good.

"I thank you with all my heart," Conrad said, earnestly, as they came from the restaurant.

"No thanks are required, sonny," responded the man. "I'm a detective who has been on your trail for some little time. I've never been able to catch up to you until now, so successful have you been in giving me the slip."

Conrad started and would have run away, supposing the sleuth to be a railroad man, but the detective grabbed him by the arm. Turning him about, he said:

"And here is the man who hired me."

Conrad started, and then was frozen to the ground with astonishment. The gentleman pointed out was his father.

"No more tramping for you, my boy!" exclaimed the father, as he hugged his son tightly.

"I don't want any more of it, father. You know the reason I left home, I suppose. Well, I can tell you that this reason, or any other, would never cause me to tramp again. It's no fun not to know where you'll get your next mouthful of food, or when you'll be ground to pieces on the railroad tracks. It's no fun, and I'm awfully glad I'm through with it all."

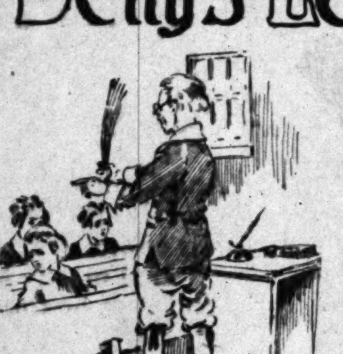
Back to the East Mr. Burgess and his son traveled. A few days later Conrad appeared before the Mystic Circle of Those Who Dare.

"I have finished the task set me by the council," he announced simply.

"You have!" cried the circle, as with one accord the members rose and gave three rousing cheers.

[THE END]

Betty's Lesson out of School



THE STERN MASTER

BETTY had come home. Vacation trips were over, and now, seated in the comfy attic, where she was wont to dream her dreams and spin delicate little fancies, Betty recalled the many pleasant times she had had in the mountains and at the seashore during the last two months. And she wondered how she could grow accustomed to school, which would open on the morrow.

"I suppose boys and girls have always hated to go back to school after vacation," mused she.

"Thou are right, my dear," came the response, in the gentle voice of her Puritan great-grandmother, as that mild-faced, pleasant old lady in the quaint dress appeared from the air, with the suddenness affected by all Betty's ancestors.

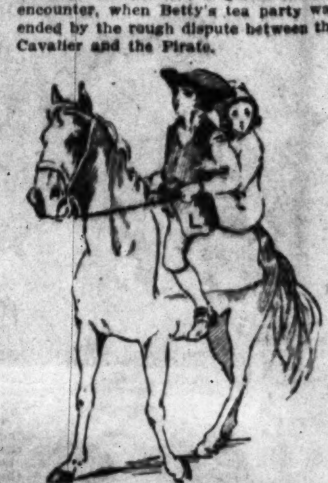
"Methinks, also, that schooldays were not so pleasant then as now," continued the great-grandmother. "We sat upon rough forms of wood, conning lessons in a few simple textbooks; and before us stood a stern master, who thundered at us when we were at fault. Ever ready was he with the brass-tipped ferrule, as my good husband here will tell thee."

In a trice the figure of Betty's great-grandfather likewise resolved itself from the apparently empty air, and there came from him the ready answer: "Of a truth, thy great-grandmother is right, child."

"But, Elizabeth, let me tell thee how we young folk found our way to school in the days of Old Virginia," interrupted a suave voice, which Betty at once recognized as that of her Cavalier great-granduncle.

"Mounted upon our roan mare, my sister Jane and I would canter right merrily along lanes which separated great tobacco plantations. Long distance we traveled, for plantations were sometimes far apart and the manor houses much scattered. Jane would sit upon her pillion behind; then off we would go, to join our schoolmates before the little schoolhouse. Reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic we then would study, and, I fear me, little else. Such learning would seem simple to thee, Betty."

At this point in the conversation the air was much disturbed, as though by a high wind. Betty felt, without at first seeing, that her blustering pirate ancestor was about to come forth. And the wicked old fellow did, clad in his high boots, with a scarlet handkerchief about his head, a scarlet sash about his waist and a wicked-looking cutlass thrust into his belt. He winked roguishly at Betty. Then, chancing to rest his eyes upon the elegant figure of the Cavalier, the smile changed to a scowl and a hand leaped to the cutlass. The Cavalier laid a hand upon the rapier by his side and looked steadily at his old adversary. Neither had forgotten the last encounter, when Betty's tea party was ended by the rough dispute between the Cavalier and the Pirate.

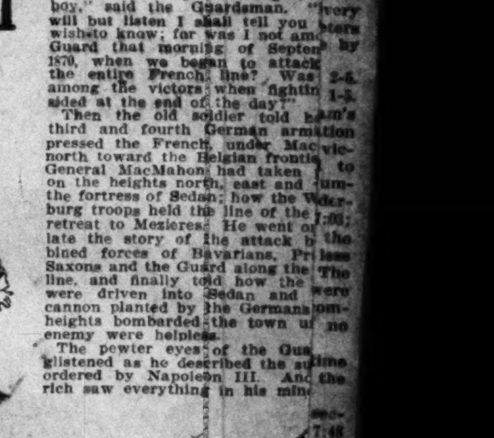


"UPON OUR ROAN MARE"

But the Puritan great-grandmother hastily interposed, saying in her reproachful way: "I prithee, do not quarrel. Betty wishes to learn about school, and not about fights."

Diverted from his purpose, the Pirate bellowed forth a hearty laugh.

"School! Ha! ha! ho! ho!" roared he. "School! Think thee I should go to school? Nay; I liked to play truant too well for that. Even as a boy I showed promise of my later successful career as the most bloodthirsty pirate of the high seas. Was there a lad whom I wished for my fishing expeditions I dragged him from the schoolyard, and though he cried 'enough,' I would bear him away for my comrade. School? Ha! ha! Little enough of school have I to tell Betty about."



"FORCED HIM TO COME"

But if the Pirate had nothing to say regarding the time spent in school during his childhood, the other ancestors were more ready with information. Tales were related of lessons, games and all the curious happenings which made up the lives of boys and girls many, many years ago.

Betty found it all so interesting that when her ancestors disappeared, as they did without a word of warning, she began to look forward to her first school session on the morrow with great eagerness.

"I've sometimes thought that school was tiresome," she said, reflectively, to herself, "but compared with the times my ancestors had during their schooldays I have one big lark. Hereafter I shall not complain."

Snakes Instead of Pussies

WOULD you like to have a snake for a pet? Most of us are very much afraid of them and prefer to look at them through a glass case in the zoos.

In foreign countries, however, snakes are sometimes quite harmless. A gentleman once visited a friend who lived in one of the southern countries. While taking a walk one morning he saw an enormous snake gliding on the ground. Of course he was much alarmed and told his friend, who laughed and said, "Why, that snake would not hurt anybody. We use him to catch mice and rats and the animals which spoil our crops." Wouldn't it be funny if we had to have snakes instead of little pussy cats when the mice bothered us!

And Mary Ellen Snooks,
Bold Ezra and his brother Ben,
Determined, so 'twould seem,
To catch each speckled beauty and 3.—Though she was minus line and rod,

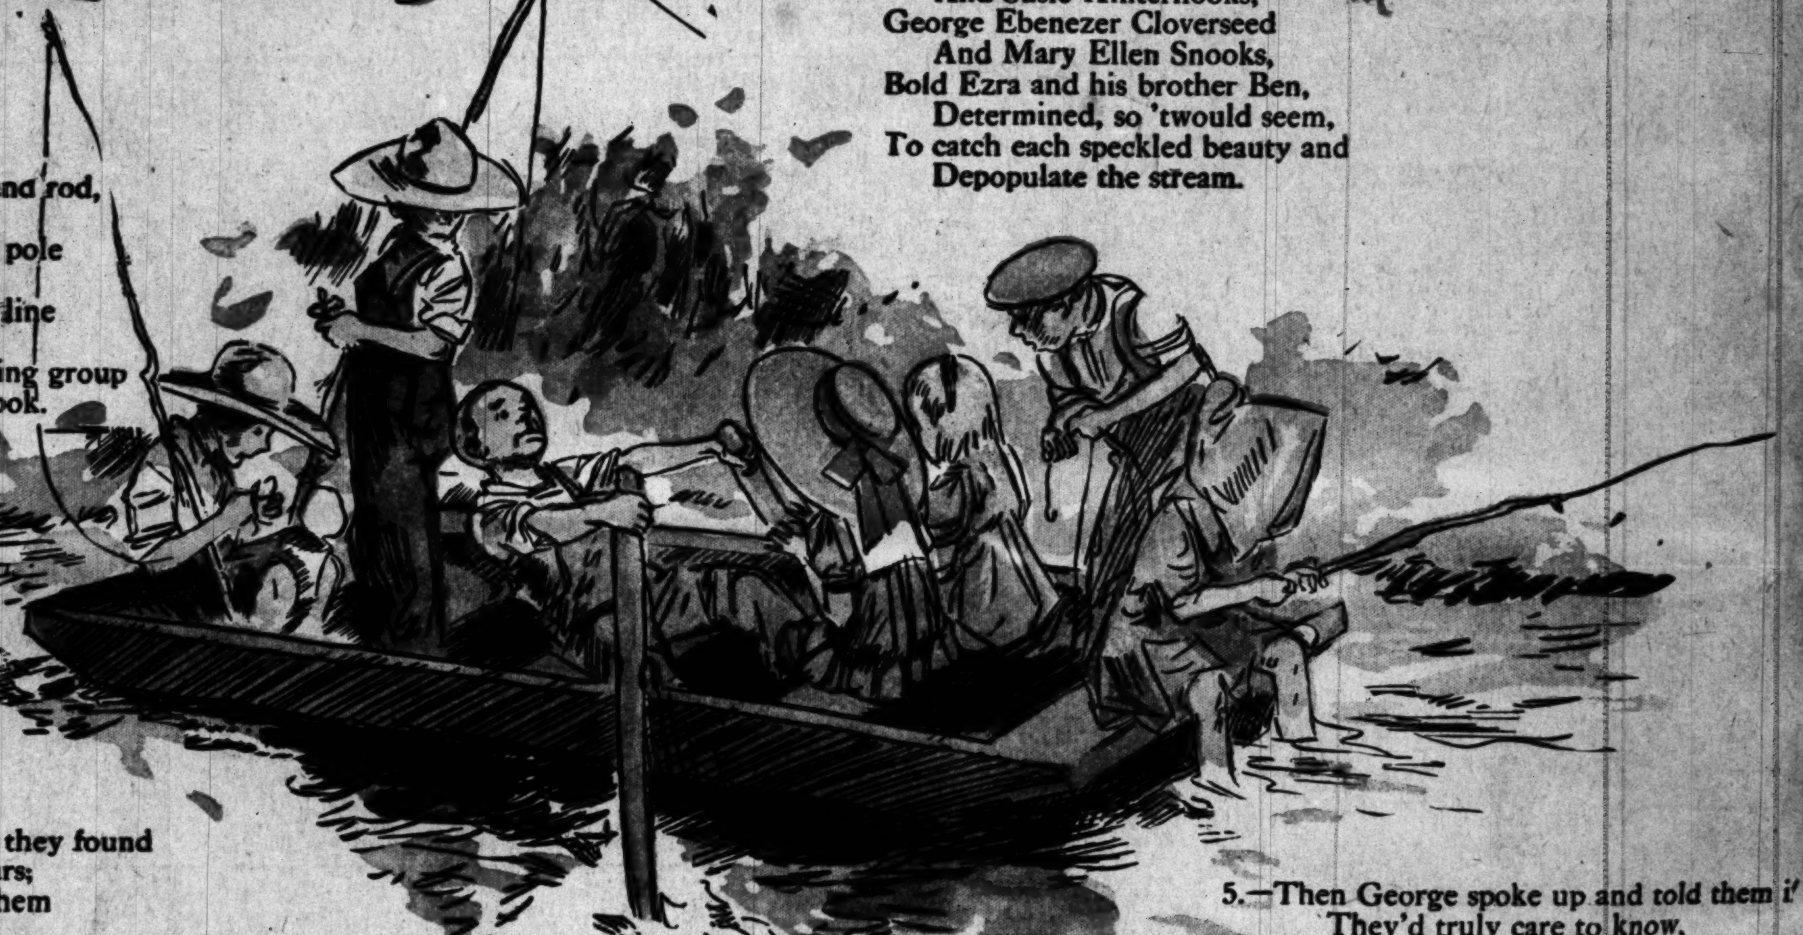
She hadn't long to wait,
For Georgie fashioned her a pole
And Ezra dug some bait.
Then little Steve produced a line
And Benjamin a hook,
And, full equipped, this angling group
Proceeded toward the brook.



They climbed aboard a scow they found
And Stephen took the oars;
The supple way he handles them
With Cynthianna scores.
She praised his deft accomplishment,
And Ezra Jimpsonweed
Said Stephen's work, compared with his,
Was very poor indeed.

5.—Then George spoke up and told them i
They'd truly care to know,
He'd take the oars and teach them what
It really was to row.
Then brother Ben announced that he Proposed to take command;
That he knew how to handle boats,
He'd have them understand.

6.—Young Ezra had been drooping sinc

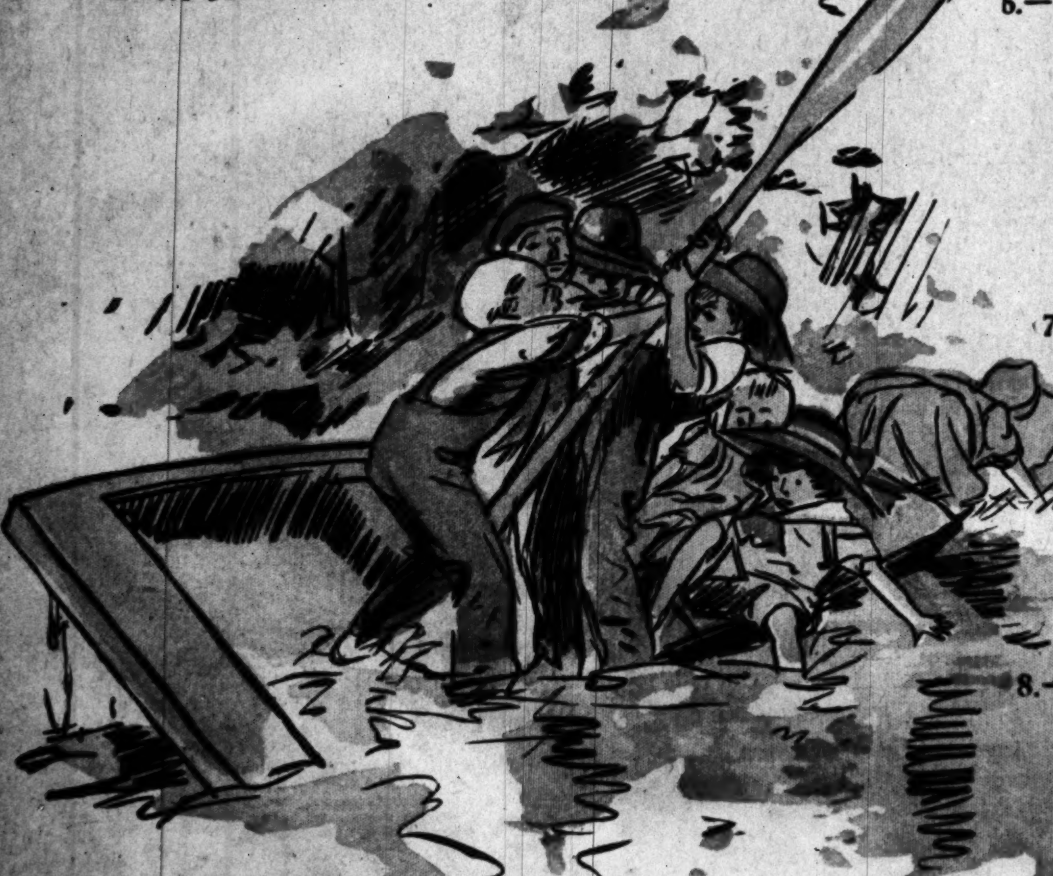
And Cynthia couldn't seem to see
His bravery for a cent.
His efforts to reclaim himself
Had mostly been in vain,
And here he thought he saw a chance
Her friendship to regain.



7.—Just here he tries to seize the oars
(And so do several more);
A shocking struggle then takes place
Full twenty feet from shore.
With freight of maids and wrestling youths
The crazy craft upset,
And, while the water wasn't deep,
They all of them got wet.

8.—To state that Cynthia was mad
Would put the matter mild;
With crossing hearts and promised gifts
She won't be reconciled.
Said she, "Perhaps it serves me right;
And now I'll make a note
To never praise a farmer's lad
On how he rows a boat."

LIGION REDUCED TO THE ABSURD.

HIGHLY-RESPECTED and very distinguished of the republic recently retired from active and has done more to convince us that there in Oslerism than we had been disposed to Dr. Osler may have set the limit too low at 60, seems to be sound sense in the policy of a ancient secret organization which refuses to its ranks, not only minors in their non-age, men in their dotage.

The election was well jus- the administration of the university at his After nearly half a century at the head of the this successful man retired recently four-score. Warned by the many notes of which followed this literary blunder of Dr. Eliot seems determined to provoke and hostile criticism in his later at- the teachings of the Founder of the with a scheme of his own. And it is not a step forward, but one backward from the mount by the Sea of Galilee to Mt. Sinai. The Jewish religion is known as the Law, and is, like nearly all legal formulae, a series of negations. The Mosaic table of morals says: "Thou shalt not" do certain things. Dr. Eliot's creed says: "Thou shalt not believe" much of anything. There is one positive injunction in the Decalogue: "Thou shalt honor thy father and thy mother," and in Dr. Eliot's creed there is permission to believe in love to God and love to man. The rest of the articles are: "Thou shalt have no dogma, no mystery, no sacraments, no authority, no supernatural notions, no sorrow, no death, no intermediary between the sinner and His Maker." It is obvious that the two positive injunctions flatly contradict the first negation, for "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God and thy neighbor as thyself" are dogmas.

"Thou shalt have no authority in thy religion" is clearly a case of reduction to the absurd. It makes every man his own authority and is like the universal solvent in physics of which Abraham Lincoln said he wondered what the alchemists who sought it were to keep it in. It is religious anarchy, and does away with all the past has taught us of religion, a process impossible in religion and in morals as in physics, geography or mathematics.

"Thou shalt have no mystery in religion" is to destroy all the sphere in which man's spirit bows in worship before the infinite. Our life is an unfathomed mystery; the world in which we live is a mystery so impenetrable that we cannot sound even its surface and its depths reach to the lowest pit in the abyss and to the topmost pinnacle of heaven where in light which no man can stand sits the God whom all venerate, none comprehend. This is all mysterious, because to us it is supernatural. That is, it reaches upward and downward far beyond all we know of nature. As little can we eliminate sorrow out of our religion. Life is full of sorrow; the Founder of our religion is the "Man of sorrows." His religion is a religion of sorrow, and has won its supremacy over men's souls in all ages and all races more as a religion of sorrow than for any other reason. The crucifixion of Jesus is the fact that has drawn the world to His feet. His call, "Come unto me," has stirred the spirits and lighted the hopes of all the sorrowful and heavy-laden of the world.

As to Dr. Eliot's twin dogma, Love God and love man, there is nothing more admirable. It is the heart of the religion of the Christ, whose authority in religion the aged scholar would eliminate. The apostle Paul comprehended the religion of Jesus of Nazareth better than any other of his disciples. Few to this day understand this religion of sorrow, this religion of the supernatural, this religion of mystery, as he did. There were disciples of his time who were ambitious to work miracles, to speak with eloquent tongues, and do wonderful things. Paul does not condemn this ambition, but he tells them that without faith in God these things are of no value, that faith in God must illumine the soul with hope of the life to come in the city that has foundations eternal in the heavens. But even faith must end in sight, and hope give place to the reality of possession, but that love which is the very essence of God will not die. The greatest thing is religion is love, for God is love and religion is the tie that binds the soul to God.

The world sometimes forgets this, and tries to make formulae stand for religion, instead of for props to uphold the church, or sign posts to lead us in the right path. But it does not last long. God is in the world, and man's spirit reaches out toward God. Love is as much a part of our nature as the sight of our eyes. Germany, which went for two generations so far off in the paths pointed out by Dr. Eliot, finds that these ways lead astray, and is now returning. The religion that apprehends God as the Father, that recognizes that we are His children and therefore brethren, is gaining the ascendancy again. The woods, the streams, the birds and the flowers, all God's creatures, are proper objects for our affection. We are seeing God in nature and therefore nature is more lovely than before. We love God for the beneficent love that has made our home so beautiful. It is the religion of Richter, and not to follow Dr. Eliot and get our problem back to the absurd, it is the religion of Uncle Toby in "Tristram Shandy," who put the fly on his napkin at breakfast out of the window into the summer air among the flowers of the garden and said: "Go, poor devil; the world is wide enough for me and you."

The Rosary.

I count a rosary of pitiless years,
  Each bead a wasted shadow in my hand
  Of all I hoped and dreamed and loved and planned;
And as I kneel and pray, through blinding tears,
I hear the music of the rain that clears
  The dust and mists of earth, which now is spanned
  With some divine contentment, as the land
Was cleansed of sorrow, bitterness, and fears.

The dear perfection of my dream was thine,
  O saintly love above our trammelled dust!
    I kiss the shadow of thy sanctity,
The shining sweetness of thy soul I twine
  With all that dowers life with endless trust,
    The glimpse upon my earthbound eyes of thee.

The Sea of Wasted Yesterday

By Wilbur D. Nesbit

How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard?—[Proverbs vi, 9.
Somewhere there is a sea whose breast
  Knows neither ebb nor flow of tide,
No breezes blow from east to west,
  Yet it is long and deep and wide;
It lies in an eternal calm,
  Above its deeps no ripple plays
Nor any zephyr drifts with balm—
  The sea of wasted yesterdays.

It holds the hulks of high emprise
  That lacked the helmsman's guiding hand,
The dreams of men accounted wise,
  The hopes of men accounted grand;
Its bed with dreary wrecks is strewn—
  Wrecks of fair craft that left the ways
But foundered in the full of noon—
  The sea of wasted yesterdays.

The derelicts of all of time
  Roll idly on this sunless sea;
Unfinished song, unwritten rhyme,
  Tales that would thrill men wondrously;
Neglected talents sunken deep
  That neither pride nor shame can raise;
All these the sea will hold and keep—
  The sea of wasted yesterdays.

And hidden in its sullen heart
  Are kingdoms that were never gained,
Are marvel works of greatest art
  And genius in oblivion chained;
Horizonless this dead sea lies
  Blurred by a dull and sodden haze
That bars the glory of the skies—
  The sea of wasted yesterdays.

And thousands turn them day by day
  To look back, sighing on this sea.
What does it hold of them? you say.
  What does it hold of you and me?
Have you no wreck hid in its deep
  Where neither storm nor sunlight plays?
Have we no ruin that it keeps—
  This Sea of Wasted Yesterdays!

From Dust.

All lovely things win slowly into life,
  The dust from which they came for ages clings,
Only at times there is a sudden glimpse
  Of folded shadowy wings.

The scent that dies upon the air of noon
  Haunts the still garden when the sun has set,
As 'neath the calm and silence of the night
  Vanishes storm and fret.

For at tremendous cost all life is won,
  To hold its own, serene and fair and frail;
The lily fades to dust, but out of dust
  Is born the nightingale.

And there are haunted gardens of the heart,
  Whose royal roses owe their fragrant red
To gallant faiths and tender fruitless loves,
  That once were quick, now dead.

But nothing really dies that once has lived,
  The dust that was a heart within a shroud,
Soft winds may blow across a sleeping world
  With newer life endowed.

Swans on the Thames.

Over 200 cygnets have been reared on the Thames between Southwark Bridge and Marsh Lock, Henley, during the last season. The largest brood was one of nine cygnets at Halliford. The black swans at Goring, which are owned by the Vintners Company, have also multiplied.

Altogether there are about 500 swans on the Thames between the places indicated, the King being the owner of the greatest number and the remainder being the property of the Dyers and Vintners companies.—[London Evening Standard.

Awakening of China. By Frank G. Carpenter.

TIENTSIN.

THE MIGHTY CHANGES THAT ARE GOING ON IN THAT CITY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TIENTSIN, 1909.—The awakening of China! I am in the midst of it here in Tientsin. The Yellow Giant has his almond eyes open. Yea, he has sprung from his bed and is fast drawing on the clothes of our civilization. The ruts and filth of the old city are disappearing, and macadamized roads, electric trolleys and iron bridges are taking their places. The old wall, forty feet high and twenty feet wide, gray with age, has been torn down, and a broad avenue, as smooth as the drive in Rock Creek Park in Washington, now runs around the great city. There is a car line upon it, and its motormen have driven the passenger wheelbarrow coolies quite out of business.

Girl being taught sewing

Dr. Yamei Kin.

The tearing down of that wall was one of the rude blows which made Tientsin rouse up and take notice. It was done by the foreign troops at the time of the Boxer rebellion, and that notwithstanding the protests and prayers of the natives. The Chinese became greatly excited, and said that destroying the walls would ruin their city. "A town without walls," said they, "is like a woman without a kootsu—that is, without pantaloons. It is disgraceful, and it cannot succeed."

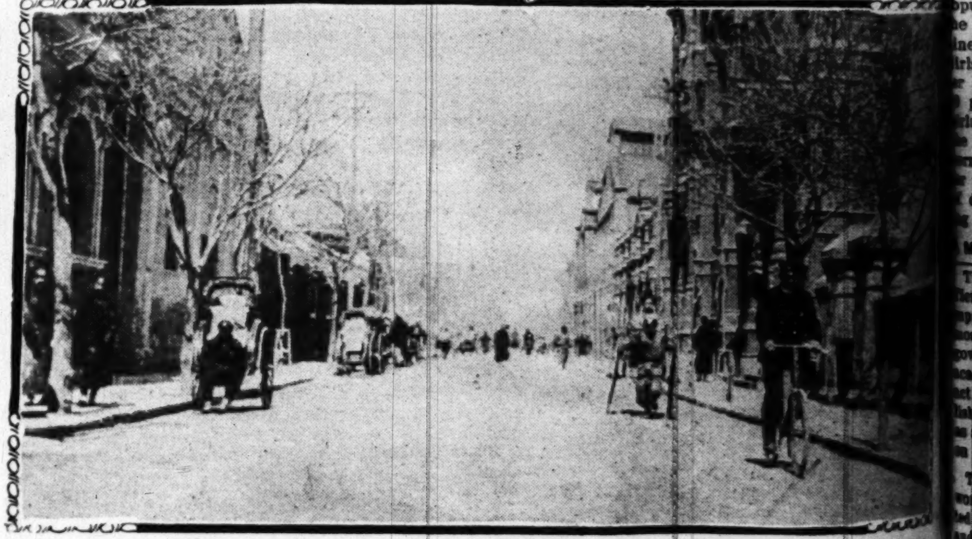
Nevertheless, the powers took the pants off of Tientsin, and since then the old municipal lady has been trotting along at telegraphic speed. The macadamized road on the site of the walls has been copied all over the place, and there are clean streets everywhere. The city has grown far beyond the old walls and a great new town has sprung up, with factories and foundries and modern schools of every description. The Chinese nabobs have built magnificent residences, some of which are of two or three stories, and they now ride about in their carriages, with coachmen and footmen in livery.

The Bridges of the Pei-Ho.

Tientsin lies on the Pei-Ho at about ninety miles from the sea. In a straight line the distance is not more than half that, but the river winds in and out like the coils of a snake all the way. It is winding in the city itself and canals are now to be cut to shorten its course. When I was last in Tientsin, the railroad station was outside of the walls on the north side of the river, far away from the town, and Li Hung Chang had vainly attempted to have a bridge built which should carry passengers and freight right into Tientsin. He had erected stone piers and was ready to lay down the girders when the unions of boatmen and cartmen objected on the ground that a bridge would ruin their business. The result was Li had to submit and the station was left far out in the country. The city has grown up to it, and there are big business houses on every side. There is also an iron drawbridge which crosses the river right in front of the depot and a half-dozen other bridges at different places. Riding along the Pei-ho yesterday, I observed a new bridge with a wooden fence at each end, and asked our Consul-General why the way was shut off. He replied that the bridge had just been completed, but the people most benefited by it on the opposite side of the river had refused to pay their share for macadamizing the road leading to it, and the authorities were keeping the bridge shut to bring them to time. There are also bridges over the Grand Canal, which crosses the Pei-Ho at this place, and such improvements are now made without regard to the unions.

A Big Traffic Center.

Tientsin is the New York of North China. It is the chief port for the Great Plain and the thickly-settled regions north and west of Peking. Tributary to it is a population of 100,000,000, or more than all the people of the United States, and its connection with this vast mass of consumers is rapidly being opened up by railroad. I came here from Manchuria on the Imperial Chinese Railway, going through the great Chinese wall at Shan-hai-kwan, and I shall go in a comfortable train which takes one northward through the great wall to Kalgan, Mongolia and thence on to Peking. A road from there is now building which will eventually be connected with the Trans-Siberian Railroad. Another road has been projected from here south through the most thickly-populated parts of China down to the Yangtse, and in time Tientsin will have tracks radiating from her as our roads do from Chicago. This city has now perhaps a million people. What it will have in the future I dare not predict.



Tientsin scene in British concession.

Just now, business is bad all over China. The low price of silver and the financial distress which has prevailed throughout the world have stopped the progress which the city was making up until about two years ago. This is only temporary, and Tientsin will soon be again on the boom.

Ten Cities in One.

The great powers of the western world fully realize the importance of this city, and they have business representatives on the ground. There is a large territory outside the native settlement which has been taken by them. Much of this was seized just after the Boxer rebellion, when China was forced to submit. As it is now, every one of these powers has its own little city here on the banks of the Pei-Ho. Each concession has its police, its consular court, its Town Hall and its own troops. One sees companies of Japanese, German and French soldiers marching here and there through the streets. The British have a regiment of Highlanders who show their bare knees and flirt their short skirts in the faces of the natives, and Russian Cossacks, with great fur caps, gallop through the city on horseback.

There are altogether ten different settlements in the combined city, so that one may visit a half-dozen nations in the jinriksha ride of a morning. These foreign concessions have magnificent buildings, many of which would be considered fine in London or Paris. The hotel structure in which I am stopping would be good in New York or Chicago, and there is an English clubhouse adjoining it which must have cost several hundred thousand dollars to build. There are magnificent bank buildings here, representing millions of dollars of capital, and there are stores with plate-glass win with all sorts of European and American goods

In the British concession where I live is a large public park where the military bands give open-air concerts, and it has also golf grounds, tennis courts parks for football and cricket. Tonight the club is ing a dance, and by turning off the electric li my room I can see the bare necks and short sl the Tientsin foreign ladies who are whirling abo the arms of their partners over the way. The B and American settlement has a public school fo boys and girls, and also a swimming bath. The Fr concession has a cathedral, a town hall and a p and the Russians are building up a city over the the stores of which are marked with Greek signs
One of the largest of these foreign cities belong the Japanese. It is several miles in circumference, and is being rapidly covered with substantial brick buildings, all put up since the Boxer rebellion. There are many Japanese merchants who have come here to engage in trade with the Chinese, and there are some large importing firms with Japanese capital.

The Germans have a fine concession, including a magnificent building just erected for the German Asiatic Bank. They have a club called the Concordia, somewhat different from the French Club, known as the Cirle d'Escrime.

As to churches, these foreign settlements have congregations, both Protestant and Catholic, and there are missionary stations, as well as a live, up-to-date branch of the American Y.M.C.A.

Young China at School.

The foreign concessions are only an appreciation of the great movements which are going on among the Chinese. The real progress is in the native city, and in the vast suburbs, which are growing up on the opposite side of the river. During the past four years, there has been a greater educational development in Tientsin than almost anywhere else in the world. This is a broad statement, but the facts justify it.

Since the Boxer rebellion, millions of dollars have been invested in school buildings and schools of all kinds have been established. I took a drive yesterday, going past structure after structure of brick or stone and covering acres. All are devoted to schools, and in them are being taught the sciences of our civilization. There are kindergartens and primary schools, secondary and grammar schools, manual training schools and techni academies, as well as high schools and a large university. Tientsin has now twenty night schools, attended by those who cannot go during the day. It has a number of half-day schools and eighteen lecture halls, where men talk night after night on such subjects as those of our university extension courses. The lectures last from a half-hour to an hour, and their subjects comprise geography, history and travel and social and political economy, modern government and constitutional reform. There are four such halls in Tientsin where lectures are held every night for six days of the week, and there are 130 other lecture halls of a similar nature, which are in constant use in other parts of this province.

Educational Associations and Museums.

Tientsin has a large number of educational associations. In the province of Chihli there are 120, and in addition thirty local boards of education. The city has an educational museum, in which the methods of teaching and all school appliances of the various foreign countries are shown. These are classified according to schools, as well as to subjects. When a teacher, chosen for a certain school, asks about the books and character of teaching required, she is referred to the educational museum and she spends some time there in preparation. Near this there is a commercial museum and also an industrial museum which are largely used by both teachers and pupils.

Military Education.

Tientsin has long had its military academies; and it has today large schools for training soldiers. There were army and naval academies here before the Japanese War. They were organized by Li Hung Chang while he was viceroy. Li had already seen the need of a reorganization of the Chinese army, a need which he came to appreciate more and more during the China-Japan War and the Boxer rebellion. In the first he lost his yellow jacket, and the strain of the second was so great that he died soon after.

After Li left the viceroyalty other progressive officers were appointed for Chihli, and among them was Yuan Shih Kai, who acted as such until a short time ago. Yuan Shih Kai was the author of the most progressive of the new institutions of Tientsin, and under him not only the military, but every form of education has been [illegible]. Today there are medical colleges for the education of surgeons for the army and schools for the training of officers for the army and navy. More than [illegible] military officials are assigned to drill the boys in all the schools and academies; and Young China now learns to handle the musket before he has reached his teens. The boys drill in uniform; they are taught modern military tactics, and are exercised every day.

Girls' Schools.

I find many girls' schools here in Tientsin. Wom[illegible] education has never been encouraged by the Chinese, and today almost no Chinese girls, taking the vast population into consideration, are going to school. In the new schools of the province of Chihli there are ninety-nine boys to every girl receiving instruction. Girls' schools, however, are being started, and the center of the movement is here. I understand that about [illegible] per cent. of the Tientsin school children are now [illegible], and that their schools embrace all grades from the kindergarten to the high school. There are also normal schools where Chinese girls are being trained for teaching the primary schools, and there is a school of domestic economy, where they learn cooking, sewing and housekeeping.

Medical College for Women.

The only medical college for women in China is in Tientsin. It was established by Yuan Shih Kai, and is supported out of the salt revenue. Salt is a government monopoly, and one of the chief sources from which the government funds come. This medical school is an academy rather than a college. It is to train women to act as teachers in medical schools which are to be established, to fit girls as matrons for the new hospitals and to aid in the new sanitary work which is to be carried on throughout the empire.

The head of the college is Dr. Yamei Kin, a Chinese woman of 25 or 30 years, who was educated in the United States. She spent a part of her life in Washington, and came here with a strong indorsement from President Roosevelt. Dr. Yamei Kin is a graduate of the medical college of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, the educational part of which institution has since been merged into the medical college of Cornell University. She speaks English fluently, and I had a most interesting talk with her today concerning the school and its possibilities.

It was in company with Mr. Williams, our Consul-General to Tientsin, that I called. We found the school in the old Chinese city, on a street so narrow that we were crowded to the wall by the carts and jinrikshas as we made our way in. Entering a low door, we came into a compound filled with many one-story buildings of Chinese architecture. The roofs were the shape of [illegible], and they overhung brick walls, in which were [illegible]work windows, backed with white paper. They looked old, and, upon inquiry, I found that they had been used for more than 160 years as a Chinese orphan asylum. The asylum was founded by an emperor who lived more than thirty years before our Declaration of Independence was signed, and the institution has been kept up with money furnished by the Chinese government from then until now. Dr. Kin tells me that there are still 180 girls in it, and that it admits about [illegible] orphans per year.

[illegible] Doctors for the Chinese.

During our stay, Dr. Kin took us over the institution, saying that the orphan asylum had been moved to buildings on the opposite side of the river, and that these buildings were to be devoted from now on to her school. There are enough of them to accommodate hundreds of pupils, although, so far, only twenty-five have been admitted. Said Dr. Yamei Kin:

"Women doctors are greatly needed in China. Our customs are such that it is not proper to call in men to attend women, and in most of our cities there are neither female doctors nor trained nurses. The few Chinese women who have received medical education abroad have all and more than they can do. Those trained in the mission schools are largely employed in the mission hospitals, and it is almost impossible for us to get Chinese women teachers for this institution. As it is now, we do not claim to be a college. We are, rather, a medical academy, and we give such an education as is common in England and America for district visiting nurses. The institution is supported by the government, and the tuition is entirely free. Our students will enter the government service as soon as they graduate, and they will work for the government for a fixed number of years. For this they will receive salaries, and afterward, if they wish to practice as physicians, they will always have more than they can do."

A Profession for Widows.

I asked Dr. Kin from what classes of society her students came. She replied:

"From every grade of Chinese society. We have the daughters of merchants, and also of some high officials. One of our students is a slave girl. We have many widows, and I look for medicine to become a favorite profession with such women in the future. The condition of the Chinese widow is not as bad as that of the widow of India, but it is often unhappy. She must live with her parents-in-law, and if they are not kind she may be a drudge or a slave. Some of our widows are very young, and some have families at home. With a medical education they can earn their own living."

As we visited the classroom, I saw a Chinese professor teaching the anatomy of the brain, with a human skull on his table, and was shown a white skeleton in a case at the back of the room. I happened to glance at the feet of the students, and remarked that they were unbound. The doctor replied:

"None of our girls is allowed to compress her feet. They take their bandages off when they are admitted, and are rejoiced at their freedom. Many of the more advanced of them have never bound up their feet, and I believe that this will be the case with all Chinese girls in the not far distant future."

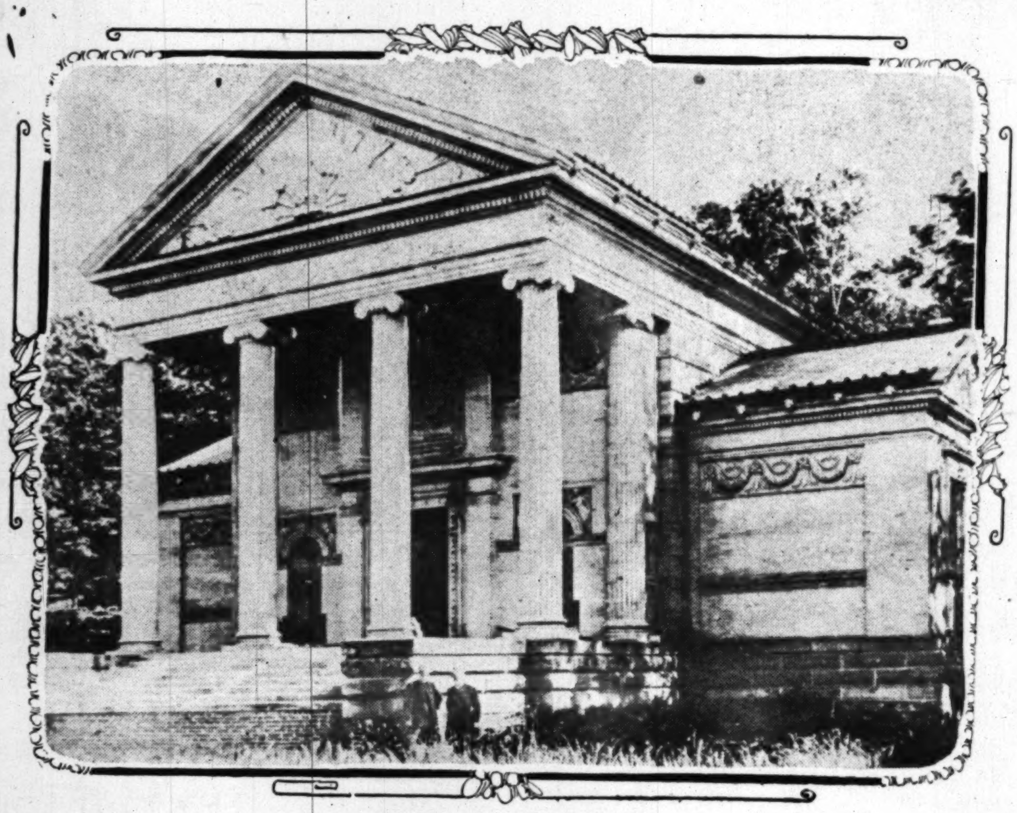
To Kiss or Be Kissed.

The Commercial Court in Vienna had today to consider the knotty problem whether the law recognized a distinction between kissing and being kissed.

The question arose out of a suit brought by a bookkeeper named Meyer against his late employers, who had discharged him without notice on the ground that he was in the habit of kissing the typewriter girls employed in the office. The firm urged in defence that this was conduct which seriously disturbed the course of business.

Herr Meyer's counsel did not attempt to justify kissing in office hours as a habit, but he brought ungallant witnesses who swore that they had seen some of the scenes complained of, and noticed that it was the girls who began by kissing Herr Meyer, though they could not say whether he did or did not respond.

The court accepted this evidence, and condemned the firm to the payment of a month's salary, on the ground that a person must be said to have kissed the other who began the kissing, and that a return of kisses on the part of Herr Meyer, even if such were given, which was not proved, would not under the circumstances count as kissing in the eye of the law.—[Vienna Correspondence London Express.



AULA CHRISTI OR HALL OF CHRIST.

Aula Christi.

UNIQUE HALL OF CHRIST DEDICATED AT CHAUTAUQUA.

By a Special Contributor.

THE dedication of the Aula Christi or Hall of Christ—the only building of its kind in the world, took place during the first week of the present month at Chautauqua, N. Y. The one who first proposed the idea sixteen years ago, Bishop John H. Vincent, gave the dedication address.

This new building to be devoted exclusively to the study of Christ, was erected at a cost of about $40,000. The largest single contributions to its erection were $10,000 from the Massey estate in Toronto; $5000 from Miss Helen Gould, and $3000 from the estate of N. T. Arnold. The last $12,000 for its completion was given by Chautauquans at a single meeting last year. The building is constructed of white Roman brick, stone, steel, and white terra cotta. The windows are all of historic significance, presenting in chronological order events in the life of Christ.

All the books which have been written upon the life of Christ, including a very large library dealing with the interpretations of Christ, and Christ in ethics, in social science and in modern civilization, are soon to be collected in one room of this hall. In another room will be collected and placed in easily-accessible files copies of all the engravings or other pictures of Christ which the art of ages has brought within reach. In charge of the library and engravings will be a curator. A beautiful main audience-room will be used exclusively for appropriate meetings. Already these meetings are being held in the new building. Later courses in study are to be inaugurated in the life, words and deeds of Christ and in the results of His teachings. These courses are to be conducted for both old and young. A special service is to be held in this building at least once a month throughout the entire year.

Bishop Vincent, already referred to as the originator of the idea to erect this building, and who may be seen standing in front of it in the accompanying photograph, says of the Hall of Christ: "This Aula Christi is a reminder to every passer-by of Jesus Christ. It is a reminder to all of Christ as the heart of Christian civilization, and of the Christian church. It is an opportunity for the reverent and devout study of the career and present place of Christ in the world, and also an opportunity for the worship of Christ, who is to the world as the Face of God. It gives an opportunity for the consideration of all problems that concern Christ, and in all forms of civilization there is no other problem so important as the work of Christ."

Concerning the studies in this hall, Bishop Vincent says: "The studies shall include historic facts and incidents concerning Christ; and summaries of His teaching. Among the various topics to be discussed in the Aula Christi are, Christ and His forerunners, prophets; Christ in the Jewish system and ritual; Christ in His early career; Christ as a revelation and incarnation of God; Christ as now present in the world. In the worship of Christ we must dismiss challenge and doubt. In the study of Christ we must candidly hear both challenge and doubt, but engage in every service reverently."

TO prolong life and thwart the Black Angel, our great brainworkers are trying many things. While some in this race against death are throwing off old habits, as the balloonist sinking seaward throws off ballast, others to gain the same end are taking on new modes of life.

President Taft has had to dispense with the pleasures of the midday repast and, so long as official etiquette will permit, now confines himself to two meals a day.

This no-luncheon plan he has adopted after discovering that walking, horseback riding and golf, rather than reducing his weight, but increased his appetite and brought him nearer the dreaded 300-pound mark; for it was he who once facetiously remarked that "no real gentleman weighs over 300." But the President's avoirdupois is very equally distributed over his giant frame, deep chest, broad shoulders and those stout legs which with perfect ease of motion have carried his great weight over hundreds of thousands of miles of globe trotting. The Presidential trade is a fattening calling. Col. Roosevelt weighed but 185 when he entered the White House, but passed the 200 mark before he left it, and despite his hard training on the tennis court and in his improvised gymnasium—the old Cabinet-room—he had to confess that his wind got short toward the end of his last term. President McKinley also gained in girth while a tenant of the people's hotel, and as for Mr. Cleveland, his weight rose to about 275 during his first term.

Col. Roosevelt gave up smoking early in life when he was looked upon as a puny and sickly young man. Maj. McKinley was an inveterate smoker, but made it a rule never to look upon the wine when it was red—or when it was any other color. He, like Rutherford B. Hayes, William J. Bryan and David B. Hill, gave the lie to those who used to say that a man who would not "hit 'em up with the boys" could not be a successful politician.

Mark Twain Curtails Smoking.

Mark Twain has just been told that he must throw out a ballast of three dozen cigars a day to keep his craft from going down. In other words, he is now limited to four instead of his previous forty smokes a day. A pain which now develops whenever he walks more than 300 yards has given the warning, he says, that he has tobacco heart; and it was only a few years ago, at his seventieth birthday dinner, when, in a speech, he attributed his long life to the fact that he had "never smoked more than one cigar at a time," and that he had smoked ever since he could remember—had "smoked publicly" ever since the death of his late father. Mr. Clemens has previously practiced abstinence as a health restorer, but it has been abstinence from food and not from santa yerba. Some time ago he said: "A little starvation can really do more for the average sick man than can the best of medicines and the best of doctors. I do not mean a restricted diet; I mean total abstinence from food for one or two days. I speak from experience. Starvation has been my cold and fever doctor for fifteen years, and has accomplished a cure in all instances."

The latest distinguished arrival within the camp of the teetotalers is Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, who says that recent researches in psychology and medicine distinctly show that even the moderate drinking of alcohol is inexpedient.

"I have been all my life what is sometimes called a moderate drinker," he says. "That is to say, I have used beer and wine on occasions, not habitually, and I have never experienced any ill effects whatever from either beer or wine, and I recognize the truth of the Bible saying about wine, that 'it maketh glad the heart of man.' That is true. But whether it be expedient or not that the heart of man should be made glad in that way should be doubted."

Harriman's Fattening Diet.

But one man's meat is another man's poison. At the same time that Dr. Eliot thrusts aside the foaming stein, E. H. Harriman must daily raise it to his lips to prolong his ambitious life, for the condition of the great railway king is just the opposite of that of President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt. He is undernourished, and the Austrian specialist, Prof. Struempell, after counting all of his ribs, has prescribed "plenty of cereals, large quantities of milk, much meat, and, above all, unlimited malt beer." Daily sun baths will be a part of Mr. Harriman's winter regimen after he returns to his New York mansion, the roof of which he has had inclosed in glass for this purpose.

"John D. Rockefeller will live to be 100 years old by these simple rules," said his Cleveland physician, Dr. H. Biggar, the other day. "First, he avoids all worry; second, he takes plenty of exercise in the open air; third, he never overloads his stomach, and always gets up from the table a little hungry." Thus has the "richest man in the world" at last found a safe and sane regimen, after starving himself on a bread-and-milk diet and trying such fads as walking through the dewy grass in early morning, in emulation of Father Kneipp. His "plenty of exercise in the open air" consists mostly of enjoyment of the Presidential game, another devotee of which is his brother multi-millionaire, Andrew Carnegie.

This rule of leaving the table hungry is one of the fundamentals in Sandow's lexicon of health. This he confided to some government dietitians who made a study of his eating habits, weighing all of his food eaten at each meal for a period of days. These savants were surprised to discover that the modern Samson drank a quart of beer at breakfast.

That of sleeping outdoors the year round is perhaps the most popular longevity fad of today. For winter use an upper balcony with southern and western exposure, free from raw winds, is always preferred, but for houses where this cannot be had there is now on the market a couch whose head protrudes for about a yard out of an ordinary window, from which drops [illegible] ing, dipping so low as to cut off all uncom[illegible] drafts.

President Taft's chum, Gen. Clarence Edwards, [illegible] charter member of the "golf Cabinet" and chief [illegible] insular bureau, is one of the most enthusiastic [illegible] of this outdoor-sleeping fad. He practices it [illegible] summer, as do ex-Secretary of the Navy H[illegible] bert and Secretary Charles D. Walcott of the [illegible] sonian Institution, with their families. The [illegible] balconies built for this at the rear of Dr. [illegible] mansion give it the appearance of an apart[illegible]

The most enthusiastic health faddist in our p[illegible] today is Dr. Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese Minister, [illegible] astounded Washington a year ago by anno[illegible] he had not only followed Senator Chauncey Depew [illegible] the camp of the vegetarians, but had climbed [illegible] "water wagon" of the teetotalers. Now Dr. Wu [illegible] out with the full details of a regimen by which he [illegible] pects to reach the century mark:

"First. I have given up my breakfast, taking [illegible] meals a day, lunch and dinner.

"Second. I abstain from all flesh food. My diet is rice, or, when I go out to dinner, whole-wheat bread, fresh vegetables, nuts and fruit.

"Third. I avoid coffee, cocoa, tea, liquors, condiments and all rich foods.

"Fourth. I have given up salt, also, because I have found that salt makes one's bones stiff.

"Fifth. I masticate every mouthful of food thoroughly.

"Sixth. I don't drink at meals, but between meals or one hour after meals.

"Seventh. I practice deep breathing.

"Eighth. I take moderate exercise."

This irresistible mandarin was driven by the tortures of sciatica to this regimen, which he seasons also with a little bit of mental science. "The mind," says he, "plays an important part in maintaining our health and life. Take my advice and get rid of this notion of old age. Eliminate it from your vocabularies. Cease to worry and fear. Think health and happiness! Think youth!"

Uncle Sam More Vigilant.

SCRUTINY OF PASSENGERS FROM EUROPE AT THE PIERS.

From New York Sun.

A PONDEROUS volume worthy of being catalogued in the world's library of interesting anecdotes, if not of humor, is treasured down at the Barge Office on the Battery. Its custodian, Deputy Surveyor Raczkiewicz, does not consider it humorous, however. His face fairly radiated patriotic seriousness as he lovingly held the big tome on his knee and spoke of the ideal democracy this nation should strive to become and the deep intentions of the customs service to pursue that ideal.

When mention was made of the troubles arising from the new way the customs laws are being administered as regards the luggage of people arriving from Europe he protested against any semblance of criticism. Squareness and fairness in enforcing the existing laws is all there is to it, he said, and the first and last object is to treat alike the millionaire pleasure traveler bringing home the spoils to be found in Paris and the most insignificant tourist returning from a few weeks abroad.

Then he opened the big volume and read from the records therein instances of the ways the returning travelers try to outwit Uncle Sam's officials. In it is recorded a special chapter on the general life history of a woman conspicuous socially who, radiant in her going-ashore costume, came tripping down the broad staircase.

She presented a beautiful picture, but to the official standing at the foot of the stairs it was of more than usual interest, for as she descended, gracefully holding up the train of her skirt, a muff of valuable fur encircling her ankle was plainly discernible to his astonished gaze. Strange fashions sometimes come home from Paris, but a fur muff in such quarters on a summer day aroused speculations in the mind of the official which were disastrous to the lady's muff.

The slipping of a pin was the cause of another woman's discomfiture, according to the story in the book. She was waiting on the wharf for the close of the inspection of her baggage, nonchalantly strolling about, when an end of beautiful white lace appeared from underneath the skirt of her gown. Mercilessly it unwound itself, looking like the tail of a kite, and was still unwinding when official assistance came and kindly helped to relieve the embarrassment of the lady by removing its cause.

Lace plays the principal role in many of these little dramas. There is the story of the woman who packed lace in her opera glasses and of another who put a weird and wonderful interpretation on the customs laws. Having failed to make a declaration of many dutiable goods purchased on the other side and found in her trunks she was questioned.

"Why," she said in a tone of injured innocence, "I understood we had to pay duty only on articles purchased abroad, and I thought that meant when we were on the water. Now ever so many people bought lace and things at the Irish ports, but I didn't buy a thing while I was on the ocean."

Feathers also have a leading role in these performances. The inspectors and inspectresses stand about on the wharf and look for irregularities of contour in the figures of the passengers.

A Brooklyn woman recently returned home and while strolling about occasioned no comment from the officials unless it was relative to the unusual beauty of her figure. In an unlucky moment, however, she dropped her handkerchief and stooped to pick it up. Alas! her skirt immediately flared up behind as if to meet a challenge; it was as though the ancient days of hoops had returned. Such an untoward circumstance led to the discovery that the woman was wearing a wonderfully constructed skirt, made to hold feathers and violin strings in such a way as to give to its wearer the appearance of an extremely fine figure.

Articles worth about $3500 had been declared by a western woman and her two daughters. On landing, they were noticed to hand furs worth about $1200 to friends who met them and who during the inspection stayed far enough away not to be associated with the party. The investigation which followed disclosed much valuable jewelry concealed on their persons.

To the outsider the humor of most of these incidents lies in the ingenuousness of the defense of the offenders. Generally the trunks have been packed by some one else, they say, and the owners are greatly surprised to discover the valuable purchases they have made. One woman had a trunk with a false bottom, an Italian device, and this bottom was most competently made use of. She pleaded ignorance of the liability to duty of the articles found under it, but she could not satisfactorily explain just how she happened to get all the dutiable articles collected in the false bottom.

This plea of ignorance and attitude of injured innocence is what the officials dislike most to meet. They say they have respect for the man or woman who when caught can make an admission and stand up to the punishment. They consider it a game—wits pitted against wits—and admit that they are beaten more often than they win, but they have no use for the foe who won't admit when he is beaten at his own game, for it is the smuggler who always issues the challenge. So the man who had a watch behind his cigar case and who "did not know it was there" received little sympathy.

A certain titled foreigner who was coming to marry a fortune was observed to limp as he walked about the wharf. When it was learned the limp was not a customary attribute, he was compelled to submit to a search. An unusual place for wearing jewels was discovered, as the gentleman of title was decorated as to his ankle with a bracelet valued at $2500 for his betrothed.

Overconfidence spoiled the game, as it is very wont to do, of a man who showed three rings in a steamer smoking-room and boasted that he would carry them through without paying a cent of duty. Unfortunately for his boast, a New York jeweler who is a member of the Jewelers' Protective Association, which fights smugglers in the behalf of the legitimate trade, was in the smoking-room at the time. The result was that the gentleman of the rings was officially approached at the wharf, and the number of these commodities was found to be not three but six. The moral points itself.

Negligence caused the downfall of the plans of another man a few days ago. He, following Adam of old, had put the forbidden fruit, this time in the shape of jewelry, on the person of his wife. She passed scrutiny, but unluckily the canny gentleman had neglected to remove the jewelry cases from his pocket and therefrom came the fall.

It is the women, however, who give most trouble, and though they often manifest great shrewdness in concealing, their pleas of defense when caught are often laughable. A certain New York woman had declared nothing. When three expensive gowns revealed themselves ensconced within some old garments she said she had placed them there to secure them against the dampness—a truly laudable move when going to sea. Another woman declared $1800 worth of goods, but her actions aroused suspicion and she was asked for her invoice, which, she said, she had lost. In the search which followed, an invoice for goods amounting to $12,000 was found in a chatelaine bag carried by her maid.

A mother and daughter carried a great deal of baggage, most of which was declared to belong to the daughter, who had lived so long abroad that she had become a non-resident of this country. The fact that one of the trunks designated as the daughter's bore the initials of the mother led to an investigation which ended in the seizure of a large quantity of feminine finery.

All these are incidents illustrative of how one of the two great classes of smugglers try to outwit the government. In the other class are some of the buyers who go across on business, make their purchases and bring them back for business purposes. The wealthy pleasure traveler says: "I am not a professional buyer; I buy for my own use, not commercially, so why tax me?" The buyer retorts: "Why don't you tax this rich man, who can afford to pay duty? I make these purchases to earn a living, and yet you tax me while you pass by the rich man, who can better afford to pay, on the mere grounds that he himself is going to use his purchases."

So the game has gone on merrily. For many years it was the dressmaker who was generally arrested and prosecuted, while the people of social position went immune, not by concealing so much as by owerawing through their position and influence. This has lately been changed in the democratic effort to make all the incomers fare alike.

The buyers and dressmakers have always had to take their medicine when their little scheme went wrong Two young women dressmakers who were in partnership bought heavily on the other side. One hoodwinked the inspector who examined her baggage at the wharf, while the other fell into the hands of a shrewd inspector and her trunks were seized. The two young women were not near each other on the wharf, but a letter found in a trunk of the latter addressed to the former betrayed the partnership. The former's baggage was followed, the premises searched and nine smuggled model gowns were discovered.

Many are the devices employed by the smuggling buyers. Soiled shields are placed in new gowns, labels removed, articles are intrusted to people traveling in the second cabin. One milliner had concealed a great number of aigrettes and feathers within the inside linings of hats, and only the untimely protrusion of the gay tip of an aigrette betrayed the secret hiding-place.

Much time and care and detective skill are expended on some of the cases, as for instance when a well-planned and extensive plot was frustrated by the arrest of a woman for many years a reputable resident in the American colony of Paris. She claimed the $10,000 worth of gowns she was carrying as her own, but was taken to the customs office for further investigation. Then she summoned a second woman, whose shadowed cab when she left was seen to pick up a man, who after six months inquiry and toil on the part of the officials was proved to be the head of a smuggling gang planning operations on an enormous scale.

It is all a hard task, and it brings its full share of abuse and vituperation, to say nothing of the constant wear and tear on the officials who have to be on guard that no injustice is done. Equal justice to one and all is the slogan of the present régime; and if any one of any degree or complexion wants to add yet another anecdote to that very interesting collection in Mr. Raczkiewicz's big book, all he has to do is to evolve his own little game and try to push it through.

Fighting the Fogs.

RECENT DEVICE FOR THE SAFETY OF SHIPS AT SEA.

By a Special Contributor.

WHEN the great Trans-Atlantic liners come feeling their way home from Europe this fall and the fog hangs like a pall over the water and makes its navigation perilous, a little tinkling bell, fathoms deep in the water, will go out to meet them and warn of the approach of the danger-studded mainland. Nantucket Shoals, Fire Island and Sandy Hook will lead the way into New York Harbor as a bell mare might pilot the herd to the stable. The Boston lightship will sound the way into the harbor over which it watches; Cape Elizabeth to Portland; the Overfalls when entering the Delaware.

These and a hundred others will mock the fogs and laugh in the teeth of the storm of wind or snow. For there is a new development in the art of fighting the arch enemy of safety on the seas, and that development is this same bell. When the fogs blot out the glow of the lighthouses and rending winds silence the sirens that would pilot the bewildered mariner, there is quietude and serenity twenty feet beneath the surface and down into the water is thrust the bell that sends its message with a certainty that has been attained by no other device.

Such devices are constantly sending out their messages from Tail of the Horse Shoe, Cape Charles, Vineyard Sound to the ships that come up from Norfolk. They tinkle for the liners that ply back and forth on the Pacific Coast, and the fog-infested Great Lakes are given their protecting signals. They are being installed wherever there is danger and the receivers that take their messages are being placed on all the great liners and on all the first and second-class ships of the navy. But one additional step is needed in their development to make the navigation of the seas safe under the worst conditions, and the inventive genius of the nation is at work upon it, and it is expected in the immediate future.

So perfect has grown the ship of modern times that the one-time dangers of foundering at sea, being driven ashore, being devoured by flames or rolling about with disabled machinery, have practically ceased to exist. The ancient danger of running ashore, or ramming some other object afloat has been greatly minimized. Delicate thermometers warn of the proximity of icebergs. Derelicts are systematically hunted down and destroyed. In clear weather the eye is sufficient protection by day against rocks, and the lighthouse warns by night. All is safe except at the settling of the pall of the fog.

The lighthouses that the government has built from St. Croix River, Maine, to the Rio Grande, and from Vancouver to Point Loma, send out the beacon light to mariners. At all these points there are sirens, whistles, Daboll trumpets or bells that are sounded lustily when the fog settles. But what of a light when the fog is on and what of a whistle when the hurricane is tearing through the rigging? They are ineffective in assisting the mariner at the particular time when he is in most need of assistance.

It is for just this emergency that the submarine signals are being devised and are rapidly being adopted by the government and private shipping.

When we were boys and frequented the old swimming hole a favored experiment was that of diving beneath the waters and while so situated allowing another boy at the other end of the pond to crack two stones together under water. The sound to the diver was terrific, and almost burst his ear drums. But it showed the power of water as a conductor of sound. This boyhood memory has occurred to some genius, and he has set himself to apply its principle to the transmission of sound under water in such a way as to make that transmission most valuable.

A bell has been devised to take the place of the two stones. Long experiment has shown just what tone carries best in the stillness down below, and the bells have been tuned accordingly. An instrument has been placed on the ship that will go down into the quiet depths and get the message of the bell and bring it into the pilot-house. It is a submarine wireless, but with advantages over the wireless of the air because it indicates the direction from which the sound comes.

The bells that send out the warning are at present located on a score of lightships on the Atlantic Coast, on others on the Pacific and on eight upon the Great Lakes. All these are at danger points, and in bad weather are put to work. They are run automatically by power furnished by the ship. They may also be placed on a buoy with an attachment that will cause the action of the tides and waves to ring them, or they may be placed a mile out at sea with a cable connecting with the mainland which carries the electricity that keeps the bell clanging.

In any case, the result is the same; the message goes forth. Somewhere out at sea there is a vessel lost in the fog and unaware of its position or the proximity of land. On each side of that vessel is clamped a receiver which gets the vibration of the bell and conducts it to the pilot-house. There is a difference in the vibration of the different bells, and the pilot knows what point he is approaching. He listens to the receiver that is attached to one side of the ship and the sound comes strong. He listens to the opposite side, and the bell cannot be heard; thus he determines the direction from which the sound comes. He changes the course of his vessel toward that side, and gradually the sound may be heard from the other receivers. He listens alternately to the one receiver and then the other, and when the sound is equally distinct in each, it is dead ahead. He has positively located his bell and consequently the ship.

All this time the fog has blotted out the flashes from the lighthouse. All this time the roaring wind has drowned the voice of the siren. The bell was picked up when the vessel was fifteen or possibly twenty miles away, and may be depended upon at a distance of fifteen miles under any and all conditions. Thus has the new assurance been given to all those who go down to the sea in ships and thus may the old tar say in time of storm with more reason than of old: "God pity the poor devils on shore this night."

But the utility of the "water wireless" by no means ends here. It is probably developed to its greatest utility on the government submarines. Each of these vessels is equipped with both a sending and a receiving attachment. They are also given a code and may freely talk with one another while under water. In this way the boats may keep in touch with one another and act in unison in making an attack, just as a surface fleet may give battle, each boat being an auxiliary of the other.

Surface vessels are at present equipped with merely the receiving machinery. They get signals from the lightships and other form of stations, but they send no messages. They are protected against danger from the coast, but there is one remaining danger that must be met—that of collision with other vessels. When this is done, the dangers of the sea will have been conquered.

To this end it is necessary that the ships should have a sending attachment as well as one for receiving. [illegible] when the fog is dense a ship may set its bell [illegible] and any other vessel in the vicinity can be [illegible]. With such protection there would never again [illegible] ger of such an accident as lately resulted in [illegible] the Republic. The chain would be complete [illegible] proximity of any vessel would be known.

At present, a sending bell may be very [illegible] ered over the side of the vessel and put to [illegible] however, is not a satisfactory method on the [illegible] vessel under way. Nor would it be advisable [illegible] the bell to the outside of the ship. The [illegible] which it may be made a part of the ship [illegible] fering with it is yet to be worked out, but [illegible] has been accomplished and all the vessels [illegible] as receive messages, the whole problem will [illegible] worked out.

When "C. Q. D." Binns called for help by wireless on the occasion of the accident to the Republic, the submarine bell on the Nantucket light vessel was the key to the entire situation. The Republic reported by wireless that she was in range of that bell. All the vessels searching for her therefore kept threshing about within a radius of seventeen miles of the bell. The wireless had no value in locating the vessel, as it cannot be determined from what direction or what distance a wireless message comes.

Capt. Sealby of the Baltic, which finally took off the passengers of the Republic, later stated that he felt his way into New York by the submarine bells, which were always heard before the fog whistles between the scene of the disaster and the port of safety.

The advisability of supplying each vessel with a sending bell is also shown by this case of the Republic. Had she been so equipped, vessels near her could have steered directly for her, and her passengers would have been rescued many hours earlier. The fact that the Republic was able to keep afloat was surprising under the circumstances. Had she sunk hundreds of lives would have paid for the fact that the submarine signals did not develop quite in time.

Had the Republic been supplied with even so crude a device as a hand bell which could have been lowered into the water and rung, she would have been located hours earlier. This principle is being applied to even the small dories of the fishing fleets that go out of Gloucester. The fishing schooner is equipped with a receiving apparatus. When the dories set out from the schooner for the nets, each carries a hand bell. When they lose themselves in the fog and are unable to find their way back, the bell is set to work in the water. The call is heard by the schooner and the sound may be readily followed until the endangered fishermen are

ed. The death toll of dory men in the fishing in- ry is every year enormous, but even these are offered y through the new device which talks through the reaches of the sub-surface waters.

There are forty-six light vessels now prepared for ng out the submarine messages. All first and sec- class ships of the navy are prepared to receive . So are the vessels of the Cunard line, the Ham- American line, the North German line, the White line, the American line, the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, the Dominion line and scores of ers, and this is merely the beginning.

"The mariner," says a recent report of the govern- t Hydrographic Office, "has long since learned to be exceedingly cautious about depending on aërial sound nals even when near them. Experience has taught that he should not assume that he is out of hearing e of the position of the signal station because he to hear its sounds; that he should not assume that he hears a fog signal faintly he is at a great from it, nor that he is near because he hears plainly.

Water is a less mobile medium than air, and more re- for the transmission of sound waves. As early 1906 the United States lighthouse establishment had the light vessels at Boston, Nantucket, Fire and Sandy Hook with submarine fog bells. The ntial service rendered to shipping by the subma- bells first established decided the lighthouse board extend their installation from time to time.

Equally effective as aids to navigation are the sub- bells that have been fitted to buoys, where they worked by the motion of the sea, and those that been suspended from tripods on the sea bottom they are controlled electrically by shore stations serve to give a warning of dangers or to mark points along the routes of commerce.

Many of the light vessels and buoys of European have been similarly furnished with these bells, they have been likewise established in the region the Gulf of St. Lawrence; and as the effective range the submarine bell far exceeds that of the aërial signals, having been known to exceed fifteen and their bearing can be determined with suffi- accuracy for safe navigation in fog, if a vessel is with receivers, it has seen appropriate to set for the benefit of mariners a list of stations where are at present established."

The everlasting toot of the fog horn gets on the nerves the most hardened traveler, and interferes materially the enjoyment of a journey. Many a good yarn the captain has been spoiled when the fog horn and the old sea dog has gone on to the bridge forty-eight-hour vigil. The fog rolls over the sea a great bunch of cotton that is all obliterating, and it settles down a great dread of the unknown and unknowable. Far to sea there is little danger, for there little shipping, but within 250 miles of land a passing ship may be encountered at any moment. There has heretofore been no efficient communication between , and herein lay the danger.

Russia's Vast Railway System.

If it is a question merely of bigness, the Russian rail- system is far and away the first in Europe. There already many more miles of railway in this vast pire (41,539) than in any other country in the world excepting the United States, and Russian railways are only in their infancy. Even the most important countries of Europe as compared to our own seem small, we are apt to think of them as contracted and over- and finished, and are inclined to regard Euro- railway systems at the best as compared to ours of essentially trifling importance. It is of course true that there are now in the United States more of railway than in all Europe, and almost as many in all the rest of the world put together, and that our territory is so large and so far from complete de- that we shall probably keep the lead for a time to come. But in this very easy and quite generalization, we have forgotten that Russia two and a half times as large again as ourselves; in territorial extent it is more than twice as large all Europe; that it stretches across the world for a hundred and seventy degrees of longitude—nearly half- round the globe—and that it includes one-sixth of the land surface of the planet. It is not surprising that in such a country railways should have had a large de- velopment, that already there is a considerable mile- and that the prospects in this direction seem to to limit. In the future Russia and the United States are likely to divide the Railway empire of the world between them.—[Charles F. Beach and Henri , in Moody's Magazine.

The Father's Problem.

THE HOTEL CLERK ON CHOOSING A PROFESSION.

By a Special Contributor.

"MR. McBEAN," said the House Detective of the St. Reckless, "'wot would you do if you wuz the father of five?"

"Keep the best-looking one and drown the others, I suppose," said the Hotel Clerk, absently. "I didn't know you had so many, Larry. It's astonishing how these little things will accumulate around a house."

"Five," said the House Detective, proudly, "an' all boys but wan, an' she's a gurl."

"Well, it's too bad, isn't it?' said the Hotel Clerk.

"It is not," said the House Detective, warmly, "it's a fine grand thing an' I wouldn't take a million for any wan of thim."

"You'd have great difficulty disposing of them even at that conservative figure," said the Hotel Clerk. "Children are more or less of a drug on the market at this time. The rich won't have 'em at any price, and the poor don't have much of anything else. Somebody else's kid, Larry, is like a boil on the neck. You meet a fellow you know that's carrying his head on one side like he'd been recently hanged with a rag around his throat instead of a collar. 'What's ailing you?' you say to him, and he says to you it's a boil on his neck, and you say to him: 'Never mind, you're in luck; every boil is worth $5 to you, and the large or carbunky kind is worth ten apiece easy.' But if he tried to make you a present of his, you'd hand him a wallop in the eye.

"To everybody else, Larry, a new-born baby is merely a small noisy object, slightly fuzzy at one end, with no features to speak of, and either light pink or dark red in color, depending on whether it's going to grow up to be a blond or a brunette. But to its parents it's probably the most astonishing thing that ever happened in this amazing world.

"'He's a wonderful child,' says the proud father as he removes the first seven or eight yards of flannel bandages from around the form of his offspring and shows you something that looks something like a large sore thumb. 'Heavens alive! man,' you say to him, 'turn him around quick—you're holding him upside down.' 'I am not,' he says to you. 'That's his head,' he says. 'Tut, tut,' you say, 'you're joking.' 'I'm not,' he says, 'look at his head,' he says, 'there's a head for you,' he says. 'Did you ever see anything like that head in your life?' he says. And you truthfully reply that you never did. 'And how wide he is between the eyes,' goes on the father, paying no attention. 'He is that,' you say, 'and even wider between the gums. That's a fine large declivity he has there in his face,' you say. 'If anything should ever get the matter with him 'twould be comparatively easy to turn him inside out and treat it by local applications,' you say, gazing spellbound down the infant phenomenon. 'I think he has my nose,' says the semi-delirious father, critically examining something in the middle of his heir's countenance that looks as if it might have started out to be a push button and then got discouraged and stopped just after it passed out of the shirt-stud class. 'He didn't get it all,' you say, 'you might have spared him a little more than that and never missed it,' you say.

"Well, after a while the kid gives up trying to swallow his own toes as a bad job and his features fill out until they provide a background of suitable size for his smile, and he begins to talk the language that every baby talks and nobody ever understands except his mother. He learns that his feet are made to fall down with and that his nose was especially designed to fall down on. 'That's a child of very rare intelligence,' his father says to you as Young Hopeful trips over a figure in the carpet and does a face fall that would make the fortune of any German knockabout comedian in the world. And you are tempted to say that it's so rare as to be practically extinct, which is the rarest anything can be, but you restrain yourself. In the first place, you wouldn't want to make an enemy for life, and, besides, nobody could hear you unless you yelled, the prodigy having the floor and being engaged for the moment in calling attention to his injuries in a tone of voice like the siren whistle on a fireboat.

"Yet all this time there's no amount of money his parents would take for him, and to tell you the truth, there's no amount of money they could get for him. I remember very well when I, myself, first began to have a value to anybody except my own immediate family. It was one day when I was about 12 years old and the owner of the peach trees in the next yard climbed up on our side fence and told me in a voice choked with emotion that he'd give $10 to have my life. But something in his manner and tone seemed to prevent me from carrying the negotiations any further with him. I went hurriedly indoors, and afterward my early commercial instincts were vindicated, because it wasn't more than three months until one of our other neighbors offered twenty-five in cash for the privilege of destroying my bright young being.

"From that time on until I was grown up I kept constantly growing in intrinsic value to myself and shrinking as an available asset elsewhere, the same as any other boy. When I came out of the high school I felt that I was probably the most precious and attractive young piece of property in the world, but from what I have since learned I must have stood practically alone in that belief. Since then I've been learning to take a more conservative invoice of myself and every year now I find that the goods have deteriorated and grown more and more shopworn. I suppose when I'm about 65 I'll arrive at the true estimate and go off somewhere and jump off a cliff. Take it from me, Larry, the average party is worth more at his birth than he is at any future time in his career, and even his value is largely confined to his immediate home circle."

"W'ich is the point I've been waitin' to make all this time," said the House Detective; "only I hated to break in. That's the main reason you do most of the talkin' when we're together—I wuz raised not to interrupt. You see my boy Marty is gittin' to be quite a chunk of a lad now, an' I wuz goin' to ask your advice about pickin' out a business, or a trade, or somethin' for him."

"Well, it's a delicate matter," said the Hotel Clerk. "If we'd leave it to Marty, I suppose he'd prefer to be a trapeze performer in a circus, or a bold fire laddie and wear a blue flannel shirt with the two top buttons unbuttoned, and at 12 o'clock at night slide down a brass pole into a pair of pants and go forth and save beautiful maidens from the devouring elements. John D. Rockefeller is the only person that I ever heard of that didn't cherish some such ambition when but a lad. He says himself in those exciting memoirs of his that he didn't; even as a mere child he felt that he would rather grow up and sing the Moody and Sankey line of hymns in a white lawn tie than to be a lion tamer with medals all over his chest and the mustache turned up prominently at the ends. But he was the exception, and still is, for that matter. I remember how it was with me personally. I couldn't see the use of burdening my mind with the Greatest Common Divisor when I knew my life work was going to be walking across Niagara Falls on a high wire with pink tights on in the summer and shooting Indians in the winter. If it wasn't for the sternness of our parents and the change of view we got after we began to observe, for the first time, that a very desirable portion of the population was made up of girls, there'd be no grown persons to open the mines and float their bonds after they were opened; nobody to till the soil and rob the till; nobody to run the banks and break them. Everybody would be either the drum major of a military brass band, or a kind-hearted and generous pirate scouring the Spanish Main, or the funny old clown in the center ring. Yes, sir, it's a hard job picking out a proper vocation in life for a young lad, growing up."

"It is that," said the House Detective. "I been tryin' to lick a little ambition into Marty, but it looks to me like he don't wanter do nothin' but eat an' sleep."

"Sounds as if he'd make a good policeman," said the Hotel Clerk, "or a government national bank examiner. But you never can tell how those early traits will develop, and you have to be very careful about this thing of picking a vocation. If you stay poor all your life, you're called a sociological problem, which is a hard thing to have to take, and college professors write magazine articles about you; and if you acquire great riches, the gentlemanly muck rakers and the Federal Grand Juries will delve into your past life and show you up until you're shunned by society like a man that's been eating spring onions. If you don't get money, you might as well be living in a damp cave, associating with the Stalag Brothers—Mite and Tite—and if you do get it to any noticeable extent, it's been such a hard job that you're too tired to enjoy it properly.

"Anyway, there's a conspiracy in this country against permitting any man to acquire wealth. It started with the general introduction of the cash register into business life, thereby striking a blow against the ultimate prosperity of barkeepers from which the profession has never entirely recovered. Then they perfected the checking-up system, and now they're talking about an income tax. I shudder to think of the additional strain that's going to be put on the recording angel when people start in swearing off their incomes.

"Unless he can cultivate those facial mud guards, sometimes called side whiskers, and develop a large gross tonnage and heavy total displacement manner, there's no use raising your son for a bank president; he wouldn't fit the part. Any successful lawyer will warn you, if you tell him you think of training your boy for the bar, that half the lawyers are starving to death, and suggest that you try making a steam fitter out of him. If you say to an artist that the boy has an aptness with the brush that might develop into something, he'll beg you to apprentice him to a kalsominer and tell you with tears in his eyes how portrait painting has fallen off. I never saw a doctor yet that didn't advise against sending any lad to medical college, and no well-balanced undertaker welcomes you into his profession unless you're dead first."

"Well," said the House Detective, "I wish't I could find a business fur Marty where if a man succeeds there's plenty of room at the top."

"I've a happy thought," said the Hotel Clerk. "Make a North Pole explorer of him. If he succeeds there, he'll find all the room at the top there is."

THE CUP OF LIFE.

As in a field of waving grain I sat,
A spirit stood before my face and spoke:
"A gift to thee I bring. Wilt thou receive?"
I looked upon the gift—and life awoke!

I gazed into the angel's face and saw
The promise true of all that life might hold
For those who have the past of pain o'ercome
And without fear can watch the days unfold.

I took the cup within my hand, and lo!
A blinding radiance o'er the rim did flow;
A molten stream of dear delight it was.
No longer shall I dread the path I go.

I drained the draught that flaming rose, and felt
A strength divine which stirred the depths profound
That all unknowingly within me dwelt.
At last the inner self was thus unbound!

Ghost Dance Flat.

ONE OF THE LAST AND GREATEST OF SIOUX CEREMONIES.

By a Special Contributor.

A SHARP turn of the dusty trail, winding near the foot of a large butte in the western cattle country, brought us to the notorious "Ghost Dance Flat" of White Clay Creek, where in times past councils and ghost dances have been held by war-loving, rebellious Indians, notably Sioux, for the purpose of exciting their more peaceably-inclined tribesmen to engage in pillage and marauding.

We had come more than 2000 miles by train from New York to a little Western Nebraska cattle town on the prairie, from which we started before daylight the next morning with four horses and a camping outfit. For three days we traveled the dusty trail, over the nut-brown rolling prairies; once in a while the trail led down little gullies where a few trees grew around a mud hole or old buffalo wallow, but for the most part, it was hot, dusty and shadeless.

Frequently our trail crossed old buffalo paths worn to a depth of several inches, while here and there buffalo bones lay bleaching in the sun. These are the only things left to show the former presence of the countless number of buffalo that once roamed at will over this portion of the West.

Sometimes we passed little companies of Indians traveling in our direction, the bucks riding ponies, the squaws and children in prairie schooners, and gazing curiously at us from beneath the canvas of the wagons. Other parties of Indians we saw traveling across the low hills, scorning the trail and the wagons of the model reservation Indian. These Indians all traveled astride small wiry ponies, with tepees and other camp equipment deftly lashed to poles which dragged behind barebacked ponies in true Indian custom.

All the Indians from the surrounding country were going to the same place to take part in the celebration which had been planned nearly a year before for the early part of July.

The designated meeting-place derived its name from the "Ghost Dance," now prohibited on every Indian reservation. It is in this dance, taking place at night, the men paint their entire naked bodies, insert large splinters of wood in their flesh, that are in turn fastened with rawhide thongs to a post firmly driven into the ground. Around this the dancer circles to dirge-like slow beating of the drum, often the music quickens—faster, faster go the dancers, at times their whole weight jerking on the splinters in their bleeding flesh. Thus they dance until the bit of wood tears itself loose or they sink to the ground from exhaustion, their place being taken by another ghost-dance fanatic.

This piece of ground was the scene of frequent ghost dances years ago, and is still a favorite meeting-place for more harmless dances and celebrations.

A circular portion of the prairie here is remarkably level for nearly a mile across; on three sides the low rolling hills surround it like the rim on a dish pan, while the remaining side stretches away seemingly unbroken toward the hazy blue outlines of the Black Hills in South Dakota, nearly a day's journey distant.

As we approached, we could see several hundred tepees and tents pitched in one grand circle at the base of the foothills. Indians swarmed about the tents and in the open; everywhere ponies were grazing—a couple of thousand at least, never had there been such a gathering of Indians for a peaceful purpose.

After traversing the circle for some distance, we finally found room to pitch our tent, hobbled the horses, cooked supper over a necessarily small fire because the wood had been carried for thirty miles. A small keg of drinking water had been carried nearly as far, for the thirst one develops on the prairie in a hot sun is something prodigious and water assumes a value heretofore unknown by the man of cities.

Afterward, crouched round the smudge of buffalo chips to keep off mosquitoes, we two tenderfeet listened with absorbing interest to experiences related by the other two members of our party, who had spent a lifetime in the vicinity and were now connected with the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

A small gathering of this kind takes place every year, but this one was attended by every Indian within several days' journey, it being a day of much importance to the clannish Sioux nation. Besides the Sioux, there were Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Pawnees, Shoshones and Omahas represented in this gathering.

Chief Red Cloud being broken in health, blind and knowing his days were numbered, felt the weight of authority heavy on his hands, so decided after many councils to resign this day in favor of his son, Jack Red Cloud.

This decision was only made as a last resort by the stern old chief because he had ruled so proudly and indisputably for nearly forty years. A man of his make-up, red or white, finds it hard to give up the position of authority in which his own dominating energy and resourcefulness have placed him, a marked man among his fellows.

He is the last of the great monarchs of the West, and the passing of Red Cloud will close the final chapter of the romantic Early West.

Red Cloud was born a Sioux, and he fought like a Sioux. In the thirty-years war of 1845 to 1876 he fought his way from obscure birth to the position of a big chief among his warlike tribesmen.

In killing, single-handed, seven Indians who had ambushed him for the same purpose, Red Cloud gained his first right to the title of chief. The old man liked to relate the details of this fight, and also to show an ugly scar in his breast made by a flint-headed arrow which had entered his back. While clinging to his galloping pony, Red Cloud grasped the protruding end and pulled the arrow entirely through his chest, fitted it to his bow and shot it back at the enemy. It was Red Cloud who led the Indians in the Fort Phil Kearney massacre about 1866. Never did fighters show greater bravery or recklessness than did Red Cloud and his Indians, finally taking the fort and killing its [illegible]

ENGLAND THINKING OF ABOLISHING IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT.

From a Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—No doubt most Americans were under the impression that imprisonment for debt was a thing of the past in England, and as a matter of fact, it is a good many years since any one has been imprisoned, technically speaking, for that offence. Every year, however, many thousands of Englishmen, nearly all men of the working class, are committed to prison for no other reason than that they owe money and cannot pay it.

The matter reached the proportions of a scandal some years ago, and, as is always the case when things begin to irritate the conscience of John Bull, a select committee of the House of Commons was appointed to see what was wrong and what ought to be done to put it right. That committee held a lot of sittings, heard some scores of witnesses and took several reams of testimony, and now it has reported. If its recommendations are carried out, no more honest debtors will go to prison in England.

When imprisonment for debt was abolished, contempt of court was left, and it is for contempt of court that most of the poor debtors are sent to prison. When the creditor has exhausted persuasion and threats in the effort to collect his due, he summons the debtor before the County Court. If all the debt summonses were heard by the judge, he would be able to do nothing else, so the ordinary cases are heard before a minor official known as the registrar. This functionary being satisfied that the debt is due, makes an order on the debtor to pay it, and in most cases when a poor man is before him, allows him to pay it by installments, the amount of which he fixes. The debtor fails to pay the installments and he is taken before the judge and charged with contempt in failing to obey the order of the registrar. Unless the judge is satisfied that the man has no means at all, he commits him to jail for a period varying from a few days to as many months.

The select committee has recommended that this system be abolished and that the power of commitment for contempt in connection with debts be wiped out, except in certain special cases. These cases are, broadly speaking, those into which an element of fraud enters. A blow is also struck at the installment dealers who occupy most of the time of the County Court registrars with their cases. The committee would abolish imprisonment altogether in such cases, and in its report it declares that dealers of this class persuade poor people to enter into contracts for the purchase of goods which they cannot afford to buy, at exorbitant prices. The honest trader is also to be protected by the extension of the rule regarding undischarged bankrupts to these smaller debtors. Under this rule, a person against whom there is an unsatisfied judgment who obtains further credit without disclosing this fact shall be deemed guilty of fraud.

Another salutary recommendation is that it shall be a rule that registrars and judges shall make no order for payment at all unless they are satisfied that the debtor is in receipt of an income leaving a margin over what is necessary for the support of himself and those dependent on him. This minimum subsistence level is to be determined by taking into account the size of his family, and the cost of food and shelter in each district, and it is even recommended that definite levels should be fixed in each district and given the force of an order of the court in each case. It is suggested that these schedules should be sent to the Lord Chancellor and an effort made to fix a scale as nearly uniform as possible having due regard to the varying cost of living in different localities.

An interesting section of the report deals with the right or need of a workman to obtain credit. It is pointed out that to prohibit a workman from obtaining goods on credit is to assume that he has savings which make his getting credit unnecessary, an assumption which is contrary to the fact in a vast number of cases. When a workman is out of work or on short time, and has no savings, he must obtain credit, or be thrown with his family on the rates. If, on the other hand, he does obtain credit, and on return to full work fails to pay his debt by reasonable installments, the committee consider that he should be compelled to do so.

A landlord, it is further pointed out, can rarely insist on payment of rent in advance, and with large numbers of the working classes his remedy by distress is valueless. He cannot get rid of a tenant who fails to pay, without, in many cases, weeks of delay, and a limited credit is compulsorily given in the first place, and a contumacious tenant can force a considerable extension of such credit.

Similarly, in the case of illness, if the bread winner falls ill, he may be able to pay the doctor for the first visit, but if the illness continues, wages cease, and there is no money coming in. But the doctor cannot refuse to continue his visits because he is not paid, and if he pulls his patient through, when the latter recovers and returns to work, and does not pay, the man who saved him, it is considered, should have a remedy.

A case that would be amusing if it were not for its tragic features has just come to light in one of the suburban county courts in London. Charles Edward Sherry was ordered in 1898 to pay his wife $5 a week on a separation order. He was a ship's cook, and he went off to sea after turning over to her all that he owned, and thought no more about the matter. He neglected to take a receipt, and last year when he turned up in the district again, he was arrested for being in arrears with 515 payments, and duly sent to jail for contempt of court. He was kept there for three months, and when he came out, he found a policeman waiting for him with a fresh warrant for the arrears which had been piling up while he was locked up. This time he got six weeks, and the prospects are that his wife will be able to keep him in prison for the rest of his natural life.

Obviously he cannot earn any money, and therefore cannot pay any alimony, while he is in prison, but that does not alter the fact that the alimony keeps on accumulating. The case has been taken up by a firm of solicitors who say they will carry it to the House of Lords if necessary, but that may take three or four years, and in the meantime Sherry may have to stay in jail with brief periods of liberty at intervals of six weeks or so.

Schools for Stutterers.

Discussing stuttering, Dr. Leopold Senner of Vienna said last night that there are classes in the public schools in Vienna to overcome the defects in speech of children.

"The length of the course," said Dr. Senner, "is five weeks and instruction is given during two hours each day. The number of pupils in each class is limited to eight, as a class cannot be conducted successfully with a larger number. The children withdraw from other school attendance, as it is essential that they devote themselves exclusively to the course for the cure of stuttering. In order to be admitted to the classes the children must present medical certificates that they are free from any organic disease that would interfere with the purpose of the instruction.

"The coöperation of the parents," continued the Austrian physician, is especially important to the success of the cure. During the period of the special instruction it is necessary that the children have a separate room at home where they can practise the exercises given them without any disturbance whatsoever. The parents must undertake to have the children practise the exercise at home for at least four hours daily, and during the first two weeks not to allow them to speak at all except to practise the exercises prescribed by their instructors.

"Keeping silent is of such importance that the success of the course depends upon this requirement being strictly observed. Parents are particularly advised never to cast any doubt upon the effectiveness of the course or of the teachers. It is well known that stutterers lack self-confidence and this must be taken into account in the treatment. The children should be encouraged by calling attention to progress that has been made, for stutterers are extremely susceptible to praise. Parents, however, should be careful to make no experiments and to make no tests.

"At the end of the five weeks course," added Dr. Senner, "the instructor brings each pupil back to his regular school and indicates to his teacher what has been accomplished, besides giving advice concerning his further instruction. The teacher is requested to try to encourage and make permanent the new habits acquired. Children who have taken the special course in stuttering are examined each month in order to determine what permanent results have been obtained."—[Washington Herald.

Strange Michigan Island.

One of the deepest mysteries to be found in this part of the State is the island that every summer comes to the surface of Lake Orion over beyond Park Island, and every winter goes back again to the depths from whence it arose.

Its periods of appearance and disappearance are nearly regular. It comes to the surface along about the middle of August and goes down again about February 15. What causes it to act thus strangely is a conundrum that none has been able to solve, and the best efforts that have been put forth to keep it with us or compel it to remain in the depths have been alike without results.

On one occasion a number of farmers and teamsters resolved to put the island out of the floating business. In their efforts to do so they hauled many loads of stone and deposited them on it during the early part of the winter, believing that when it went down in February it would go down for good, weighted as it was with the stones. But the following August saw it bob up serenely from below—minus its load of stones.

At another time, an effort was made to keep it on the surface, and it was chained to the surrounding country with heavy log chains. When its time for departure came, it departed—and the log chains departed with it. The log chains were never recovered.

The island is composed of soft mud and rushes, and there are some skeptical souls who attribute its formation and appearance and disappearance to the gathering of vegetation in one spot by the currents of the lake and its subsequent decay.—[Detroit News Tribune.

PURCHASE OF THE ST. GOTTHARD RAILWAY BY SWITZERLAND.

By a Special Contributor.

A FLOWER-BEDECKED locomotive pulled out of the railroad station at Lucerne recently, scarcely noticed by the early tourist, skirted the Lake of Lucerne, passed Fluelen, where a statue has been erected to the mythical William Tell, and pursued its course southward toward the Italian boundary. The rack twisted and turned, sometimes forming figure 8s constructed spirally, and, after a number of seeming trials through smaller tunnels, plunged into the nine-mile blackness of the famous St. Gotthard tunnel itself. The government of Switzerland had purchased the St. Gotthard Railway, and this was the first train run under the control of the confederation.

The transfer of the St. Gotthard from private to government ownership is an event in itself in the annals of the nationalization of public utilities, and forms the culmination of the story of its construction and its political, military and economic significance. While the Gotthard Railway is only 170 miles in length, its vast importance as a medium of international traffic completely overshadows the smallness of its mileage as compared with many of the giant systems of the United States. Its tunnel, until the completion of the Simplon, was the longest in the world, and still retains its prestige, for, at the time of its construction, the labor-saving devices and the modern boring machine had not yet been invented. So difficult was the work that during its progress doubts were raised of its ultimate completion.

The St. Gotthard Pass, it is recorded, was first traversed over 250 years before Columbus discovered America. Later, about the time when the colonists were still fighting the Indians, an enterprising mountaineer established the first inn on the route, which, in 1683, was taken over by the Capucine monks. At present, the hospice shelters some 10,000 needy travelers yearly, many of whom are Italian laborers going from and returning to their homes. Even as late as the eighteenth century the road was scarcely more than a path, and four days were required to cross from Lucerne to Bellinzona, in what is now the Swiss canton of Ticino, the district of lakes and languor. Greville, an English mineralogist, was the first to cross the Gotthard with a vehicle.

The new Gotthard roadway, built from 1820-24, has a gradient in some places of 10 per cent. The passage of automobiles is prohibited, as endangering not only other persons, but the motorists themselves. Since the opening of the tunnel, in 1882, the pass serves only local and a limited tourist traffic. Extensive fortifications protect it, and have been occupied by Swiss soldiers since 1885, and, together with the fort at St. Maurice, in the valley of the Rhone, are manned by the only permanent troops possessed by the republic.

The project of a Gotthard railway, to connect Switzerland and Italy, and form a direct line of communication from Germany, was first suggested over half a century ago, and the plans were taken up seriously a decade later, resulting, in 1869, in a conference that took place at Berne in which the then North German Confederation, Wurttemberg, Bavaria, Italy and Switzerland, participated. After the conference Switzerland and Italy concluded a treaty which was also signed by Germany in 1871, establishing the rights and privileges of a St. Gotthard Railway Company, with chief offices at Lucerne, the starting point of the road. No private company would have had either the interest in the project nor the capital necessary for its construction, and, as the road was of importance to all the states of central Europe, together with Italy, the stocks and bonds of the company were augmented by heavy subsidies by Germany, Italy and Switzerland.

Not counting the Gotthard tunnel itself, there are eighty smaller tunnels, with an aggregate length of twenty-eight miles, some of which are each over a mile long. There are no less than 324 bridges and viaducts. Among the offers for the building of the tunnel, bids for which were invited through publications in the chief countries of the world, was one from the American Diamond Drill Company. The contract was finally awarded to Louis Favre of Geneva, who had had considerable experience in tunnel and railroad work. Favre agreed to complete the construction of the tunnel within nine years or forfeit $1,000,000, as well as $1000 for each day required for completion after eight years had elapsed, for the first six months after that period, and $2000 a day for the last six months between the eight and nine years. In no case was the time limit to be extended beyond the nine years set. At its expiration, the money was to be forfeited and the contract annulled. His enthusiastic followers of Geneva secured for him the necessary credit.

The tunnel was built in eight years, and opened for traffic in 1882, costing over $12,000,000 and 100 lives. Favre himself did not live to reap the reward of his labor. In 1879, while explaining the tunnel work to a party of visitors, he died of heart failure. The tunnel, standing 3500 feet above sea level, serves as a fitting monument to his achievement.

Political and strategic questions played an important part in the history of the Gotthard. The railway cemented the lone canton Ticino, south of the Alps, to its sister cantons to the north, and firmly bound the entire confederation. It raised the value of Swiss neutrality. At the time of the treaty of 1869, a feeling of distrust prevailed in France, where it was believed that the completion of the new means of communication between Germany and Italy meant added danger to France, but the Franco-Prussian war nullified any intend test. It has since been seen that the neutrality
Swiss Confederation was of far greater import Germany than the eventual passage through territory contrary to international law of Italian under the Triple Alliance.

In recent years, since the Swiss Railroad P
Act was passed, the Gotthard treaties have form

[illegible]dpoint that the treaties did not prevent the au[illegible]ous purchase of the road, and suggested a confer[illegible] Both countries held fast to their original opinions, and the conference of last March numbered seven[illegible] sittings before an agreement was reached only [illegible]ortly previous to the time when the road was to pass [illegible] the jurisdiction and control of Switzerland. A special agreement was concluded with Italy.

[illegible] these agreements the old treaties were annulled, [illegible] many of their provisions are still retained, such as [illegible] guarantee of uninterrupted service, adequate con[illegible]on with the service of the neighboring countries, [illegible] necessity of a rational and speedy postal, passenger [illegible] freight service, the accepted international economic [illegible]pose of the road, etc. Switzerland retains the right [illegible] regulate the rates for its domestic traffic, and here [illegible] may be said that differential tariffs are known in Switzerland as well as in the United States, and that higher rates for short domestic hauls than for larger international hauls give rise to considerable dissatisfaction. This is defended on the grounds that if certain international rates were not allowed, the traffic would be lost, and freight would be sent by longer routes at equal or less rates.

While the conditions covering passenger and baggage service remain virtually the same, there are important and interesting revisions of the rates for freight. The Gotthard Railway has steep gradients, extra outlay is required for the increased use of fuel, and for this reason an extra freight tax, called the "mountain increase," has always been collected over and above the usual mileage. For instance, between the Italian-Swiss boundary and the station of Erstfeld, in Central Switzerland, an increase amounting to the rate for thirty-eight miles is collected. As a concession for the entire loss of their subventions granted at the time of the construction of the road, Switzerland agrees with Germany and Italy to reduce these "mountain increases" to the extent of 35 per cent. after May 1, 1910, and 50 per cent. after May 1, 1920. Switzerland, therefore, will be obliged to bear the burden of this reduction in the freight rates, which is estimated at some $300,000 annually for the first period, and considerably more, possibly $450,000, subsequently. It is hoped that increased traffic will equalize this loss, which is no small matter when it is considered that the road last year paid 6.6 per cent. dividends on $10,000,000 worth of stock. Neither can the reduction in the mountain rates be increased to suit changed conditions, with the exception, that, should a coal-producing country prohibit the export of that article, or in the event of an extraordinary rise in its price, the mountain rates may be increased accordingly. Switzerland itself produces no coal, and is obliged to import its requirements mainly from Germany and Belgium.

Italian fruit is accorded a reduced rate, and Italian [illegible]als sent to Switzerland and stored there in bonded [illegible]tors at Brunnen, in Central Switzerland, receive [illegible] benefit of transit rates upon their reëxportation. [illegible]ould the Gotthard be electrified, bids for material [illegible]d contract work must be considered from the indus[illegible] of all countries. An arbitration tribunal will settle [illegible] disputes on matters connected with the railway.

The settlement of the controversies with Germany [illegible] Italy with reference to the former treaties was but [illegible]t of the difficulties encountered by the government. The purchase contract with the railroad company itself was a bugbear that has been vanquished only to the accompaniment of cries of dissatisfaction from a portion of the press and public. The Supreme Court has [illegible]wned and threatens to engulf all parties. How to [illegible]isfy alike the stockholders and the Swiss people, who [illegible]ve to foot the bills and who empowered the government to buy, is a question that has robbed the Swiss statesmen of their slumbers. How much is the road worth? What sum will be accepted? How will the [illegible]bts of the road be assumed?

The first years of its existence were hard financial [illegible]ws to hoe. Then but four trains passed in each direction daily. Now there are sixteen. Then the freight receipts were slightly over $2,000,000. Now they exceed $6,000,000. Expenses, however, have increased from [illegible],000,000 in 1883 to $4,000,000.

By the terms of the Swiss Railroad Purchase Act, twenty-five times the average yearly net earnings of the road, taken for the ten years preceding notice of purchase, forms the basis of the purchase sum. This amounts practically to a 4 per cent. capitalization of the net earnings, and the sum has been agreed upon [illegible]. Included in this amount is a bond issue of [illegible], to be taken over by the government. As it bears interest at 3½ per cent., and does not fall due until 1973, the government pays a bonus of $1,200,000 for the privilege. There are, however, still a number of unsettled points amounting to some $15,000,000 that will be obliged to be passed upon by the courts. There are disputes concerning the amount of the renewal fund, the deficit in the employés benefit fund, sums to be deducted on account of deterioration of property, lack of material, and so on.

As a climax to all this both German and Italian journalists voice diverse plaints. The Italians lament that their subvention was turned over in exchange for a [illegible] reduction in the rate of fruit, amounting to but [illegible] thousand dollars annually, seeming to ignore the [illegible] benefit brought to Italy by the construction of the road itself. Several German papers, with their customary introspection, declare, with the aid of elaborate statistical tables, that the reduction of the "mountain increase" will damage German industry and prestige in important markets of Central Switzerland. Goods [illegible] via Genoa, through the Gotthard, will be enabled, they say, to compete with those sent via the [illegible] and by rail into Switzerland. The radius of the [illegible] of certain German products ends in Brunnen, where [illegible] goods can be delivered for equal railroad rates. The reduction of the mountain taxes, all of which cover [illegible] south of that point and consequently nearer Italy, will, therefore, enlarge Italy's sphere to the detriment of Germany.

So while Germany believes that the Italians have the advantage, Italian editors consider that Germany has the lion's share. In the meantime, Switzerland shoulders the deficit caused by these same reductions in rates, finances the whole scheme, runs the railroad as government property, while the tireless tourist, preparing for his summer holiday, will ride over the road and admire the scenery totally oblivious of it all.

Oliver Wendell Holmes.

ANECDOTES OF THE "AUTOCRAT" WHOSE CENTENARY IS TODAY.

By a Special Contributor.

THE life of the little Oliver Wendell Holmes begins with a story, for the "old gambrel-roofed house" in Cambridge where the tired stork dropped the new baby that hot day of a summer's end had been Gen. Ward's headquarters in Revolutionary times, the plans for the fortification of Bunker Hill laid in one of its rooms, while Gen. Warren slept there the night before the battle.

But if his first association with this little planet of ours was of war, his earliest recollection was the blaze of glory when the buildings of Harvard University hard by were illuminated in celebration of the Declaration of Peace in 1815, and the 6-year-old youngster was allowed to sit up as long as he wished.

"I lasted until 8 o'clock," he mirthfully records," and then struck my colors and was conveyed by my guardian and handmaidens from the brilliant spectacle to darkness and slumber."

Unfortunately for the entertainment of latter-day sinners, Oliver Wendell's youth was exemplary enough. Though "an inveterate whisperer" even at the dame school, one severe feruling during an age of riper mischief is the only chastisement chronicled against him, at a period, too, when a child was in no danger of being spoiled by sparing the rod, and that years afterward humbly apologized for by the schoolmaster who inflicted it. As for the holiday season, we have an amusing picture of the youngster tramping about the woods after birds and squirrels, his weapon of warfare an old flintlock such as our Revolutionary forebears carried.

After graduation at Harvard and reading law long enough to discover his distaste for it, Holmes took up the study of medicine, going to Paris for that purpose in the spring of 1833.

The following extract from a letter written in the summer of that year not only shows that the wide-awake young American took to Paris as a gleeful duck to water, but also throws light upon the simple manners of a New England household even in so cultivated a center as Cambridge.

"The truth is," he writes home," I live at Paris just as if I had been there all my life, and indeed I can hardly conceive of anybody's living in any other way, so completely have I naturalized myself. It seems hideous to think of more than two meals a day; how could I ever have dined at 2 o'clock? How could I have put anything to my mouth but a silver fork? How could I have survived dinner without a napkin? How could I have breakfasted without drinking white sugar and water?"

But Holmes was no dilettante in his studies abroad. He worked hard and incessantly, making good every opportunity, and with the skill and knowledge acquired in Europe also brought home three wise working principles for his professional life—"Not to take authority when I can have facts; not to guess when I can know; not to think a man must take physic because he is sick."

A bon mot of the doctor's comes to us from his appointment to the professorship of anatomy and physiology in the medical school of Harvard, for as he also taught microscopy, psychology and matters akin, he laughingly declared that he occupied "not a professor's chair, but a whole settee."

Although anatomy and dissection were his special delight, he had a very tender heart, and when he needed a freshly-killed rabbit for a lecture, would get some one else to chloroform it, and before running out of the room, exact a promise "not to let it squeak."

His hour for this lecture was 1 o'clock, because he was the only instructor who could hold the atttention of the students already exhausted from four consecutive lectures, and he was always received with a stamp and shout of applause.

Very gratifying this daily ovation must have been, for Dr. Holmes had a human weakness for honest appreciation, often saying of early lecture audiences who hesitated about applauding: "Why don't they give me three times three? I can stand it."

His arrangement for these outside lecture tours were amusingly definite.

"My terms," he once wrote, "when I stay overnight, are $15 and expenses, a room with a fire in it, in a public house, and a mattress to sleep on—not a feather bed."

His reasons for precaution were as gleefully expressed in a note of warning to a companion in platform misery.

"A hot lecture-room, a cold ride, the best chamber sheets like slices of cucumber, and one gives one's friends the trouble of writing an obituary, when he might just as well have lived and written theirs."

In his literary work, the autocrat took infinite pains. His manuscripts were sent in "print perfect," according to promise on the minute, and the proofs corrected carefully and promptly.

He considered no inaccuracy too small to set right. A case in point. One spring afternoon in the war time of 1864 he came apologetically into his publisher's office.

"I am ashamed," he said, to be troubled by so slight a thing when battles are raging about us, but I have written: "'Where Genoa's deckless caravels were blown,' and Columbus sailed from Palos."

There was the same "exquisite order" in his library workshop, about his desk, and in his own carefully-groomed person—his slight figure carried very erect, his step "quick and sure," his face always clean-shaven, and his shoes "lustrously" polished.

Apropos of these shining shoes is a joke played by the Autocrat on a physician friend. This medico returning to his office one afternoon found a long message in Latin on his slate signed "O. W. Holmes." By aid of a dictionary, he dug out the meaning word by word—simply an explanation from the rascal Holmes that he had been to the Peace Jubilee and got his boots so dirty that he did not wish to go downtown with them in such a condition and had stopped in to borrow a brush to polish them up.

There was always a mischievous light in the doctor's eyes ready to twinkle into laughter at the least provocation.

One afternoon, he and young Upham called on Hawthorne, at Lenox, but fearing to leave their horse, first the doctor, then his friend, ran into the house to peep at a special view from one of the windows. Finally, Hawthorne came out, insisting that they should leave him in charge of the fiery steed and both go in together.

"Is there another man in all America," cried Holmes, "who ever had so great an honor as to have the author of 'The Scarlet Letter' hold his horse?"

Once when the gifted Agassiz, whom Holmes adored, was away on a scientific excursion into the wilds, the doctor solemnly remarked:

"I cannot help thinking what a feast the cannibals would have if they boiled down such an extract."

To give the busy professor, lecturer, poet, and novelist an opportunity to meet distinguished literary men visiting Boston, Holmes was often invited to an 8-o'clock breakfast at the home of his friend and publisher.

Here one morning he bubbled over with the gleeful announcement that he had discovered the happiest animal in creation.

"Next to a poet, of course," he explained, "if we may call him an animal. It is the acheron, the parasite of the honey bee. And why? Because he attaches himself to the wing of the bee, is carried without exertion to the sweetest flowers, where the bee gathers the honey while the acheron eats it, and all the while the music of the bee attends him as he is borne through the air."

His sense of humor went so far as to make merry over the lion hunters that sometimes invaded the neighborhood in droves.

"I felt," he laughed, on one occasion, "like the small elephant at the zoo with a cheap excursion party on its back."

They not only came in person, but also sent presents. These the Autocrat acknowledged with the utmost courtesy, and often a rare grace of expression. For brevity and wit, none could outrival his note of thanks to a Hebrew who had presented him with some wine from Jerusalem.

"Wine received," it read. "Strong as Samson. Sweet as Delilah."

Asked to contribute a letter for the "postoffice" at a country fair, he put a one-dollar bill in a sheet of paper and on the first page wrote:

"Dear lady, whosoe'er thou art,
Turn this poor page with trembling care;
But hush, oh, hush thy beating heart,
The ONE thou lov'st best will be there."

On the opposite page he inscribed:

"Fair lady, lift thine eyes and tell
If this is not a truthful letter.
This is the ONE thou lovest well,
And naught(0) would make thee love it better."

When later in life he made a second visit abroad, he was much provoked because a London paper spoke of his being quite deaf.

"I am a little hard of hearing on one side," he explained, "but it isn't deafness," and later jestingly wrote of a CATaract forming on one eye that it was still in the KITTEN stage of development.

The most affable of men, none dared disregard certain conventionalities of approach, even a most intimate friend always first sending up his card, although nine times out of ten the Autocrat would come unceremoniously bounding downstairs to greet him.

As for the impossibility of a man being a hero in the eyes of his valet, William Dean Howells declared that so great was the reverence of the neighborhood cabman that "if you went to him when he was engaged to Dr. Holmes, he told you so with a sort of implication in his manner that the thought of anything else for the time was a profanation."

Roman Camp in Wales.

In connection with the excavations of the great Roman camp at Caesars, Montgomeryshire, Prof. Bosanquet, who is in charge of the exploring party, has succeeded in opening up the western portion of the camp, unearthing a complete hot-air system situate beneath the floors of the rooms. The floors were supported on a number of stone pillars two feet square and two feet high. Flues were laid beneath to carry the hot air from the furnace, and these have been found in an excellent state of preservation. Outside the huge rampart of clay the workmen have come across trenches which surrounded the camp. The granary has been opened up for its whole length and measures 93½ feet. This building was strongly built and was roofed with slabs of stone.—[London Standard.

Funeral of a Good Chicken and a Bad Man.

By a Special Contributor.

HIDDEN from the road by the dull yellow bulk of the San Gabriel Mission is a weed-grown patch of graves. Mary Tennant's white linen skirt brushed rude weather-beaten wooden crosses toppling among the wild hollyhocks, but she did not try to spell out their rain-washed Spanish inscriptions; her senses were turned inward and she was scarcely conscious of the place except as a fitting background for her mood.

She was startled out of her trance by coming suddenly upon a small grotesque figure crouched in the dry grass. It wore a hideous bonnet swathed in folds and folds of shabby crêpe descending in mournful cascade to the ground; its knees were hunched up beneath a dust-bedraggled black sateen petticoat.

"Why, you're a little girl!" exclaimed Miss Tennant.

"Oh! Did you take me for a real lady?"

"I took you for a real scrub lady mourning the departed Mr. Scrubbins who used to get drunk and beat you every Saturday night."

"And you truly, truly thought that!" cried the child ecstatically. She was apparently about 8 years old and had a long, highbred face framed by straight-cropped yellow hair. Her blonde skin was sunned to a creamy tan.

"Who are you when you are yourself?"

"Margaret Stanwood."

"What are you playing here?"

"I'm not playing," the youngster flashed back; "I'm setting up with the remains."

"The remains!"

Margaret pointed with prideful sadness to a pasteboard box beside her on the ground; its gaudy label spoke of toilet soap.

"He was the dearest little chicken. I loved him, and he died."

Mary Tennant dropped down on the dry grass and stroked the child's slender, dusty hand.

"I'm sorry, dear."

"I'll let you see him."

"No, let's think how cute he was in life, and not look at him now."

"Mrs. Nolan—she's the lady that washes and sweeps in our bungalow—she knows all about funerals, 'cause they have 'em often in her family, and she lent me this beau-tiful weepy hat."

"It does look weepy."

"And she told me about setting up—do you 'spose she meant 'sitting up?' Hens set, and he was a baby chicken."

"Yes, I presume she meant 'sitting.'"

"'Remains' sounds just like his bones, doesn't it?"

"Perhaps it does suggest that."

"He's all there 'cept his cute little soul. Are there chickens in heaven?"

"We'll hope so."

"He'll be a big rooster when I get there, and I'm 'fraid I won't know him."

"You dear child! Perhaps he'll remember you."

"I truly b'lieve he will, 'cause I was good to him and fed him everything it said in the poultry book. And I brought him here to bury him in concentrated ground."

Margaret was at that well-marked mental stage of solitary children in cultivated families when they collect vocabulary like bright pebbles. As a primary teacher, Mary Tennant understood the type too well to show any amusement.

"Are you going to have the funeral now?"

"Yes. I think I've set—sit—sat long enough with the bones—remains."

"May I attend?"

"Yes, only you can't be minister or chief mourner, 'cause it's my chicken. You don't mind, do you?"

"Certainly not. What shall I be?"

"You be the conflagration."

"Very well. That suits me."

As Margaret's voice pattered on and on, stringing Sunday-school memorizings into a funeral sermon, Mary Tennant dropped back into her reverie. She was a dark, thin girl, whose face, particularly in profile, was full of an untranslatable, delicate appeal underlying even her merriment. She could never be pretty, but might be beautiful at propitious moments.

"I'm going to have a funeral, too!" she burst forth. "They brought me on this trip to forget, but I couldn't help fetching my trouble along; only they won't let me face it. If I cry in the night, mother hears and comes to comfort me; if I don't pretend to laugh often enough, daddy asks what has become of my pride. They don't understand! If they'd just not mind my taking a last look and having one good, deep satisfying mourn——"

"What's dead?" inquired Margaret with open-eyed directness.

"Love."

Women creatures are born into the world with an endowment of understanding in matters of the heart. The child stared at Mary with partial intuitive comprehension of the situation.

"You can't have Love's funeral without remains," she answered dubiously.

From a bag of crimson brocade at her belt, Miss Tennant drew forth a small photograph in an oval gilt frame.

"Here is the remains. I brought it with me thinking I'd mail it back to him, but it's silly to do so now after everything's over; so I'll give it decent burial instead."

"Don't you think it would be polite to the chicken to finish his funeral first?"

"I beg his pardon."

"The conflagration will join in the hymn." She dragged out into a dirge the rollicking college chorus:

"'Co-ca-che-lunk-che-la-le,
Hi! Oh, chick-a-che-lunk-che-lay!'"

With startling shrieks and wails the little girl flung herself across the soap box. Miss Tennant endeavored to lift her up, but she wriggled away.

"Don't you see I'm chief mourner?" she expostulated in her natural voice. "Now, we'll have yours and we'll bury them in the same grave, 'cause this ground's hard digging."

Margaret set herself industriously to peck a hole in the sun-baked soil with a toy spade. Mary Tennant's face went white and old as she stared at the neatly-featured face with dark hair waving self-consciously.

"Aren't you going to make a funeral preach? I did."

"Cad!" accused the woman.

"What's 'cad?'"

"In this case it's a man who pretends to care for you just because your father is on the Board of Education and he wants to hold his principalship when he isn't competent."

"You wicked person!" cried Margaret, pausing in her labors as sexton and threatening the photograph with her spade.

Mary suddenly clasped it to her. "Oh, Margaret, he really cared sometimes—at dances when I wore my red gown and made myself a flaming torch—but his eyes soon went cold again."

"You can't love naughty people," moralized the little one.

"Oh, you can! You do! That's the misery of it! When Anthony Clayton said a teacher was only a gentleman tramp and had no business to encumber himself, I knew it was any petty excuse—and yet——" She flung the picture into the weeds and rocked herself with breathless, choking sobs.

"I wish I could weep like that," observed Margaret, awestruck by a performance so far exceeding her own. "You're playing, aren't you?" she added doubtfully.

"No, no! It was play for him, not for me!" She slipped down until her head rested in the little maid's lap.

"Grave's all ready," announced that young person. She reached over, rescued the picture from the weeds, and laid it face upward on top of the chicken's coffin in the hole.

Mary sat up and flung in a handful of earth, shivering as it rattled upon the glass of the frame in a way sufficiently realistic.

"Papa said he'd get me a new chicken."

Miss Tennant straightened her hat and dabbed energetically at her reddened eyelids.

"Haven't you any more beaus?" pursued the practical Margaret.

"There was—another—but—oh, never mind—I can't love anybody else—ever."

"No, it wouldn't be the same chicken," mused the child. "Mrs. Nolan says it isn't nice to set up and take notice right off."

"I shall not marry. I'm going in for settlement work."

The lady rose hastily as some people made an abrupt appearance around the corner of the mission.

"The Tourist Trolley Trip," explained Margaret.

The tourists were pursued by a blue-coated official with a voice of such timbre he did not need a megaphone.

"Come and be took in one elegant group right against the San Gabriel Mission. Only two bits! Send 'em back to your folks! Everybody this way!"

A solidly-built man with strong homely features drew away from the retreating flock and was moving toward the girl among the graves. Brass Buttons followed and jogged his elbow.

"Old Mission background! You in front! Great!"

"I've got too much respect for your old mission. Run along, Bub."

The official photographer accepted defeat and vanished.

"Mary Tennant!"

"Charles Doty!"

"I thought you were in Alameda."

"I thought you were somewhere out in the wilds of Nevada."

"Did you really give it that much attention? May I ask——"

"Please lend me your pencil," calmly interposed the little girl. "I want to write some more on this tombstone."

"Who may the small party be?" inquired the newcomer as he delivered the pencil.

"A child I found playing here. It was my notion to do the mission by myself. We are south on a trip."

"Wedding trip?" he questioned gruffly as he studied her face. "If Anthony Clayton has dared make you cry—so soon—oh, I know I've no right——"

"I'm—I'm—not married."

"We've just buried Mr. Anthony Clayton," piped up Margaret.

"What! Poor old Clayton! I hadn't heard!"

"He's not—that is—he didn't—oh, dear! Please go away——"

"He isn't deep; I'll dig him up," offered the obliging fellow mourner suiting the action to the word.

Mary Tennant's face was dull scarlet.

"You naughty child! Let him alone!"

Doty's spirits went up rocket fashion at this sudden release of a great desire long held down as hopeless. "Are you a widow? Is this funny child a widow? Am I a widow? Let's get the matter straightened out."

Troubled and abashed, Margaret let the disinterred photograph drop from her dirty little hand.

"I'll explain!" flamed Mary Tennant. "They all know it at home, so one more does not count. Anthony Clayton threw me over!"

"The damned fool!" The man's heel shivered the glass and ground the face into the dirt. "I [illegible] pardon for the swear. We're rough in Nevada."

The girl drew a long breath. "Oh, thank you!"

Again the blue-coated youth.

"Get a move on! We're pulling out!"

"I'd rather be left," answered Mr. Doty with [illegible] cheerfulness.

"Your ticket ain't good on no other car."

"You calculate to leave the road, don't you?"

"I'm wise, Mister." The uniform vanished.

Margaret recovered her spirits during this divers[illegible]

"That's a rich one on old Clayton!" laughed Charles Doty. The way he looked at Mary Tennant caused the infant to put forth the warning.

"She isn't ever—ever—ever—ever—ever—going to marry."

"Now, that's hard on a certain stupid, common, blundering, old idiot who has always——"

Some fleeting reaction of the feminine spirit at suddenly finding herself valued and admired did not escap[illegible] the child's precocious observation.

"You're not setting—sitting up and taking notice [illegible] quick, are you?"

Mary blushed guiltily.

"Wasn't it old Shakespeare said something about 'funeral baked meats?' Let's go across the road and have some tamales to wind up the obsequies. Fetch the kid. She's invaluable."

"A-h-h-men!" chanted Margaret, as she paused for a last sadly-admiring look at the grave and then ran after the couple, stumbling over the black sateen petticoat at every step.

AMANDA MATHEWS.

The Australian Dingo.

There are some who believe, though the evidence seems against them, that certain of the wild dogs, [illegible] the Australian dingo—"yellow dog dingo, alway[illegible]gry, dusty in the sun"—are reversions to the wil[illegible] of a race once tame, just as the pariah dogs of vario[illegible] countries have traveled half the road toward becomi[illegible] wild animals again.

As one sees the dingo here in the gardens, it loo[illegible] not merely like a domesticated dog, but like a dog of [illegible] distinctly engaging and amicable kind. The ding[illegible] character belies its gentle looks. "Quarrelsome, sly [illegible] treacherous," an Australian naturalist has called it. [illegible] sly it is that according to Mr. Beddard (in "The Cambridge Natural History") it feigns death "with such persistence that an individual has been known to b[illegible] partly flayed before moving," and so treacherous that [illegible] the days when dingoes were more commonly kept [illegible] pets by the colonists than, as a result of bitter exp[illegible]ence, is the case today, it was no unusual thing for [illegible] dog which had been brought up with every tendern[illegible] from puppyhood to turn suddenly on its master or mi[illegible]tress, or, what was more frequent, when left in tempo[illegible]rary charge of an empty house to seize the opportuni[illegible] to raid the sheepfold or the poultry runs.

On such occasions it "ravens" even as the wolf, kil[illegible]ing not to satisfy its hunger, but in the unrestrainab[illegible] fury of a brute instinct, so that given time enough i[illegible] will not leave one fowl or one sheep alive. That i[illegible] does not need much time, moreover, is shown by the statement of Thomas Ward that "one dingo in the course of a few hours has been known to destroy several score of sheep." For its fighting ability the same authority declares it to be a match for most domestic dogs of double its size.

When wild, it hunts in packs, which are said sometimes to include as many as a hundred individuals, though from six to a dozen is the common number; and the only Australian animal which it is uncertain if the pack can ever pull down is (in spite of Mr. Kipling) the "old man" kangaroo.—[London Times.

At Napoleon's Tomb.

It was in Paris. The loquacious guide was exhibiting to the interested Yankee tourist the tomb of Napoleon with all the customary flourishes of both language and hands.

"This immense sarcophagus," exclaimed the guide, "weighs forty tons. Inside of that, sir, is a steel receptacle weighing twelve tons, and inside of that is a leaden casket, hermetically sealed, weighing over two tons. Inside of that rests a mahogany coffin containing the remains of a great man."

For a moment the Yankee was silent as if in deep meditation. Then he said: "It seems to me that you've got him all right. If he ever gets out, cable me at my expense."—[Pittsburgh Press.

"How on earth did you ever cultivate such a beautiful black eye?" asked Brown's friend.

"Oh," replied Brown, who had unintentionally been illustrating the fall of man on roller skates, "I raised it from a slip."—[Everybody's.

THE sinking sun checked off another one of our days in the desert as he dropped his red round bulk behind the black curtain of the near-by mountains. Unheeding the almost unearthly beauty of the burnished saffron and rose of the skies, the Man clinked his long-suffering coffee pot against a palo verde tree a few feet from the cook tent; extracting the last unwilling grain from its darkest and most inaccessible crevice was one of his few domestic caprices. Inside the tent I was putting beans and dried apples to soak against the hungers of the morrow, when, "Hand me the cold pancakes, quick! I think I can get a burro," the Man's commanding voice came muffled but vibrant with excitement through the canvas.

I grasped a bunch of the specified delicacy and delivered them into his waiting hand. Seven stray burros faced us in the path to the sleeping tent; their evening wanderings had been interrupted by the tunking of the pot against the tree; with big ears forward pointing they stood gazing, while the Man practiced such blandishing arts as he was master of with voice and extended cakes. It was touch and go with them all: whether to take a chance with him and his cakes or to turn and scamper back up the path where freedom was certain but delicatessenary findings naught. One especially shaggy little Nan made her decision in favor of the flesh pots and sidled toward us, and at last without the flicker even of a white eyelash exchanged her freedom for a wilted and clammy feast, heedless alike of the braying of departing mates and the Man's rope that he was knotting and double-knotting around her neck. Her captor was jubilant over his success. "Now, Madam, we will be able to get over to the Gila Wash," said he, "and perhaps kill one of the deer that Bed Rock Jim was telling the truth about last time he was here; and I hope this little lady"—giving Nan's back a friendly thwack—"will carry you over there and pack back at least your weight in venison. This is our last chance to get a Christmas roast."

"My dear, gentle Man," said I, "it is my fault that we have none: you should have married a wife in a different walking class, or, having taken the one you did, left her out of hunting trips."

"Now, don't let that trouble you," said he, "and anyway, this is not a hunting trip. I have killed enough game in my time, and it doesn't matter except that I would like to get a nice, fat, juicy roast for you."

Having fed the small captive and tied her fast to a [illegible] over in the wash, we took our way to the other tent a hundred yards up the hill. My choice would have been to loiter for a mile or so along the mountain trail overlooking the Gila and the far-away townlet of Red Dog; but no moonlight philanderings for the Man: into his little cot he stowed himself to find all the sleep he could before the early start of the coming morning. And so, perforce, I did likewise, for he had given me sundry warnings of rattlers that might be encountered on the trail even in this midwinter season.

The next morning, the Man arose and prepared breakfast by candle light before I fumbled my sleepy person into khaki armament. "Can you lead the burro here when you come?" he called to me as I stood peering out into the early-morning darkness, and I emptied my mouth of a safety pin to assure him that I could. Even with this precaution for distinctness he did not hear, and called again: "Don't you hear? Bring the burro when you come—and come a-running; the grub is ready."

"I am getting her," I answered with what seemed insulting loudness. I hadn't started, but I did then, with an unlighted candle in my hand. I confess that going along the dark path to the wash to discern, untie and lead in the shaggy beast was something of an undertaking, for my knowledge of burros and the like was nil. I tried to make a light, but the wind blew out the match. I stumbled along, speaking words appropriate—so far as I knew—to waking a burro and preparing it to be led to breakfast, and incidentally to an old saddle that the Man had rigged up for me. When I got close to her, I again tried to light the candle, and succeeded; but a light thrust in her face was not just the best way to allay her fears, and she let me know what she thought of it by turning a sort of handspring with her hind legs and making a roar that would have shamed the best efforts of a dog show. For a moment I stood looking at the to me impossible beast, but when she did the whole stunt over again, I threw the candle at her and scuffled away over the rocky path to the long-suffering Man and breakfast.

"Why did you scare her with a lighted candle?" he asked.

"I didn't mean to," I told him; "I needed a light to see to untie the rope.'

"Oh!" he impressively exclaimed. "Well, that's just the way to make animals bite you."

"Now, see here," said I, "if this is going to be such a biting, jumping, bawling animal, I shall not try to ride her."

"Well, my lady, don't be cross," he told me. "I'll get Nannie and saddle her, and I guess she will be gentle enough for you. "And here he thrust a last huge mouthful of beans into himself and departed, carrying out the saddle, and leaving me to my breakfast, which I took intermittently with an effort at straightening out things after his candle-light feeding affray. Men are certainly kitchen mussers. Now, the Man's city manners are something delightful, but with praiseworthy economy they are left behind with his city clothes, and he brings forth quite a different set with his khaki and guns—a kind of gruffety, rough, Wild Bill combination that I suppose rests his nerves.

We were off at last, and under the restraint of bit and saddle, Nannie proved herself worthy of every confidence placed upon her—and that was myself. Her summersaults and trumpetings were things of the past, and apparently she bore me no grudge for disturbing her dreams with a startling flash of light. The first rays of the sun were just shooting over the big mountain top as we wended our way down its steep side. Thus for a mile or more, then across a big wash and over a small butte of burnt, black lava. There were many bunches of quail along the way, many cottontail rabbits dodging through the brush ahead of us, but it was not our day for them. Once we had a glimpse of a bob cat, and once a coyote stood within a hundred yards and stared at us, but the Man would not shoot lest he might scare the game we were after. On we went, along the mountainside, down into washes and up over steep ridges, and in about three hours' time came to the Gila Wash. There we began to hunt in earnest, the Man scowling and saying gruffly: "Be careful!" every time Nan's little hoofs scuffed on the rocks. We were now in the low hills about a mile back from the Gila River, and likely to see a deer any moment, I was told in stage whispers.

On and on we went, winding among the hills, seeing many deer tracks, but finding none of the animals that made them. I had long since realized that riding a burro was a vast improvement on trudging about on my own feet, but after sitting in the saddle all the morning, I learned that riding also has its drawbacks. At last I suggested that we stop and explore the contents of a ruffy newspaper parcel that was wobbling on the rear of the saddle, and when I came to alight—or more accurately, when I slid to the ground—I found that I was too stiff to move.

"You will limber up if you'll walk around a bit," was all the sympathy I got from the Man. I took a few steps forward and back, and then sat down only to find troubles of my own in that position. The Man tied my mount to a mesquite and then fell savagely upon the bean sandwiches, prunes and ginger snaps, washing them down with very warmish water from the canteen. "I have a good mind to leave you here and prowl around a bit on the far side of that butte," said he, pointing to one a half-mile away. "You seem to be pretty well done up, my lady."

I did not tell him how sore I felt, and made no objection to being left for a short rest. He was soon out of sight, but I could hear the gravel crunching under his feet for some time. I began munching prunes, more for something to do than because I wanted them. I haven't the slightest bump of locality: I felt that if anything should happen to the Man my fate would depend entirely upon Nan's sagacity—but I wouldn't think of it; ashamed of my morbid fears, I gathered the remains of our lunch and limped stiffly over to the burro. She made no effort to kick or trumpet this time; she was a bit tired, I judged, and had no energy to spare for high kicking or misbehavior of any kind. She crunched the dry bits that I gave her rather stolidly, probably disapproving of so light a repast. It seemed a bit cruel for her not to have any water, but the Man's assurances were that she would go all right until we reached Bed Rock Jim's camp on our way home, and that would be about 4 o'clock, he thought.

By 2 o'clock it seemed ages since the Man had started, to be gone not longer than an hour. "Why doesn't he come?" I asked myself about every two minutes. I tried to banish fearsome thoughts by observing the strange life and beauty of the desert. And the sky, too: what a wonderful blue it is, the Arizona sky! some way it seems higher in the desert places than anywhere else.

The little niche where I was sitting was pretty well up on the south side of a sparsely-wooded butte, and Nan was tied not far away; my perch was on a big brown rock that was hard indeed. At half-past 2, so restless that I could no longer sit still, I started to have a look at the north side. I was very careful to make no noise—not that I really thought what I was doing, for of course there wouldn't be any deer near where we had lunched and made more or less disturbance. I saw several rabbits—little cottontails and big jacks, and then something moved slightly down the slope that was different, and I stopped and loked again; I thought I should be a little afraid if it were a big coyote. It really was a deer. That reads unexciting as I write it, but it is far different from the way I felt. And to think of it! the poor Man tramping any number of miles looking for what was here at our very hand. I was too excited just then to question how he came to be there—whether he had been lying there all the time, or moved up from the wash since the Man had passed along it. Anyhow, here was the big buck we had been looking for in all our tramps along the mountain trails; why, the Man had never stirred a hundred yards from camp without his gun, telling me a hundred times if he had once: "I'm sure to run on to one sooner or later," and after all it had turned out that I was the one to discover the much-wanted animal. I say that I was excited; why, I was well-nigh breathless from excitement! I was perhaps a couple of hundred yards from the first wild deer I had ever seen; he was lying under a mesquite tree lazily chewing something and occasionally working his ears and tossing his antlered head.

Crouching there in the broiling sun, on the rough, rocky side of the butte, I struggled to down my emotional temperament and think what I should do. The Man was due to return at any moment, but from what direction it was hard to prophesy; should I remain where I was—and take chances of his finding me and the deer too—or should I try to wriggle back to the burro unobserved by the deer? I chose to do the latter. I was already on my hands and knees, and in that unwonted position I backed to the shelter of a clump of greasewood; there I took off my shoes, which was quite an ordeal, as I wore high khaki leggins over them.

The Man came into view about the same time I sneaked my stocking-footed way back to where he had left me. The returning hunter espied, I commenced at once a series of gestures impossible to describe, and which he afterward said meant not the slightest thing to him. But at least he followed a part of my wireless messages and came up to me by the way I indicated, the one least likely to disturb the buck, who, I hoped, was taking his last lazy snooze.

"It is a big buck," I whispered as soon as the Man was near; "he is right on the other side of this butte and lying under a mesquite tree. You can see his antlers sticking up."

At these breathless and not too intelligible words the Man's whole tired attitude changed: he became very much alert and quickly asked a number of questions. Having followed my example and slipped off his shoes, he started around the butte, guided by my pointing hand, while I followed, the stones cutting through my stockings in a way I should have minded in a less excited moment. Our cautious detour took perhaps ten minutes. I think that he had been a little skeptical all along, but doubt vanished when he saw the antlered head even before I rediscovered it. He quickly raised his rifle and fired, and we saw the deer jump high from its bed and then fall with a thud upon the rocks. The Man dashed forward, and I after him, to where the dying creature lay panting out his last breath. I turned quickly away from it, though, and an unreasoning anger against the Man swept through me. I went back to put on my shoes and to get out of sight of what to me was a painful scene, remarking as I went: "I wish I had never shown you the poor thing."

This remark seemed to the seasoned hunter rather queer, and he merely grunted: "What's getting into you now?"

I felt as shaky as if I had been in a railway accident, and vaguely wondered as I put on my shoes—and that was painful, by the way—if I could ever at any future time enjoy venison? My shoes and leggings relaced, without being told I untied Nan and started back to where I knew the Man was engaged in "fixing things," and would of course want the burro to load the meat upon. There was more blood on his hands than I liked to contemplate. "Good for you, Madam," said he. "We will proceed to load on any number of juicy roasts for you; just lead the beast a little nearer; that's the ticket."

Nan made some objections to having the big deer carcass placed upon her, but paying no attention to her whims, the Man got busy with "swing ropes" and "lash rope," and deftly secured the load in place with what he called the "diamond hitch." He drew the rope so tightly that Nan fairly groaned, and I thought that he was going to cut her poor little waist in two. "This is the only good hitch," the Man explained, "and is used by all good packers; a load fastened on with it is there to stay."

And indeed everything looked as taut and seaworthy as a whaler for the northern seas. "My only misgivings are for you," he continued; "why, it is 4 o'clock now!"

I wasn't very well satisfied with my feelings, but there was no use of enlarging upon them; we must stumble along somehow, and try to reach our distant camp. I was looking cheerful and gay, I hoped, as we scrambled over ridges and dragged through the deep sands of the washes, but the Man knew better. "Gee whizz!" he finally exclaimed, "you're a sorry sight, Madam. Do you think you can pull along for the two or three miles more? Come, take a little rest here."

"I can do anything," I declared, "if you won't call me a sorry sight."

While walking in my stocking feet I had been cut by a sharp bit of shale, and the wound was painful; my long hours of riding on bumpety Nan had made me as stiff and sore as old Rip himself. My wish was to be a hardy hunter, a boon companion of this hunting Man, so I made still more effort to look cheerful and gay. He said that we would make camp all right, and after lighting a cigarette, gave me farther assurance that he had only joked about my looks. I made a snuffling acceptance of his "take back," for I knew that "sorry sight" was a flattering description of myself. "I suppose I better not take off my shoes while resting," I hazarded.

"Not on your——"

He never finished the sentence. While resting, we had let Nan wander at will to nibble the brush, and now after a more than usually loud, sad fit of bawlings, she stretched out her neck and started on a fast run down the ridge. The Man made a dash for her dragging tie rope, stumbled and fell, and was up and after her almost before I knew what was doing. Before he was quite out of sight I came to one clear understanding with myself, and that was that I must keep him in sight or be lost there in the gathering night. I jumped up and followed him with the supreme effort of my life.

Alas and alack! tears dim my eyes as I write this: we never again saw Nan, nor the saddle and deer she carried. She was far swifter of foot than the Man; he soon gave up the chase, and she was lost in the gathering night. We toiled on and on to camp, and I was so tired when we got there that I went to sleep at the dinner table.

The next day, and the next, the Man and Bedrock Jim scoured the country for the perfidious Nan. They never found a trace of her, and the piece de resistance of our Christmas dinner was bacon—just plain, ordinary bacon.

Three little babies in Spain, in Spain—
  Alphonse and Jamie and Victory—
Heirs of the arrogant realms and vain,
  Blood and battle and misery;
Three little babies with curls and kinks,
  Roses of red on their cheeks of youth,
And Anarchy eyeing them through the chinks,
  Bearing a bomb of the Utter Truth;
Three little babies in Spain, ah me,
Thanks unto God for my own wee three—
Heirs of a simple and sweetheart life
Afar from the terror of tears and strife.

An Appreciation of Bath.

NOTES ON THIS MOST INTERESTING OLD ENGLISH CITY.

By a Special Contributor.

IN all England there is no more beautiful, no more restful and healthful city than Bath, Somersetshire. It has been described as the "queen city of the west of England." For over 2000 years its mineral waters have been a healing balm to seekers after health, an asset which if once impaired, leaves humanity bankrupt of life's most precious treasure. Swinburne happily lauds its charms in verse as "England's Florence, girt about with beauty."

Nor is it beauty of scenery alone in which this city of 60,000 inhabitants excels. Its richness and romance of history constitute a mine of beauty and charm for the student, an inexhaustible ore richer than gold, silver or diamonds. Annually it holds a pageant. It has materials sufficient to make up a dozen pageants, and its citizens have a personal pride in all these annals. In this festival of Whitsuntide 936 years ago, King Edgar was crowned in the Bath Abbey, which is built on the site of Henry the Seventh's Abbey, and the preceding Saxon Nunnery. There have been restorations and rebuildings innumerable, and in due course Henry the Eighth suppressed all the monasteries. But in the Abbey of today are a few traces here and there of the architecture of the Abbey of 1503.

Standing in the sacred edifice this sunny May Whitsun listening to the carillon pealing out the Easter hymn (for there is a tune for each day of the week,) one is reminded of the carillon in the ancient Flemish city of Antwerp. It does not require much imaginative faculty to picture the procession of monks—headed by Dunstan, Abbot of Glastonbury, the Benedictines from Worcester, the crowds of secular priests, and the white and cloth-of-gold vested abbots and abbesses, assembled that Whitsunday in 973 to crown Edgar king. It is said that in those days the coronation robe was of fine white linen, hand-wrought and embroidered by patient and skillful-fingered abbesses. To the solemn chanting of the Gloria, ascending on perfumed sound waves from the brazier of burning incense, Edgar was crowned. Catholic legend has it that a dove descended from the tower, truly a fitting symbol of this day commemorative of the descent of the Holy Ghost, on the sacred Sunday of whiteness.

That the ceremony held unusual pomp and significance, and left a royal hall-mark on succeeding centuries, may be gathered from the fact that every year a king was elected at Bath in memory of Edgar, by loyal Bathonians, down to the times of Beau Nash, and that this mock king was given the freedom of the city. Also the corporation of Bath had its Grieve, or Mayor, about the time of Edgar.

Of Beau Nash and his times much has been written, yet the subject is one of never-failing interest to residents and to visitors alike. Whatever follies and eccentricities he committed in his eventful life, this at least he did successfully. He made Bath the center of fashion, and to the pumproom he drew men and women not only of the social world, but the representatives of art and literature, of his day. The pumproom continued to be a powerful magnet, to draw such visitors long after Beau Nash's death, which was such a pitiful sordid ending to his adventurous life. He was over 87 years of age, and long before this life had lost all interest for this whimsical master of ceremonies. He was accorded a monument in the Abbey, the Valhalla of many of the great. Some critics contend that Oliver Goldsmith drew his literary picture of Nash in far too gracious colors, but surely no man could accomplish so much, could fill so large a place in the public eye, unless he had in his emotional and mental make-up qualities of no mean order. The too captious critic of men and of manners may well be less loud in denouncing this erratic ter of whom much may be said with truth that and praiseworthy.

Strolling about the clean, beautiful streets of shadows of world-famous men and women flit about, wind up and down the emerald-covered hills and valle in a ghostly procession reminding one more and mo of the ghosts of Florence. Standing on the old brid in the heart of the town, you try to disabuse your mi that it is the Arno, not the Avon River that flows etly beneath the arches; that the slabs and monum of marble and granite on the bank where a busy cutter has pitched his tent are not a series of bo filled with images, beads, and various Italian fa you recall along the Arno in busy Florence. And background of hills—surely that is Fiesole, not Sh Castle and the Somerset hills. And look! An Italian hokey-pokey vender, and a seller of tiny green love birds, stand with their smiling faces, their gay shawl-covered heads and hoops of gold in their brown ears, their black velvet bodices laced with bright ribbons over their white camisoles urging you to "buy lady, please buy to bring me luck; not a penny have I made this Whit Monday morning." They urge you so seductively, they are born coquettes. You don't want their wares, but you give them all your spare pennies, a "Rosemary of remembrance" to Italy, and you are positive now that you are not in Somerset.

Come along, in the sunshine; don't hurry, no one hurries in Bath. It is good sometimes to dream and to dorm. Let us walk along the North Parade, and feast our eyes on the May, pink and white, and the yellow laburnum, in full glory of blossoms, and the restful copper beeches framing in the floral pictures, of Institution Gardens, on which a sumptuous up-to-date hotel looks calmly down. We may be standing—who knows—on the very spot where Edmund Burke once stood, for hard by one of the comfortable houses is a tablet erected to his memory—Burke, to whom America owes so great a debt for his eloquent brief for her cause in those days

The American Am- dor unveiled the tablet a few months ago, paying rilliant tribute to Burke's memory. The people of will long remember the cold sunny October day, en under the arches of gay flags floating on the air, e star-spangled banner unfurled gracefully as sport the autumn breeze, the silver-voiced Ambassador ave his oration, the delivery of which was a lesson every aspiring public speaker. An English wag ob- rved: "Burke? It appears to me he was a sort of -Boer, eh?" We bow to the shadow of this mighty Boer."

tham, and Pitt, are immortalized in this city so in famous visitors. Nelson glides by, and Wolfe, left Bath to annex Quebec. Of painters, Laurence Gainsborough; of actors, Quin and Mrs. Siddons; uin, whose memorial tablet Sir Henry Irving unveiled, few years ago. And now Irving's ashes rest in Westminster Abbey! Pope, Fielding, Sheridan, Southey, Jane Austen, Fanny Burnly, Lytton, Dickens, and the exquisite-mannered Chesterfield, all swell the ranks of our goodly company. Sheridan wrote "The School for Scandal" hard by, and Cecilia Linley, the "human linnet" of Bath, eloped with Sheridan in 1772.

The old scenes, with the actors who played in them, troop through one's thoughts. The sedan chair, the patches and powder and periwigs and farthingales, all the stage properties of those dames and squires of high degree, are so much a part of Bath that one will accept their introduction as a matter of course in the pageant this summer. An amusing story is told of an American visitor last summer. She arrived at a friend's house in a Bath chair, dragged along by a rheumaticky chairman, her luggage following on a cab. Said her hostess: "My dear, are you so ill that you have taken this unusual conveyance?"

"No," said the American, an enthusiastic reader of Bath chronicles, "but it was the nearest I could get to a sedan chair, and any other method of getting to you would have seemed to be quite out of drawing."

There is no keen electric life in Bath, outside of the trams, 'tis true. No one rushes; every one glides along. It would not seem out of character were a stately minuet danced in the May moonlight by lords and ladies of high degree, until the moon hid her face, and torch bearers preceded their masters and mistresses to their homes, or to the pumproom for a matutinal glass of the waters, in whose pellucid depths iron lurks, and more wonderful still, latter-day scientists proclaim the presence infinitesimally, of the curative wizard radium. The old Roman ruins are many of them more wonderful than Rome can show, and there is reason to believe that future excavations will show as great if not greater wonders.

To Bath comes not only the invalid, but there come large numbers of gentle folk who live out their days on slender incomes, and yet live as befits their station in life. From September to mid-May there are daily concerts in the pumproom, the present room having been built as an addition several years ago. A guinea secures admission for the season—an inexpensive pleasure, but earnest music-lovers hear for this trifle the best modern and classical music, rendered by one of the finest string bands in the country. In the interval between the first and second parts of the programme one can lounge about in the original pumproom and metaphorically shake hands with the spirit of Beau Nash a bygone century.

There are many cheap pleasures in Bath. A few pence will take one on top of a tram into beautiful country, Combe Down, or Lansdown, Claverton or Weston or Walcot. The reference library is well stocked with thousands of standard works, as also is the royal literary and scientific institution, where are 30,000 volumes on its trim shelves, all of the highest literary and scientific character.

At the assembly-rooms are balls and concerts just as in Beau Nash's day, and Maj. Simpson is the present master of ceremonies, coming down from a long list of M. C.'s since Nash reigned as autocrat of good manners and social customs in the old assembly-rooms on which these are rebuilt.

No appreciation of Bath would be complete without a tribute to the universal politeness and good breeding of typical Bathonians. This spirit extends to even the humblest tradesman within its precincts. Many provincial cities irritate one with the abruptness of their clerks and even their proprietors. Bath is a shining exception. A customer is not treated as if he or she were an inoffensive pedestrian, the tradesman a highway robber demanding his or her money or life.

The long afternoon draws to a close, but there is still time for a peep in the Victoria Art Gallery in the municipal buildings and a glance at the large banquet hall, where public dinners of various bodies are held. In the Art Gallery is an exquisite framed fan, which belonged to Madam Pompadour, and there are several paintings lent or presented to the gallery, which have had their day at Royal Academy exhibitions in London.

Being a privileged person, you may be invited to make your exit through a door to the library and so out at the Guild Hall. The Mayoress and His Worship the Mayor have been looking after some pageant details, and are just leaving for home. The Mayoress is the slender, vivacious lady, dressed with a certain quiet old-world elegance, standing over there by a fluted column, while her husband chats for a moment with Town Councilor Sturge Cotterell, who is the moving spirit of the pageant. Her face is fine, like a delicately-cut cameo intaglio, and her eyes are alert and twinkling. She might pose as a model for one of Mary Wilkins' exquisite Massachusetts women. Hers is a typical American, not an English face. She matches all else in Bath, something finer than one always knows. You cannot bring yourself to greet her with, "Good afternoon, Mayoress. You are tempted to carry out the spirit of this historic city, and making a profound curtsey, say: "A grammercy for thy favor, dame, and a good morrow to thee."

ANNIE WAKEMAN.

Katrina's Revolt.

THE LITTLE GERMAN WIFE TAKES AN EVENING OFF.

By a Special Contributor.

IT was noon. Herr Baumgartner fed. He sat in the rear of his booth gorging on a plate of smoking frankfurters. Over his blond head hung the sign: "You'll find the 'wurst' here." Another read: "Hurry back." Still another: "Ice cream cones for the kids." The monarch of all this business-like paraphernalia was irritable. He waved greasy fingers toward his wife and growled: "Bring me mine coffee."

Obediently his helpmeet clumped to the big white boiler and drew therefrom a fragrant amber cup. Uninterestedly she placed it at her husband's plate, and turned away without a word. With profound apathy she leaned both elbows on the counter and gazed up and down the street.

Next to their shop, the proprietor of the Scenic Railway sat in his little ticket office gazing out upon the world like a lugubrious rooster at his hen-house window.

The barker from La Petite Theatre, farther down the Midway, dawdled up to the counter, hands in his pockets, and hat obscuring one small dissipated optic. Katrina served his coffee and red-hots abstractedly, hardly noticing the gems of wit that passed between him and her husband. She was busy with her own grievances.

She heard Hans push back his chair with a hiccough of repletion. Then she felt a sharp rap on her shoulder.

"Cause vy don't you eat, voman?" he demanded.

Katrina turned toward her husband with sudden wistfulness. "You are sorry, my man, that your Katrina does not eat?"

For a moment Hans stared with the intellectual expression of a yearling calf. Then he snorted: "Are you crazy? Dere iss no vork left in you if you do not eat and your stren'th keep up." He turned away, straightened his white cap, and gave his blond mustachios a flirty twist.

Katrina sniffled, and applied her sleeve to her eyes. Could this be her Hans—this foppish, smirking creature? A picture rose unbidden before her eyes—a little house perched all by itself in a lonely field. The hour in the twilight after the long day's work was done, when she sat spinning, and Hans in his corner played his accordion and together they sang their favorite tunes. Again the handy sleeve went to the brimming eyes. She had not minded his being masterful then; it was the way of the men in the Vaterland. But now! There was no living with him. This being constantly in the public eye had done its pernicious work.

Now matters had reached a crisis. Germany is a nation slow and just in its wrath, but to be reckoned with when once aroused.

It happened in this wise: Last night, just at the busy hour when every hokey-pokey stand on Midway was crowded with customers, Hans had sneaked off, to reappear half an hour later in the rear of the booth.

Katrina had gasped. It was Hans! Hans, gotten up regardless. Hans in an "ice-cream" suit, with trousers stylishly full at the top and satisfyingly tight at the shins. Hans, with a pink carnation in his buttonhole, matching the hue of his glowing cheeks. And a cunning, pink-faced, pink-scalped, roly-poly little rogue of a Dutch gallant did he look. His manner added that he could be a sad dog when out in company.

Meanwhile the customers fumed at the counter.

"Why—what?"

"I go to hear the music; perhaps to tr-rrip the light fantastical. You keep shop. Count all your change twice, and don't loose vun little benny. So long!" With a flippant twirl of his stick, Hans was gone.

The world went red. The earth spun round and round. Katrina emerged from the vortex conscious only of a fury of anger so black that it frightened her.

Lizzie Parsons, the goddess who condescended to dispense tickets at the office of the moving-picture show across the street, had seen Katrina alone, and tripped across during a lull in her duties. Lizzie was tall and haughty, with a pompadour too yellow to be true, and that sophisticated ease of carriage that is achieved only in certain circles of society. Katrina thought her figure wonderful; she herself plump to rotundity and unabashed thereby, looked at Lizzie this evening with a respectful eye. There was much to be learned from this all-wise, all-conquering foreigner. That Hans had scrupulously forbidden her to hold more than two minutes speech with strange women mattered not with Katrina in her present mood; rather did it increase her feeling of friendliness toward her caller.

These Americans know a thing or two! Lizzie and Katrina had whispered together for an hour, and when they finally parted they enthusiastically shook hands over something across the counter.

Today, Hans had been more insufferable than ever. He had ordered Katrina about incessantly. She had borne it with accustomed meekness, but when his back was turned she stole flushed, excited glances at herself in Hans's little cracked mirror. About 7 in the evening, she noticed signs of hurry. Quietly she slipped out the back door of their booth.

"Oh, that voman! Nefer iss she vere she iss vanted at!" He studied his watch uneasily. Barely would he have time to dress and get to the dance pavilion before 8.

"Ta-te-ta-te-tum-tum-tum!" Hans smiled with half-closed eyes, puffed out his fat cheeks, and executed a frisky step. He seized a bottle and poured a foaming glass. With hand on heart he breathed ardently: "To ze laties!" and drank off the glass at one swill.

He paused in these pleasant anticipations to fume impatiently. A half-hour later he cast a frenzied glance about his stand and strode to his room, blood in his eye.

It was empty. Drawers gaped open. A trail of face powder led from table to door. Clothing was strewn on every chair. It seemed a case for Sherlock himself.

Mr. Baumgartner was nigh the bursting point. He ground his teeth. He trotted back and forth. He shook his fist. He swore in rich Cherman swear words.

Then suddenly his jaw dropped helplessly, and he gulped. What if Katrina had left him, as these worthless American women leave their men!

"Little Katrina," he groaned, "there vass no vun like her. She vass as goot as golt. And she could make a benny go farder than I could myselluf. Ach! I vass a tam fool!"

A sad and broken man Hans slumped back to his stand. Several newsboys were fleeing with pockets full of taffy. Even their "Yah-yah, Dutchy!" provoked no angry response.

The theater across the street disgorged its crowd, and a goodly part of it lined up thirstily in front of Hans' stand.

"Here! Three pink lemos and straws!"

"Hot dogs for mine!"

"Get a move on, there, Baron!"

The title sickened him. Perspiring, his cap awry, his wares in hopeless confusion, he mixed his orders, and every moment grew more befuddled.

At last he was rid of them. Shamefacedly he surveyed the wreckage about him. A glass lay on the floor in a thousand splinters; the counter was in a puddly, messy state; strawberry ice cream trickled dismally down his erstwhile spotless apron. Hans rested his head on his hand and sighed a gusty, doleful, broken-hearted sigh.

Later in the evening, two women swished up to his counter and seated themselves fussily upon the high stools. One of them rapped imperiously with her knuckles. Hans came forward, mustering the pale shadow of his old smile. The light flared full upon their upturned faces. On Hans the look of a puzzled yearling calf was succeeded by one of apoplectic astonishment. He fell back, weakly supporting himself against the coffee boiler.

"Lizzie has her efening off. I t'ought I vould take mine off mit her."

Katrina's tones were very humble and pleading. Lizzie's meatless elbow nudged her to silence.

And still Hans stared like a bewildered, astonished, apoplectic yearling calf.

Katrina would have made anything sit up and take notice. Her hair was a brunette duplicate of Lizzie's; her weatherbeaten skin was covered with a coat of ghastly white touched up with pink; her plump proportions had assumed curves that made her breath come in cautious gasps. Even the absence of the two front teeth that Hans's frugality forbade her having replaced, did not seriously detract from the dazzling whole.

Her gown Hans had never seen. It was a dream. Katrina had not had a new dress since four years ago last Christmas.

"Two dishes of ice cream, please," ordered Lizzie sharply. "My choice is chocolate flavor. What's yours?"

But alas! poor Katrina was beyond speech. Confronted with her neglected duties her conscience rose and smothered the brief burst of defiance. Hans's abject astonishment was too touching. For once he neither blustered nor sneered.

"Two chocolates!" repeated Lizzie impatiently. Things were not going with the dash she had planned.

Heavily Hans did her bidding. He set the dishes down before them heaped to mountainous heights. Never before had Katrina been allowed to sample the stock in trade.

She began bravely. But when she lifted her spoon she met Hans's helpless, puzzled eyes. She choked. Lizzie took generous spoonfuls and disposed of them lingeringly, her little finger kicked out coquettishly above the handle of her spoon.

Slowly Hans seemed to be coming to life. And simultaneously Katrina felt that when he spoke all would be over between them. It was too much.

With a loud wail, she flung down her spoon. She reached across the counter and grasped Hans around the neck.

"O Hans, Hans! Nefer, nefer vill I leaf you again," she sobbed.

Lizzie, thunderstruck, stopped eating, with her spoon in the air. "Did you ever!" she ejaculated. "After all my trouble—and she has on my best silk dress!"

Hans drew his wife around the end of the counter, and with sighs and tears and guttural ejaculations they fondled each other. In full view of the passing throng did they kiss and make up.

Lizzie leisurely finished her ice cream, tilting the dish and scraping it before the final relinquishment.

"Wouldn't that jar you! Sloppy weather! My word, but these Germans are mushy! And I know she's straining the seams."

. . . . .

Hans and Katrina shut up shop late that night. Very domestic Hans looked as he covered and locked away his wares. Katrina, in her old black dress, trudged about in a perfect fever of enthusiasm for her duties.

"Hans, can you efer, efer luf me again?" She came to him and placed both hands on his shoulders.

Good-naturedly Hans waved her away. "Don't yourselluf worry any more, little Katrina. Me and you a new leaf will turn under." He petted her cheek. "My Katrina shall haf a new dress come next Christmastide, and"—here he lowered his voice to a sepulchral whisper—"she her efening off shall haf, twice efery year!"

A Quiet Home Wedding.

MONOLOGUE WITH INTERLUDES AND VARIATIONS.

By a Special Contributor.

PEGGY, entering unannounced the room at the head of the stairs, found Bertha, in dressing-gown and slippers and a perturbed expression, at the telephone.

The prospective bride greeted the prospective bridesmaid perfunctorily, and delivered herself of this monologue:

"Oh, Peggy, I'm so glad to see you! This telephone"—twiddling the hook violently—"is dead. I can't get a thing. Mother is going to have nervous prostration or something. I wonder what will happen next."

"What could you expect? Anybody who would be married on Friday——"

Bertha had announced that it was to be a quiet home wedding—"no fuss and feathers whatever." The date set happened to fall on Friday. But of this, more anon.

"Well, it isn't the 13th, any way," Bertha cut in. 'Will you—would it be asking too much—the doctor lives fourteen or fifteen blocks down Hope street in a green stone house——"

Peggy resumed her hat and gloves, which she had thrown aside.

"Do calm yourself, Bertha! Remember, you are to be married tonight. According to the Ladies' Home Jumble, you should be spending these last hours in soulful meditation——"

"Suffering martyrs! Soulful meditation! And I must get to the bank before 3—and all these things to pack—and the expressman due at 2:30—and the hair dresser——"

"All right, all right! We'll cut out the soulful meditation. Green stone house, did you say? Lucky I rode over on my wheel——"

Shrill high-pitched voice from the next room:

"Bertha! Bertha! Bertha!"

"What is it, Mother?"

"The bank closes at 3——"

"Yes, yes! I know."

"You'll never get there in time. 'Phone them to hold the bank until you come. The telephone dead? What difference does that make? Oh, it isn't dead! Then why don't you——"

"White, double-seven six, please. No, Peggy, you don't have to go, after all. Is this the doctor? Doctor, please send some of those punk pills for pale—I mean, the pink pales for—send Mrs. Jones—it's nervous prostration—there! They've cut us off! I guess he understands, though. You will help me pack? You are a tow-headed angel, that's what you are. Those shirt waists on the bed—hand them to me one by one, please, and look at each one to be sure that there's nothing wrong. Now, those dresses in the closet. The shoes? Each pair must be wrapped in tissue paper. No ruching in that waist? Would it be asking too much—Rosy, didn't I tell you to stay downstairs? She has unwrapped all those shoes! What do you want? What do you want? Some of sister's violet water—to put on the cat. Here, take it—take anything. Don't let me catch you here again or I'll——"

Shrill, high-pitched voice:

"Bertha! Bertha!! Bertha!!!"

"I can't come now, Mother. The bank closes at 3. Oh! Did I pack my camera? I did! Ah, here it is! But I didn't get any films for it! Peggy, you have a wheel—would it be asking too much—— At Brown's, you know. You don't know? Ask for Mr. Smith. Where is Brown's? Why, you know where Silverstein, the jeweler—no? Well, you know where the Kandy Kitchen is? Well, a block down, two blocks to the left, and you will find Silverstein's—— But it is Brown's you want, isn't it? It's right next door. Call for Mr. Smith. Tell him Miss Jones says four-films-for-Eaton-pocket-folding-kodak-number-five—70-cents. Here is the money. And you might stop in at my dressmaker's. She will give you a suit case—my pink dress—I had it fixed. You can carry it on your wheel. And—I nearly forgot—I must have some shoe laces—black, you know, for low oxford ties. Would it be asking too much—not more than 5 cents a pair. Oh, and shoe blacking—for my tan shoes. No, silly! Not blacking—you knew what I meant—it comes in combination boxes. Ask for the very lightest yellow. Oh, Peggy, my silver purse, and button hook! I left them to be repaired at Silverstein's—you know where Silverstein's is? Well, now, you know the Kandy Kitchen. And you can carry them on your wheel? You are sure? Hurry, because the bank closes at 3. There's the door bell! Would it be asking too much, Peggy—perhaps it's the pills. Hop Suey is ironing my embroidered duck suit, and—it's Jack! Oh, he mustn't see me like this. Well, if he must—hurry back, Peggy—Jack!"

"Bertha! You can never guess what I've done now!"

Bertha, without waiting to ascertain the nature of the calamity, collapsed in a hysterical heap, and was borne, laughing and sobbing weakly, to her room.

High-pitched voice from inner room:

"What has happened? Oh, I knew how it would be if——"

"I won't tell you if you take on like this, Bertha. Oh, no, I couldn't think of it now, with you in such a state. Well, if you insist—I had such a big list of things to get at the stores this morning—just a few trifles that I had omitted buying till the last, you know, dearest; and at one of the stores—I don't know which—I lost my wallet containing the railroad tickets, and——"

"Oh, Mother, Jack's lost the tickets——"

"You would be married——"

"I thought I'd advertise 'em——"

"——on Friday. Bertha! Bertha!! Bertha!! Bring me my——"

Jack, feeling in his overcoat pocket for a handkerchief, discovered the wallet containing the tickets. Shrill, high-pitched voice in the next room meanwhile demanded clothes, and a pair of slippers.

"You've found them? You have? We can be married after all, can't we? Oh, there's the doorbell! Jack, would it be asking too much—perhaps it's Peggy. It is Peggy. Peggy, what do you think this dear, horrid, stupid—oh, are you going, Jack? And I won't see you for—— Yes, of course we've got all those things to pack, Peggy; but I haven't seen Jack before, this morning. Oh, you must finish your shopping? Well. Good-by! Good-by! Jack, can't you come up to lunch? You can't? Oh! Good-by! Good-by! You got all those things, Peggy?"

"I guess so. Who's the irate lady that went out as I came in? She had a gilt clock under her arm."

"That's mamma's step-brother's second wife. She's got a temper and twins——"

"Ah! The twins! They were——"

"Don't tell me! They've greased the cat with Roquefort cheese—melted it in my lovely silver chafing dish. Are you sure she took the clock? Thank goodness, she's gone! Papa said they emptied his red ink into the goldfish globe——"

"I can imagine what papa said, and why mamma had hysterics. Can't you talk and pack at the same time?"

"The things are all here? What did the dressmaker say? The dress was a wreck? Well, so it was. A man put his feet through it last night at the Country Club hop. Don't you despise a man who pushes you backward half-way around the room, and then pulls you after him the rest of the way? Ah! The button hook and the purse. You found the Kandy Kitchen all right? The yellow blacking—yes, this is the kind. You're such a helpful child. Shoe laces—two pairs for five? The films—yes, they're all here, four of them. Peg, you never got anything wrong yet, did you? Himmel! Only six exposures? But I told you twelve! They were to be 70 cents. I didn't give you the money? How stupid! Now, would it be too much to ask—— Yes, and I know they'll exchange them. Brown's, next to Silverstein's. You know where the Kandy Kitchen is? But you may as well help me finish packing first. These go in the suit cases—I'll lay them on the bed. The ruching on that waist—you've got it done? Well, hand it to me—it will just fit in here. Can you get the lid down? Why, it won't go, will it? I wonder what's the matter?"

The tray of the trunk was removed, and several pairs of shoes were discovered on the ledge on which the tray should rest. They were packed in the middle of the trunk, the lid was closed, sat upon, and the catches snapped.

"There! That's done. Now I must dress. The bank closes at 3, and—— Heavens! Peggy, have you seen the collar to this blue silk shirt waist? You haven't? Where can it be? Help me find it. Can't you find it? I think I remember seeing it at the bottom of the trunk! Here, sit on the trunk while I unfasten it. Now the top tray. Careful, so as not to shake the things off! Take this pink dress out, and these pink slippers, and the shoes. Ah, here it is! Now put the tray back. That's it! Sit here while I snap it. No, you snap it while I sit on it—I am heavier——"

"But the pink dress, and the slippers, and the shoes, Bertha. You're not going to leave them out!"

"Oh, dear! Take off the tray again. I'll put the things back. There! You sit on the trunk while I snap it. Why, it won't snap, will it?"

The top tray was again removed; and as before, the shoes were discovered to be between the tray and the ledge on which the tray should rest. When the shoes were packed in the middle of the trunk, the lid was closed.

"Where did I put the waist I was going to wear downtown, Peggy? The blue silk one——"

"The door bell again. It's the pills. Take one, Bertha—take 'em all. You need 'em worse than anybody in this neck of the woods—— The blue silk waist? It's on your blessed back this minute——"

"Oh, is it? Well, who wouldn't be flurried on their wedding day—and the bank closing at 3——"

"Must you go to the bank yourself?"

"Didn't I say so? Papa says he'll come home in time to give me away, but he'll be——"

"You may leave that, also, to my imagination. Why, what is the Chink tearing up here after?"

"Bertha! Bertha!! Bertha!!! Hop says the faucet's broken, and the water running all over the kitchen! Oh, why would you be married——"

"Heavens! I shall lose my head! Peggy, what do people do when the—— Have we got a monkey wrench? How do I know? What has that to do with—— Tell Thomas to come and fix it? Peggy, what a comfort you are! Would it be asking too much—that window behind you—— But he won't understand unless I—Thomas! Thomas!! Thomas!!!"

"The doorbell, Bertha—shall I run down? . . . It's Bobby Rowan. The flower girl has the mumps——"

"Rosy, don't you dare to bring that cat in here. Run away, darling, and sister will let you have the little doll on the wedding cake after a while. Stop your whining! No, you can't have it now! Here's sister's watch. Get out! Going down to luncheon? I? Peggy, you must be crazy! With these suit cases to pack, and my dressing to do, and the bank—— To get my pearls—they're in the safe deposit. It doesn't close till 6? Peggy, you are a comfort! Run down, dear, and eat."

. . . .

"The lobster salad was a dream, Bertha. You ought——"

"Did Hop have that salad for luncheon? Oh—never mind! It was for the wedding supper, that's all! The doorbell? Hop can go. Merciful powers! The best man? I wouldn't see him if it were the Prince of Timbuctoo. Oh, Jack sent the tickets? Forgot to leave them—— Oh! where did I put the collar that I unpacked just before you went to luncheon—the c[illegible] to this blue silk waist? I do believe—I packed [illegible] again! Here! You sit on it while I unsnap it—— [illegible] I'll sit on it while you unsnap it—I'm heavier. Ro[illegible] You here? Well, run and tell Thomas to get the hor[illegible] ready. These expressmen aren't to be depended upon—it's half-past 1 already. Now, where did I put the tickets? Did I take them? Didn't I take them? How can I get my trunks checked if I haven't any tickets? Right in plain sight? Why didn't you say so? Where did [illegible] put those keys? Where are they? Will you help [illegible] find them? Oh, I'm sure I put them here on the bure[illegible] M'm! Seems to me I remember putting them in m[illegible] button bag to keep track of them. Now, that button bag—oh, where did I put it? Where is it? Peggy, you help me find it. Blue, with silk strings. Oh—I locked it up in this suit case! Where is the key to the suit case—oh, I gave it to grandma to keep for me till this evening. Oh, where is grandma? Grandma! Grandma!! Grandma!!! Peggy, you go and find her."

"Bertha! Bertha!! Bertha!!! You gave the keys to me. Peggy, is it you, my dear? She would be married—— The doorbell! If you will be so kind——"

"It was a book agent, Bertha. Here are the keys."

"Now, what was I looking for? Oh, do tell me, Peggy! Ah, yes, the button bag. Here it is, right on top. You lock the suit case, and keep your eye on the key. What did I want with the button bag? Oh, here they are. What! You have the suit case locked? Well, I never! Now you will have to unlock it again and put this button bag back. What! I told you to lock it? Well, maybe I did, but I don't remember. Here—wait—let me take the trunk keys out of the button bag first. Now to lock the trunk. Did you call Thomas? Ah, here he is! Now, Thomas, you sit on the trunk while we snap it. No, I'll sit on it—I'm heavier. It is shut after all? I had forgotten. Now we'll —— Are the horses ready, Thomas? Ready for the last hour? Why didn't you tell me before? The bank closes at 3, and—what time is it? No clock here—Peggy, would you mind running downstairs and——"

"The bank doesn't close at 3, Bertha—at least, your part of it——"

"No matter—I'll get it off my mind—and the trunks—and everything. Thomas, lock it. Here is the key. What! It doesn't fit? Why, it must. It's the one they sent up. Give it to me, I'll lock it. Why, it doesn't lock, does it? I wonder what is the matter. Why, this is the suit-case key! Where is the other?"

Ten minutes were spent in locking and unlocking the trunk, and trying to work the combination so that the key might be drawn out.

"Thomas, this well never do. You must take this trunk back where I got it, and tell them—tell them—— Yes, you do know—— Right there at Hite's, opposite the carriage factory. You don't know where that is? And you a coachman! Well, you know where the Kandy Kitchen is—— Why, I've got the key out! Are you sure it's locked? Fine! Now, hurry, Thomas, [illegible] take it down to the carriage, because the bank closes at 3. I'll be down in five minutes. My blue belt—that goes with this dress—— Where did I put it? What did I do with it? Oh, where is it? No, not another one would do—I've packed all the rest of them, anyhow. Where— M'm—seems to me I remember putting it—— Peggy, run down and tell Thomas to bring the trunk up immediately—immediately, do you here? Thomas! Thomas!! Thomas!!! . . . Now, you sit on it while I unlock it—— No, I'll sit on it while you unlock it—I'm heavier. What, it won't unlock? You must be mistaken. Well, it won't, will it? You know where the Kandy Kitchen is? Hop, bring up a hatchet—I have to have that belt."

"Is this the belt on the bed, Bertha?"

"Thomas, take the trunk back. I'll be down as soon as I have my belt on. Peg, you have been so good to me—— Mother, dear, I can't stop now. Yes, I know the bank closes at 3—I'll be back soon—Peggy, would it be asking too much—— This awful room—yes, Thomas, I'm coming."

Sound of wheels.

"Poor, dear Bertha! She is such a heedless—one may say, headless——"

Sound of wheels.

"Peggy! Peggy!! Peggy!!! My suit cases—I left them under the bed—and my purse, on the chair—and my embroidered duck suit—— Would it be asking too much—— You are such a comfort, Peggy!"

Sound of wheels.

THREE ROSE GARDENS.

[From the German of Trojan.]

Down in the sunlit valley
  Round which the mountains close,
Enwrapt in summer silence,
  A garden of roses glows.

And higher, where the summits
  In lonely grandeur rise,
Fashioned of snow and sunlight,
  A garden of roses lies.

Beyond the peaks another
  Rose garden, set on high,
Flames crimson when dawn's fire
  Leaps upward in the sky.

From earth up to heaven's portal
  The three rose gardens soar.
Perchance one more rose garden
  Blooms on a further shore?

KITTY FENTON'S MEMORABLE VISIT TO A PAWNSHOP.

By a Special Contributor.

"Double, double, toil and trouble, Fire burn and caldron bubble," ughed Susan as she stirred the chafing dish. "But, girls, getting late—half-past 7 and after. I'm afraid Kitty issed her train from the city."

"Oh, I guess not. A slow 'bus man, probably. Or aybe she had to 'phone for a carriage. There is no counting on service here," Margaret volunteered as she dusted the cups—for the fortieth time, I thought.

"That chocolate smells done to me, Susan," I drawled from my lazy perch on the couch by the window. "I wish she'd come. I'm hungry."

"It is done," and Susan, the practical, lifted the lid. "I've turned the fire as low as I can, but it will spoil pretty soon. Deary me," she sighed as she moved restlessly about.

"But what if she missed the train?" Margaret always imagined the worst. "Wouldn't it be dreadful, girls?"

We all solemnly agreed that it would, for Kitty had been gone since Friday, and this was Sunday evening—truly a long time when four girls have been inseparable chums in college since the loneliness of freshman days.

"Oh, but she hasn't missed the train," I insisted. "It's only the 'bus driver, I tell you."

"Optimist!" laughed Susan.

"I can't help it," I assented. 'I'm—er—plump, you know."

The girls laughed. My weight was a joke among them all, but even reflections of so personal a nature bothered me not at all.

"I wonder what her Uncle Ned will bring this time," I commented lazily, to make conversation.

"Jean!" exclaimed Margaret disapprovingly. "Just as if he always had to send us something!"

"But he always does," affirmed Susan.

"And let's hope he always will!" I exclaimed with mock fervor. Then I held my ear to the near-by window that faced the street. "Hark! It's a 'bus! Don't you hear it turn? She's come, after all!" and we scampered quickly down the hall to welcome Kitty as she climbed the stairs.

"Girls!" Kitty dropped suit case and bag to give us, each in our turn, an enthusiastic hug. "I'm tired, dead tired," she sighed as we reached the room. "But you are cooking something—chocolate? Good! I need something hot to brace me up."

She did look tired and a bit worried about the eyes, I thought, as I unpinned her hat and slipped off the yer shoes which a slight drizzle had made necessary.

"Are you very tired?" I asked anxiously.

"Oh, just rather 'fussed up' inside, I guess. I'll be all right when I get something hot, and have a chance to tell you all about it."

"Well, begin now. We are always so curious about what you will have to tell us," I coaxed.

But Kitty shook her head. "No, let's eat first. There is a box of candied fruit in my suit case from Uncle Ned, and I truly meant to bring you some chocolates, but this happened, and I forgot."

"Something special happened?"

Kitty nodded.

"Something unpleasant?"

"Something dreadful! But do hurry and eat first, so I can tell you. You won't want a bite after I tell you what I know," and Kitty sighed disconsolately over her chocolate.

With such an introduction we managed to eat next to nothing, and even Uncle Ned's candied fruit stood barely tasted on the table.

"Well," said Kitty when we claimed to have finished, "it all came from being curious and going to a pawnshop."

"A pawnshop!" we exclaimed, all in a breath.

"Yes, a really, truly pawnshop. It's not so dreadful—I rather like it."

"But tell us—tell us everything," we demanded impatiently.

"Well, you know Uncle Ned does most anything I ask him and when I said I was dying to go to a pawnshop, he just laughed and said he'd better save my life. So I went. Uncle Ned thought I was dreadfully silly, I guess, but haven't you been crazy to see the inside of a pawnshop? I have, anyhow."

Kitty paused, and let her information impress itself duly upon us.

"We went to a little out-of-the-way place kept by a fat old Dutchman. It was quite respectable, Uncle Ned said. The man had tiny little eyes, and when he laughed—why, he just seemed to shake and roll all over. Uncle Ned knew him, I guess—he knows lots of queer characters in his newspaper work—and they shook hands when we came in.

"There were things and things and things. I thought I never should get through looking. And guess what I saw about the first of all—a cap and gown hanging on a nail in the back! It made me feel half-sick. Wouldn't it be terrible to have to pawn your cap and gown?"

We all acknowledged it would, and Kitty hurried on.

"The old man chuckled when he saw me interested. 'Eine studenten?' he questioned Uncle, and then laughed as if he had discovered a good joke. It almost made me cross, until I saw that he was so fat he simply couldn't help laughing, and then I laughed, too. Why, even Margaret would see a joke with him around," and Kitty smiled mischievously at us all.

We smiled in return. This was like her usual stories of adventure with Uncle Ned, and we began munching the candied fruit with quite our customary enjoyment.

Kitty continued. "It was all such fun, peeping at this and that, until"—such a tragic note crept into her voice that we almost expected to hear she had been murdered—"until I found these!" From her purse she pulled out excitedly a string of gold beads.

"Beads!" exclaimed Margaret.

"Almost like yours," Susan volunteered.

"Yours!" and my breath stopped in the asking.

Kitty nodded her head.

"Are you sure?" I urged. "Positively sure?"

"Aren't they graduated in size with that peculiar chased bead in the center?" Susan was a defective by instinct. "And I'll wager there's the same number of beads. I counted yours once. Let's count these, and see."

Susan and Margaret began the task of counting, but I turned to Kitty impatiently. "But how?" I asked. "You didn't lose them in the city. You lost them here."

"That's just the point, Jean, dear. I lost them here."

"They're yours for sure, Kitty; exactly the same number of beads. And—why, here are your initials! Aren't they cute little letters? I never saw them before."

"Why, I didn't, either. Are you sure?"

"Well, look, then. 'K. F.' Aren't those your initials, Kitty Fenton?"

Kitty nodded. "And I never saw them before!"

We laughed. "You discover all sorts of interesting things after you lose something, don't you, Kitty, dear?" I teased, but Kitty was serious.

"Girls, it isn't funny; it's dreadful! If those are my beads, they must have been stolen. Do you hear? stolen, and somebody in this dormitory is a thief."

"A thief!" we gasped. "Who?"

Kitty hesitated. "Well, who could it be—who knew anything about it, but——"

"Freda!" exclaimed Margaret.

"Now, girls, I haven't said it was Freda, but listen. You know I had them when I came home from the Sophomore party, and Freda was working on that old thesis of hers. Well, she helped me undress, and that is the last I saw of them."

We nodded assent. This part of the story we had heard before.

"But, Kitty, that's hardly fair," I interrupted.

"Now, Jean, of course I never dreamed of such a thing until all this happened, and I haven't said yet that it was Freda. I don't believe that it was Freda, but listen. When I saw those gold beads, I fairly gasped. 'Why, Uncle Ned, they're mine, the ones you gave me. They've been lost for a month!' He only laughed, but when I proved they were mine, he was serious, too. Even the old broker got quite excited by it all. She was a pretty girl, he told us, who brought the beads, with black hair and eyes, and she seemed frightened by what she was doing. But she took the beads from her neck, and gave them for one of 'dose dings,' he said in his funny way that I can't possibly imitate, pointing to a cap and gown on the wall. My beads pawned for a cap and gown by a pretty black-haired girl! It took my breath, girls, and I don't believe I have quite got it yet."

"Freda went to the city, the day she came home with a cap and gown," volunteered Margaret mercilessly.

"And you know how sorry we all were because Freda didn't feel able to buy one. When she appeared with this one, we were so surprised!" Susan proudly added her link to the chain of evidence.

"But she said her sister gave it to her," affirmed Kitty stoutly. "It was such a surprise to her, too, because she didn't see where she got the money without denying herself."

"Yes, she said so," added skeptical Margaret.

"And don't you know she seemed half-bothered all the time, and not half as pleased as she should have been?" Susan, the practical, was at work finding her clews.

"Nonsense, girls!" I exclaimed. "That was only because she thought her sister needed the money, and she is too unselfish to be happy if somebody else is doing without. You forget whom we are talking about. Why, we've always loved Freda, and now you are accusing her of something dreadful."

"Optimist again," frowned Margaret.

"But it's silly to go on so," I urged. "She couldn't have done it, and that is all there is to it."

"Oh, I wish I hadn't gone to that silly pawn shop," groaned Kitty. "I have just thought and thought. Of course, it isn't Freda, but how could it all happen? Uncle Ned was furious. He said the evidence was unmistakable and threatened to report to authorities if I did not. To have me rooming with such a girl! It was dreadful! Uncle Ned is great fun, but when he's angry——" Kitty shrugged her shoulders. "I had my way, though, and he won't say anything."

"Why, that would keep her from graduating, and she just must graduate. She has to suport herself next year by teaching," I answered hotly.

"I wouldn't tell if they'd eat me alive," affirmed Kitty nobly.

"But oughtn't you to?" urged Margaret. "She might take other things."

"Well, she can have everything I own if she would just let me give things, instead of taking them."

"Kitty, you're silly!" I exclaimed. Sometimes I hated my coolheadedness and envied the other girls their spasms of impractical imaginings, but today I was indignant at them. "She didn't take those beads, and she won't take anything else."

"But she must have," pursued Susan the detective. "Wasn't she the last person to see the beads? And shortly after didn't she go to the city, only to come back with a cap and gown which she couldn't afford? And didn't she act guilty? And doesn't it all point that way?" Susan was out of breath, and I was glad of it.

"Yes, and the broker described her perfectly. Besides, aren't those Kitty's beads, initials and all?" Margaret finished the accusation.

"I hate them, I hate them!" cried Kitty as she tossed the offending beads out of sight on the couch.

We were decidedly a disconcerted four as we sat thinking over the cold evidence.

"It couldn't be Freda," sighed Kitty. "Why, I've roomed with Freda French for a year, and she's been so sweet and dear. Just to look at her you'd know she couldn't, and yet—there is the evidence. Oh, Jean, dear, what shall I do?"

"Don't feel bad, Kitty," I comforted. "Of course it couldn't be Freda, and yet—well, it must be," and I lowered my head, ashamed of the confession.

At that, hurried footsteps sounded outside the door, and we all instinctively tried to look a bit more natural.

"We mustn't even pretend," warned Kitty, as I called the usual "Come."

The door opened and Freda walked in, dressed in her cap and gown. She was undeniably beautiful, with a soft flush to her cheeks and fire in her eyes. She had been long our ideal Senior, but now I felt my muscles tighten in instinctive reserve. Yet my face burned for very shame.

"I just came down from the Senior luncheon we were having in full-dress uniform," she commented by way of apology for her attire. "Why, you here, Kitty? Oh, I'm so glad! I didn't know it was time for your train. I've missed my little Sophomore. How are you, and was the trip as pleasant as usual?" She went over to put an arm about Kitty, who still crouched miserably on her corner of the couch.

"But you are so solemn, all of you!" she exclaimed, suddenly becoming conscious of the general restraint. "Any Sophomore trouble?"

"Oh, not at all," I answered hastily. "Won't you have some candied fruit from Kitty's Uncle Ned?"

"In a minute, when I tell you my news. Can't you all see that I'm overbubbling with news? And you won't even ask!"

"News?" questioned Kitty. "Good news?" and her voice sounded as if she never again had believed good news possible.

"Of course good news. What else? Open your eyes and shut your mouth, and I will show you something to surprise you. This." She laughed as she held a string of gold beads to the light.

"Beads?" we gasped. There was really nothing more we could do.

"Yes, Kitty's beads. You can't guess where I found them—in the Latin dictionary! And here that stupid thing has been hiding them all the while since you undressed and I finished my thesis. Aren't you relieved, dear? I was so excited that I came rushing down immediately to tell the rest of you, even if Kitty shouldn't be here. I knew you would all be delighted. We had a discussion upstairs about a Latin word, or dear knows when we should have found them."

She began eating candied cherries while the rest of us looked too much overcome for words.

"I have been especially interested in these beads," she continued. "I've worried a lot, because Kara, my sister, has a string almost like them. Our aunt gave them to her, and she prizes them highly on that account. Then—well, you know when there is no father to provide, we don't have much money for finery, and we prize what little we have. Kara's beads have her initials, a little 'K. F.,' on the clasp. It's very insignificant, but the cutest part about the beads, I think. Mercy me, it's getting late, and I must be running along now! I've a hundred little things to do, and you cronies want to talk. Come to bed early, Kitty, dear, and rest up from your trip." She kissed her fingers to the rest of us, and was gone.

"Well!" exclaimed Margaret.

"Jean," sobbed Kitty, "I knew it all the time. I knew it! But it looked so bad with the evidence. Will she ever forgive me?"

"Kitty, dear, don't worry. She never will know how horrid we've been."

"And the beads?"

"Why, they are her sister's, of course. We'll send them to her by the next mail. She'll never need to know anything, either, except that they are like the cat that always came back."

'But mustn't she be splendid, to pawn her beads that way? Why, girls, it's most like meeting a real martyr," and Kitty looked nearly ready to cry.

Indeed, we all felt misty about our eyes, and I took a piece of candied orange to conceal my feelings.

"Let's," I began, suddenly taken by a new notion—"let's save money enough to buy Freda some gold beads for commencement. Will that square it all up?"

"Graduated beads," added Margaret.

"With initials on the clasp," cried Susan.

Then we all laughed and shook hands on a good bargain.

THE CROCODILE.

["A crocodile escaped from a broken case yesterday at the St. Lazare Station, Paris, and strolled into the street. It only smiled when it was hit by five revolver bullets, but two policemen captured it with a slip-knot."—Daily Paper.]

To try to shoot the crocodile
Is really hardly worth one's while;
For if your bullet hits the beast
It does not mind it in the least.

Protected by a coat of mail
From horny snout to tip of tail,
At pistol shots it only grins—
It does not care a row of pins.

A curious case of this we see
In what the Cockney calls "Paree"
(The paper which we quote, we beg
To say, would never pull our leg.)

But where this brief report might fail
Ourselves take up the wondrous tale.
The fate that finally befell
The crocodile we now will tell.

While strolling down the "bullyvar,"
The creature went a bit too far.
A café concert show it tried,
And then alas! it died—it died.

Good Short Stories.

BRIEF ANECDOTES GATHERED FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

Compiled for The Times.

Awkward Misunderstanding.

"I HAVE known M. Louis Bleriot a number of years," said, in New York, a member of the Aëro Club. "Bleriot always claimed that man ought to have flown centuries ago—with the birds, you know, up there in the blue from the very start to teach him.

"At a dinner he gave in June at the Café de Paris, M. Bleriot told us that we had all misunderstood the air—misunderstood the air as completely as the King of Oude misunderstood Lord Dalhousie.

"When Lord Dalhousie, he explained, was commander-in-chief of the British Indian forces, he visited the King of Oude at Lucknow, and made a point of presenting Lady Dalhousie.

"The King of Oude, glittering with diamonds, sat in his gold chair and narrowly watched Lady Dalhousie advance across the marble floor of the great hall. He did not understand Lord Dalhousie's presentation. He thought Lord Dalhousie wanted to sell this withered woman to him.

"And shaking his head, twisting his black mustache, and smiling scornfully, he said, as the countess curtsied low before his throne:

" 'Take her away. Take her away. She won't do at all.' "

The Prophet Without Honor.

REGINALD DE KOVEN, the composer, motored recently to his native Middletown. There, as he strolled in a sun-blistered street, he met one of the friends of his boyhood. The friend threw down his pick, climbed out of the hole he was digging, and shook hands warmly.

"By the way," he said, "are you any relation to Reginald De Koven, the composer?"

Mr. De Koven smiled.

"I am he," he answered.

"No, no," said the other, impatiently. "I mean De Koven, the great composer from New York. The one that's writing a grand opera on 'Trilby,' you know."

"Yes," said De Koven, laughing; "yes, that's me."

With an exclamation of disgust the boyhood friend turned and leaped back into his hole.

"De Koven," he sneered, "you always were a liar."

No, He Never Bragged.

"THE average American millionaire," said an American socialist, in a recent address, "brags too much about his wealth.

"I stated this fact one day in the smoker of a Pullman. My companion agreed with me, but a fat man across the aisle, who must have been listening, leaned across and said sternly:

" 'Young man, you're all wrong. The American millionaire rarely, if ever, brags about money. I, for example, never bragged about my money in my life, and yet I'm worth close on to four millions!' "

The Motive.

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE is no friend to the new Suffragette slogan, "No vote, no husband." She says the plan is old—she says it was tried unsuccessfully in the days of Aristophanes.

"My Suffragette friends have disappointed me," the famous poet declared in a recent interview. "I expected their slogan to be some new, startling thing; and lo! it is old, old and familiar.

"They remind me, my Suffragette friends, of a witness at a Boston inquest.

" 'Witness,' said the Coroner, 'do you know what motive the deceased had in committing suicide?'

" 'Yes, Judge, Your Honor,' said the witness pompously. 'Deceased told me his motive, sir.'

"The Coroner, the court officers, everybody, looked interested.

" 'What was, then, deceased's motive, witness?' said the Coroner.

" 'Why, Your Honor, he said he wanted to kill himself,' was the reply."

* * *

Golden Silence.

THE brilliant District Attorney of New York, William Travers Jerome, was discussing at the Union Club a case wherein certain suppressed evidence seemed to show that bribery figured.

Mr. Jerome, putting out his cagarette in a brass tray, dismissed the case with a contemptuous laugh.

"Those people realize too well," he said, "the truth of the old saw about speech being silver and silence golden. Silence golden—or, as they put it—'hush money.' "

False Doctrine.

THE late Dr. Theodore Wolf, professor of chemistry at Delaware College, set office holders a rare example of unselfishness by having his fees as State chemist greatly reduced on the ground that they were exorbitant.

"Dr. Wolf," said a Newark man, "was a delightful lecturer. I often dropped into the college to hear him. I'll never forget one of his lectures on quack medicines.

"He told us about an early patient of his, a man who dosed himself with about a half-peck of pills and two or three gallons of quack medicine every week.

"There was nothing the matter with the fool but all this silly medicine swilling, and Dr. Wolf told him so, but it did no good.

"Then Dr. Wolf appealed to the man's wife to stop him, but she declared that it couldn't be done. She had quoted at him, again and again, she said, the verse in the liturgy that pointed out his sin, and——

" 'But where,' interrupted Dr. Wolf, bewildered, 'where does the liturgy say anything against taking quack medicine?'

"She was prompt with her reply:

" 'From all false doctoring—good Lord deliver us!' "

Just As Wide.

ORVILLE WRIGHT was discussing at Fort Meyer the many flying men that have sprung up since his brother and he showed the world how flight was achieved.

"To fly," said Mr. Wright, "just to fly, that is nothing The real thing is to fly right.

"These little flyers, skipping and hopping a mile or two, remind one, with their self-important airs, of a railroader of the sixties.

"This railroader called on old Commodore Vanderbilt.

" 'Commodore,' he said, heartily, 'I want to exchange courtesies with you. I'm the president of the Miles City and Glendive line, and here's a pass over our road.'

"He laid a pass on the table.

" 'I'd like to have,' he said, 'a pass over the Vanderbilt roads in return, Commodore.'

"The old railroad king studied his visitor with knit brows.

" 'Where is this road of yours?' he asked.

" 'Out West,' was the reply.

" 'Is it a well-known road?'

" 'Oh, a famous road, Commodore.'

" 'How big is it?'

" 'Well, Commodore, we are operating on twenty-seven miles this year.'

" 'Twenty-seven miles!' cried Commodore Vanderbilt angrily. 'And the Vanderbilt lines are thousands of miles long! And you call that an exchange of courtesies? Here, take back your pass, sir. It's no good to me."

"The westerner thrust the rejected pass into his pocket and clapped his soft felt hat on his head.

" 'Well, so long, Commodore,' he blustered defiantly. 'Your road may be a little longer than mine is, but it isn't any wider!' "

A Ducal Melon Lover.

THE DUKE OF SUTHERLAND, at a dinner in New York, praised ardently the icy and delicious watermelon.

"I better understand now," he said, "a story that I heard on the voyage over.

"This story was told me by an interesting southerner. He said a colored preacher in his town cried vehemently one August Sunday in the course of his sermon:

" 'Breddern an' sistern, ah warns yo' against de heinous sin o' shootin' craps! Ah charges yo' against de brack rascality o' liftin' pullets! But above all else, breddern an' sistern, Ah demonishes yo' at dishyer season against de crime o' melon stealin'!'

" 'Ch——'

"A brother in a back seat made an odd sound with his lips, rose and snapped his fingers. Then he sat down again with an abashed look.

" 'Whuffo, mah frien', said the preacher sternly, 'does yo' r'ar up an' snap yo' fingahs when ah speaks o' melon stealin'?'

" 'Yo' jes' reminds me, pahson,' the man in the back seat answered meekly, "har Ah lef' mah knife.' "

Depew in Form.

SENATOR DEPEW, at a tariff dinner in Washington, was in superb form. His definition of memory set the table in a roar.

"Memory," said Senator Depew, "is the feeling that steals over us when we listen to our friends' original stories."

On Ignorance.

BISHOP W. A. GUERRY of South Carolina told at a dinner party in Columbia a number of amusing anecdotes about ignorance.

"A verger in a young friend's church," he said, "on being asked if the rector was married, answered:

" 'No, ma'am; he's a chalybeate.'

"And it was probably in this same town that a newspaper, accusing the rector of being too 'high,' said:

" 'He practices, we are informed, the most unblushing form of celibacy.'

"In the next paragraph, came the sneer:

" 'With unusual pomp he celebrates the evening service—or evening matins, as he prefers to say.' "

Lost Temper.

JIM JEFFRIES was continuing, with a group of Minneapolis reporters, his thoughtful talks on the morals of muscularity.

"Muscular morality," said the pugilist, 'requires self-control. The temper must never be lost. Ah, think, gentlemen, how much happier the world would be if no one ever lost his temper."

The pugilist lighted a cigar and chuckled.

"Lost temper does great harm," he said. "I once knew a man who held thirteen trumps at whist, and, on account of his partner's temper, he only took one trick with that ideal hand."

"Impossible!" sneered a reporter who conducted a weekly bridge column.

"Impossible? Not at all," was the pugilist's reply. "You see, as soon as this man trumped his partner's ace on the first play, his partner in a rage jumped up and kicked him out of the room."

A Tonic.

"E. H. HARRIMAN laughed," said a foreign correspondent, "when I told him about the newspaper stories of his bread and beer diet.

"He laughed, he began another of his hourly meals—cold beef and stewed fruit—and he said it was food, not beer, that he was taking for a tonic.

"He said food was almost as good a tonic as Mrs. Floyd Smith's. Mrs. Floyd Smith, he explained, was walking in the avenue with her aged but rich husband. The old fellow shuffled along, drooping and spiritless, and suddenly his wife perceived her girlhood chum, Mrs. Lloyd Brown, approaching with her own husband, a poor book-keeper, but young, handsome and dashing.

"What was Mrs. Floyd Smith to do to put a little go in her bent and listless mate? An idea came to her, and she exclaimed:

" 'John, who is that beautiful girl smiling at you from the taxicab?'

" 'Where? Where?' cried the old man, drawing himself proudly erect and casting eagle glances to left and right."

The Generous Sardine.

PATRICK F. MURPHY, during his stay in Paris last month, was the lion of the city. Such after-dinner speaking had never been heard there before. Mr. Murphy, it was unanimously agreed, was better than Depew at his best.

Paris was above all amused by his circus story. This story was reproduced in Figaro, and even in the serious Temps. As Mr. Murphy told it at a dinner in the gray old Rue de Varenne, the most aristocratic street in the aristocratic Fáubourg St. Germain, it ran:

"One summer afternoon the frog, the duck, the lamb and the skunk set out together for the circus. Down the dusty, sunny road they passed in single file. In due course they reached the village green. There in the middle of the green stood the circus tent, as white as snow in the sun. They gave a shout of joy, and ran forward.

"The frog reached the doorkeeper first. As he had a greenback, of course he was passed right in.

"The duck had a bill, so he followed the frog.

"The lamb had four quarters. He trailed after the frog and the duck.

"But entrance was sternly refused the unlucky skunk. For he had only a scent with him, and that was bad.

"The skunk, cursing and growling in a low tone, turned away. He slouched slowly back along the road he had traveled so gaily a half-hour before. Hundreds of animals, chattering and laughing about the delights of the circus, passed him unheeded by. But the sardine noticed his forlorn look and stopped.

" 'Hello, what's the matter?' said the sardine.

"The skunk told him.

" 'Well, old fellow, I know just how you must feel about it,' said the sardine sympathetically, 'for I belong, you know, to the smelt family myself.'

"Then he laughed and slapped the disappointed skunk heartily on the back.

" 'But you're all right now,' he cried. 'Come back and go in with me. I've got a box.' "

Darky Philosophy.

THE old-time darky is often a keen philosopher and an excellent judge of human nature.

One of these typical old "aunties" was sitting in a California street car when a southern woman boarded it. In this land of the "progressive colored person," the old negro looked like a letter from home to the southern woman, who immediately opened conversation.

The car stopped to take on a flashily-dressed blond who ostentatiously seated herself between the southern woman and the negro (the seats in the car being the long side seats,) then noticing her proximity to the negro, just as ostentatiously removed herself to the seat across the car. The old darky looked at the southern woman with a sly twinkle in her eye.

"Honey," she said softly, "if any of her fambly had ever owned anything like me, she'd jess as leave set in my lap."

That Tired Feeling.

JOHN G. JOHNSON, Philadelphia's famous lawyer, was discussing drunkenness from the legal point of view in the smokeroom of the Rotterdam.

"No," said Mr. Johnson, smiling, "the law doesn't take the eccentric view of drunkenness that prevails among hard drinkers.

"A hard drinker's view of drunkenness is very odd. I once examined a man who had been seen by several witnesses snoring over a large beer and a small whisky in a saloon. This man, though, swore he was not drunk.

" 'I was only,' he said, 'fatigued with drinkin'.' "

Helpful Mamie.

A NEW use for children was discovered on the lower East Side. The scene was a Greek shoe-shining "parlor." Several patrons of the "parlor" peered over their papers when a piping voice exclaimed:

"Mom says to hurry up, Mamie."

Mamie was about 9 years old and was perched on the long bench with the other patrons. The only thing noticeable about her was the size of her shoes, which were gaining a luster under the manipulations of a Greek slavey. The latter helped her down from her perch and turned to wait on another patron.

"That girl has pretty big feet," observed the patron.

"Naw," replied the Greek. "Her ma she is goin' out tonight and sent the girl here with her shoes on to clean 'em."—[New York Sun.

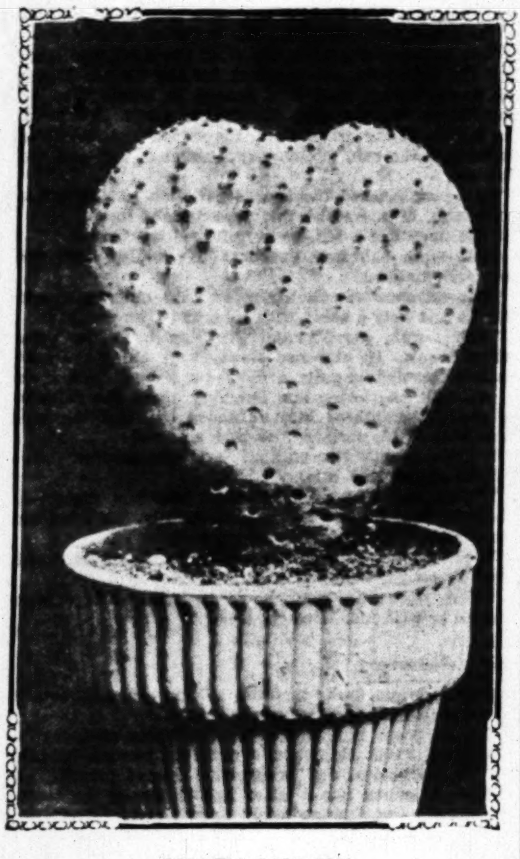
The House Beautiful—Its Flower Garden and Grounds.

GROWING PERENNIALS.

By Ernest Braunton.

AT no time of the year do the herbaceous perennials so force recognition of their value and beauty as just at present. Nearly all of them are now in bloom, have just stopped, or are just beginning—we are now in the very middle of the blooming period. Fashions in flowers, as well as in other matters, are constantly changing, and though new flowers are continually being introduced and the old-fashioned perennials are seldom mentioned, their merit has kept them from being neglected to any serious extent. Expressions of derision, such as calling a collection of them a "grandmother's garden," etc., have not made them in the least unpopular, and the many and marked improvements in this class of plants have rendered them more desirable than were the same sorts in the days of our grandmothers.

No class of plants give better returns for the care bestowed upon them than the garden perennials, and few of them may be prevented from flowering even though considerably neglected. Many are the inquiries that come to this department asking for lists of perennials for certain soils, but nearly all those commonly grown will thrive in any garden if kept free from weeds and well watered. Heading the list in this respect comes the goldenrod, now to be seen in all its glory, a flower known in every State in the Union, and calling forth from thousands of our residents the exclamation: "It reminds me so strongly of back East!" The present is a good time for sowing, and the list of possibilities quite extensive. In looking over these lists, one must remember that there are annuals as well as perennials in many plants, and these are often quite unlike, the asters being a good illustration. The annual China aster is a large, fine flower, but the blossoms of the perennials are small.



OPUNTIA BASILARIS.

It is now time to sow seeds of: Aster, bottonia, columbine, Canterbury bells, foxglove, helianthus, hollyhock, larkspur, phlox, poppies, stokesia, and Sweet William. Evergreen perennials may also be sown now, seedlings of Shasta daisy are now coming up in the writer's garden. Penstemons are easily grown from seeds; and while dwelling upon these, we must not forget our native, perennial rooted species. The present is also a good time to sow seeds of coreopsis, California poppies, Hunnemannia—in fact almost everything except seeds of tropical plants like the dahlias and cannas. Nurserymen are now sowing seeds of eucalypts, acacias and plants of that class from climates similar to our own, as Australia and Africa. Professionals have been sowing these since the first of July, and some will not sow until September. We have so many trees of this class now seeding that any one may soon get enough plants to stock a good-sized garden, and with little trouble, too. Returning to the subject of perennials, it is far better to sow them in boxes and then transplant, and such is the case with many annuals, especially pansies, which are now in sowing season.

San Diego Floral Association.

Down in San Diego there exists the liveliest, healthiest floral club in California. The membership list contains over 300 names of the very best citizens in the city. For the past two years they have held a fall exhibition during the last week in October, and this year they expect to surpass all former efforts. In July there appeared the first number of their little floral magazine, published monthly at 50 cents per year, and it fairly teems with interesting and instructive articles. The publication is known as the California Garden, and is well worth the subscription price to any garden owner. One of the officers writes that she cannot get along without reading the "House Beautiful" department, and adds: "We have found it full of valuable matter and absolutely reliable, too. The several leading articles in the California Garden are by both professionals and successful amateurs, some of them well known throughout California.

A Climbing Dahlia.

A few years ago there was discovered a plant known to science as Hidalgoa Werkeli, but by popular consent called the "Climbing Dahlia." It has not proven an easy plant to grow in any part of our country, and Southern California was supposed to be too dry for it, so that few have purchased, and until this year probably no one has flowered it locally. E. D. Sturtevant of Hollywood has a single plant that has just opened its first flower and promises many more, and the plant is vigorous, being now fifteen feet high. The color of the flower is scarlet.

Giant Asters.

For years and years asters have been one of the most experimented upon of all garden flowers, and we have at each improvement thought that the limit had been reached. A grower from Signal Hill, near Long Beach, left a bunch in the office of the writer last week that is a new strain and superior to anything yet grown in these parts. So fine were they that a local artist asked for one of each shade that she might paint them on canvas. Each flower was as large as an ordinary chrysanthemum, but much more handsome.

Victoria Regia History. (1838.)

"It flowers in its native country, British Guiana, in January. From all we at present know of this extraordinary aquatic (1838,) it is probable that its culture will be the same as that of Euryale ferox Nympheae, to which it is nearly allied. It was discovered by R. H. Schomburgk, Esq., in 1837, and named after Her Majesty the Queen. Mr. Schomburgk transmitted the original drawings to the Botanical Society of London, accompanied with a description which was read before that society September 7, 1837, and of which the following is an extract: "While contending with the difficulties nature opposed in different forms to our progress up the River Berlice, we arrived at a point where the river expanded, and formed a currentless basin, some object on the southern extremity of this basin attracted my attention; it was impossible to form any idea of what it could be, and animating the crew to increase the rate of paddling. Shortly afterward we were opposite the object which had raised my curiosity—a vegetable wonder. All calamities were forgotten. I felt as a botanist, and felt myself rewarded. A gigantic leaf, from five to six feet in diameter, salver-shaped, with a broad rim of a bright green above, and a vivid crimson below, resting upon the water; quite in character with the wonderful leaf was the luxuriant flower, consisting of many hundred petals, passing in alternate tints from pure white to rose and pink. The smooth water was covered with them; I rowed from one to another, and observed always something new to admire. The leaf on its surface is of a bright green, in form orbiculate, with this exception opposite its axis, where it is slightly bent in; its diameter measured from five to six feet; around the margin extended a rim from three to five inches high, on the inside light green, like the surface of the leaf; on the outside like the leaf's lower part, of a bright crimson. The stem of the flower is an inch thick near the calyx, and is studded with sharp elastic prickles, about three-quarters of an inch in length. The calyx is four-leafed, each upward of seven inches in length and three in breadth at the base; they are thick, white inside, reddish-brown and prickly outside. The diameter of the calyx is twelve or thirteen inches; on it rests the magnificent flower, which, when fully developed, covers completely the calyx with its hundred petals. When it first opens it is white with pink in the middle, which spreads over the white flower the more it advances in age, and it is generally found the next day of a pink color; as if to enhance its beauty, it is sweet-scented. Like others of its tribe, it possesses a fleshy disk, and petals and stamens pass gradually into each other, and many petaloid leaves may be observed, which have vestiges of an anther. We met them afterward frequently, and the higher we advanced the more gigantic they became. We measured a leaf, which was six feet five inches in diameter, its rim five and a half inches high, and the flower across fifteen inches."

A Native Cactus.

Out a little over 100 miles east of Los Angeles lies what is known as the Colorado Desert, or that arm of it within the State of California, between Banning and Yuma. On this desert grows several species of cacti that are staple commercial species. Among these one of the most common and also the showiest when in bloom is Opuntia basilaris, which bears fine large magenta blossoms in great profusion.

Covets a fresh, smooth, satiny complexion and what a satisfaction and peace of mind its possession brings. The lines of age, worry and overwork (deadly enemies of a woman's beauty), are rendered well-nigh powerless by Mrs. Nettie Harrison's Lola Montez Creme. Other Cremes fail to produce the delightful sensation of refreshing coolness and relaxation to a dry, drawn or chapped skin. Its remarkable healing and soothing effect immediately follows the first application, and most important it does not promote the growth of down upon the face. For wrinkles and massage it is simply ideal—one trial discloses its exclusive individuality. Would-be imitators have utterly failed in their efforts to learn its secret. The City Beautiful—Its Avenues, Streets, Parks and Lakes.

CLEAN STREETS.

[illegible] ARE VALUABLE ASSETS OF ANY CITY OR TOWN.

[illegible]NE of the most valuable assets of any city, town, [illegible] or community lies in clean streets. In spite of the [illegible] fact that each year we have more miles of them to [illegible] up in Los Angeles, they are each year becoming [illegible]. Streets full of mud connecting with paved streets soon cover the latter completely over, but as the pavements extend farther in every direction from the business center, in time the mud does not reach our principal streets in any serious amount.

That our streets have not been too clean is evidenced [illegible] the fact that their extreme cleanliness during the [illegible] of the Elks' Carnival was noted by both residents [illegible] visitors. If it is possible to keep them noticeably [illegible] during such a time, it surely does not require such a supreme effort to have them presentable at all times. The writer heard several visiting Elks say that they had never before marched over such clean streets, and these remarks have caused a closer inspection of our streets of late by many of our citizens who overheard these favorable comments. There is no doubt that our streets are now kept constantly cleaner than ever before, so that if the fame of Los Angeles in that respect is noised abroad we will no doubt be able to live up to our reputation.

European cities pride themselves on clean streets above all other public works, and some cities are famous the world over for the splendid condition of their public thoroughfares. One facetious writer in the September Ladies' Home Journal says that in Berlin they not only wash the pavements every morning, but wipe them, too. "If a man drops a newspaper on a Berlin street, he is arrested, fined, imprisoned, lectured, reduced in rank, disfranchised, beaten with a club, mobbed, boycotted and deported to America—where he belongs." World-wide travelers have said that all European cities have streets cleaner than in America, so the shoe probably fits our right foot. He gets back at Berlin, though, by saying: "I sometimes wish I were a street here, it is so much harder to get a bath if you are a human being in a hotel." This is, however, no reflection on the general population, for those who keep their streets clean know well the value of water.

Organization of Nature Study.

An article recently appeared in the journal of the New York Botanic Garden, by Mary P. Anderson, in which it is shown that the nature-study programmes arranged in the early days of the movement have been superseded by those based on more common sense lines. In plant study, no so-called botany is taught in the lower grades, no scientific classification is allowed, but the child becomes intimately acquainted with the living plant.

Attention is called to the modern viewpoint as to the proper subject matter for nature-study work, i. e., its relation to the life of the child. The June bug is not studied merely as an example of the beetles, but is approached through the fat white grub that is responsible for the patches of dead grass in our lawn. The star fish no longer gets its interest for the child as a classic example of the radiates, but from the fact that it also eats oysters. The child is not ready for the scientific classification attempted in early nature-study programmes; he is the center of his own universe, which must be explored in gradually-widening circles. The author suggests home and its immediate surroundings, home geography, and industrial geography, as the important centers of activity for the first five grades.

England Wants Beautiful Cities.

A recent number of the English Buildings News contains a plaintive cry for much-needed help. English wants are thus specified:

"What England wants just now is a man, or several, of infinite ability and ample means, who, purely for the sake of their art alone, will prepare imaginary schemes showing how and in what way our cities ought to grow if they are to be healthy dwelling-places and beauty spots instead of blots upon our land."

The Victorian Bottle Tree.

The bottle tree, Sterculia diversifolia, does not find the heavy sale that it enjoyed when first known. In some localities it makes a fine tree, but in other parts it looks most miserable at all seasons, and at times it is attacked (in a young state) by a fungus that makes the branches drop out. Where it does well it will always be popular.

Practical Poultry Culture in the Southwest.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF STANDARD-BRED POULTRY AND THE PEOPLE WHO GROW IT.

CALIFORNIA VERSUS ENGLAND.

POULTRY CONDITIONS HERE AND THERE COMPARED.

By Henry W. Kruckeberg.

NOTE.—Short articles of a practical nature are cordially solicited from breeders and fanciers, relating their experience with poultry, giving their successes as well as failures. The writer will be glad, in so far as lies in his power, to answer inquiries of public interest bearing on any phase of an enlightened poultry culture, such as feeding and management, disease and its prevention, market conditions, fancy points, etc. The co-operation of utility breeders and fanciers is cordially solicited, to the end that the best thought and practice in an enlightened poultry culture may find a healthy expression in these columns.

J. J. DEAN, one of our leading and most skillful breeders of Orpington fowl, has just returned from a two-months' trip abroad, the major portion of which was spent in England visiting the leading poultry shows and breeding yards of that country. Mr. Dean returns with the conviction that not only is California good enough for him, but that the average of our best birds is quite the equal of the quality he saw while abroad. In some respects this was surprising to the writer, as from his reading, correspondence and observation, it was his conviction that in some of the essentials of an enlightened poultry culture the English breeders had us going. These points of differentiation have frequently been pointed out in this department, to some of which Mr. Dean takes exceptions. For instance, he says that in the Mediterranean class our birds are just as good from any point of view; that he saw no better Orpingtons than those that sport around in his own yards; that in Dorkings he saw some really fine specimens which were better than those seen here, but in the Cornish fowl the average California bird "had arrived"—showing better lacing in plumage and gracefulness of type; in Asiatics—(due possibly to climatic conditions)—he saw some very good birds, while in pigeons and bantams the fancy was more extended than ours, but quality of birds but little better. "We cry for green fields and meadows," said Mr. Dean, "but let me tell you it isn't all beauty and poetry over there. Green grass means muddy yards in England, and in many a poultry plant the ground is so wet that the birds are muddy and dirty to an extent wholly unknown in our dry climate. There is a livelier interest in the fancy in England than in America, but when it comes to intensive practical poultry culture, I saw nothing in Great Britain that will compare with the industry as it is practiced in Petaluma. Would I like England? Not as a permanency, thank you; California is good enough for me."

The Package and the Goods.

Guaranteed fresh eggs are as good as money in the bank in any town of Southern California, and in none more so than Los Angeles. Even when only properly graded as to size and color in the trade-egg cases, this holds good; but when properly cartoned by the producer, his product at once possesses an added attractiveness as well as an enhanced value to the thrifty housewife and the chef of the kitchen. An egg route has been a pet theory of the writer for years, though he has never known it to be carried out in this portion of the country. But even waiving that system of marketing, eggs cartoned with a guarantee as to freshness, possess an added value to the dealer which will enable him to secure an advance over the market price. Usually in this market this has amounted to from 5c to 10c per dozen. To make this system effective, eggs should be gathered every day and the date stamped on each egg. Eggs of uniform size and color are put in cartons or paper cases holding one dozen each. These are sealed with a label on which is printed a statement that the eggs are guaranteed to be strictly fresh, and are marketed, selling readily and at an advanced price. If the breeder establishes his own trade (selling direct to the consumers,) we believe the advance price over current market reports would be from 25 per cent. and up. The average consumer wants fresh eggs, and is willing to pay for a prime article.

Sayings of a Wise Bird.

From August to October is the period of hot weather in this section; it is also the molting period, the breeding season for lice and mites, and much of the disease that poultry life is subjected to. It seems hackneyed to expatiate on this subject—especially to the experienced; but there are many readers of The Times to whom poultry culture is new, and whom will appreciate timely suggestions even though more or less reiterated.

As has so often been emphasized in these columns, cleanliness and wholesome feeding are the main things to observe; in spite of them, however, insect life will find a lodgment in the best of breeding yards. Often lice and mites are carried by birds—especially pigeons—who feed off of what the hens miss; again in the introduction of new birds from other yards; in boxes and scratching material that may be used, and in many other seemingly innocent channels injurious insects are introduced. The beginner should examine his birds and house periodically for these enemies of the business.

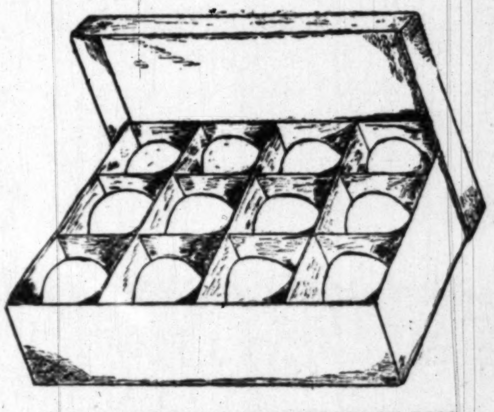
Since the fall season is again close at hand, a coat of whitewash over houses and fences can be commended. It acts as a purifier and at the same time is detrimental to insect life. To be effective, it should be thoroughly done. As a matter of fact, whitewash is a pretty good thing to indulge in more than once a year. Next examine the birds. Often an ailing specimen will be sound but for the parasite growths that are sapping its vitality. On more than one occasion we have been called upon to diagnose a flock of ailing hens, when an examination revealed the presence of lice and mites in countless numbers. There are two remedies, viz., insect powder and liquid lice killers. The former is worked into the plumage; the latter is swathed upon the perches—when the birds go to roost the animal heat from their bodies sends the fumes through the plumage, thus destroying the lice. Nests are often alive with the vermin before one hardly realizes their presence; remove and burn the old material and replace with new, first adding a pinch of insect powder or tobacco dust.

During the hot weather the drinking fountains quickly become filthy, and unless kept in a sanitary condition, disease germs become manifest and sick chickens soon make an appearance. Soft foods also sour within a few hours. Realizing these facts, the caretaker who loves his birds and respects his calling will exercise extra precaution in keeping the drinking vessels and feeding troughs pure and clean.

There should be no "let up" in keeping the young stock growing to a full development; if room is limited, the surplus birds had better be sent to market, and if breeding stock is your goal, segregate the sexes and even divide up your best birds into small flocks. In this way, you secure a stronger development, especially in the weaker ones who otherwise are crowded by the stronger; if you are going into the showroom, examine your best specimens for disqualifications and weak points.

A Killing Sale.

Squab culture is not without its followers in Southern California, a number of whom find Los Angeles a very fair market for their product. Pigeon culture always possesses some allurements to the lovers of bird life, and while often followed as a fancy, there are nevertheless those among us who have a penchant for the main chance of securing financial results from their birds. For the benefit of this class we give in condensed form M. K. Boyer's directions for killing and dressing squabs—a system which has been found to give a splendid carcass, and at the same time is expeditious and economic: A half-dozen or more squabs are hung on a rack at one time. The wings of each are then locked, which is done by drawing the wings closely together in the back, allowing one wing to overlap the other. This holds them firmly and causes no pain. The mouth of the squab is held open with the thumb and first finger of the left hand, the head and shoulders being held in the hand. With a knife in the right hand, the blade is inserted through the crown of the head, penetrating the brain. At once the operator releases his grasp and allows the bird to bleed thoroughly before starting to pluck.



A CARTON CONTAINING ONE DOZEN OF EGGS.

By the time about a half-dozen of the birds have been stabbed, the first killed has bled sufficiently to be ready for picking. The squab is then removed from the rack and held in the hands while plucking the feathers. This method is said to be the most rapid, it being found that from 100 to 150 squabs can thus be dressed in a day by one good operator.

Some pigeon men believe in holding the bird while killing, but it has been proved that birds held do not bleed so thoroughly as when hanging, owing to the fact that the hand more or less compresses the fine veins, thus retarding the flow of blood.

The Grit in the Box.

"Scarce as hen's teeth" is a saying which is literary true—for the poor biped in the chicken yard is actually devoid of teeth as we generally understand the expression. But it must not be supposed on this ground that the bird is devoid of means in masticating its food. This is accomplished by means of grit—sharp bits of gravel, particles of glass and crockery, oyster shells and similar materials of which the bird partakes as its instinct and needs suggest. In a state of nature this is picked up at random as the bird gathers its food; but in confinement this must be supplied by the breeder or owners of the bird. This is as essential to successful poultry culture as pure water and wholesome food; when fully appreciated, the successful poultryman will be as particular with his supply of grit to his birds as he is in feeding and management.

We wonder how many of The Times readers appreciate the all-importance of good grit to the average flock in confinement? Its importance can best b ized when we consider that birds have no teeth humans, and unless they have access to grit (gr material,) it is obvious they must soon suffer fro ments of one kind and another. As to kinds and ity, anything of a sharp and hard nature is good, th as a matter of fact, the hard crystal grit to be ha the poultry-supply houses is probably among the b for birds in confinement. Many people think grou shell is a grit; so it is in a modified sense, but it shou be fed with the harder substance, as it is a source o lime supply, hence affords material for the formation o shells.

The Duck That Beats the Hen.

Under date of August 17, Mr. H. W. Foote of th city sends in the following interesting note telling the doings of an Indian Runner duck in shelling o eggs:

"In your article on 'Indian Runner Ducks' in the S day Times, you say they rarely lay 200 eggs per year. have but one duck that commenced to lay at five mon on June 2, 1908. On June 1, 1909, it laid its 276th and since that date 56 more. There can be no questi about this as we have but the one, and it has been k in a pen by itself. We keep a daily record of the ou put of our different pens of hens and did the same wi this duck and have these records to show. We did n think about her being out of the ordinary until sh passed the 150 mark. It then became a matter of cu osity as to what she was going to do. I have hea of people who thought they had ducks that beat this r ord, but nothing to prove it with. She has been throu the molt once, and is now in her second."

What have the Indian Runner duck sharps to about this?

Life in a Submarine.

SIDE VIEW OF AN INTERESTING WAR VESSEL.

From London Daily Mail.

UT of the different types of vessels which go to ake a modern fleet, those which undoubtedly ite the keenest interest of the public at large [illegible] submarines. This, partly, because it is forbid[illegible] visit them, as the thousands of visitors who d the Thames banks this week have found out eir great disappointment; but chiefly because sub[illegible]nes are the latest type of vessel. And then there [illegible] much unusual romance and weird possibilities, so y mysterious powers attached to the conception of ose little salmon-shaped craft, in the mind of the un[illegible]ophisticated onlooker.

How do they look inside, what does it feel like to be losed up in one, how deep do they plunge, how many n live on board, and above all, what kind of life do se men lead? Such are the eager questions which ry one asks when in the presence of this latest and t deadly form of naval weapon.

efore taking the reader down in one of the sub[illegible]ines and introducing to him its mysteries, which less to say do not quite respond to the fanciful and st fantastic idea the average person forms about [illegible], a few preliminary details may be of use.

submarine is manned by a crew of sixteen—two cers and fourteen men. All are volunteers from the t.

The fourteen men comprise: Two artificers, to look er the engines, one stoker petty officer, three "sto[illegible]rs," one coxswain (first-class petty officer,) three etricians—or torpedo men, three seamen and one ding seaman.

[illegible] y man who volunteers for service in a sub[illegible]e must submit to a special medical examination, h attention being paid to the heart and lungs. The [illegible] on board one of those little vessels is not, as many ple think, particularly dangerous. But it is so en[illegible]ly different from that which is led in the other types [illegible]s that after having served two years or so in a marine the men are taken away from them and sent board a cruiser or battleship so that they may keep uch with the ordinary service.

t it also be understood that the active service in marines is limited to a period of three weeks—on [illegible]—during the summer, and one week during the ter. [illegible]e rest of the year the officers and men live [illegible] is called a "parent"—or "mother"—ship, but [illegible] exercise" the boat three or four times a week, erally from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., going through various olutions, such as diving and "attacking," and also rpedo firing.

Let us go down through the hatchway of the little ning tower. A few rungs of ladder and we reach main deck, the only deck, in fact, of the submarine, de the "fish," in the hull.

[illegible] first impression is one of heat. The air is close [illegible] heavy, and, as a seaman expressed it, "Ain't it k, sir!" and he added: "It soon makes you feel ppy, but they keep us so busy in here that we get r the drowsiness."

How small! The highest standing room is 6 feet 6 ches high, and toward both ends the roof gradually lines and the floor becomes narrower. The hull ta[illegible] away to a point, so much so, indeed, that as one eeds one must crawl on all fours. There are no holes. The hatchway of the conning tower is the [illegible] aperture, but when this is closed—while the vessel nder water—electric lamps illumine the small space. There are ventilators, of course, but when the sub[illegible]ine dives they are shut off with a cap. There are [illegible] partitions on this unique deck; the life on board a bmarine is essentially "in common;" the officers and n are always together.

The manner in which a multitude of objects are mmed in together in the narrow space—various sets [illegible] machinery, pipes, torpedoes, hammocks, cooking ap[illegible]ratus, and so forth—is almost miraculous!

"How do you spend the day?" I asked the coxswain.

"As a rule, we turn out at 6:36. At 7:45 comes eakfast. The two officers have the use of a wooden ble 3 feet by 2 feet, and two folding camp stools. The ooking is done in an electric oven, and we are careful not to use anything that may have a strong or disagreeable smell; no onions are used in a submarine, and very little fish. The fumes of the gasoline engine are bad enough. Our breakfast is generally made of ea, bread and butter, bacon and eggs. The men sit on he floor as well as they can. The bill of fare of dinner [illegible] generally beef and potatoes, and we get our grog—ree-quarters of water and one-quarter of rum—like ll other seamen.

"At 4 we have tea, and we take supper usually at 8. At 10:30 we turn in. As regards work, well there is uite enough to do keeping the place in order, cleaning he torpedoes, and everything else. There is no smok[illegible]g below, but when we are on the surface we smoke on he bridge."

"How are orders given?" I asked.

"In words—the place is small enough. There is no uch thing as 'piping' in a submarine."

I ventured to ask the coxswain a few questions about punishments, but he turned on me somewhat abruptly, and retorted: "We never need any, we are picked men!" But an officer gaily informed me that when there were any infractions of the rules, which hardly ver happened, the culprit paid the penalty when on oard the mother ship.

I then inquired about the noise, the speed, the dangers, and comforts of a submarine.

Contrary to the prevalent notion there is not much noise inside those little vessels when they are submerged, nothing but the buzzing of the motor, which, as an officer put it, "reminds one of the noise of the 'tube' on a smaller scale."

The greatest depth to which submarines go does not exceed thirty feet, but as a rule they travel fifteen feet below the water. The speed averages twelve or thirteen knots on the surface and eight knots below. The air is quite "breathable" for four hours, but in the case of emergency, thanks to special devices, the crew can remain seventy hours closed up in a submarine without danger to their lives.

"How do you like the life?" I asked my friend the coxswain.

"We all love it. It is so quiet, so interesting, and then there is not so much discipline as there is in a battleship.

"This does not mean that there is less order among us. On the contrary; but living as we do, in common, in a small space, the discipline has no need of being so stern. We are like one family, officers and men partaking almost of the same food, breathing the same air, leading the same life, and sharing the same dangers.

"But there is no danger to speak of in submarines. They are the safest things afloat providing every one does his duty. They are buoyant enough; they cannot get down unless we want them to.

By the way, the white mice we used to have to warn us of impending dangers have entirely been done away with."

"What do you use, then?"

"Oh, there is no need for us to use anything," he said. "We can smell any escape of petrol, and then we know that an explosion is possible, and we do what is necessary.

"When the weather is fair, there is naturally very little rolling. Submarines are steady and extremely seaworthy. It is the officers on the bridge who have the worst time of it. Of course, in a very rough sea we are shaken about a bit, and in such a narrow space we are bound to bump against something or other. But in such circumstances we stretch 'steadying lines' every few feet across the boat and hold on to them."

"Isn't your life rather depressing?"

"Not at all. What an idea!" And the coxswain laughed.

"We are the cheeriest crowd in the navy," said his officer. "There are no moldy people in submarines. Besides, every one knows that the supply of volunteers for service in submarines exceeds the demand."

The officer sang the praises of his men. His opinion and the attitude of the submarine men reminded me of Lord Charles Beresford's words concerning the characteristics of British seamen: "Splendid courage in critical moments, readiness of resource, individuality, a loyal sense of duty, combined with a chivalrous idea of honor and a cheery demeanor under all circumstances."

A FORGIVENESS.

[After Robert Browning.]

That was my hat you sat on. Flat i' the mud. . . .
"What's mud?" you ask. A fellow's hanged for less.
Fiat injuria! But we'll thrash it out,
Just you and I, and face to face, I trust.
I loved it: that at least you understand.
'Twas old as Time—the name within was Hope.
You, with the passion of your lesser years
Fermenting in you—'tis the yeast of life—
Broke out in horse play. And you sat on it.

Well, did I blame you? Tut, man, 'tis my way!
Get your arm set, and think no more on it.
Your broken leg? Well, men break promises,
And even hats are not unbreakable.
And that black eye I gave you . . . Keep the gift
In memory of one who can forgive,
Forgive, forget, and be himself again.
But dig a little deeper; find the root
Of that white flower which brushed you when I spoke,
Like that small whitish thing we call a star,
Or like a moon that's like a flower bell.
That was repentance, just the intenser shade
Of all that Fate intends we should perceive.
That's the great world's way! What? You do not take My meaning? Not yet? And you sat upon
My Hat! Man's meat is rotten egg to fools!
Worm-wanted sedantor! Embryo,
Quail-faced, cat-hearted! Yet I end . . . content!
Mine was the nobler, yours the baser soul,
Cui bono? Ape! De mortuis! Call a cab!

The New Office Boy.

His name was Augustus Athrobald Robinson, but in the business house where he had lately secured a position as office boy, everybody called him Jim.

He was very keen on retaining his position, so when a caller came in one day and made a violent complaint about a letter that had not been posted to him, Jim listened in terror.

"Where's that boy?" cried his employer, in a fury. "Here, you imp, take your coat and hat and get out! I'm ashamed of you! Go to the cashier and get your salary, and don't let me see you here again, you wretched little bungler."

Jim, terrified and almost crying, left the office and hurried away.

The next morning his employer called at his home and the youth came to the door.

"You young donkey," exclaimed the visitor, "do you suppose I really sacked you yesterday? Of course not! Come on back to the office, and every time a caller makes a complaint and I sack you, go round the corner till the customer's gone and then come back."

And that's how Jim started in business, grew up to be the manager of the concern, and now has an office boy of his own, whom he sacks regularly with every complaint that is made.—[Tit-Bits.

Home Life in Spain.

DOMESTIC SIDE OF THE COUNTRY OF ROMANCE AND REVOLUTION.

From London Daily Mail.

THE country of "Mañana" should justly be the country of youth which alone has a tomorrow, and perhaps in no land is it better to be young than in Spain. What does it matter to the girl whose life consists in dressing prettily and being socially charming, and accepting the flatteries of innumerable suitors, that many Spanish women are still regarded chiefly as ornaments in a somewhat medieval way.

Though strictly guarded by her parents, from the age of 15 till she is married, amusements are the one occupation of the Spanish girl, and the chief of these, it must be admitted, is flirtation.

For those few years she expects to be surrounded by suitors and to practice the social graces that have shared with needlework the chief place in her training. Of course, she never goes out alone, and when her parents cannot accompany her the dueña is in close attendance.

To be a dueña is practically the only occupation open to Spanish ladies of gentle birth who have been left unprovided for; by taking part in any other occupation they would almost certainly lose caste. The alternative is to become a nun. And to enter a nunnery, a dot is usually required in Spain, even as an undowered girl has poor chances of a husband.

Marriage, however, ends the reign of the queen among an army of suitors, and in the middle and lower classes life is not infrequently narrowed down to a rather drab existence by a jealous husband.

In other cases dress and theaters are often the chief ideas of a mother and her daughters, and an indulgent husband often has a severe struggle to make a small income cope with their passion for amusement.

As every one knows, the Spanish, during the warm months, especially, take a rest of an hour or two in the afternoon, after dinner. It is the famous siesta, which is as dear to the heart of the Spanish as keff is to the Turks.

It is later in the afternoon, when the host is refreshed by his siesta, that he receives his friends or acquaintances.

In summer, they are usually welcomed in the patio, the pretty square yard, with the whitewashed walls and the unavoidable dwarf palms and roses, which is a typical feature of every Spanish house. At other seasons, the guests are received in one of the rooms, or, first, in the sala de estrado, the hall of honor as it were.

Even the most unimportant reception assumes a pompous character in this land of romance and medieval and Moorish dignity. At the door a servant asks: "Quien es?" ("Who is there?") And the visitors reply: "Gente de paz." ("People of peace.") The gate is opened and they are led to the sala. The ladies do not rise to greet male visitors, but kiss all feminine visitors, even though they have met but once before. The sala is chiefly furnished with long, soft sofas running along the walls, and conversation begins, rendered picturesque to the uninitiated by the profusion of traditional expressions of courtesy and quaint forms of speech.

Altogether, a Spanish "at home" is a most original and pleasant affair, in spite of the "pomp and circumstance."

Reading was never a great occupation of Spanish women, and though in the last decade something has been done for education in the capital, it is not unusual for women even of high birth to spell with exceeding vagueness. However, if intellectual graces and accomplishments are often lacking, it must be admitted that Spanish women of every class are some of the finest needlewomen in the world. The visitor, indeed, is sometimes led to despair by the incessant useless needlework which appears their only outlet for energy. These rich embroideries lack even the excuse that covers the incessant activities of the German hausfrau.

As a rule, Spanish women are very indulgent and affectionate mothers, and in no country would children with more charming and modest manners be easy to find. In a land where class distinctions are still little disturbed the relations between the upper classes and their servants are quite kindly and considerate, and it would not be thought uncommon for a duchess to embrace her maid or for a servant to address her young master and mistress by their Christian names.

In some of the chief families every effort is made to retain the children's simplicity and keep them in ignorance of the high position that awaits them.

An English governess who was returning to her home in a little provincial town, where her parents kept a grocer's shop, was quite unable to persuade her charge, the heiress of a Spanish palace and innumerable names, that it would be impossible for her to accompany her.

"But I would promise to help in the shop," the girl declared volubly. "I would be awfully clever in weighing out tea and sugar, and I would not take a single almond—or if I did I promise faithfully to pay for it."

And this was at a time when her first ball was approaching.

Flee the Fly.

We do not care about the flea
That once flew up the flue;
If he has flown, it seems to be,
The fleetest thing to do.

The pesky fly is flying round,
Worse than the flea is he;
The flea has flown, but we'll be bound,
We wish the fly would flee.

Farming in California—The Land and Its Products.

CONDUCTED BY J. W. JEFFREY, STATE COMMISSIONER OF HORTICULTURE.

FIELD NOTES.

The Deluge.

I BID fair to be overwhelmed with query, approval and denunciation relating to the action of the Pasadena Gardeners' Association in denouncing the work of Luther Burbank. This horticultural riot began to affect my mail three or four days after the Pasadena declaration appeared, and has already assumed such proportions that I cannot attempt to answer all in a personal letter. Indeed, there is a better reason than that for not answering. I do not know what to say. Neither does any one else. But it is an insistent call for a clarification of the whole subject, and there is nothing more certain in this world than that the public will not be satisfied till the call is answered by a competent and disinterested decision.

Prof. Wickson, who has done more writing of a meritorious nature, and exerted the most helpful influence in a literary way toward safe and sane horticulture of any man in this State, has not ignored the controversy let loose by the Pasadena manifesto. He says the late denunciation is the logical reaction from fulsome adulation to denunciation. "It had to come, and it is better now than later," he writes. In the same editorial he says: "There is probably nothing which can be invoked to meet the unwisdom of the Pasadena manifesto except forgetfulness." This slip of a most logical pen shows how utterly we are all of us up against it when brought face to face with a problem of such magnitude as that of Burbank's work and yet exasperated beyond endurance at the frauds that are being committed in its name.

But Prof. Wickson does not leave his readers without a valuable suggestion. He never does. "If the Pasadena Gardeners' Association was burdened with the conviction that it ought to warn the world against being eaten up by Burbank, the proper course would have been to invite the other horticultural societies to join in a systematic inquiry into the facts, so that all lines of Burbank's work could be covered by a joint committee qualified to understand and judge." As to the necessity of this determination, I submit a few short extracts from a mass of correspondence received.

"I have lately read a work by one Harwood on the productions of Mr. Burbank. Among the marvelous achievements, Mr. Harwood describes a walnut tree developed by Mr. Burbank, which the author states to be a tree yielding as high-class hardwood lumber as the old, almost extinct black walnut, and that this wonderfully rapid-growing tree attains a diameter of two feet in the space of eight or ten years.

"In regard to the Burbank controversy, I wish to cite but one instance of extravagant claims upon the part of those handling the creations emanating from Santa Rosa. Hybrid walnuts are commonly found at Santa Rosa and in some of the larger valleys. One of the largest in the State was growing at Yuba City long before any one thought of 'creating' a hybrid walnut. In fact, it is impossible to get anything but hybrid seedlings by planting nuts, where the California and Persian walnuts are fruiting near each other. Our most eminent experts place no confidence in the claim of superiority made in behalf of any hybrid walnut over the common black walnut of the East."

"In a late catalogue issued by the Burbank Experiment Farms, Santa Rosa, four new smooth varieties of cactus are just offered to the trade—the Solano, Pyramid, Melrose and Hemet. The price is $1.50 per each slab cutting. Do you advise me to try a few of these novelties?"

A friend living in an adjoining State sent me a letter from a leading official of United States Bureau of Plant Industry in which the writer says: "The so-called spineless cactus is found throughout the Southwestern United States growing wild. The Department has collected it a number of times, and has it growing at several stations. It has no particular value over the ordinary form of cactus, as you will see from the publications forwarded."

These extracts indicate the state of the public mind upon the questions raised by the gardeners of Pasadena. In justice to both the people and to Mr. Burbank these matters should be placed beyond the realms of controversy through some authorized investigation. I could give a score of the same kind, but these are sufficient to indicate the critical condition into which this whole matter has been driven, and the justice of the call for an authorized and convincing verdict. Who will untangle the difficulties that have placed a great name in jeopardy, caused shame to sensational writers and doubt to possess a considerable portion of the practical fruit growers of the State?

Just a Little Shy.

THE one-score-and-ten thousand orange loads will scarcely materialize unless there are more Valencias still on the trees than are in evidence. The growers, however, have skated nearer the 30,000 mark this season than ever before. With the lemons added the total of citrus shipments has been more than 35,000 carloads, the lemons exceeding the output of last year by nearly 1500 loads.

But does any one really believe that the State has this season produced 30,000 carloads of oranges, or anywhere near that quantity? I do not. Can the car reports be duplicated? They cannot. But how were the railroad people to know that a large quantity of fruit sent out as Valencias was not oranges at all. It is true they were round, and were taken from orange trees; they had to pay the orange rate of $1.15 for freight and they were offered to the trade as oranges. Suppose but one car out of every sixty contained unmerchantable fruit. This would total about 500 cars of so-called oranges that did nothing but pull down the reputation of California as a citrus-producing State. I saw one carload here and another there, and was told by a grower that there were several more of this character sent out. Of course these poor Valencias were better inside than they appeared from the outside, but even then one lot I saw would have to be a dozen times as good inside as they seemed, to be marketable fruit at all. Fortunately the proportion of this class of fruit was exceedingly small, yet we may drop its percentage down to one car in every 120, and then lack perhaps 250 cars of reaching the mooted 30,000 that some have dreaded so long to see. Next season it will be different, and we will skate away from the dangerous limit so far that we shall be on new ground.

Fine Work Stock.

THE parade of work horses that is to take place at San Francisco on Admission Day will be a feature of unusual interest. Outside the spectacular element lies a deeper significance to this great show. It is in the superior care with which these fine creatures are treated and the absence of cruelty found in the use of work horses almost everywhere. San Francisco now has a large organization known as the Work Horse Association, the main purpose of which is the betterment of the welfare of draft horses. Have you ever observed the condition of these magnificent animals? Large, clean-limbed, fine-coated fellows without an abrasion or break under collar or harness, it seems that these splendid friends of commerce have been brought out of slavery into helpful and reciprocal service. The humane societies have done much, and common sense has done more, to place the dray horse upon a plane of respectability. Our carriage and farm horses are better treated than they were a decade ago, and well all these animals repay man for his humanity and better care.

Thirty years ago one could not cross the stony and sloping wharf street in St. Louis without witnessing a sickening case of cruelty. There was no limit to the load in those days, and no strong-armed law to collar a cruel driver who practiced scourging the blood from his patient team with a trace chain. I have seen some frightful cases of cruelty there, but at that time they did not seem to impress any one as objectionable. Absolute physical inability to move a load several times heavier than the team and up indefinitely steep grades and over impossible roads was considered evidence of balkiness which should be beaten out of the team there and then, regardless of the suffering of the faithful servants in harness.

Some people believe the world is getting worse. It may be, in some respects, but I tell you my farmer friends who love your cultivator teams as you love your dogs—I assure you the world is infinitely better in one respect at least. Suppose a driver along the wharfs should attempt to abuse his team today as he did a few years ago. Human nature would assert itself in about thirty seconds after the whipping began. An offer to fight would come from the driver of a near-by team; or some fine-togged gentlemen with an athletic record would stop the cruelty with an upper-cut; or the law would at once make that team minus a driver. But the heart of the public is right, and all it needed was a little human prompting. The world is better and there is now no more inclination to cruelty toward animals in the hearts of 90 per cent. of mankind.

Fruit Prices.

BROADLY speaking, the southern part of the State receives more uniform and better prices for the products of its orchards than do the central and northern territories. The South grows fruit not produced over a large area of the continent elsewhere; it has the best marketing system of the world and enjoys the most favorable shipping service and freight rates in California. These facts account for the more lucrative issues of the fruit business south of the Tehachapi.

On the other hand the regions of the San Joaquin, the Sacramento and the coast territories have the greatest diversity of horticultural products on the face of the earth. Of the crops that are now profitable in the main are currants, cherries, pears, peaches, plums, apples, olives, almonds, apricots and the choicest kinds of grapes. All these products are paying well this season, even with the hit-and-miss methods of marketing in vogue. Wine grapes, medium grades of table grapes, raisins, prunes and berries are at such a low ebb of prices that large quantities of these products are not salable at any price. As is the case in Los Angeles, fruits are profitable to the grower here only when sold at wholesale, either in car shipments to the East or to the canneries. Heretofore, the shipment of fresh fruits (pears, table grapes, peaches, plums, cherries and apricots) has not far exceeded one-half the citrus shipments of the State. But should some general plan of marketing prevail here, the tonnage of citrus fruits will in less than five years be far below that of the northern fruits named above. Within that time the tonnage of Tokay grapes alone will reach one-fourth that of the citrus output of the State, providing, of course, that market prices can be made to justify continued shipping.

The southern readers of The Times can have but imperfect conception of the immense development of fruit growing that is in evidence, especially in the Upper Sacramento Valley—"Superior California," as a local paper has named this section. To one imbued with modern distributive ideas, as are the people south, it would seem the utmost folly to principalities to new fruit orchards and viney out having a more definite plan of selling the best-posted man in one of our heaviest viticul ters forecasts an output of 16,000 carloads grapes annually in ten years from this date. inant causes of this great increase in fruit irrigational development and the constant less the cereal grain field. With resources almost bounded, the question of fruit distribution is minds of but a few growers. The future holds success or failure in proportion to the adoption of sible methods of distribution.

South "Es Purgatorio."

OPLE who visit Southern California now can have solutely no conception of the appearance of this of rare fruits, flowers and trees as it looked to visitors here fifty years ago. In the somewhat lore of the past I came across a speech delivered . Vallejo before a small assemblage of Riverside growers about twenty-five years ago. I have never Gen. Vallejo's speech in print and reproduce it to the contrast of the present-day south compared its apearance a few decades ago:

r. Chairman: "I am about the only representative he northern part of the State. I came down from ma county, 600 miles, to ask if it were true that was such a place as Riverside, and to compare it what it was at the time I formerly knew it. Santa is not a larger place than the beautiful vale of spoken of by another speaker; but I know the Clara Valley. I knew it before the speaker was It is beautiful, and has most everything that is lent. I was there in the first settlement of the Clara Valley. At least I was there sixty-five ago. It was at that time filled with florist timber wood, and oak, laurel and ash. Its soil was rich, its climate good.

fter that, I was sent up north, by the Bay of San cisco, where we were not so well fixed. I tell you, Chairman, we have a nice country—a good coun- up there. Now, sir, coming to the scratch, as you in English—I have to ask the ladies and gentlemen cuse my broken English, for I have to talk in my way—the first time I came to this part of the coun- I knew no Riverside. At that time—sixty years (1823)—it looked different. This is a sort of Ara- Nights business. I was then about 20 years of was with Father Boscano, with a military force round to Jurupa Valley. I did not know what erside meant then; didn't know the words "river" "side" at that time. We went to meet an Indian ef—San Jacinto. I don't know but you call him by Riverside name now. But according to my recol- ion, it was about there" (pointing in the direction the San Jacinto Valley.) "There was a large tribe ; and Father Boscano went with a whole military pany, commanded by a man named Francisco Maria s, to San Diego. Well, let's see. Now in the company, at that e, was a man named Nuestro Amo Pepe, a sort of ncy man—a poet—and he composed a little verse about is country:

La canal—segundo cielo,

Y San Francisco el infierno.

"'Monterey—hidden glory,
Santa Barbara—second heaven,
San Diego is the purgatory,
And San Francisco is hell.'

"This was written in 1776. Now, all these little things re in my mind when I came here the other day, and have been comparing them ever since with what they re seventy or eighty years ago. My father came to is place then; and although I would not say it was rgatory at that time, I would say it was very near At that time the country here was all rocks and orns; and the Riverside of sixty years ago is not the iverside I see now—a purgatory then; but I find it ry nearly heaven here with this happy people.

"During my life I have been all over this country and exico, and have seen their valleys full of orange and mon orchards; but never have I seen anything like is Riverside and its most happy people here. And I ll you, Mr. Chairman—and I speak it not lightly—that believe the Yankee people capable of turning purga- ry into heaven. When I go home and meet my wife—she is one of those people that turn purgatory into heaven—I shall tell her about it. She is 70 years of age; but not very old, either. She said to me when I left: 'Now, take me with you. I would like to see Riverside, and breathe its atmosphere.' When I get home, I will tell her about these orange groves and how I came among them by railroad. I expect some of these days we will be going by telegraph or telephone."

The Native Spineless Cactus.

MEXICO must be considered the most important prickly-pear country of the world. Its population has obtained a portion of its sustenance from this crop since the earliest tribal times. The prickly pear emblazoned so prominently upon the coat of arms of the modern republic has its origin in legendary history. It is not at all far fetched to suppose that the Mexicans, although then ignorant of the laws of plant breeding, as they are even today, made slight improvements in the plants with regard to the spineless characteristics, for although they value some spiny species much more than they do any of the spineless ones, they appreciate and take a pride in the spineless forms.

It has been a comparatively simple matter for the Mexicans to hold all the advantage they have gained from time to time by their selections, for the propagation has always been vegetative. Indeed, the plants are never grown from seed in Mexico, and it is commonly supposed among the poorer people, who are the ones that grow them, that they will not reproduce from seed. Many times has the writer been ridiculed for collecting seed of these plants upon the market-places, and as many times assured that they would not grow. On one or two occasions cuttings have been brought to him the next day out of sympathy for his ignorance and an earnest desire that his efforts should not prove fruitless.

These circumstances show that vegetative propagation is practiced and that such propagation has a tendency to eliminate spininess where smooth forms are appreciated by even an ignorant peasantry. This, coupled with the fact that all species of the genus are very variable in spine characters and that nearly spineless forms of possibly one-half of the species of the flat-jointed group may be found today in nature, would appear to account for the origin of many spineless cultivated varieties. Others are doubtless species which have become nearly or quite extinct except in cultivation.

It has been assumed by some that the improvements of spineless forms were made in the Mediterranean region of Europe. This assumption is possibly based upon the fact that the plants are more numerous there now than elsewhere in the world. It seems rather doubtful to the writer, however, whether this assumption expresses more than a partial truth, for there is an abundance of forms today scattered all over Mexico which are just as spineless as any that grow and apparently are identical with the Mediterranean forms. It is quite possible that the spineless forms were taken to Europe from Mexico and South America in much the same condition as they are grown there today. Our importations of spineless forms from Mexico and Southern Europe have as yet not been grown together long enough or studied thoroughly enough, nor have our investigations in Mexico been sufficient to warrant an opinion as to the identity of the forms. Certain it is that there are some Mexican varieties which seem thus far to be identical with those of Southern Europe. Others appear different.

Four spineless varieties are common in this country and have been cultivated for so long a time that their origin is not known. Some of these are as spineless as any known to science today.

WHERE "SPINELESS" CACTI ARE FOUND.

In the United States there exists today a considerable stock of spineless forms of prickly pears. Possibly not less than a half-dozen species and varieties are more or less common in gardens and private collections of the warmer sections, notably in California, in extreme Southern Arizona, on the coast of Texas, and in Florida. There is nowhere any large number of specimens, only a few plants usually being cared for.

The varieties commonly found in this country are few in number compared with those of other warm regions. During the past five years, not less than twenty-five varieties have been imported by the Bureau of Plant Industry. They have come from Mexico; the Mediterranean region of Europe, Asia, and Africa; the Hawaiian Islands; and from some South American countries. There are forms grown commonly in South Africa and in Australia and some of the other Pacific islands. It is believed that there are not less than thirty species and varieties belonging to the two genera Opuntia and Nopalea which have an agricultural value. The small, technically spineless but spiculed forms of no economic value are not considered in this list. Only those which are rapid in growth and become large plants are considered here.—[Bureau of Plant Industry.

Work Day on a Mississippi Plantation.

The day begins on a plantation when it is yet night. The big bell rings between 4 and 5 o'clock for the "hands" to go to the fields. Mammy starts her small sable assistants around at the "big house" with early coffee about 6.

Without this tiny cup of café noir your true creole gets up on the wrong side of the bed. He has no appetite for breakfast after a ride through the fields and still less for his generous noonday dinner. Supper is served at night and the dishes are typically southern, the corn and batter breads, fried chickens and waffles and fig preserves, with "syllabub," that moonbeam mixture that makes modern ices and confections heavy by comparison for dessert.

Life on a plantation is not dull. There are visits to town and a constant stream of visitors from town. There are "sugar-house" parties and hog killings, Christmas doings and Thanksgiving dinners, to say nothing of house parties and hunts.—[Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Useless Experiments.

THE following dispatch from Washington was recently published in The Times:

"The establishment of a laboratory for the study of criminal, pauper and defective classes, is provided for in a bill which the Committee on Judiciary soon will report to the House. The laboratory and the work of collecting sociological and pathological data are to be in charge of a director to be appointed by the President."

And what good will it do them, after they have made a long series of laboratory reports? Why not teach people how to live right? That is the only thing that will really help.

Again, a recent dispatch from Philadelphia announced that a physician claims to have discovered a sure method of diagnosing tuberculosis in the blood.

Well, what of it? Medical men tell us that practically every person of 30 years or over, who is dissected, shows the remains of tuberculosis in the lungs. Nature cures if you give her a chance.

The following interesting account of what are termed "fascinating experiments" is extracted from an article by Dr. Carl Snyder, entitled "The Quest of Prolonged Youth," appearing in the Monthly Review of London for September, 1906:

"Dr. Wolfgang Weichardt, a German physician, has recently made a long and arduous series of experiments—800 or more in number—with the most amazing results. He takes test animals, guinea pigs, for example, puts them on a miniature treadmill, and runs them until they fall dead from exhaustion. Then he expresses or concocts from the fatigued muscles of these animals a juice or sap. When this sap is injected into the veins of unworked guinea pigs, they show promptly all the outward signs of fatigue—can support no effort; their eyes stick out from their heads; at the end of twenty or forty hours they die. The sap concocted from the fresh, unworked animals shows no such effect."

Not many years ago, an Italian physician, a fiend in human form, made this experiment: He took a female dog that had puppies, bound her down on the operating table, placed her puppies beside her, and put her to the most excruciating tortures that his degenerate mind could conceive, letting up once in a while in order to see whether she would, in the intervals of agony, recognize her puppies, which the faithful animal did, turning over and licking them.

What do you think of such a man, and what would you like to do to him? Also, of what use is such a horrible experiment apart from the satisfaction of a morbid and cruel curiosity?

Again, in a recently-published book by J. Howard Moore of Chicago, entitled "The New Ethics," he tells of another heartless monster, also an Italian, who performed a series of experiments on turtles. One of these is thus described:

"He took a large turtle and cut away all the flesh from its body, cut away its limbs and viscera and lower shell, leaving only the head, backbone, and tail and upper shell. The part left was really little more than an animated spinal column; yet the poor bodyless thing had enough vitality left to hang onto a knife for a half-hour, and to bite off two of the fingers of the inhuman devil who was conducting the 'investigations.'"

In the California State Journal of Medicine for February W. A. Briggs, M.D., of Sacramento, had an article entitled "The Utilization of Social Waste Products." Translated from "ethical" medical lingo into common everyday English this means that the medical fraternity wants the bodies of condemned criminals to experiment on while they live. As the editor of the Care of the Body has frequently stated, the medical fraternity will never be satisfied with animal vivisection. What they are aiming at is the right to cut human beings up alive, for experimental purposes. This is already done to a far greater extent than the public is aware, in charity hospitals.

In his articles, Dr. Briggs points to the fact that two eminent authorities, Koch and Von Behring, hold diametrically opposite opinions as to whether human tuberculosis is or is not of bovine origin, the former taking the negative, the latter the affirmative opinion. It is for the purpose—among other things—of solving this conundrum that Dr. Briggs urges the right to experiment upon criminals.

Well, supposing the doctors prove that Koch is right, or that Behring is right, what then? Will that lessen the number of people who die every year from tuberculosis, so long as people continue to live wrong—to breathe foul air, to commit sexual excesses, to eat wrong food, or too much of any food? Apart from this, what a pitiful spectacle have we here, of medical "science" in the opening days of the twentieth century! Two of the leading exponents of that science quarreling as to whether tuberculosis may or may not be transmitted from animals to man, and doctors urging that they might be allowed to cut up human beings. For what? In order that they may be able to teach people how to live well and avoid disease? Oh no! In order that they may find out where the tuberculosis germ came from.

What is the use of "discovering" these things, if you don't teach people how to avoid disease, and cure it—if you don't tell them to cease to do evil and learn to do well—and show them how to do it?

What an awful lot of valuable time is wasted in useless laboratory experiments, that lead to nothing, but to further delay in educating the public on nature's laws.

A recent dispatch from Sacramento quoted Dr. N. K. Foster, secretary of the State Board of Health, as ridiculing the theory of a specialist of Jefferson Medical College, quoted in a Chicago dispatch, that pig's blood injected into the veins of human patients is a cure of tuberculosis. It really seems as if it should be unnecessary to attempt to refute such absurd suggestions as that here referred to, put forth by men who seek notoriety—and money. Yet the public is so credulous and ignorant in regard to everything relating to health and disease, that there will always be found many to grasp at the most impossible and revolting propositions of "cure"—anything except to give up bad habits.

What would you think of a man who, when a bitter, biting blast is blowing into the open window of his cabin, should take astronomical and engineering instruments, and sit down to find out from which exact point of the compass the wind came, instead of closing the window and putting another log of wood on the fire? You would think he was crazy, wouldn't you? Just so.

Mental Mysteries.

THERE is quite a boom just now in mental healing of various kinds. This naturally leads to further investigation in regard to the powers of the mind and mental phenomena, including, among other things those asserted manifestations that are vaguely classed under the head of "Spiritualism."

This is not a pleasant field of investigation, because it is so abundantly impregnated with fraud. In fact, it may safely be said that practically all the mediums who operate for money are imposters. One of the chief of these, a man who mystified the world about twenty-five years ago, was Slade. German societies issued ponderous pamphlets on his operations and were duped by him. Yet he was afterward exposed.

Of late years, there has been a tendency to institute a cold-blooded investigation of psychic phenomena, a society for that purpose existing in England, with a branch in the United States. Even these people, however, often find it difficult to avoid being drawn into premature belief in things that are "not proven," as the Scotch verdict has it. One American investigator who has written in a level-headed way, although he describes a number of startling mysteries, is Isaac F. Funk, D.D., LL.D., editor-in-chief of the Standard Dictionary, and a member of the firm of Funk & Wagnalls Co., publishers of that excellent weekly review, the Literary Digest. Dr. Funk's book, "The Widow's Mite," dealing with psychic phenomena, aroused much interest several years ago. His latest book is "The Psychic Riddle." (Funk & Wagnalls Co., 44 East Twenty-third street, New York.)

On the title page the author quotes Dr. Goldwin Smith of Canada, who has said: "Always we have to remember that our knowledge is bounded by our senses, and that we may be in a world quite other than that which sense reveals."

As to public incredulity, the author quotes Sir Walter Scott, who wrote from London to a friend in Edinburgh, about a century ago, as follows: "There is an idiot here in London who declares that he can light the city with coal gas passed through a tube." To this it might be added that even as recently as twenty years ago some other idiot might have written in similar vein in regard to wireless telegraphy, which we now regard as a matter of course.

Dr. Funk does not claim that spiritualism has been scientifically demonstrated. He believes the proofs in favor of it are stronger than those against it. He admits that what are called spiritualistic manifestations are in large part due to fraud. Apart from this, he believes there are whole classes of phenomena which point clearly to the operation of intelligent forces outside of human bodies. He admits that never in an interview with a second medium has he had described, with anything approaching exactness, a previous interview.

Dr. Funk tells, further, how one medium described the inhabitants of Mars "from personal observation." Another medium who claimed to have visited Mars said it was wholly uninhabited and practically destitute of vegetable and animal life. Some "spirits" have assured Dr. Funk that there are animals and flowers and trees in the spirit land. Others say there are not. Some say there are hospitals, schools, and churches; others the reverse. Some say no one in the spirit realm believes in what we call God; others that He is preached and believed in far more than here. The author quotes one prominent spiritualist, who had consulted thirty medi-[illegible] the subject of obtaining a communication [illegible]ive in the spirit life. In these communica[illegible] were twenty-seven contradictions and no [illegible]ths.

[illegible]culty of communicating with spirits,* the [illegible] the following suggestion:

"[illegible]mony from many seance-rooms is that spir[illegible] bodies of which their physical, earthly forms [illegible] outer, coarser forms, and that they in this new [illegible]eed something akin to breathing and that when [illegible]ter earthly conditions they experience a difficulty [illegible]eath like that we experience in going into a place [illegible]oul smells. So if these spirits are to be believed, we [illegible] not get free from taking care of bodies by dying."

Many must have wondered why the Indian so fre[illegible]ly figures as a "control" of mediums, unless it be [illegible] is easy to make up as an Indian. In this book, [illegible]nk reports a number of asserted messages from [illegible]ian chief, who explains the reason that Indian [illegible] take a large part in spiritual manifestations is [illegible] America was their hunting ground and the red [illegible]d close to nature and were thus tremendously [illegible]c.

[illegible] Indian chief, by the way, who is supposed to be [illegible]cated Indian of exceptional ability, referred to [illegible] the white women in a seance as a "squaw." An [illegible]d Indian would scarcely do that.

[illegible]ther point touched upon by Dr. Funk is the ques[illegible]hy mediums insist on darkness, or semi-darkness, [illegible]rry out their operations. A "spirit" is quoted as [illegible]g that the physical condition of the medium makes [illegible]other course impossible; that were the medium in [illegible] health, they might experiment, but now they can[illegible]hat to try it would be fatal to the medium. In [illegible]tion with this subject, Dr. Funk draws attention [illegible] fact that light has a certain dynamic power; that [illegible]ild matures before birth in absolute darkness, [illegible]at light must be excluded from the photographic [illegible] also that light has been found a serious detri[illegible]n wireless telegraphy.

[illegible] is a peculiar suggestion in regard to the as[illegible] possession by some mediums of a double spinal [illegible] These statements are supposed to emanate from [illegible]dian chief:

"[illegible] understand the mind works through the brain. [illegible] the mental force is added what may be called [illegible]tal force which is more closely connected with the [illegible]nervous system. These forces produce what may [illegible]lled electro-magnetism. Follow me closely. Now, [illegible]ave found that there are some mortals born with a [illegible]le spinal cord. This is very rarely a fact. This [illegible] spinal cord generates the force we need for our [illegible]ular purpose, that is, to produce the vibrations [illegible] you call 'voices.' So delicate and important is [illegible]rce produced by this second spinal cord, that a [illegible]e man stands behind this medium all the time [illegible] this force, and brings a pressure to bear at the [illegible] the cord, near the base of the brain. This ex[illegible] why this medium says she feels a tapping going [illegible] the base of her brain while we are talking."

[illegible]hysician, who was supposed to be another spirit [illegible]munication with earth, is reported as saying that [illegible] practicing medicine here he read the report of a case of the finding of a double spinal cord in dissecting the body of a Scotchman in Berlin, Germany.

Dr. Funk thinks that the so-called spirit photographs may be explained on the basis of Crooke's thought vibratory theory. The author also points out that many stars have been discovered by photograph of which the light vibration could not be detected by the naked eye.

Some believe that these so-called spiritualistic phenomena may be explained on the basis of telepathy—of the transference of thought from one person to another. That, however, would not account for the voices. These might be due to hypnotism. We know what wonderful tricks of deception are performed by Indian fakers, who are said to be able to hypnotize a whole crowd of people simultaneously.

Whatever may be the true explanation of these and other psychic manifestations, which we do not at present understand, of one thing we may be perfectly sure, namely: that when, if ever, they are explained, it will be found that they are perfectly natural, for there is not, nor ever can be, any such thing as "super" natural. As recently as twenty years ago we should have thought the idea of communicating with a person hundreds or even thousands of miles away, without any connecting link, as something "supernatural."

Suggestion and "Science."

ONE phase of the general revolt against the use of poisonous drugs in the treatment of disease has been, as usual, a tendency to rush to the other extreme, and take up mental suggestion as a cure-all. We see this in various phases of suggestion, such as suggestive therapeutics, the worship of relics, "divine healing," "Christian Science," etc.

Suggestion is good as far as it goes, but, as frequently stated here, no amount of "taking thought" will make up for wrong living.

Some of the statements referring to health and disease found in Mrs. Eddy's book "Science and Health" are so extraordinary that it is astonishing to find so many apparently intelligent people who swear by this volume. On the other hand, here are a few remarks on the subject by keen, deep thinkers. The first is by Dr. Polk, dean of the medical department of Cornell University, published in the New York Medical Journal:

"Take Science and Health, separate yourself from disturbing surroundings, open its pages with a mind even somewhat prejudiced, set yourself seriously to the task of comprehending its various iterations and reiterations, its statements backward, its statements forward, its statements sidewise, and every other wise, of its initial proposition, throughout its 569 pages, and I know there are many of you who, long before you had fathomed its depths, would find yourself in a state of mental vacuity fit for the action of 'suggestion.'"

Next, we will take a statement from "The Examination of Christian Science" by H. Martyn Hart, D.D., dean of Denver:

"If any cure (in mental therapeutics) be effected, it has nothing to do with the truth or untruth of the particular theory of the professor; it is simply that by his methods the mind is stimulated to reassert itself. Success greatly, nay, often entirely, depends upon the disposition of the mind of the patient, the nerval susceptibility, and the strength of the expectation. If these be favorable, then a perusal of Mrs. Eddy's book is no small mesmerizing condition. I have found that Science and Health is the best mode of inducing the mesmeric sleep I have ever experienced. The repetition of senseless sentences, with constantly-changing signification of words, whose new meanings have to be gleaned from the context, produces a strange maze which dazes the mind and produces a mesmeric condition. The modus operandi of the Christian Scientist healer is to all intents and purposes that of the hypnotist. By the silence, the motionless sitting, the subdued voice, the cabalistic sentences—for they are senseless, and cannot excite the intelligence—the mind is soothed; then the suggestion is given, and, in the denial of disease, the repeated assertion of particular cure is pointedly made and impressed."

Thirdly, here is an extract from "What is Christian Science?" by the Rev. P. C. Woolcott:

"What really happens when you attack these tiresome, monotonous pages, is this: You struggle at first to master the difficulties and get at the meaning. If you become convinced that it is not worth the effort, you dismiss the matter from your mind, and that is the end of it. But, if you force yourself to the task, and pore over the pages, you soon fall into a condition of mental dizziness or vertigo. The reasoning faculties are benumbed, your critical judgment is lulled to sleep, and suggestion dominates your intellect."

The "Nature Cure" in Germany.

DR. R. D. EMERY of Los Angeles, who, with his wife, has been making a tour of the leading European hospitals and health resorts, writes from Cologne to the editor of the Care of the Body as follows:

"I shall take great pleasure in telling you about the advance that is being made in natural methods of healing when I see you. I find it everywhere I go, old methods rapidly giving way to the new."

THIS REPRESENTS WHY INDIANS (OR NATURE'S CHILDREN) ARE NEVER RUPTURED OR CONSTIPATED, THUS RARELY ILL

HAVE YOU SUFFERED INTENSELY ENOUGH AND BEEN PROFESSIONALLY and COMMERCIALLY STUNG ENOUGH YET to learn some just common sense regarding cause and cure Nature's way (and there positively is no other.) If so you are now ripe for Dr. Adolph Petter's NatureAID (Just Natural) common-sense system of creating the natural cure of all mental, structural and vital organism Dis-ease of the human body.

Like a gardener who makes favorable conditions for growth of neglected, hence weakened vegetables, the NatureAID system of treatment simply cultivates out the destructive sickness, failure and early death dealing principle of the all-creating, all-governing natural (hence infinitely wiser than mere man-made) law of equitable compensation that created and must govern the human body, or kill it for continued disobedience, and it thus simply harmonizes the body with the constructive principle of this same natural law, which is the only key to vigorous health, honorable success and long, happy life.

In my curriculum of inducing cures are included:

RUPTURE

Fallen Womb, all Deformities, Spinal Curvature, Malformations, Large Abdomen and All Other Fallen Organs or Parts.

And I actually make Trusses for the peculiarities of each particular case, contract to satisfy or money back, you to judge.

Elastic Stockings

Shoulder Braces Suspensories

Etc., to order only, and every conceivable sort of body-supporting and correcting utility. When you have enough of others let me send you to my cured patients. A postal, telephone message or call secures a free copy of

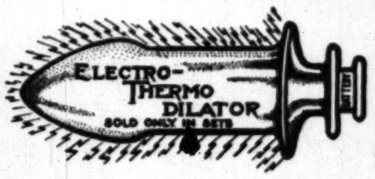
A Home Cure for

Chronic Constipation



The construction of the Sphincter Muscle causes Constipation by obstructing the flow of blood in the hemorrhoidal veins, also causes Hemorrhoids or Piles. The only certain method of obtaining a cure is by the proper divulsion of the Sphincter Muscles in the rectum. Drugs can have no permanent effect over this condition, as they only stimulate the nervous system at the expense of the stomach. The combination of electricity and dilatation re-establishes the muscular strength of the bowels and rectum and acts on the nerves of the entire system, increasing the circulation, strengthening the heart action, and makes the Torpid Liver active and brings about a perfect state of health. Our appliances are sold under a positive guarantee. If you suffer from Constipation, Piles, Rheumatism, Nervousness, Insomnia or Poor Circulation, a trial will convince you that Electro-Thermo Dilators will do all we claim and even more. A treatment so simple is worthy of trial. Call at our office and examine these appliances. Everything strictly confidential. If you cannot call, write for free illustrated booklet. to the injuriousness of table salt, asks how the editor can account for the fish in the sea.

When a man can live and flourish in the depths of the ocean, then it will be time enough to talk about this. A man is not a fish. Even a fresh-water fish will die when put into salt water, or vice versa.

The correspondent will also please note that a human being cannot live on grass, although a horse or a cow will flourish on that diet.

Leprosy not Contagious.

A DISPATCH from Bergen, Norway, recently announced that Dr. Armauer Hansen and Prof. Ehlers of Copenhagen, when questioned respecting some of the problems before the leprosy conference, recently in session there, agreed in saying that the disease is not hereditary nor contagious, although heretofore it has been held to be both.

Now, here is a disease that the medical profession has always insisted upon describing as the most dangerously contagious of all known diseases. Since the days of the Bible, when lepers were forced to shout out "Unclean!" as they approached a village, the leper has been shunned as a deadly and dangerous being. Every few months we read in the papers of the case of some unfortunate wretch who—truthfully or otherwise—accused of having leprosy, has been driven by the community to a tumble-down shack, and there made to suffer from neglect and aversion.

Now that we are told leprosy is not contagious, perhaps the doctors will gradually come around to the truthful proposition that there is no such thing as "contagion" or "infection" as those terms are generally understood.

Leprosy is undoubtedly due to a deficiency of certain organic salts in the food consumed, to which may or may not be added personal uncleanliness. No cure can possibly be of permanent avail unless this defect is recognized and remedied.

Sterilizing Criminals.

AS reported in the telegraph columns of The Times, a debate in the recent American Prison Association Convention at Seattle on the "Indiana Plan" for preventing the production of criminals and idiots developed almost an unanimous sentiment in favor of the idea. Reference was recently made in the Care of the Body to the adoption of this system in Indiana, where a number of criminals have been so treated.

A correspondent writes to ask what the "Indiana Plan" is. It is an almost painless operation of minor surgery, by which a nerve is severed, which, while not interfering with sexual intercourse, prevents the generation of offspring by the male. In this it differs essentially from the more radical process of castration.

An Important Reform.

ONE of the most important steps toward a reform that combines philanthropy with profit is announced from Chicago. The following Chicago dispatch recently appeared in The Times:

"The centralization of the combined garment manufacturing interests of this city by the erection of a group of eighty buildings, to cost approximately $5,000,000, and the abolition of the 'sweat shop' by the building of homes, clubhouses, libraries and gymnasiums for 8500 employés, in brief, was the plan launched tonight by the Chicago Garment Manufacturers' Association.

"The scheme devolved by Sol H. Shoninger, president of the organization, was pronounced perfectly feasible. Mr. Shoninger, together with Hugo Dubrock and Attorney Jarvis Cratty, were appointed a committee to carry out preliminary plans and search for a location. Their plants at present are scattered in various parts of the city, and a federation of their respective industries in a central location, they desire, will mean an annual saving of thousands of dollars in rent, insurance and other items.

"The combined plant will cover an area of forty acres, and drawings have already been prepared by Mr. Dubrock. At either end of the row of factory buildings will be recreation houses, including, possibly, a swimming pool, together with a library, gymnasium and restroom for employés."

Right-thinking people will assuredly feel satisfaction in purchasing ready-made garments when they know that they have not been produced at the cost of the happiness, or even the lives of thousands of unfortunate men, women and children.

There is no more promising field for public-spirited philanthropy than the betterment of the physical condition of the "submerged tenth" in our large cities, which condition is rapidly becoming as bad—in some cases perhaps even worse—than that existing in the slums of large European cities. Next to getting the surplus congested population of our big cities on the land, the best thing is to furnish them with he[illegible]y, hygienic dwellings in or near the cities where they earn their living.

It is highly absurd to expect people to be moral or virtuous so long as they live under conditions that would disgrace the abodes of swine on a decent hog ranch.

Unappreciated.

JIMMIE is at the age where the form pales before the substance. At the last party he went to, the principal dainty of the supper was delicate creamed chicken served in pretty frilled paper cases. On his return, he was put through the usual catechism.

"And what did you have to eat?"

"Huh! nothin' but hash in candle shades!"—[Harper's Magazine.

Foolish Ideas About Eating.

FOLLOWING is an extract from a recent New York dispatch to The Times:

"Mr. Harriman is a victim of years of insufficient nourishment. He has not taken food enough, and such as he has taken has not always been of the proper kind. His tissues are wasted and his nerves are in a bad state. In order to overcome this condition, Mr. Harriman has been ordered to stuff himself with nourishing food and give nature a chance to build up the wasted tissues and tone up the starved nerves. If necessary, he must have a meal every two hours."

It is quite probable that Mr. Harriman has not eaten of the proper kind of food, but it is improbable that he has not eaten enough in quantity. It is, of course, not surprising to learn that the wealthy patient has not shown much benefit from the extraordinary diet of beer and bread, upon which he was put by the learned and distinguished Austrian physician.

What foolishness it is to suggest that by stuffing himself with food he may increase his strength. As if the mere shoveling of food into the cavity in the face which we call the mouth, and thence into the stomach, is all that is necessary to insure physical growth. What is the use of swallowing food when it is not digested. Don't we daily see people gorging and losing weight? It only adds to the complications from which the patient suffers. It would be as reasonable to force a man with a broken leg to walk. The proper thing to do is to begin with a short fast, then to reduce the food—food of a proper kind, abounding in the organic salts—to a quantity which it is found the patient can digest and assimilate, and after that by causing him to inhale plenty of oxygen and to take moderate exercise, gradually to increase his power of digestion and assimilation.

This is an exceedingly simple proposition, but it seems altogether too simple for most of the learned members of the medical fraternity to understand.

Dangerous Drugs.

POISONOUS drugs of new kinds are constantly being introduced by enterprising manufacturers. They are mostly "made in Germany." You may see multifarious advertisements of their manifold virtues(?) in "ethical" medical journals. Here you may also note how from time to time, as the dangers of these drugs make themselves apparent even to the enthusiastic "regular," they are discarded for others, just as women change the mode of their attire from time to time, without any apparent cause.

In a recent number of a medical journal there was an "ad." of a "glycerine tonic" which, we are told, "unlike most tonics, has no contra-indications." There is an ad. of "pellets," which "obviate pain without depressing the heart, and without false stimulation, and without creating a habit." They contain, we are told, "no acetanilide, acetphenetidine, phenacetine, or antipyrine," all drugs that have been enthusiastically advocated from time to time by the various medical organs. There is also an advertisement of an "ideal purgative" which, we are told, is "minus cathartic iniquities." Yet another advertisement tells us that "the uncertainty of galenical medicines is acknowledged by every doctor to be the greatest bar to professional successes."

It is interesting and instructive for laymen to occasionally peep behind the medical screen, and see how the puppets work. Only, in this case, the puppets are not simply amusing. They are dangerous.

Kitties.

"No kitties in camp," is Gen. Kidd's order to national guardsmen. For the benefit of the uninitiated, we will say that the camp "Kitty" is something like a blind tiger, only she isn't a tiger and she isn't blind.—[Pontiac Press Gazette.

TESTIMONIALS
LOS ANGELES, CAL., FEB. 27, 1909.
MR. H. H. GUSTIN, Manager, THE STOLZ ELECTROPHONE CO.,
Dear Sir:—The Electrophone I purchased of you two months ago has been such a boon to me that I am impelled to confer what benefit I can upon those afflicted with deafness by urging them to give your Electrophone a trial, especially since you offer free tests.
I have experimented with many "Helps to hear" for several years, but have discarded them all but yours, which fits my case exactly. Those who daily have to converse with me are as enthusiastically pleased with the instrument as I am.
By permitting you to use this I feel I am only doing a duty to my fellow-sufferers. I think they will agree with me that the genius who invented this instrument is entitled to our everlasting gratitude.
Very respectfully, JOSEPH T. TATUM, City.
